SOUTHERN ROUTE SEEMS FAVORED

Federal Member Says Provincial Highway Plans Approved.

Princeton—The interesting information that the Dominion Government had approved plans forwarded by the B. C. Government for the construction of a highway from Vancouver to Hope and from Hope to Osoyoos, and would pay 40 per cent. of the cost as soon as work was commenced thereon, was made by Mr. H. H. Stevens, M. P., of Vancouver, before the Princeton Board of Trade, on Thursday, Nov. 18.

Mr. Stevens explained to the Board that the Dominion Government had arranged to assist all the provinces with their road building programmes and had set aside certain moneys for that purpose. There was about one million and a quarter dollars allotted to B. C. and this would be used in paying 40 per cent. of construction of a number of highways, plans for which had been submitted by the B. C. Government and approved by the authorities at Ottawa. Among these roads was one from Vancouver to Hope, thence to Osoyoos and on to the Crow's Nest. The money for this would be paid as soon as construction commenced.

Last spring, Mr. Stevens said, the late Senator Shatford enlisted his services and they took up the matter of this road with the authorities with good results.

Personally he was strongly in favor of the construction of the road from Hope to Princeton as soon as possible. The low cost of building this road by which the interior would be lined up with the coast, rendered it imperative that the work be undertaken with as little delay as possible. As regards the Fraser Canyon route, he considered that the time would come when that and many other roads would be opened up. It had been alleged, he said, that owing to snow on the summit the road would be closed against traffic for a good portion of the year and he wished to know if this was really the case.

Mr. A. E. Howse explained that the Copper Mountain road was at a higher elevation than the summit on the Hope-Princeton road and had been kept open all winter. The Hope-Princeton road could easily be kept open all the year round.

Mr. Stevens promised the board his continued support in this matter. He further promised to again take up the subject of the running of a through mail coach on trains from Nelson to Vancouver. It was explained in this connection that at present a mail coach was put on the train from Nelson to Midway where it is taken off. There was then no mail coach with the train until Hope was reached, consequently all towns between Midway and Hope suffered from serious delays in mail service. Mr. Stevens said that this subject should have prompt attention when he returned to the coast.

FRUIT PROSPECTS FOR NEXT YEAR

Optimistic Forecast by Market's Commissioner.

The fruit crop of 1920, in British Columbia, was disappointing, having fallen to 50 per cent. of the 1919 crop. The cause was principally the early October freeze in 1919, which caught the tree growth unprepared; instead of the trees producing their usual fruit yield nature re-established the injury thus sustained. The growers of the whole north-western Pacific suffered uniformly, while their Eastern brethren had the best fruit crop in many years. On account of the yearly increase in apple production in 1919, British Columbia shippers extended their market areas to Eastern Canada, the United States and Great Britain. Last year over 1,000 cars were shipped to those markets; this year this number may be cut in half and the natural market of the prairie will for this year divide the unobtainable supplies usually furnished by British Columbia between Ontario and the North-western States.

Are the fruit growers of British Columbia disheartened? Emphatically no; the shortage of fruit has resulted in ample growth of new vines and fruit-bearing wood, which, with an even break in luck, will produce a record crop in 1921.

The berry acreage has doubled and the tree acreage has materially increased. This increase is all along intelligent lines. The fruit grower

DANGER OF DEER EXTINCTION

Washington Papers Have Same Story as Here.

Several of the papers have sounded the warning of the danger of the extinction of the deer in this county. Every hunter who went out after deer did not succeed in getting one, for if they had, there would have been no more deer left in the hills, for a multitude of gunmen made strenuous efforts to bag this slowly disappearing animal. But even at that more deer were killed in Okanagan county during the open season than any season in years, and most of the killing was done by hunters coming into the county from a distance. In former years there were few non-resident hunters to thin out the deer family, but the automobile has solved the problem of speedy transportation and hunters can come here from long distances without any difficulty, and every year the flock of hunters invading the Okanagan hunting grounds is increasing in size. Some means must be devised for the better protection of the deer or within a very few years there will be no deer left within the county.—Oroville Gazette.

The "Skookum" Slips Her Cable.

The storm on Sunday was responsible for the breaking away from her moorings of the "Skookum" and her beaching in the mud between the English stable and the wharf. The ropes were not broken, but the knots had been slipped, probably owing to the fact that the ropes were new. It entailed nearly two days' hard work to drag the boat off. Fortunately no damage was sustained.

BUSINESS CHANGES

Several Transfers Effecting Local Concerns.

The decision of F. B. Corey to retire from business, is occasioning several changes in the local mercantile field. The announcement is made this week, in their advertising space, by the Mercantile Company, to the effect that that company has taken over the stock of clothing and gents' furnishings carried by Mr. Corey. This stock will be added to, and a new department will be opened for this purpose by the Mercantile Company. To make room for this, they are disposing of their stock of crockery to the firm of Butler & Walden. This latter firm has taken a lease of the Corey store, and the wall separating it from their own is being removed, thus giving Butler & Walden the much needed increased floor space.

already highly specialized has planted the popular market varieties of fruit in the locations where they come to perfection, all the grade B apple varieties are being discounted and districts found unsuitable for the production of the higher grade apples are going into other agricultural pursuits more suited to the location. The near future will witness a greatly extended production of all the popular market varieties of fruit. In berries alone it is safe to predict for next year more than three times this year's output. Will this glut the market? We do not think so. There is an increasing demand for jam and other by-products. The jam factories of the United States and Great Britain will take care of any surplus berries that may arise. The prairie market has been starved by shortage of fresh berries for several years, and their needs are at least three times the quantity they have been supplied. Sugar shortage and high-priced fruit placed this health-giving necessity in the luxury class. (We think the sugar shortage has ended). Will prices come down? We are inclined to think that they will, and this should not be unwelcome news to the growers. All commodities are on the toboggan. The slide will not be swift, old pro-war low prices will not come back, but we think that production of sufficient quantity of fruit in British Columbia will result in extending markets with a price ruling that will encourage the grower to grow fruit, and the consumer to consume it in health-giving quantities.—Fruit Market Bulletin.

A shipment of three pure bred Jersey cows and one bull from Vancouver Island to Peru has been made. They are said to be the first animals of this breed to be shipped to Peru. All of the animals were born in British Columbia.

J. W. JONES ADDS TO HIS MAJORITY IN SOUTH OKANAGAN

Odds Over Opponent Much Heavier Than Four Years Ago—Macdonald, Liberal, North Okanagan, and MacKenzie, Conservative, Similkameen, Both Re-elected.

GOVERNMENT 22 IN HOUSE OF 47

Minister of Public Works May Be Left at Home.

The counting of the absentee ballots will make some changes in the totals cast for the candidates for seats in the Provincial House, and in some cases may possibly change the results. According to a message received late yesterday afternoon, the returns had been so altered as to give the Liberals 22 seats, and the Conservatives 17. Six other seats were held by Independents, and two were still in doubt, one of these being Atlin, and the other Cranbrook, where it had first been stated that Dr. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, had been returned. Later his election seemed in doubt.

Local Night School Suggested.

At the open forum on Sunday afternoon, Mr. D. J. Welsh, principal of the High School, stated that he had received word from Mr. Kyle, superintendent of vocational work, to the effect that if ten or more persons wished to obtain evening tuition a night school would be established here. Those wishing to take advantage of this proposal are requested to communicate with Mr. Welsh. Incidentally, it was stated that Mr. Kyle had expressed his approval of the work of Mr. Chas. Baker, and considered him one of the best manual training instructors in the province.

WANTED MORE.

The provincial election campaign was the occasion of a rather interesting meeting, which was held Monday evening in the Rialto theatre. The discussion of political subjects there, was the outcome of a request by representatives of the local Labor Party, that leaders of the Liberal and Conservative parties explain their platforms, so that the Labor voters would know for which of the two to vote, as they were not themselves putting a man in the field. The meeting was arranged rather hurriedly, but for all that there was a fair attendance. W. C. Kelley spoke for the Oliver Government, and J. M. Sutherland championed the Opposition candidate. J. W. S. Logie also spoke, giving a review of the labor movement and telling something of its aims.

"When Doctors Disagree, Who Shall Decide?"

Some amusing diversity of opinions came to light during the informal political discussion held in the Rialto on Monday evening, the stumbling block being a "correct interpretation of the irrigation policies of the two political parties. A query on this point brought out an elucidation which apparently failed to elucidate, and the meeting ended with the problem still in doubt.

December Buds and Blossoms.

The local weather conditions continue to eclipse all records. When the fall of last year is recalled and memories of apples frozen on the trees in October obtrude themselves, the contrast is all the more apparent. At Naramata ripe raspberries were seen last month, and today buds and blossoms are in evidence in many places. This sort of thing is what we have come to expect from the Sunny Okanagan, and we perhaps do not fully appreciate the benefit of living in such a district.

DOUBTFUL.

Atlin—

Returns of the provincial elections, held on Wednesday, while not yet quite complete, are sufficiently full to show the approximate standing of parties in the new legislature. The list gives a total of twenty-four Liberals, fifteen Conservatives, four Labor-Socialist, two Independent and two doubtful. Vancouver returns five Liberals and Victoria three, against one Conservative in each of those cities. At the last election, Vancouver returned six Liberals and Victoria four.

The outstanding feature of the present election is the heavy reduction in the government majority. The 1916 landslide gave the Liberals 38 seats, against 7 retained by the Conservatives. The new balance of 24-15 gives a strong opposition, which is in many respects desirable. In the local constituency the verdict of the electors is unmistakable. The 1916 majority for J. W. Jones was but 85—today it stands at 410, the voting being favorable in all but four of the polling sub-divisions. The City of Kelowna itself gives the loser a majority of 15, which is emphatically reversed by the returns of the adjacent rural districts. Both polling stations of Summerland gave substantial majorities and, incidentally, polled a total vote larger by 64 names than at the recent by-election. Peachland was again to the front with a decisive balance and Naramata, with a slightly heavier vote than in the Federal polling, gave a majority of rather more than half in comparison. In 1916, this place gave an adverse vote.

Similkameen returned the Pentton Conservative candidate, Mr. W. A. MacKenzie, by a somewhat narrow majority, while North Okanagan voted Liberal, returning Dr. K. C. Macdonald, both constitutions thus running true to previous form.

Much interest was shown locally, as may be judged by the heavy voting. Returns from the several polling

BOTH LEADERS ARE RETURNED

Oliver Elected in Two Ridings—Bowser From Vancouver.

W. J. Bowser, leader of the Opposition, was the only Conservative elected in Vancouver. Mrs. Smith headed the polls, and the others elected are named in the order of the number of ballots each received: Ian MacKenzie, J. W. DeB. Farris, James Ramsay, M. A. McDonald.

Premier Oliver was elected both in Victoria and Delta. He headed the polls at Victoria. J. B. Clearihue and Hon. John Hart, supporters of the Oliver Government, were also elected. One Conservative, Canon Hinchcliffe, was elected for the Capital City.

Fruits of Organization.

At every railroad station in Alberta, on the platforms, at terminal and divisional points, and in every grocer's and fruiterer's window in the towns and cities, are enormous shipments of Okanagan fruit—apples, peaches, crab apples, prunes and plums. The little valley in British Columbia has the prairie provinces blanketed from Winnipeg to Calgary, from Edmonton to Weyburn, and its growers are looking for new fields to furnish with their fancy products. Old Ontario promises well in this regard. An agent for certain associated growers of the Okanagan, who returned last week from Ontario, said to a Calgary newspaperman: "Toronto is ready to use, exclusively, Okanagan apples. In the past that city has drawn her supplies from Washington and Oregon."—H. B. McKinnon, The Globe, Toronto.

Masquerade Dance.

The College Gymnasium was the scene of a brilliant and variegated assembly on Wednesday evening, when a masquerade dance was given under the auspices of the G. W. V. A. About one hundred and fifty persons were present and the costumes were exceptionally good. Miss Annie Blair, in Spanish dress, was awarded the prize for best ladies' costume, and Mr. W. C. W. Fosbery, as an Arab, secured the prize for gentlemen's make-up. Miss Marion Cartwright and Mr. Law annexed the laurels in comical as a most effective couple of scare crows.

The hall was tastefully decorated and illuminated with Japanese lanterns, and the Peck orchestra discoursed excellent music. Light refreshments were served during the evening.

It is said that the best way to make a new coat last is to make the trousers and waistcoat first.

OPEN DOOR TO RETURNED MEN

Y. M. C. A. Offers Courses in Instruction Along Any Line.

Any veteran who wants a course of instruction along some line which he has not been able to get through the S. C. R., or who may wish to supplement the instruction he has already received by further study, may do so through an arrangement with the National Council Y. M. C. A. which has set aside a sum of money to provide this opportunity for returned men. If a returned man wishes to take any of the educational classes at any Y. M. C. A., the National Council will pay all his fees. All he is required to do is to pay 25 per cent. of the fees when he enrolls as an evidence of good faith and determination, which sum will be refunded to him when he completes 75 per cent. of the course.

If he should want to take a course not provided by a local Y.M.C.A. or if it is not convenient for him to attend these classes, he can take a correspondence course with the United Y.M.C.A. Schools on any subject he may desire and the National Council Y.M.C.A. will pay 75 per cent. of his fees. These courses are the equal of any, and inasmuch as they are not conducted for profit are cheaper than others. There are scores of courses offered, some of the chief departments being commerce, mathematics, engineering, electricity, drawing, agriculture and all general cultural subjects. The fund available for this educational service to returned men is comparatively small considering the number of men who might take the opportunity offered. It is therefore important that those who wish to take it up should do so promptly.

BIRDMAN A TREAT

First of the Lyceum Course of Entertainments.

Mr. Charles Crawford Gorst on Friday delighted a large audience in the Empire Hall by a beautifully illustrated lecture on "Birds and Birds' Songs." The lecturer was evidently master of his subject and held the attention of his hearers from beginning to end. His plea for the protection of birds and their encouragement on the farm and orchard as the best friends of the farmer, should bear good fruit. A true bird lover himself, he succeeded in kindling renewed interest in bird life by his sympathetic treatment of his theme.

A most attractive feature of the entertainment was the rendering of whistling solos with piano accompaniment. In these numbers the lecturer accurately reproduced the songs of many well known birds, including the canary, the robin and the meadow lark.

The illustrations shown were painted by the lecturer from nature. Mr. Gorst is assured of a warm welcome if he again visits Summerland.

THE LATE F. E. SIMPSON

Resolution of Sympathy by Press Guild.

At a meeting of the Okanagan Press Guild, held at Vernon on Friday and Saturday, the following resolution was passed and conveyed to the widow and family of the late F. E. Simpson: "Resolved, that the members of the Okanagan Press Guild, having learned with deep regret of the death of an honored member of the profession, offer to Mrs. F. E. Simpson and family, their sincere sympathy in their loss. Mr. Simpson, during his long association with the newspaper industry, endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact, by his geniality and goodwill and his genuine spirit of integrity and honor. His advice and counsel at the various meetings of public affairs in British Columbia will be very much missed."

Buys Hotel.

Wm. Bray, who has recently resold to its former owner, Dr. Lipsitt, his property on Hospital Hill, has bought the Pentteton Hotel, and is moving his household effects this week. The hotel property, which he took over the first of this month, is at present in charge of his son, Wilton Bray.

The contribution of the High School to the Red Cross Fund in the recent campaign amounted to the substantial sum of $23.40.

THIRD LECTURE AT OPEN FORUM

Interesting Discussion of Subject Follows Address.

Mr. Baker was unfortunately not able to take his subject as announced for last Sunday and Mr. W. C. Kelley filled in the breach and very ably and acceptably continued the subject of the previous week, namely, "The Duty of Citizenship." After a brief suggestion of the importance of the physical environment relative to good citizenship, the speaker dwelt more fully upon the social and political aspect and in a most interesting and instructive way traced the development of natural instincts in differing phases of being from primitive times to our own. The natural animal instincts of mankind, unless understood, controlled and properly guided, become in themselves self-destructive. They must be accepted as the beginnings of life and recognized as the primal part of a larger whole. The end of life is not to be found in callings or vocations, but in that happiness peculiar to a knowledge of true success.

Every citizen must start with the conception that the creative elements of being are designed to the end of developing personality to its highest form which in turn is crowned by the fullest recognition of his neighbor's rights and privileges.

Turning to the political phase of citizenship, the speaker traced the development of modern democracy from the earlier institution of the ruler and the ruled to the more general idea of power invested in the common people. Man's problem politically is that of having power equalized so that the citizens of a country may have an equal voice in the affairs of government. This can only be intelligent and fair as the people become educated concerning the forms of government the world over. Ignorance of political affairs is a drag on democracy and a weakening of the foundations of society. If Canada is to be in the lead of national life, education must be more widely diffused among the people as a whole. A happy state depends upon a happy people, and only as this happiness is realized can we expect the proper kind of citizenship.

This was the largest meeting in attendance yet and the most interesting, and many questions were put relative to the address. Perhaps chief among these was, "Should political economy be taught in the public schools?" There was no declaration on this question, but the speaker was emphatic that each child, whenever possible, should be kept in school until 21 years of age, so as to be able to assimilate this big subject intelligently.

Mr. Chas. Baker will give his address next Sunday.

CLOSED DOWN SOUTH WORK

Let Up Development Work on South Okanagan Lands.

The Griffin interests have been notified by the provincial government that their contract work on the southern soldier lands has come to a close for the year under the arrangement by which each year the lands department designates the work which it desires to have carried out. It is understood that the reason for the closing down of much of the work is because of the fact that the appropriation at the last session of the legislature for this development is nearly all used up, says the Pentteton Herald, and in any event there is not considered to be any special reason why the government should endeavor to go ahead this winter with concrete work.

The expectation is that next year, with an easing up of the labor market, further work will be carried on chiefly by straight contract instead of the "cost plus" system found necessary in the past because of the difficulty about getting men. About 300 men will be let out at the end of this month. Engineer F. H. Latimer will retain a gang of fifty doing wooden flume work, while the Keith camp with sixty men will continue on the ditch south of the cañon. The cement pipe plant removed from Peachland will be started up next week and will likely run all winter. If the mountain roads are not impassable the Camp McKinney sawmill may be operated all winter. This is uncertain, however. (Continued on Page 8)

AN INDUSTRY WORTH MILLIONS AWAITING DEVELOPMENT HERE

Valuable Address Before the American Travel Development Association, Composed of Organizations Not Operating for Profit, Interested in Encouraging Travel on This Continent.

By Herbert Cuthbert, Executive Secretary of the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association, Comprising British Columbia, Washington and Oregon.

The people of America must begin to realize now that there is a fifth form of basic wealth, perhaps more extensive and more valuable than the other four. We have always looked upon minerals, fish, lumber and agriculture only as our fundamental natural resources, from which all our industries have been developed.

To these must be added the fifth, namely, our wealth of natural scenery. For, just as our other resources are the raw material for vast industries, so is our wonderful scenery the raw material for one of the greatest that has been developing during the past few years—the tourist industry, the revenues from which are almost as great as those from any one single industry in America.

To the ordinary mind the tourist travel will never be classed as an industry, but just the same, it undoubtedly is a vast and important one. Its development is dependent upon raw material, capital and labor. The raw material is everywhere, every class of labor is employed in its various departments, though it requires less capital to develop than any other.

New industries have been started since our earliest history, not so much because there was the material available for them, but because there was a market, and so this tourist industry has sprung into prominence during the past ten or fifteen years because of its market. The available annual market in this country alone for the sale of our scenery and recreation features is seven hundred million dollars a year annually spent by American vacation seekers.

I will not reiterate figures I have already given on previous occasions, but I might say that in Cuba the revenue is second only to the tobacco crop, it is the third in Florida, Colorado and in Alaska.

In order, however, that I may, by concrete examples, startle the people of America from actual facts to the enormous possibilities of developing this industry, let me quote figures recently received from California.

I have a circular before me in which it is shown that the annual orange crop is $62,500,000, the deciduous fruit crop $15,000,000 and lemons $11,000,000, or a total of $88,500,000. The cotton crop is $19,500,000, wheat $14,500,000, barley $11,500,000, beans $14,500,000, or a total of the seven products of the soil of $148,500,000.

In the same circular, but not given the prominence by any means as the figures I have just mentioned, is the statement that the tourist crop per annum is $150,000,000, a sum exceeding the total value of their seven resources of the soil.

In a statement which I have given out several times and which I have in my office, supplied to me by the Bureau of Statistics of the U. S. government, I have been informed that the tourists spend $1,000,000 a day in California.

In Nelson, British Columbia, a few weeks ago, after delivering an address before the Good Roads League of British Columbia, Mrs. Thompson, the only lady member of a city council in the Province of British Columbia, and perhaps in Canada, said:

"Mr. Cuthbert, you have given me an entirely new thought and have awakened an interest in me in the tourist business most illuminating and fundamental, that our beautiful foliage, our mountain streams and creeks, and the snow-capped peaks themselves, may produce a greater revenue from people who pay to enjoy seeing them than the minerals in the hills themselves."

This is the keynote of my address. It is the thought I want the American people to get, that these things, all that goes to make up scenery, can be a source of wealth to a community that possesses them.

Briefly let me say that all over this American continent we have the raw material for the tourist industry, some states more than others, in which we might enumerate Florida, Colorado, California, Wisconsin, Minnesota, etc.

In the Pacific Northwest, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia, we have six hundred thousand square miles of country that is all scenery.

Can you imagine it? We have mountain ranges and individual peaks, thirty times the area of Switzerland, one thousand miles of inland seas, as beautiful as the Mediterranean, two thousand miles of coast line indented with bays and sounds, and the mouths of mighty rivers, more majestic and more wonderful than that of Norway and its fjords. There are thousands of miles of primeval evergreen forests containing twelve hundred billion feet of merchantable timber and a like

PHONE 6 WEST SUMMERLAND

.. The Winding Trail ..

First Impressions "Shewing the best side to London," is an old maxim, carrying its own very obvious meaning. The first impression of a place is the one which abides in the mind, and in the case of a passing visitor, is obviously the only one which counts. I find the following words in a booklet issued some time ago by the local Board of Trade: "In its physical features Summerland is blessed with its full share of natural beauty"—a statement which is most certainly true, and very properly included in a descriptive pamphlet. But what would be the first impression of a stranger who makes a visit of inspection and reaches here by steamer? Let it be granted that the first building seen after leaving the wharf is one which is peculiarly in keeping with a fruit district, and therefore decidedly favourable,—we shall have to admit that appearances do not improve on the way to the hotel. On the east side of the street all is well, but on the west side there is room for considerable improvement which could probably be made at very little expense. It may be that one or two empty buildings do not constitute a reproach to a town, and they may be occupied at any time, but what can be said of the appearance of the big block on the corner? Doubtless this is put to good use during the fruit packing season, but that may be taken as an added reason for some reasonable pride being felt in its outside showing. For instance, why should a self-respecting community acquiesce in the indescribable scribbling which has covered the walls of the main entrance for so long, and how much would it cost to give these walls a coat of kalsomine? And assuming that, for the present, the stores below can be used only as packing rooms, what insuperable obstacle is there to prevent the windows being stippled inside, and kept decently clean outside? The change in appearance would many times outweigh the trifling cost, and it seems a thousand pities that nothing is done along these lines. There are other little polishings along the front which may possibly come within the scope of civic activity—if Summerland is to make the best of her natural advantages, they should be attended to.

Bird Life One of the most fascinating leaflets I have seen for many a day is one issued by the Dominion Parks Branch at Ottawa, and dealing with the subject of "Bird Houses and Their Occupants." The contents are reprinted from the "Canadian Field Naturalist," and are written by Mr. P. A. Taverner, evidently a bird lover of sympathetic type. The author gives details and plans of houses adapted to different varieties of birds which are open to attraction, but devotes most of his discourse to the characteristics of the Purple Martin, as being one of the most welcome sojourners around the home. His description of his own personal experiences with these birds is delightful, and should be read by all who have an interest in bird life. One is reminded of Gilbert White telling of the natural history of his beloved village of Selborne. The story of his first tenants in the house built for them makes delicious reading. "What appeared to be a lonely female appeared first. Somehow, she succeeded in bringing a committee of investigation back with her. They swarmed all over the house, into its rooms, talking and criticizing and making comparisons. I gathered that one did not like the plumbing, some objected to the decorations, and others to the view, in fact, none seemed satisfied enough to move in and, after emphatic expressions of opinion, all left, the single would-be tenant loudly protesting and vociferously calling them back." How the lady eventually fared may be learned by a perusal of this unusually readable leaflet, and those who care to read may do so by application to Ottawa.

Practically all American papers outside the notorious Hearst ring of publications, have at last awakened to the lengths attained by the hyphenated Irish-American element in their midst. They realize that this type of individual has lost all sense of perspective, and acts as if he were somewhere else. The Evening Post says: "They forget where they are. This is not Ireland. It is not England. It is the United States. Anyone who is not naturalized and proceeds as if New York were Dublin, abuses our hospitality, and anyone who is naturalized or was born here, and who takes a similar course, gives the lie to his Americanism."

This change of tone is welcome to all who have seen with astonishment and indignation the apparent tacit acceptance of Irish-American insults to Great Britain. It will also make for much more cordiality between us and our neighbors to the South.

AVOID WASTE OF FUEL

Unless you know positively that a cheaper Furnace will heat your home without waste of fuel, there is small satisfaction in saving a few dollars on its purchase. The Sunshine Furnace saves coal because it is well made and because every part has been carefully thought out.

McCLARY'S SUNSHINE FURNACE

Doors and dampers that are tightly fitted will certainly hold the fire longer than those that are loosely fitted. The wider air passages and larger radiating surfaces of the Sunshine Furnace must heat the air much more readily. These Sunshine Furnace features are coal-savers that mean much in mid-winter.

ELECTION FIGURES

An examination and analysis of the votes cast in the by-election of last week reveals the fact that there was a decided difference of sentiment between the two divisions of North and South Okanagan, the former giving an Edgett majority of 411 and the latter replying with a MacKevie vote of 460 to the good. Similkameen also supported the Government candidate with a majority of 107, while the Greenwood and Grand Forks divisions gave the independent a balance of 105 and 51 respectively. These results indicate a marked boundary line dividing the business interests of the districts affected, the MacKevie majority coming from those who are fruit growers and the opposite side being taken by those districts which are more interested in general farm production. It is also noteworthy that every incorporated city save the home city of the successful candidate gave his opponent a majority.

Looking at these figures in their relation to other parts of the Dominion, it is easy to see the gulf existing between the tariff policy advocated by the grain grower of the middle west, and the fruit grower of this province.

THE VALUE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA SCENERY.

In another column appears the substance of an address delivered by Mr. Herbert Cuthbert before the American Travel Development Association, and dealing with the value of the scenery of this continent as a national asset. Some of the statistics given by Mr. Cuthbert are quite surprising, as for example, the spending of no less than seven hundred million dollars by American citizens annually on vacation trips and the receipt of an income by California from this source, amounting to more than the total from all other sources combined. The subject is one which is of considerable interest to this country, which is pre-eminent in scenic beauties, and helps to emphasize the need for continued development of our road system. Hand in hand with the matter of roads comes the hotel question; no holiday seeker will be enamoured of a district which fails to provide adequate highways or comfortable stopping places, and these features must be kept in mind. Further, having these inducements provided, and already possessing natural attractions beyond compare, we must see to it that we make all these things known by systematic methods of publicity.

FASHIONS IN FISH.

An anomalous condition existed during the recent salmon fishing season on the British Columbia coast, when the Alaska fisheries were shipping their red salmon to British Columbia, while British Columbia fisheries were shipping their pinks and chums to United States canneries. This was due to the lack of a market in Canada for pinks and chums whereas there was a demand for them in the United States.

Red salmon is in demand only because it has been accepted by fashion or usage as its choice. Dr. Edward Prince, Chairman of the Biological Board of Canada, in addressing the Commission of Conservation, said: "When I say that the value of canned salmon rests more on the color of the meat of the fish than upon its flavor, you see how important it is to know to what the color is due. The best flavored salmon on the Pacific coast is least in demand on the market, because the color is pale. The inferior salmon, of a rich red color brings the best price, and takes the lead, because of its color, this having no relation to excellence of flavor or edible superiority."

With pink salmon priced at one-half of the red, we seem to be paying a high price for a preference of color only, while at the same time we are neglecting a food supply which is available at a very moderate price.

The Decline in Lumber Prices.

Retail prices of lumber since March, 1920, have dropped in Chicago markets from 15 to 35 per cent, in Kansas City from 20 to 30 per cent, in Omaha approximately 30 per cent, with somewhat smaller reductions in the East, where transportation congestion has impeded the movement of lumber. Recently public statements of the extent of these reductions have apparently caused the postponement of considerable prospective building in anticipation of still lower prices. The above reductions, it should be noted, have been gradual and continuous over a period of several months until today retail lumber prices generally reflect the great decline during the past six months in the wholesale prices at the mills.

New Way of Quoting Apples.

An Oregon firm sends quotations as follows:
Delicious apples, size 125 and larger, per box $4.00
Delicious apples, size 138 to 150, per box 3.50
Delicious apples, size 163 to 175, per box 3.00
Delicious apples, size 188 to 210, per box 2.50
Other varieties are similarly quoted.

What Went Up in One Fire.

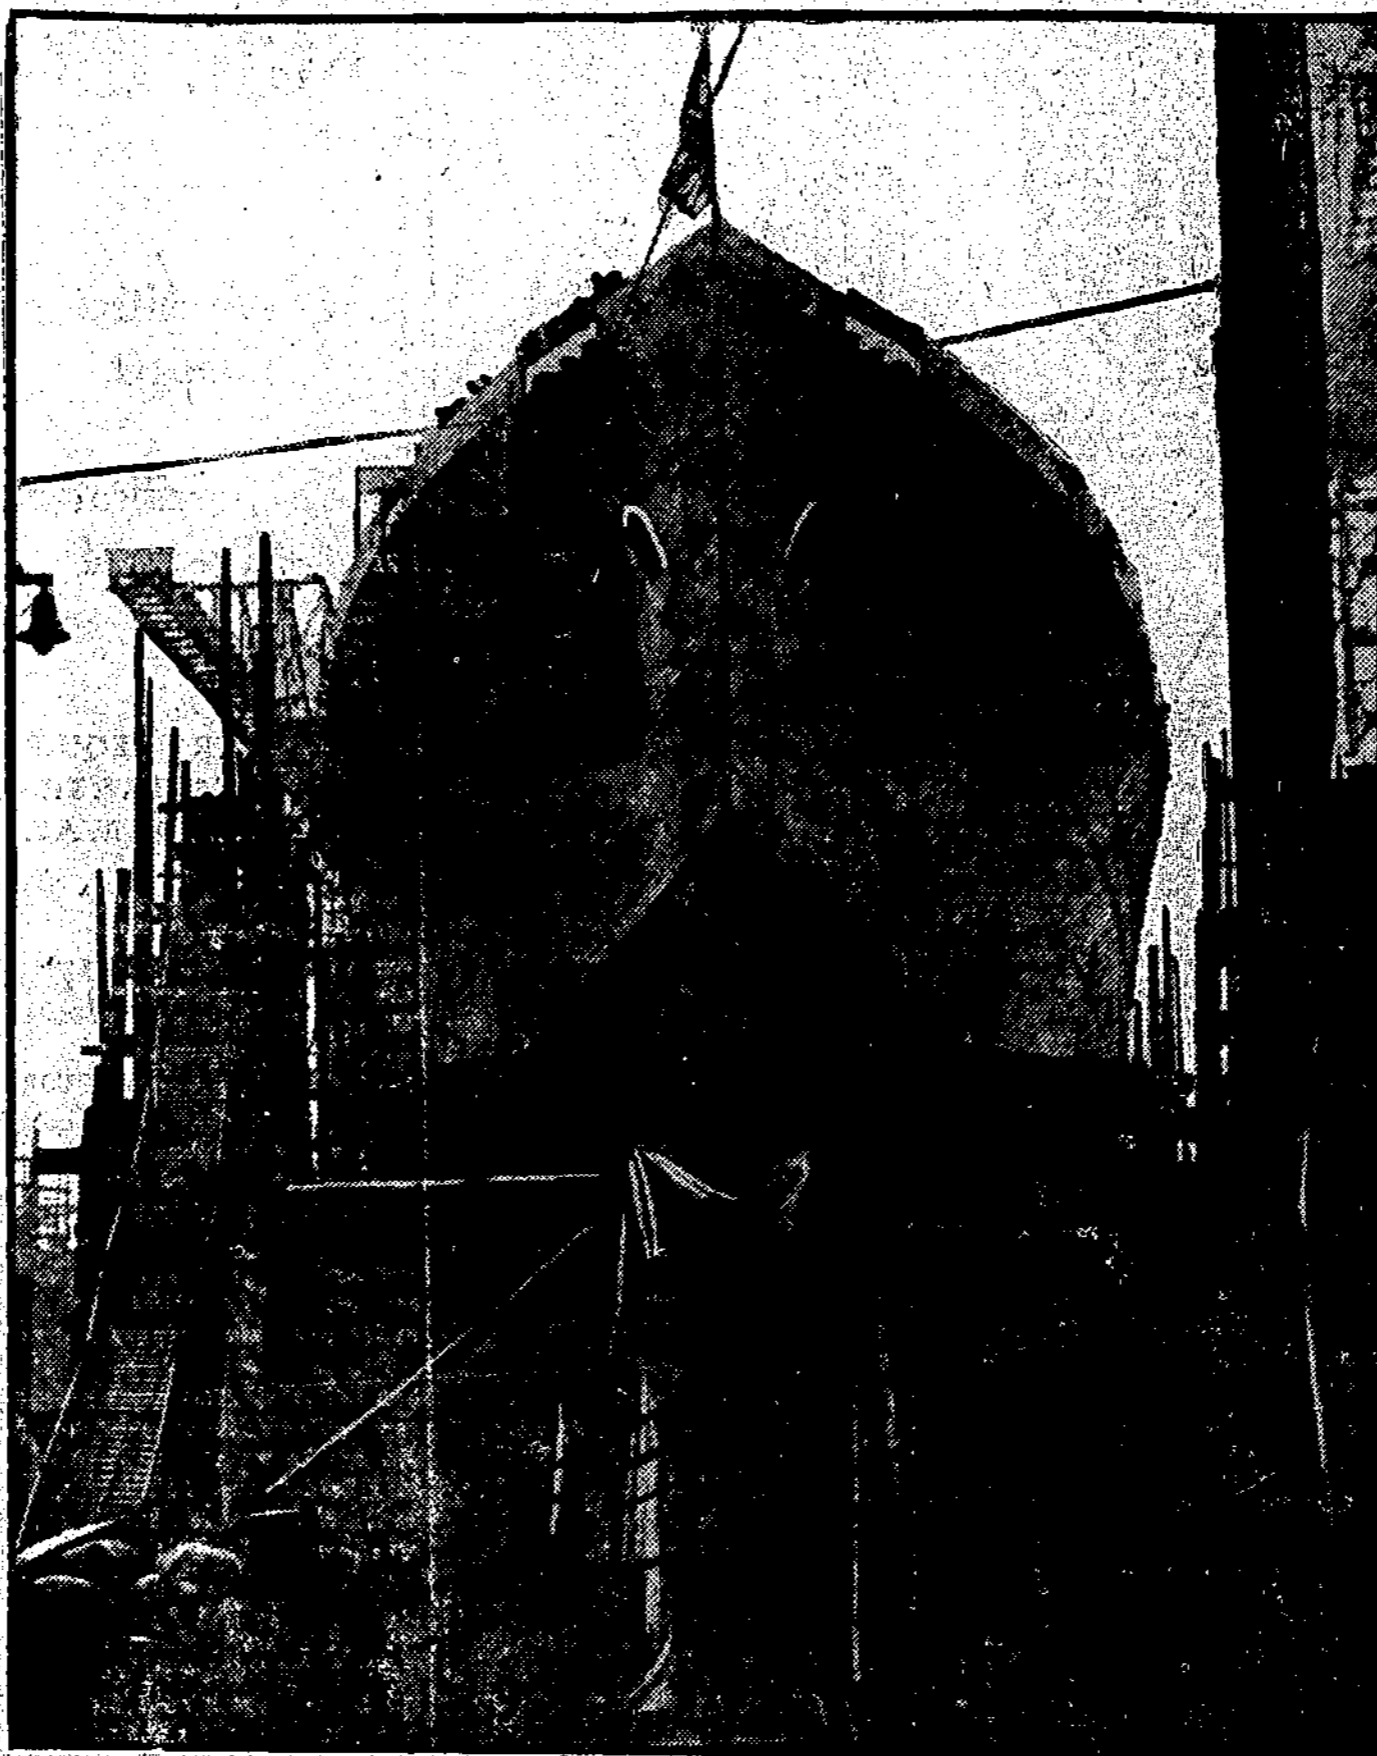

Under this caption the Canadian Forestry Magazine for August-September tells a graphic story, which it is stated was embodied in remarks made by a well-known lumberman of the Ottawa valley. He said: "Some years ago a settler who was allowed to locate on the edge of our pine limits in Eastern Ontario started a fire in his land in order to clear space for a potato patch. That single fire burned from Mattawa westward towards North Bay and consumed more pine forests than would keep our big mill running for 50 years."

The Forestry Magazine comments further, by saying: "The speaker was one who considers all public statements carefully and his knowledge of that fire was first hand." Continuing, the editor sums up such occurrences in the following pointed paragraphs:

"A potato patch versus 50 years' supply of pine."
"Or a neglected camp fire versus a pulp and paper mill."
"Or a tossed-away cigarotto versus a million railroad ties."
"Or a locomotive smokstack versus a struggling half-insured village."

Listening often pays better than talking.

Launching the Empress of Canada

The Empress of Canada, a twin screw geared turbine oil burning passenger liner, built to the order of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Limited, especially for their trans-Pacific service, was recently launched at the yards of the Fairfield Shipbuilding & Engineering Co., Limited, Govan, Scotland.

The christening ceremony, which was performed by Mrs. G. M. Bosworth, the wife of the chairman of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, Limited, went through without a hitch.

The ship is 653 ft. long, 77 ft. 9 ins. wide and has a depth to the bridge deck of 53 ft. 6 ins. Her gross tonnage is about 22,000 tons, and she is arranged to carry about 490 first class, 106 second class, 238 third class passengers, and 547 of a crew. Of the cargo spaces, a large portion has been fitted for the carriage of silk. The ocean speed is about 21 knots. The vessel is built to the highest class of Lloyd's register, to full Board of Trade requirements and sub-divided in full accordance with the requirements of the Bulkhead convention.

A complete system of telephones with a central exchange is fitted to the special and private suites and various offices, etc.

The dining saloon is on the upper deck and will accommodate 325 persons, a large reception room is situated forward of the dining saloon with passenger elevator at the fore end, on this deck also is a swimming pool 30 ft. long by 18 ft. wide, and a gymnasium.

Throughout the vessel special attention is everywhere given to the fact that the Empress of Canada is to serve in a semi-tropical climate; public rooms are therefore large and airy and the ventilation amply arranged. The maiden voyage of the Empress of Canada will be a tour of the world, starting from Liverpool, March 15, 1921.

CANADA'S NAVY.

Canada's three warships, which were presented to the Dominion by the Imperial Government to form the nucleus of a Canadian navy, will arrive in Canadian waters shortly before Christmas.

Definite word has been received by the Department of the Naval Service from the captain of the Cruiser Aurora that the Aurora and the destroyers Patriot and Patrician will sail from Plymouth on or about November 30.

The vessels will cross the Atlantic via the Azores and Bermuda, arriving at Halifax about December 17. The three ships will remain at Halifax for a short time, when they will probably go south to the West Indies, and subsequently to the British Columbia coast. It is the intention to have the fleet alternate between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the Dominion.

SOLDIER FARMERS ARE MAKING GOOD

Victoria, B. C.—The percentage of failures among the soldier-settlers in Central British Columbia has been very low, being only five per cent. men who took land under the scheme of the Soldiers' Settlement Board. Of this small number, wounds and injuries made some physically unfit to succeed. In the Vancouver area, soldier settlers have 7,200 head of livestock, 55,000 head of poultry, and occupy 65,000 acres of land. More than one-fourth of this land has been cleared and a great deal cultivated. To date the settlers have paid back $600,000 of the monies advanced by the government to assist them.

OIL IN NORTH.

Edmonton, Alta.—One thousand gallons an hour is the production of the oil well in the Fort Norman district, where a flow was recently struck by the Imperial Oil Company. The activities of the company are still progressing, and drillers are full of optimism over the prospects of locating other like wells in the Peace River district where the company is boring on its leases.

The total amount paid is $3,650,000, and when all are commuted it will be $9,000,000.

Passing Events: Social, Personal, &c.

G. Noble, of the Bank of Montreal staff, is out again after three weeks' illness.

Dr. F. W. Andrew returned last Friday from Cranbrook, where he had been on a brief business visit.

Since last Friday, Mr. W. W. Borton, has been seriously ill with pneumonia. He was reported somewhat better last night.

Wm. Edwards, of Merritt, was burned to death when a new restaurant there was destroyed by fire a few days ago.

C. W. Lees, Principal of the Public School at Kelowna, has been offered an increase in salary of $300 by the Kelowna School Board.

Gordon Robertson, of Summerland, was fined $5 on Monday for driving within the municipality without a tail light.—Penticton Herald.

George Doherty, though still in the hospital, continues to make favorable, but somewhat slow, progress towards restored health, following his recent, serious illness.

The feature of the afternoon at the last meeting of the Summerland Women's Institute was a paper by Mrs. R. E. White on "The Conventional Kitchen." Many ideas were given whereby the work there could be lessened or done more easily. Roll call was answered by some feature of conspicuous importance in the arrangement of the kitchen.

Representing The Review, R. E. White attended a meeting of the Okanagan Press Guild on Friday and Saturday last at Vernon. The publishers of the district had jointly engaged a specialist to install Cost Systems in all the printing offices included in the Guild, and his final report was received at the meeting last week from Mr. Peck, the expert referred to.

Mrs. A. Milne, who had the misfortune to suffer a nasty fall some time ago, injuring her leg, has had the further bad fortune to find it necessary to undergo an operation in the Summerland hospital, where she is now a patient. During her absence from the store she has been fortunate enough to secure the services of Miss McLaughlin, who will attend to the ladies' department for her. While thanking her many patrons for their past business, Mrs. Milne trusts that they will continue to render the same measure of support to the store under the temporary new arrangements.

Miss Maude Willis.

Miss Maude Willis, reproducer and interpreter of great plays, will appear here on the evening of Tuesday, December 7th, in Empire Hall. She will give "The Witching Hour," a dramatic and partly humorous psychological study.

Miss Willis comes to us with the highest recommendations. Her record is unqualified by Lyceum artists, whose popularity is best measured by the number of invitations for return engagements. She has appeared twenty times at Rock Haven, Pa.; twelve at Los Angeles, ten times at Askaloosa, Iowa; eight at Battle Creek, Mich.; seven at Big Rapids and six times in Philadelphia, New York, Pontiac and Valley City. This is sufficient assurance that those who go to her recital on Tuesday evening will be well rewarded.

Miss Willis stands at the top of her profession as an interpreter and reproducer of plays. She has given to the great standard dramas an interpretation that has won for her a cherished place in the hearts of her hearers. She has successfully demonstrated the fact that plays of deepest import create the greatest interest, provided the manner of presentation is of the highest artistic merit. She brings the characters of her plays before her audience and they are seen and studied as living beings rather than fanciful creations of literature.

The annual logging payroll of British Columbia is $12,500,000; that of sawmills $9,750,000, of logging railroads $1,750,000, and of paper mills over $3,000,000. Other wood-working industries bring the total to $121,000,000, which payroll is distributed among 100,000 employees, making an average payment of $100 per month for all workers in mills and logging plants. The forestry payroll is about 25 per cent of the total payroll of the industries in the province.

Mrs. A. Milne is getting along well at the hospital, after a minor operation on Monday.

Pruning classes will be conducted next week in Naramata and Peachland, beginning on Monday in both places.

A training school for Indians is to be established at Six Mile Creek, near Vernon. It will accommodate about 30 children.

A fatal accident occurred at the Allenby mill last week when William Robertson fell into one of the big scoops and was literally cut to pieces.

The charred remains of Mrs. Hattie McBride were found among the ashes of a house destroyed at Coalmont early Sunday morning. Foul play is suspected.

The regular monthly meeting of the School Board, called for Thursday evening, was postponed through lack of a quorum, only Trustees Tait and Darkis being present.

The Lyceum committee have about fourteen reserved seat tickets left. These will be sold for $4.00, good for the remaining three entertainments. They may be had from Mrs. H. A. Solly.

A cap for an automobile gasoline tank was lost more than a week ago between Hatfield's Garage and the Municipal Office. Finder please leave at the Garage or The Review Office.

F. G. Anderson, who recently sold his property in Peach Orchard, is leaving the first of next week to visit scenes of younger days in and around Toronto. He has recently bought property at Penticton, to which he will return in the spring.

Some further changes have been made by Postmaster Bowering to the interior of his office, which includes the installing of additional boxes, all of which, he says, are already rented. Increasing business has made it necessary that he obtain assistance and he has with him now Mr. C. A. Mitchell.

L. W. Rumball has purchased the corner lot immediately north of Jas. Ritchie's Realty office, and has started the erection of a store thereon, concrete foundations for which have been placed. We understand Mr. Rumball purposes occupying the building as a grocery.

His many Okanagan friends will learn with much regret of the sudden death of Dr. Otto Demuth. Dr. Demuth, whose father operates a lumber mill some miles west of here, has been in Cleveland, Ohio, and died there, suddenly, on Wednesday of last week. Mr. and Mrs. Demuth left immediately for the eastern city.

B. L. Hatfield, proprietor of the Summerland Garage, has recently extended his business by taking over the general agency in this part of the province for Chevrolet cars which, up to the present, has been held by Joe Markle of Penticton. Mr. Hatfield has also taken over the office and salesroom of Mr. Markle.

Three families, representatives of whom visited Summerland recently, are planning to move from Castor, Alta., to Summerland. The heads of these families are A. H. Dean, Fred Sherwood and Sam Kennedy. While the two latter were here, they arranged to rent properties, but we understand it is the intention of all three to purchase property here after they become acquainted with the district.

Another business transfer of considerable local interest is the purchase from Scott Darkis by J. L. Crego of "The Better Ole" building and business. Mr. Crego is now in possession of the property. Included in the deal was the transfer by Mr. Crego to Mr. Darkis of the Ely property in Garnet Valley, which was purchased by Mr. Crego last spring. We understand it is Mr. Darkis' purpose to build a house on this property, but for the present he is living on Rosedale avenue, in the cottage recently vacated by Mr. Hutchinson.

MUNICIPAL VOTERS' LISTS CLOSED

The voting lists for the municipality are now closed, and copies will be posted in the offices of the municipal building and also in The Review office. Any citizen not finding his or her name on the list, and claiming the right to vote, should apply to the Court of Revision, particulars of which will be found in our advertising columns.

S. A. McKinnon and A. McLachlan returned Monday morning from a hunting expedition near Altamont Station, on the Kettle Valley Railway. They brought back with them a fine big buck, one of the largest seen for some time.

On Friday evening the audience at the Empire Hall were notified from the platform of a fire at Mr. Morrison's residence. Volunteers at once left for the scene, but were soon able to return to their seats, the blaze being checked almost at once.

Clarence Ross, who arrived here recently and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Gould, has been seriously ill with pleuro-pneumonia. He was moved to the hospital and last week-end his case was considered serious and friends on the prairies were notified of his condition. This week he has been steadily recovering.

A quarrel between two children in a school van, during which two pairs of shins were bruised, resulted in a police court case this week, when the father of one, a girl, laid a charge of assault against a young boy. After hearing the case, the father of the boy was ordered to pay the costs, amounting to $2.10, and on behalf of his son, was bound over to keep the peace.

The Kelowna Board of Trade is showing more animation at the present time than perhaps any other board in the valley. It is now negotiating for a new Federal Building; is very active in efforts to establish a tourist hotel, and is working for a new public library, besides being continually on the heels of the C. N. R. urging for the early completion of the Kamloops-Kelowna branch. Its Publicity Booklet has been highly recommended by the Director General of Imperial Trade Propaganda, and is much sought after at the B. C. House in London.

"EXPERIENCE."

"Then Fancy said, with sadness in her tone, 'You'll write it, Truth,' and Truth wrote on alone."

This couplet, which is part of the prologue to the synopsis of events in "Experience," presented at the Empress on Tuesday, may be taken as the keynote of the play. Fancy has no part in the writing of the story, which deals with the hopes and fears, temptations and struggles of youth, and is presented with a realism belonging to "things that are."

Youth sets out on life's path in company with Love, Hope and Ambition, but later, falls in with Pleasure and Opportunity in the Street of Vacillation. Experience is at his elbow, and points out the dangers which lie in the path, but leaves Youth to make his own decision. The Primrose Path offers an attractive turning from the Street of Vacillation, and here Youth becomes acquainted with many alluring companions, prominent among them being Excitement, Wealth, Intoxication, Passion, Sport and Fashion. He wavers between Passion and Intoxication, but finally succumbs to the latter. In this episode Ambition dies. The Corridors of Chance offer the next temptation and gambling leads to financial trouble, which brings Disillusion and Degradation. From these Youth is finally redeemed by the memories of Forgotten Days, awakened by the singing of a church choir. In the Land where the Dreamer awakes he finds that Ambition was not dead, but only dormant, and is revived by a return to work. Love and Hope also return, and Youth, emerges from his experience strengthened and resolute.

The presentation of Mr. Hobart's play by the Comstock Company, was exceedingly fine, and constituted as potent a moral lesson as could be embodied in the most eloquent of sermons.

Swan; secretary, treasurer, T. K. Bernard; executive, Messrs. R. G. Keys, F. H. Latimer, R. F. Dynes. Mayor Sutherland of Kelowna, addressed the meeting.

Any man can take a day off, but when it comes to putting it back—well, that's different.

Roads Without Ruts.

"Please do not drive in ruts." Signs carrying this message are posted along many of Michigan gravel roads and are aiding in keeping them in good condition. Motorists heed the injunction and as a result the roads retain an even surface. Ruts made by one car are ironed out by the next. Thus both roads and tires are saved.

It's all right to meet trouble halfway so long as you don't go any farther.

An Industry Worth Millions Awaits Development Here

system more extensive and greater than the lakes of Europe.

All these are the raw material for the tourist industry and this is one of the great advantages of this industry, that its raw material is not confined to one particular place. There are the Pittsburghs, Bethlehems and other centres of the iron industry, and there are centres of our mining, agriculture and fishing industries, but the raw material for the tourist industry is anywhere where the people will employ capital and labor in putting in a road or a trail or erecting a hotel or in providing transportation.

There are four essentials in the development of the tourist industry, transportation, the building of highways and good roads, first-class hotel accommodation, and publicity.

In the Pacific Northwest today we need twenty million dollars to be spent in hotels. This is part of the capital I have referred to. It employs the labor I have referred to. Let me illustrate:

One hotel of 200 rooms stated the other day that their pay roll is $200,000 a year, and they spend in supplies, amongst the farmers, the business, poultrymen and producers generally, $300,000 a year.

Increase the number of these hotels and see how you increase the employment of labor and the expenditure amongst your farmers and producers. That is all that can be claimed of any other industry. In the Pacific Northwest we are spending sixty million dollars in highways and good roads.

The one great need in the development of the tourist business is publicity. Previous to the formation of the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association, which I represent, we were getting scarcely any of this business. It was going to the older tourist centres because they were better advertised and no attempt had been made to draw them to the Pacific Northwest. Within four short years I estimate that we have increased our revenues from the tourist from seven and a half millions to between forty and fifty millions a year, and this through the expenditure of a publicity fund of only $62,500 a year.

I want the American people, and particularly those in authority in public bodies, members of the press and all who are concerned in the moulding of public opinion to ask themselves what would have been the development in this tourist business if the same amount had been spent on it by governments and public bodies as in the development of our lumber, our minerals, our fish and our agriculture. Why, gentlemen, we would not be able today to compute the revenue flowing into the centres where such capital had been spent.

I have only one thought left and that is that the tourist industry is the most patriotic of all our industries. It will do more in six months to give a man a conception of his country, of its resources and its beauty than anything else. If Americans are patriotic now because it is either the land of their birth or the land of their adoption, how much more would they be patriotic if they had learned to love it for its beauty.

Let us suppose that a man has a daughter sixteen years of age whom he has never seen. He loves her because she is his, but if they are brought together, he realizes her beauty, her attractiveness and her charm, and he loves her then not simply because she is his daughter, but because of all these other attractions with which he has only just come in contact. And so, we who are in the tourist development business, not simply because it is a business but because we love it, our heart is in it, are engaged not only in promoting an industry which is bringing enormous new revenues to the sections we represent, but in a still greater work making more patriotic citizens, better Americans and better Canadians, because they are learning through contact, through travel and personal observation to love their country, not because they were born in it, not because they have adopted it and not because of its government, its laws, its freedom, and its institutions, but because it is a lovely land, beautiful beyond the conception of man, and it is theirs, they own it, and have learned to love it for itself.

Arrangements have been completed between the inspector of fisheries for British Columbia and officials of the government seaplane base at Vancouver, for the charter of planes for fisheries patrol in the province. It is anticipated that patrol duty will be carried out more quickly and cheaply this way than by patrol boats.

PEACHLAND HEARS MESSAGE OF PROGRESS.

Messrs. Helmer and Hunter came up from Summerland on Wednesday and addressed a gathering of fruit growers on "Soil Fertility," dealing principally with alfalfa and other cover crops, such as clover, rye and vetch, etc. There was a fairly representative meeting of the growers and the speakers gave a very instructive and interesting talk. They had gathered much data on the question on the recent trip taken through the large fruit-growing belts south of us. From actual results as found worked out there they were inclined to favor seeding down the orchard, to alfalfa and letting it grow continuously without cutting. They stated that some orchardists they interviewed, plowed or disked the alfalfa up occasionally, working it well into the soil and then continued as before. Results seen showed that it was a much better plan to let the alfalfa grow and fall of its own accord than to cut it and let it lie on the ground and this method required much less water, because when cut it exposed the ground to the sun, producing greater evaporation.

They hoped in the course of three years to be able to give much more data along these lines from experiments which they are putting into effect at once. They gave many interesting facts and figures on various orchards seen on their trip and explained the methods of soil fertility which had produced the various yields referred to. Other interesting points in connection with fruit growing were touched upon which were of much use to orchardists. Mention was made of the proposed trips south, such as had been taken this fall. They purpose making several during the summer and fall and urged any who could possibly get away to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded and stated that the trips would be well advertised beforehand to give all a chance to get in on them.

In seconding a motion of thanks and appreciation to the speakers for the addresses given, Mr. E. H. Huston, who had been a member of the party who took the trip this fall, further emphasized what a pleasing and instructive trip it was.

The Naramata Supply Company are re-arranging their store and painting and kalsomining shelves and fixtures, etc. Mr. Rushbury is enlarging his store and also doing considerable decorating. All this indicates faith in the district and the larger and better things in store for us.

The pavilion is being overhauled and put in shape for basketball and dances. The ceiling has been raised and dressing rooms and a kitchen will be added. A stairway is to be built on the outside and it will be a place where strenuous exercise may be carried on without disturbing anyone; besides it is well located for the summer amusements.

Mr. and Mrs. George Cook are leaving the first of next week for points in Michigan. They expect to be away most of the winter.

Mrs. George Aldridge visited friends in Kelowna last week.

The G. W. V. A. started their winter season of social activities with a well attended whist drive at the Syndica, Tuesday night.

The books of the travelling library are being packed and fixed up for returning and exchanging for the next lot. There are two books missing and the library cannot be returned till these books are brought back. So will the person having the books please give them to the librarian as soon as possible. The next lot of books will be placed at the home of Mrs. T. Kenyon and Mrs. Kenyon will have charge of their circulation.

The regular meeting of the Unity Club was held on Friday afternoon, with Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Ford as joint hostesses. A piano solo by Margaret Mitchell and a song by Dorothy Arnold was much appreciated. Work of cleaning up and getting ready for fencing the cemetery will start next Monday. A dinner will be served at the clubhouse for all that help in the work and everybody is earnestly solicited to be on the job Monday morning. In place of the next regular meeting, the ladies of the club will be at home in the afternoon New Year's Day, to all the residents of Naramata.

Another Price Suggestion PIES and PASTRIES

FOR light, tender, flaky pastry you have only to add that spoonful of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

And once you have seen how easy these deliciously filled pies are to make, you will want one or more of them every day in the week!

Custard Pie

1 cup pastry flour
1/2 teaspoon Dr. Price's Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
cold water

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add one-half shortening and rub in lightly with fingers; add water slowly until of right consistency to roll out. Roll out very thin; put on in small pieces remaining shortening; fold upper and lower edges in to center; fold sides in to center again; roll out thin and put on pie plate.

Custard

3 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups scalded milk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

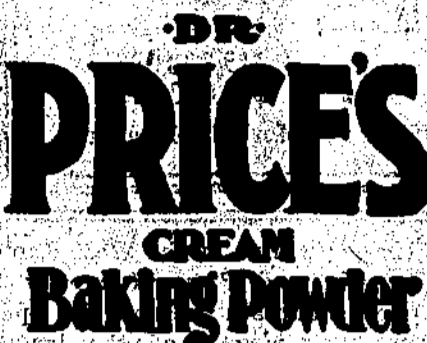

Beat eggs, add sugar, salt, flavoring and milk very slowly. Line pie plate with paste made as above, and bake in very hot oven about 10 minutes. Pour custard into the baked crust and bake in moderate oven about 25 minutes. The pie is done when a knife put in center of custard comes out dry.

Cocoanut Pie is made the same way, adding 1 cup of shredded cocoanut, and using only 2 eggs.

Pumpkin Pie

2 cups stewed and strained pumpkin
2 cups rich milk or cream
1/2 cup brown or granulated sugar
2 eggs
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Mix pumpkin with milk, sugar, well-beaten eggs, ginger, salt, cinnamon, and beat 2 minutes. Pour into pie tin which has been lined with pastry. Place in hot oven for 15 minutes, then reduce heat and bake 45 minutes in moderate oven. To bring out flavor of pumpkin it must be very well baked.

Made from Cream of Tartar, derived from grapes.

CROP LOSSES, 1919

The 1919 fruit season very forcibly showed the necessity for storage for the Fruit Crop of the Summerland District, in the great loss sustained by the Growers mainly through insufficient storage to protect the crop.

The 1920 season, with practically a one-half crop, has accentuated the need for storage facilities as, with the light crop our facilities for packing and handling same were taxed to the utmost.

With the prospects which now exist for a crop next year largely in excess of anything we have ever had, certain disaster is faced unless we prepare for the situation by arranging for adequate room for packing, handling and storing, and this your Company invites your assistance in supplying.

It is a vital matter, and there is not a grower in Summerland who is not materially interested.

STORAGE BUILDING CAPACITY

The Summerland Storage Company, Limited, is having prepared preliminary plans of a Frost-Proof Storage Building, 65 feet by 250 feet, three stories high, with a capacity of 200 cars of apples.

Copies of the Prospectus of the Company are being mailed, and we invite the careful attention of those interested in the matter, so that when they are called upon, as they will be in the near future, by Mr J. Lawler, who is undertaking to solicit subscriptions for stock, they will be prepared to respond to the appeal.

Shares may also be purchased at the office from Mr T. G. Beavis, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Company.

ever, as the mill road is now in bad shape.

By the end of this month the big ditch will be concrete lined as far south as one mile past the canteen bridge. In addition, Keith's gang has about a quarter of a mile of lining done. Next year the big ditch will be finished from Keith's camp to Osoyoos Lake and in addition the sub main on the east side bench above the old ranch house will be installed. The Inkaneep Creek system draining into Osoyoos Lake will also be put in next year.

In 1922 the main ditch will be finished from the head of Osoyoos Lake down to the boundary line.

Work for this winter will comprise the fluming on the sub main running north on the west side of the river from the townsite opposite the canteen on up to camp five. The concrete lining has been done on this sub main and footings for the fluming are being installed. A 26 inch wood stave syphon will be installed on this main during the winter. There will also be a sub main built to the island in the river. A 24-inch stave pipe will be built this winter to the knoll on the Fairview flat south of the canteen. Tenders are shortly to be called for this stave pipe work.

An announcement of interest to intending settlers is that the first land on the area will be thrown on the market in February. The tracts to be opened up include the island in the river, which is exceedingly rich bottom land, the tract on the west side of the river between camps four and five, which is in some respects the best "fruit" land of the whole section, and also a tract on the Fairview flat below the canteen.

The Uses of Advertising.

Sid Woodman Burbidge, in a message to the organizing committee of the International Advertising Exhibition, to be held at the White City at the end of November, says: "The more one studies the potentialities of advertising, the more one investigates its often remarkable results, the more one is led to the conclusion that among all modern forces for business development it stands first and foremost. And my belief is that even now, advertising is but on the threshold of its possibilities."

MUNICIPALITY THREATENED WITH SUIT IN COURT

Deadlock Reached in Dispute With Engineer Over Plans of Irrigation System.

COUNCIL'S OFFER NOT ENTERTAINED

Chairman of Water Committee Says Plans Are Incomplete and Recommends Non-payment of Engineer's Account.

That he intends taking a dispute with the Municipal Council to court, was the statement made yesterday by Mr. A. W. E. Fawkes, recently employed by the Municipality of Summerland as engineer. Mr. Fawkes entered into an agreement with the Municipality to do certain work in the way of making plans or completing plans that remained unfinished when his contract with the Municipality as engineer in charge of construction terminated last June, and he was to be paid the sum of $500 for the extra work undertaken by him, which work was defined by a resolution of the Council. Approval of the plans, when completed, rested primarily with Coun. Kirk, chairman of the water committee, and he has, on several occasions when the matter has been before the Council, recommended that the plans be not accepted, on the ground that they had not been completed in accordance with the resolution above referred to.

When Mr. Fawkes began his work on the plans and specifications, he asked and was given permission to take the plans from the office to his home where, he stated, he could work to better advantage. Mr. Fawkes has since refused to give the Municipality possession of the plans, stating that he would hold them until the cheque for $500 was forthcoming.

At a recent meeting of the Council it was agreed that the matter should be referred to W. C. Kelley, with the instructions that he endeavor to effect a settlement, as the Council was anxious to have the matter disposed of, as well as to obtain possession of the plans and specifications, now held by Mr. Fawkes. Mr. Kelley heard the statements of Coun. Kirk and Municipal Clerk Nixon, and also obtained Mr. Fawkes' side of the story, and at a recent meeting of the Council made the recommendation that, with the consent of Engineer Fawkes, the plans be submitted to a disinterested third party, suggesting the Dean of the Faculty of Engineering of the University of British Columbia. Mr. Kelley was instructed to write Mr. Fawkes making such a proposition, the Council undertaking to pay the charge made by Dean Matheson, if he found the plans in accordance with the agreement entered into by Engineer Fawkes and the Municipality.

Mr. Fawkes has not acknowledged this letter, nor will he consent to this method of settlement and stated, yesterday, that he intended to take the matter to court; that he had laid his case before fellow engineers who, he said, had upheld his action in refusing to return the plans and who supported his claim that he had carried out his part of the contract.

At a recent meeting of the Council with Acting Reeve White in the chair, both Councillors Blair and Johnston took the ground that the chairman of the Water Committee had been delegated to examine the plans, and he having reported that they were yet incomplete, they did not care to act against his recommendation.

Should the matter go to court, as Mr. Fawkes states it will, there will likely be some interesting developments of a more or less personal nature. Mr. Fawkes stated today that he proposed engaging several engineers from Vancouver well up in the provincial organization, and of whom Dean Matheson is one, and that he will demand that the Council pay their expenses in addition to the

Mr. F. W. Peters, general superintendent of the C. P. R., reports that about 3500 carloads of fruit have so far been shipped out of the Okanagan Valley by his company this season as against a total of 5000 cars last year. He states that some shippers are holding their crops, one concern having around forty cars in frost-proof storage.

$500 before they are given possession of the plans. Shortly before going to press The Review was advised by Mr. Fawkes, over the phone, that he had further considered the matter of his dispute with the Municipal Council and said that instead of ignoring the municipal solicitor's letter offering to refer the dispute to Dean Matheson, he would write the Council declining this offer, but stating that he would place the matter before the group of engineers above referred to, advising the council at the same time that the Municipality would be required to pay the costs of these engineers before they are given possession of the documents.

Mr. Fawkes recalled that he had offered to make any explanations and to give any further drawings that the Council might require in the process of any construction under the plans that he now holds and that this offer is still open. He will delay any further steps until after the next regular meeting of the Municipal Council when, if his offer is not accepted and the cheque for $500 paid over, he will immediately take proceedings against the Municipality.

FINE LECTURE AT OPEN FORUM

Handicraft, Subject of Splendid Address by Mr. Chas. Baker.

The subject for last Sunday was "Handicraft—Its Interruption and Spiritual Interpretation," and was well handled by the speaker, Mr. Chas. Baker. In prefacing his main subject, Mr. Baker referred to some modern theories of social life which would fall to bring about the greatest happiness and intimated that he proposed to enlarge on that branch of his subject at a later date. Handicraft, in the early periods of the world's history, was an art which could be traced back in an unbroken line and formed an historical record in itself, as for example, in sculptures on tombs of great men which modern research has unearthed. As an art, it existed until the era of machinery, which might be said to begin with Arkwright's invention of the spinning jenny. The effect of development of mechanical means automatically brought about the loss of individuality in manufacture, and created an age of specialization. Today no workman makes any article from first to last, but knows only how to turn out one part of it, and that through the medium of a machine which does the work. This meant further the grouping of labor in large centres, and has created the two great classes of employer and employed—more commonly spoken of as capitalist and worker. The creative element in the workman being thus eliminated, some substitute has to be found. It should not be looked for in the accentuation of class feeling, but in the bringing together of employer and worker, and developing a spirit of co-operation between them. The handicraftsman of old loved his work for its own sake, and therein lay the spiritual part of his work—the workman of today is deprived of this element by reason of the incompleteness of his work. The great question of all, in the last analysis, was the spiritual interpretation of work, and this spirit must be kept alive by preserving handicraft as a reality, despite the undoubted fact that it has disappeared as a practical feature of the world's production.

Some discussion followed and the speaker has been asked to deal further with the subject on another occasion. Miss Dale presided at the piano. Mr. D. J. Walsh was chairman of the meeting.

GOVERNMENT TO BUILD HOPE-PRINCETON ROAD

Report Says New Route Selected—Fraser Canyon Route Also Being Planned.

Recent reports from authentic sources state that the provincial government has about decided to build a road between Hope and Princeton, not by the original Cleveland survey but along the Dewdney trail as examined by District Road Engineer Gwyer some months ago. It is said that this road will be made about ten of twelve feet wide as a secondary road but will be quite suitable for through motor traffic. Later it is the intention, according to rumored plans, to build a primary road as the transprovincial highway along the Fraser canyon. It is said this latter project will be made more easy because of the intention of the C.P.R. to double track its line in the canyon for which purpose it will use the Canadian Northern between Petain and Basque for the next three years, closing its own stations at Spences Bridge, North Bend, Lytton and nearby points.

An "at home" was given by the local Labor Party on Monday night in the Parish Hall, when a goodly number of invited guests spent a pleasant social evening with music, dancing and cards. The occasion was the annual meeting of the organization, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, T. H. Riley; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Pennant; 2nd vice-president, A. J. Beer; secretary-treasurer, J. W. S. Logie; executive committee, T. Koch, A. Ward, B. Saunders and A. Milne.

FRUIT ARRIVED IN GOOD SHAPE

Shipment of Apples, via Panama Canal, Reaches England in Fine Condition.

The possibilities of the British Columbia fruitgrower finding an immediate market for his produce in the Old Country is shown by advice in a cable from Southampton, England, from Mr. J. Forsyth Smith to Mr. R. G. L. Clarke, chief Dominion Fruit Inspector in the province. The cable states that the first consignment of fruit from this side of the continent via the all-water route through the Panama Canal, arrived in the Old Country on the first of the month.

This first shipment was made under refrigeration, and reports indicate that the fruit arrived in perfect condition. Included in the cargo was a large number of apples from the Pacific Coast, 30,000 boxes having been sent from California and Washington alone. It is stated that the Liverpool market is weakening under the immediate prospects of importations of American boxed and barrelled apples.

MAY TERMINATE POWER TROUBLE

Kootenay Power May Supply Much Needed Electrical Energy Here.

Company's Head is Making Investigations—Expects to Recommend Okanagan Branch.

That Summerland and Penticton may reasonably hope for an early connection with the electric power line crossing the Valley at Fairview, would be the conclusion reached after hearing the statements of Mr. Lorne A. Campbell, general manager of the Kootenay Power Company, at a conference of members of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern B. C., held recently at Penticton.

Mr. Campbell stated on that occasion that during the next month he proposed to make a close investigation of the situation at Copper Mountain and Alenby and after ascertaining what power would be used during the next few years would be in a better position to say what his company could do towards building a sub-station in the Okanagan. At the present time the Kootenay Power Company is carrying power at high tension from Greenwood to Princeton for the Canada Copper Corporation, but before energy can be used en route it must be "stepped down," possibly at Fairview, thus permitting of a subsidiary line up the valley, another over the hill to Cawston and Keremeos through which the high tension line already passes, and other lines to provide for pumping on portions of the soldier lands. It is well known that the provincial government is planning to irrigate some of its land by pumping out of the big ditch, hence the arrival of the current is regarded as merely a matter of time.

Mr. Campbell told the Board of Trade members that he felt reasonably confident that he could give a favorable report to his directors after the first of the year on the project for a transforming station at Fairview. In that case the company would be prepared to build its own line to Penticton and probably farther north to other Okanagan towns.

Speaking further on this subject, Mr. Campbell said: "Your power consumption is growing rapidly and it may be that we will find a sufficient market here and nearby to warrant us in making the expenditure. You realize, of course, that it is a simple business proposition. We will build up here and make other extensions if there is a sufficient market for our power. If we cannot afford to make the expenditure neither can the municipality. By the first of the year I anticipate that our investigations with regard to the field in the Princeton district where power is now being used from our system, and in the Okanagan and Southern Shillikmoon where our power is desired, will be completed. We will be able to make a statement at the first of the year and I am hopeful that it will be a favorable one."

Mr. Campbell alluded to the proposals at various places in the north Okanagan for small hydro-electric developments. He considered that power schemes should not be entered into unless there was an abundance of water power available. The Kootenay company had approximately 800,000 horsepower, of which less than 30,000 h.p. was developed. Plans were on foot, however, for the development of an additional 50,000 horsepower.

The statement of the general manager of the Kootenay Power Company was well received at the meeting, the members considering that prospects for the entrance of the company to this field were excellent. The idea in their minds is that in case of a favorable decision the company would build north from its cross-country high power line next summer and would be able to sell bulk power about the end of next year. The city of Grand Forks buys power from this concern at 1 1/2 cents per K. W.

The ultimate of an excessive wage rate is at hand. Hosiery workers at Lowell, Mass., are now asking to have their wages cut, preferring lower wages to idleness.

PRESBYTERIAN WOMEN HAD ACTIVE YEAR

Missionary Society Elects Officers for Coming Year—The Year's Receipts.

The record of the past year's work of the St. Andrew's Missionary Society shows considerable activity on the part of its members. Regular monthly meetings have been held throughout the year, with an average attendance of fourteen. In January, a joint meeting of all the societies in the town was held in the Parish Hall, and subscriptions were received for the bed in connection with the Zenana Mission. An outfit was also sent by the society to the Vegreville Hospital, and donations of $10 each to the File Hill Indian School and the Presbyterian Fund.

Last month Miss Kenny, missionary to Formosa, gave the society an excellent description of her work in that region. At the Thank offering meeting, held on Friday, October 29th, scenes of home and foreign work were shown, Mr. Chas. Baker kindly operating his lantern. The collection amounted to $78.25. The total collections throughout the year amounted to $182.75.

Two life memberships were presented by Miss Sinclair, the president. The annual meeting of the society was held on Wednesday, when the following officers were elected: President, Miss Sinclair; vice-president, Mrs. W. A. Alexander; secretary, Mrs. A. J. Beer; treasurer, Mrs. C. A. Mitchell; home helper secretary, Mrs. A. G. Mann; stranger's secretary, Mrs. G. Chisholm; supply secretary, Mrs. J. Ritchie; magazine secretary, Mrs. J. L. Logie.

SECOND LYCEUM NUMBER SPLENDID

Was Real Literary Treat and Greatly Enjoyed by Large Audience.

The second entertainment of the Lyceum course was given in the Empire Hall on Tuesday and attracted a large and appreciative audience. Miss Maude Willis, who was the attraction of the evening, proved herself to be all that had been expected. The gifts of interpretation and dramatic production claimed for this charming delineator were evident throughout a varied and exacting programme.

The main feature of the evening was the rendering of the psychological play, "The Witching Hour," a most interesting study of the dominating power of thought. Miss Willis' presentation of the different characters in this play, and her handling of its intensely dramatic situations, were a continued delight to her hearers, as were also the rendering of the short sketches and poems which were given earlier in the evening. Mr. H. H. Holmer occupied the chair during the evening.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES GIVE FUEL CONTRACTS

Usual Budget of Accounts Are Passed at Regular Meeting of Board.

The regular monthly meeting of the Summerland School Board was held on Wednesday evening, having been postponed from the week previous through lack of a quorum. There were barely sufficient members present on Wednesday evening to conduct business, those present being Chairman J. Tait and Trustees T. J. Garnett and Scott Darlis.

The usual monthly accounts for salaries and conveyance, etc., were passed for payment. Several tenders for supplying wood were received and considered, and contracts were awarded. Jns. Fyfe will deliver 35 cords of wood at the Central School at $0.50 per cord, and 10 cords of 3 ft. wood at the High School for $7.50 per cord. H. W. Troffy was awarded a contract to deliver 7 cords at the Trout Creek School at $0. J. E. Jonkison will also deliver wood at the Central School to the value of $75 at the contract price, in payment for one of the old school vans purchased by him from the School Board.

The board was advised by Mrs. C. D. Denton that she will return to resume teaching immediately after the Christmas holidays. The meeting was adjourned to December 20th.

Balfour Sanatorium Closed.

In pursuance to the policy of closing down the smaller institutions where returned men were being treated, the Sanatorium at Balfour was officially closed on Saturday; the remaining patients being transferred to various points. The Tranquille institution received more than twenty special provision having been made for their accommodation. Other contingents left for Ninette, Man.; Qu'Appelle, Sask.; and Bownes, Alta. Three bands were in attendance at Nelson to give the boys a send-off, and their friends loaded them down with fruits, candies and smokes.

The Tranquille institution is known as one of the best equipped lung and chest hospitals in Canada. Since 1917 the Dominion Government has spent upwards of $325,000 on additions and equipment, which are to become the property of the Provincial Government when the Federal authorities have no further use for them.

The Balfour institution is but one of many hospitals which have been closed during the past year.

All expert opinions seem to agree that the prospects for a bumper 1921 fruit crop are exceedingly bright. The chief factors which govern the situation are the abnormally light apple yield, with its consequent relief to the trees, and the favorable weather conditions which have obtained so far since the fruit was gathered. Following on the heavy crop of 1919 the orchards needed a season of recuperation, and this was provided by the diminished yield of 1920. Thus by all the recognized rules of natural process, it is quite permissible to look for a bountiful crop to follow. Then, as far as weather conditions are concerned, matters could hardly be more favorable. Rain has fallen in ample quantity, and no extremes of temperature have been experienced. Given normal weather conditions throughout the winter, the yield for next year should be well above the average.

In view of all these considerations, we wish to draw particular attention of our readers to the advertisement of the Summerland Storage Company, Limited, and to suggest that the successful flotation of this concern is a vital necessity to this fruit-growing community. It is well known that last year there were heavy losses, owing to lack of storage facilities, and similar loss was only averted this year by the fact that the apple crop was unusually light. With the prospect of a good crop for 1921, it is an absolute certainty that greatly increased storage room must be provided for Summerland if serious loss is to be prevented. The fruit-growers of Kelowna have just completed a three-story brick building, 86x132 feet, costing $50,000, and this municipality must not lag behind in self-protection. Vernon, too, has now a large frost-proof storage building.

Apart from the feature of crop insurance, it is worth noting that the shares of the company carry a guarantee of 8 per cent. interest per annum, and are therefore an excellent investment in themselves. Also that the payments on the stock are so arranged as to make them easy to take up, 10 per cent. only being required on application, and the balance spread out in calls of the same proportion.

We commend this proposition to all as a paramount opportunity for valuable co-operation.

Pioneer's Club Mooted.

Old-timers in Summerland are to be formed into a Pioneer Club, according to a plan now being formulated. It is proposed that this club include all those citizens who took up residence here in the year 1910, or prior to that date. It is felt that there is much in the early history of the community that should not be forgotten and that the reminiscences that will be brought out at the gatherings of these old-timers will be of much value. Mr. J. L. Logie has offered to register the names of the earlier citizens, who are requested to communicate with him, giving the date of their arrival in Summerland. When this registration is reasonably complete, a meeting will be called. A banquet will probably be an early feature of the organization.

New Bank Building Occupied.

The new bank building of the Canadian Bank of Commerce is now nearly completed, and is already occupied by Manager Morkill and his staff. The building presents a very neat appearance on the outside, and the main office is very pleasing in design and layout. Opening off this room is a second room of good size which will be used during business hours as the manager's private office and at other times as a sitting room for the staff. A nice open fireplace adds much to its cheer and the comfort of its occupants. Sleeping rooms are provided on the floor above.

Clean the Orchards in the Fall

Valuable Advice, Worth Many Dollars to Fruit Growers.

(R. H. Helmer, Superintendent Summerland Experiment Station.)

All fruit should be off the trees by October 15th, at the latest. All cull apples and wind falls should be collected and used as pig feed, and whilst we are in the cleaning up mood, go over the entire orchard and vegetable patch. All rotten fruit, papers, weeds and trash of all kinds should be removed or ploughed under to prevent the harboring of such things as mice, bugs, fungi and bacteria. Fences and fence corners should be cleaned up, and, if you have time, clean up the road as well. It looks well and puts you in the up-to-date class. The home vegetable garden is often situated in an odd corner; this should be given careful attention; late ploughing is to be advised as this has a tendency to turn up various insects that hibernates in the soil, and spoils their winter comfort to such an extent that they may cease to worry us next spring. Any mulches of manure or weeds that may have been put round the trees to conserve the moisture should be spread away from the trunk to avoid mice girdling them. If mice are known to be bad in an orchard with clover and alfalfa in it, place poisoned wheat under old pieces of board at each tree with sufficient room left under the board to allow a mouse to go under.

The mouse is a thing we can see and his work is very definite when we lose a splendid tree, but we have other enemies just as distinctive but do not show up so plainly as the mouse. Fire Blight, if present in our orchards in the form of Hold-over Cankers, has probably killed more trees than the mouse. These cankers, otherwise wintered over in the trees, should be cut out and the mound disinfected by using one part to five hundred parts of water, of mercury bichloride and mercuric cyanide, swabbing the wounds and disinfecting the tools. Burn all removed wood as soon as possible. Insects and bugs are harbored in rubbish in the orchard. Fungus is often wintered in dead leaves and decaying matter of various sorts and if this is cleaned up much trouble will be avoided.

In clean-cultivated orchards, we like to run the spring tooth cultivator over the ground to cover fallen leaves and prevent them from blowing away. We prefer to plough under any decaying vegetable matter which will make humus which, in turn, is the greatest benefit to us from a water conservation point of view, and it helps to maintain bacteria in the soil, without which our soils become depleted in fertility.

Who Should Keep Bees?

(F. W. L. Sladen, Dominion Apiarist.)

The comparatively large number of beginners in bee keeping who either give up before long or never learn to care for the bees well, but neglect them, sometimes, to the detriment of neighboring bee keepers, if foul-brood is in the district, makes this question an interesting one.

Those who go into bees with the expectation of getting rich quickly are sure to be disappointed. Modern bee keeping is a business that takes years to master thoroughly. There are many busy people who cannot spare the time for this. The successful bee keeper has a natural liking for bees. There seems a similarity between keeping a garden and keeping bees, for many gardeners have become good bee-keepers.

There are two classes of successful beekeepers,—the amateur and the commercial beekeeper. Amateurs are found all over the country and in all callings, farmers, merchants, professional men and laborers. Commercial beekeepers, most of whom began as amateurs, are found chiefly in the regions where alsike and white clover yield abundant nectar. Many of them have out-apiaries and helpers and earn a satisfactory living from bees alone. The occupation is a healthy one. In good weather, it takes one into the open air and into ing away. We prefer to plough under any decaying vegetable matter which will make humus which, in turn, is the greatest benefit to us from a water conservation point of view, and it helps to maintain bacteria in the soil, without which our soils become depleted in fertility.

All these precautions give us the satisfaction of having given the last touch to our season's operations; even if no benefit is derived from it, the appearance of the orchard repays for the work.

close contact with nature. The work is clean; there is no drudgery, for every month brings different duties and winter brings rest.

An apiary can be kept on less than an acre of land. The capital outlay is small because one starts with only a few colonies in order to gain experience without loss. Stings deter most people from keeping bees, but individuals who are so susceptible to the poison that dangerous effects throughout the system are produced are rare. With most people the effects are merely local and consist of pain which soon gives place to swelling, but after a few stings have been received these effects are very much reduced. In the city particular care should be taken to avoid annoyance to neighbors.

Honey returns are, on the whole, greater, and the quality of the honey superior in Canada than south of the border, but the bees need more definite care, especially in preparation for winter and in the control of swarming.

No class can obtain greater returns from bees than the farmers. Many of the best apiaries on farms are where the acreage managed is not enough to occupy the farmer's whole time or where another member of the family keeps the bees. Women frequently succeed well with bees, getting help for lifting the supers and hives when the combs they contain are heavy with honey.

Electrically Heated Quilts.

Electrically heated quilts have been used with good effect in British hospitals. These quilts are arranged with highly flexible resistance wire, which is introduced in two insulated layers of fabric, the inner of which is surrounded by heat-conducting material so as to facilitate conveyance of heat to the patient. Originally the quilts were used in order to supply warmth to consumptive patients, sleeping out of doors, and proved a great advantage over the time-honored hot water bottle. More recently they have been used in fever wards, etc., to promote perspiration. It is stated that a bed temperature of 90 degrees can be attained in less than half an hour and maintained continuously hereafter.

Naramata News

Current Events of Town and District

Mr. and Mrs. Chambers, of Calgary, are guests of Mrs. Jones at the Syndica, and they will remain till after the holidays.

Mrs. R. Gamman, who has been in Summerland hospital for some time receiving medical attention, has returned to her home and is gradually getting back her strength.

Mr. Jno Noyes has been ailing for some time and as there is no improvement in his condition, it was thought best to have him in the hospital for a time. He went to the Penticton hospital on Monday.

Mrs. Languedoc spent the weekend in Summerland, visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook went out on Tuesday morning over the K. V. R. to visit friends in Michigan. They will be gone most of the winter.

Pruning school started on Monday under the direction of Mr. Hunter and will continue most of the week. There are about a dozen members taking the course.

There was a good crowd to see the basketball game on Saturday between the Summerland and Naramata High School girls. As usual, the Naramata girls walked off with the honors, the score being 24 to 8. The Naramata girls have two strong teams. The boys don't seem able to make the grade with a winning team. Mr. J. W. Jones, M.L.A., has put up a cup to be played for in the South Okanagan district by girls basketball teams and our local girls are going after the cup and it looks as if they had a good chance of winning it.

A good attendance was registered for the G. W. V. A. whist drive on Tuesday night and all had a good time. The winners of the ladies' prizes were Mrs. George Cook, high score, and Mrs. Brodie, consolation. Mr. R. Gamman captured the honors for the men and Mr. Young was in the minority.

The floor of the Fruit Union building is in good shape for the winter's dancing and it is expected there will be a good many events of this nature in the course of the season. The G.W.V.A. have announced their intention of having a dance there in the near future.

Mrs. J. D. Gordon, District Supervisor for the Soldier Settlement Board, was the guest of Mrs. J. M. Robinson this week.

Mr. F. M. Rogers has purchased the cottage on the creek, formerly owned by Dan McKay. Mr. Rogers is from Saskatchewan, and has had all the cold weather he wants, so he has made up his mind that Naramata is the best place to stay and will remain here.

Monday was an important day for Naramata as it marked the beginning of civic improvements. The special work on hand was the cleaning up of the cemetery grounds, which was conducted by the Women's Unity Club, with the assistance of all the citizens that could give all or part of the day to this cause. It was a great success in every way. There were some doing raking and burning of brush and others getting wood for the club out of old limbs that had been left from wood cutting operations. Then there was team work and survey work and road building and no one shirked the least bit. At 12 o'clock a big line of cars formed at the grounds and conducted the workers to the club-house where the ladies had prepared a most satisfying hot chicken and meat pie dinner and there was enough for all to have the limit. Then, Mr. J. M. Robinson gave all the particulars of the transferring of the cemetery to the Unity Club and also stated that he was prepared to give another acre to the club for cemetery purposes, as it would make the grounds more complete. It is expected this offer will be accepted. Mrs. J. M. Robinson, president of the club, thanked the workers for their splendid efforts and co-operation with the club in carrying out this splendid work. Every one went back to the job till 4 o'clock. Then the ladies served afternoon tea and apple pie to the workers. All went home tired, but entirely satisfied with the day and all decided that there was need for more volunteer work and were willing to do their share whenever necessary. This is the kind of thing that builds up flourishing communities and makes others want to live here, where people are glad to help their town and put it on the map, no matter what the sacrifice may be.

The Milking of Cows.

Shall cows be milked twice or three times a day? To the average reader this may seem of small concern. To the farmer and dairyman it is a question of considerable interest. Tests have recently been made in Nova Scotia, Quebec and Ontario. Professor Barton, of Macdonald college, says that it has been found from the standpoint of economy and safety that a cow giving 600 lbs. of milk a day should be milked three times. Both Professor Trueman, of Nova Scotia Agricultural college, and Professor Barton are agreed, however, that unless the udder is over distended there is little or no advantage to be gained by milking three times a day. These authorities are quoted in the September number of The Agricultural Gazette of Canada. Professor Wade Toole also contributed to a solution of the same problem by giving results of tests made at the Ontario Agricultural college. The tests are to be continued and Professor Toole hopes to be able to give a more definite opinion another year than he does at present. In the meantime, he shows that three high class pure-bred cows gave more by thrice than by twice milking a day. His present conclusions, however, are the same as those of Professors Barton and Trueman.

The Hand to Hold.

If I might hold that hand again, Clapsed lovingly in mine, I'd little care what others sought— That hand I held lang syne!

That hand! So warm it was and soft! Soft? Ne'er was so soft a thing! Ah, me! I'll hold it ne'er again— Ace, ten, knave, queen and king.

"And why is he here?" we inquired, stopping in front of Padded Cell No. 44.

"He was a politician and when he finally got in office he really tried to carry out his campaign pledges," replied the attendant.

CROP LOSSES, 1919

The 1919 fruit season very forcibly showed the necessity for storage for the Fruit Crop of the Summerland District, in the great loss sustained by the Growers mainly through insufficient storage to protect the crop.

The 1920 season, with practically a one-half crop, has accentuated the need for storage facilities as, with the light crop our facilities for packing and handling same were taxed to the utmost.

With the prospects which now exist for a crop next year largely in excess of anything we have ever had, certain disaster is faced unless we prepare for the situation by arranging for adequate room for packing, handling and storing, and this your Company invites your assistance in supplying.

It is a vital matter, and there is not a grower in Summerland who is not materially interested.

STORAGE BUILDING CAPACITY

The Summerland Storage Company, Limited, is having prepared preliminary plans of a Frost-Proof Storage Building, 65 feet by 250 feet, three stories high, with a capacity of 200 cars of apples.

Copies of the Prospectus of the Company are being mailed, and we invite the careful attention of those interested in the matter, so that when they are called upon, as they will be in the near future, by Mr J. Lawler, who is undertaking to solicit subscriptions for stock, they will be prepared to respond to the appeal.

Shares may also be purchased at the office from Mr T. G. Beavis, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Company.

Major E. E. HUTTON, Vice-President,

EIGHT PER CENT. GUARANTEED

An agreement to lease this building has been entered into between the Storage Company and the Summerland Fruit Union, whereby the latter has agreed to lease the Storage Building for a period of twenty years, paying therefor, a rental which guarantees eight per cent. per annum on the par value of the shares of The Summerland Storage Company, Limited, according to the prospectus.

NEED FOR STORAGE

Fruits and Vegetables are perishable commodities which need protection against frost, delays in transportation and glutted markets. Occasions arise when these commodities require to be held until the markets are able to absorb them, otherwise prices suffer and disaster follows.

Facilities must be provided for storage, and the enterprise of the Summerland Storage Company, Limited, should commend itself to all persons whether financially interested in the Fruit Business or not.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1920.

THE COMING CIVIC ELECTIONS.

In the dust of battle raised by the two elections lately concluded, the matter of the choice of men who are to conduct the business of the municipalities during the coming year has been very naturally obscured. But with the passing of the second week of the month, we should realize that but little time is left to consider an issue which is, after all, of more direct importance to the community than either Federal or Provincial elections. The welfare of any district as a civic entity depends to a great extent on the policy pursued by those put in charge of its business affairs, and it is not wise to overlook the importance of an intelligent selection. It is not enough that the votes should be distributed amongst those who may happen to come forward as candidates—the ratepayers' choice should begin earlier than that, and those men who are thought to be capable, should be invited to stand for election.

In many places, of late years, there has been noted a decided atmosphere of apathy in civic matters, some towns having actually been without any candidates at all. This state of affairs indicates a lack of civic pride which is hard to understand, and fortunately such instances were rare. But there is often an unspoken reluctance on the part of those very men who might be particularly well qualified for public office, and it is incumbent on the electors to invite their services. If Summerland possessed a ratepayers' association, this would be a matter quite within the province of such an organization. As that is not yet an accomplished fact, less official means have to be used.

On the other hand, there are unquestionably men in this municipality who know their services would be welcomed, but who feel they are not able to spare the time involved. To such men it is allowable to point out that the public spirit which lies in all good citizens should be allowed to have its way, and that a little sacrifice of time and thought should not be allowed to stand in the way of what is, after all, the privilege and duty of every qualified citizen.

MUNICIPALITIES AND THE PROVINCIAL ELECTION.

One feature of the provincial election which will probably be as fully appreciated by the Oliver Government as by the electors of the province, is the greatly reduced majority with which business will have to be transacted. A strong opposition is generally a good thing for the general welfare, since the administration faced with such is constrained to dismiss any idea of attempted autocracy in legislation, and is put on its mettle to do good work.

Probably the most noticeable discrepancy between the platforms of the Liberal and Conservative speakers during the recent election campaign, was seen in the question of provincial assistance to municipal taxation. The Oliver policy in the past has been one of masterly inactivity, and did not shine very brightly against the proposals of the Opposition leader. It is now distinctly obligatory on the municipalities to press for some legislation which will result in substantial aid in their finance problems. This will doubtless be best accomplished by unity of purpose, and the method best calculated to bring that about seems to be the creation of ratepayers' associations along the lines already initiated. Enough has been said lately by the political campaigners to show Premier Oliver what is called for, and the matter should be followed up with vigor.

An Old-Time Civic Oath.

The following is a translation of the oath taken by citizens of old Athens, when that city was building up its reputation as the most famous in all the then known world, and seems to show why Athens became famous:

"We will never bring disgrace to this our city, by any act of dishonesty or cowardice, nor ever desert our suffering comrades in the ranks; we will fight for the ideals and sacred things of the city, both alone and with many; we will revere and obey the city's laws and do our best to inculcate a like respect in those above us who are prone to annul or set them at naught; we will strive unceasingly to quicken the public's sense of civic duty; thus in all these ways we will transmit this city not only not less, but greater, and more beautiful than it was transmitted to us."

Time's Changes. I.

"You and your sister are twins, are you not?"
"We were in childhood. Now, however, she is five years younger than I."

"I say, Shiloh! that blackguard Fensonly has threatened to kick me the first time he meets me. If I should come across him in society what would you recommend me to do?"
"Sit down."

POWERFUL THO' HUMBLE.

I am cold and senseless, I came from the depths of the earth. When new I am bright and pleasing. When I grow old I am beaten, cast aside and re-born to use again. For centuries I have preserved the works of art, knowledge and history. I have heralded broadcast the works of man, created wars, overturned kingdoms, and elected crowns. Mightier than the sword am I. Had I never been born the world would still be clothed in darkness and ignorance, seas remain unknown, wealths unused and learning undreamed. Wonderful institutions of learning have been created through my efforts, lives broadened and homes made happy. My greatest ambition is realized when I can teach the young, comfort the old and spread learning throughout the world. I assist you to learn of the happenings of your neighbors, the doings of the city and the wars of yesterday. My use extends from the smallest hamlet to the farthest corner of the earth. Yet, I am little known, seldom seen, and quite small and insignificant. But, you will seek my lasting impression on the morrow—for I am but the printer's humble type.—Inland Printer.

Attendance at dances at Port Arthur has shown such a falling off as compared with last year that some have been cancelled. Attendance at the board of education night classes shows an increase of over 50 per cent.

CHURCH ACTIVITIES AT NARAMATA

The annual bazaar and supper, held on Thursday, Dec. 2nd, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Naramata church, was by far the most successful event of its kind ever held. The amount realized was in the vicinity of $175. Remarks of appreciation were heard on all sides in connection with the supper. Between 125 and 150 persons were served and the only fault found was with the price. All agreed that the meal was worth much more than the price asked. Henceforth all will know where to come when seeking a bargain. Supper was served at 6 p.m. and the sale of work started at 7.30, the latter being formally opened by Rev. W. P. Ewing. There was a large assortment of both fancy and useful articles. Those most in favor were the beautiful guest towels, which were immediately "snapped up." One of the evening's attractions was the candy booth, decorated in the Naramata colors, purple and gold, and presided over by the Onwego girls' class. Fancy work was in charge of Mrs. Geo. Wolstencroft and Mrs. D. O. Hughes; plain work, Mrs. W. Greene and Miss Cathie Hancock, and supper under the direction of Mrs. M. M. Allen.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary was held on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Geo. Weaver. A goodly number were present and considerable work was accomplished.

A meeting of the teachers and officers of the Sunday School was held in the church on Sunday at 7.30 p.m., Supt. W. H. Irvin presiding. It was decided to hold a white Xmas, the gifts to be sent to some worthy institution in Vancouver. Supper will be served by the teachers to the scholars and an entertainment will follow later in the evening. A committee was formed to decide on a standard for marking class books. Samples for rewards were presented by the superintendent, but the matter was laid on the table for further reference.

On Saturday last a few of the church members and friends had a "bee" for cutting dry wood. A very profitable time was spent as enough wood was secured to provide the church with wood during the winter months. The thanks of the board is extended to all those who so willingly lent their assistance.

Western Farmers Building Silos

It is to be anticipated that before many years have elapsed almost every farm in the Canadian prairie provinces will have its silo. The growth of the dairy industry would naturally bring this condition about in course of time, but the movement is being expedited by the success farmers are having in growing sunflowers. Small fields of from three to thirty acres have been planted in various parts of the three prairie provinces of Canada. The yields are proving more satisfactory than the farmers generally dared to hope, and each acre yields on an average from fifteen to thirty tons of ensilage.

Many farmers have erected silos on their farms during the summer to take care of this crop, but most of them have underestimated their requirements and will have more crop than they can put in their silos. Sunflower silage is due for a more extensive trial this winter than it has had before. The results in previous years have been very satisfactory but only comparatively few farmers have grown the crop for silage previous to this year. If in its more extensive use the crop proves to be as satisfactory as it has already proved in the few cases where it has been tried, it is safe to say that in a few years the farm without a silo will be an exception in Western Canada.

Since last year's results have become known, considerable interest has been shown in silos and ensilage in Western Canada and several hundred silos have been erected during the past summer. Typical of this movement is the Cardston district in Southern Alberta, where eight silos have been erected this year, and where about fifty acres of sunflowers were planted. The crop has proved so successful that it is predicted that one hundred silos will be built in the district next year, and more than a thousand acres of sunflowers planted. Similar plans are being made in other parts of Western Canada, and the already rapidly growing dairy industry promises to grow much faster with the general acceptance of the sunflower as a silage crop. Another evidence of the value of sunflowers as a forage crop will be the big gain in finished steers. Many of the larger livestock raisers are growing sunflowers and erecting silos for this purpose. Thus will be considerably increased the finishing areas of Canada, which, hitherto, have been somewhat restricted, compared with the large feeding areas throughout the country, and the livestock industry in the West will be placed on a sound basis.

THE MODERN NEWSPAPER.

The modern newspaper, with its vast circulation and wide appeal, is a critic of the time—a mirror of the moment. It is the schoolmaster of the world. But it is more than that. It is an ever-kindly friend, a staunch and certain help in trouble. It reaches to every corner of the land, stretching out the hand of comradeship to every townsman and every cottager. During the war its power was invaluable. It brought the last poor crumb of comfort to many in the knowledge—conveyed by some pictured trinket—that even in death they were not forgotten. The universal knowledge that publicity brings makes all mankind your friend. It is the loadstar of civilization.—London Daily Express.

UGLINESS IN SMALL TOWN BUILDINGS

The discussion that is taking place regarding the ugliness or otherwise of the buildings in Canadian villages and small towns is an indication that the citizens are beginning to take an interest in the "town beautiful." The Toronto Globe, in commenting on the subject, while maintaining that there was plenty of room for improvement, presents the unfavorable comparison with the villages of the Old Country, and picks out the mining villages of the North of England and South of Scotland as examples of ugliness. There is much to be said in favor of the Globe's stand. It is not a good policy for those who would instill a love of the beautiful into Canadian small town life to always set up English examples to follow, for every country has its own style and standard of architectural beauty; while it is true that the English villages are really beautiful, Canada, because of the extremes in heat and cold, must necessarily have her own system of architecture. But this does not mean that the box-like dwellings—without any attempt at design or even paint—that are so prevalent in most of the small towns, can really represent the artistic spirit of Canada. They do not. These dwellings are just the manifestations of men desirous of having homes of their own, and not having the means to engage architects, they have built, often with their own hands, as they knew best. They have had no time to study design—but they have built dwelling places for themselves and their families. They have taken the first step to true independence. Now that Canada has got to the stage of desiring beauty in her home life, these citizens of small towns and villages will rise to the occasion and beautify their homes, but they will do it in their own time and in their own way—with a little diplomatic guidance. But one thing the Canadians will not stand for, and that is the beauty of other countries thrust down their throats. They insist on developing themselves by themselves.—Canadian Municipal Journal.

Municipal Bird Houses in St. Thomas

The City of St. Thomas (Ont.) recently erected three large bird houses for the housing of Purple Martins. Each house will accommodate 80 pairs of birds. The cost of each structure was about $250. The towers are 24 feet high, each support being set into concrete abutments of 4 foot deep. The base of the tower is 2 1/2 ft. by 2 1/2 ft. and 2 ft. by 2 ft. at the top.

The final meeting of the Summerland Board of Health was held this morning, when the report of the medical health officer, Dr. F. W. Andrew, was received and considered, and upon motion, was adopted. Dr. Andrew noted among other items that there were now fewer cases of active tuberculosis in this district than there had been for some years. He suggested the need of the sanitary inspector giving more attention to dairies, septic tanks, pig styas and privy closets.

The B. C. Cafe at Penticton was the scene of a hold-up shortly after 11 o'clock last Thursday night. The Chinese proprietor and one lone diner were the only occupants of the restaurant, and $18 in cash was taken. Shortly afterwards, Constable Arkel of Summerland, was advised by phone of the hold-up and was told that the man was probably five miles out of Penticton, heading this way, and he was asked to arrest him. Nothing, however, was seen of the fugitive here.

That it was not Dr. Otto Demuth, but his son, Fred Demuth, Jr., who died recently at Cleveland, Ohio, is the message received in the Okanagan. The earlier report emanated from Grand Forks and was given as the statement of Mr. and Mrs. Demuth, who had left hurriedly for the East.

The senior basketball team, reports "Scottie," of the Dominion Bank staff, are very anxious to get some matches with opposing teams, and have endeavored to get Kelowna and Penticton to form a league, but up to the present have not succeeded in making arrangements to this end. The Canadian Copper Corporation is closing down the mine at Copper Mountain near Princeton, and also the concentrator at Allenby. This plant had but recently started operations and it was for it that the Kootenay Power Company built its power line across country. The order to close down was received on Wednesday from New York, the reason given being the continual decline in the price of copper and inability to conclude a wage reduction agreement with the men. About 400 employees will be let out.

It is reported that, with the termination of the fruit traffic, it is now possible to despatch the C. P. R. train from the Landing much sooner after the arrival of the boat than during the fruit season, and that a change has been made in the schedule so that the train now leaves at 2 o'clock. This will be very much appreciated by those going to Vernon and the North, as in the past they have been compelled to wait until 3 o'clock, or take a none too pleasant jitney ride over a very much cut-up road.

The Council of the Municipality of Penticton passed a resolution at its meeting on Monday night asking the attorney-general to remove Magistrate Guernsey from office. It is said there has been friction between the council and the magistrate with respect to the attitude of the latter on police court findings and fines, and further that the police commission has not agreed with the stand the magistrate has taken. A similar attempt to have him removed from office was made two or three years ago, but the attorney-general refused to take action. Friends of Magistrate Guernsey state that the movement against him is political in character. His opponents declare that he is not friendly to the enforcement of the Prohibition Act, and that he is out of sympathy with the local elected bodies.

Prof. C. C. Laugher

No. 1—MUSICAL IMPRESSIONS

A vocalist writes to a music editor wanting to know how long it is possible for a man to hold a note. The editor replies, we have one that we have held for six years and rather expect to hold it six years longer. It would be quite difficult to hold a musical note that long, particularly if playing on a brass instrument.

We are told that an English physician advises the playing of wind instrument, as a recent investigation has brought this summing up: That cornetist's life averages 69 years; clarinetist's life is 64 years, and because flutists do not require the full exercise of their lungs in playing, their average is but 61 years. He adds that to play some wind instruments lengthens life, for the steady and moderate use of the lungs somewhat in excess of breathing is the cause.

We sometimes pause in considering the drum as a musical instrument and we step up to the drummer and say to him (after the band had stopped playing), you don't make very good music with that instrument. No, admitted the pouter of the drum, I know I don't, but I drown a heap of bad music.

The Scotch have a proverb: "Where McGregor sits, there is the head of the table." This brings us to an incident in Sarah Bernhardt's career when touring the U. S. A. Her manager failed to secure a proper theatre for her in a certain Texas city in which she had promised to appear. With great reluctance and expecting a contemptuous refusal, he suggested that he might secure a circus tent, but supposed that she would only act in a first-class theatre.

FEEDING THE LAYERS.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

In feeding for eggs the same as for anything else, regularity is essential no matter what method is followed.

There are many methods that give satisfactory results. What suits one feeder may not suit another, so that it is necessary for individual poultry keepers to decide for themselves just what system of feeding they will adopt. It will be found that best results are obtained where a certain amount of the grain fed is ground. This may be fed either as a moist mash or dry in hoppers according to the personal preference of the feeder.

For some years the feeding of a dry mash in hoppers has been very popular, especially on large plants where labor has to be considered. This system has some advantage and some disadvantages but the former greatly overbalance the latter.

The principal disadvantage is the waste of food by scattering of it out of the hoppers. This can be largely avoided by the use of properly constructed hoppers or by the closing of the hoppers except at certain regular periods. Dependence need not necessarily be placed on any given foods. So long as it is borne in mind that the various forms of food, cereal, vegetable, animal and mineral, must be supplied, rations may differ widely in make-up. Farmers should depend largely on home-grown feeds, and when it is necessary to buy, those feeds most readily and cheaply obtainable in the various localities are the ones that should be used. A ration that proved satisfactory last year may be too expensive to use this year or one that was too expensive last season may be cheapest this. The successful poultry keeper will not only vary the rations according to the prices of feeds, but also according to the condition of his flock. A hen that is not laying cannot stand as heavy a ration as one that is producing heavily neither can a flock of old hens stand as heavy a ration as a flock of pullets.

The layers' feed is important;

tre. "Go ahead," said she, "wherever Sarah Bernhardt acts is a first-class theatre."

Speaking of singing, we realize that the singer's essentials are voice, ear and musical intellect. The voice must pre-exist, it cannot be created, but its errors can be corrected. Mere bigness of voice makes no musical appeal. History gives us that the record for a big voice belongs to Stentor, a herald of the Greeks in the Trojan war, whose voice is said to be as loud as that of fifty men shouting together. A bass singer, whose name was Cheron, of the Paris opera, who lived toward the end of the eighteenth century, who in early life had been a blacksmith, is said that, by his blowing into a drinking glass could crack it, and by singing into it in his mighty upper "D" could burst it. The biggest and noblest voice that this twentieth century has listened to was Edouard de Reszke's.

The musicians of today are usually exceedingly versatile in their activities, but in former times it was only too common for them to be confined to an absurdly narrow and one-sided outlook on life, and to take little interest in anything outside of their own particular specialty.

An amusing example of this was with Poppo, an eccentric violinist, at one time fashionable teacher in Paris and London. Living in Paris at the time of the revolution, although perfectly inoffensive, he was denounced as a suspect and brought before the tribunal for trial. The following dialogue took place between him and the president of the tribunal. What is your name? Poppo, he answered. What do you do? I play violin.

What were your activities during the reign of the tyrant? I played the violin. And nowadays? I play the violin. And if the republic have need of you what will you do? I will play the violin. Poppo was acquitted.

The impression or influence that Musicians leave behind them is little realized by themselves and we certainly do not know to what extent of trouble, difficulty or short comings some of these musicians worked under. Think of the beautiful music of Greig, much of it written while he had the use of one lung only. Schubert, whose artistic career lasted but seven years, was the most miserably poor of all musicians, yet he is regarded as the greatest song writer, producing the most beautiful melodic phrasing.

grit, oyster-shell, charcoal and dry mash are kept in a hopper constantly before the flock. Fresh water, and when possible a dish of sour milk is also supplied. In the morning a light feed, and in the evening a full feed, of mixed grain, is given in the litter; at noon, green feed and, if desired, a feed of moist mash. When sour milk is available, green cut bone may be fed alternately, with the moist mash, or coarse beef scrap may be supplied in the hoppers.

The mixed grain usually consists of corn and wheat, equal parts, and oats, one half part, but if any other grains are cheaper or more easily obtained, they are used. In cold weather, the proportion of corn is increased, and in hot weather decreased.

The green feed consists of roots—mangels preferred—or sprouted oats. Chopped clover is sometimes steamed and mixed with the mash.

The mash mixture is equal parts, corn, bran and middlings, one-half part gluten and one-half fine beef scrap, or blood flour. For old hens, either the percentage of bran is increased in the mash or the hopper is kept closed except at certain times of the day.

"Your old men shall dream dreams, Your young men shall see visions."

One, by one the clouds lifted from the waters of the beautiful Okanagan Lake, and the dense drooping veil of mist were slowly withdrawn. The great mountains became visible, clearly defined against the heaven's ethereal faint blue. Snow lay frozen white upon them, and their cold, high peaks seemed very far away. But one wide bar of luminous gold light, ened their slopes towards the east, and in that warm and tender haze the hard snow melted, and the flowers opened into bloom.

Two dark figures of men advanced into the light. They had climbed for many hours. They had seen the radiance from afar, and now they entered it together. Their were brothers in their common lot and creed, but as they stepped into the golden glory their brows grew heavy with distrust and wrath.

"What does't thou here?" said the one. "The Light is mine!"

"Nay, fool," said the other. "Thou liest—the Light is mine!"

And the evil frown deepened on their faces, and they forgot their brotherhood and fought; fought with a merciless blind fury for every inch of that wondrous Light that was not theirs; fought till the flowers on the ground sickened and died in the torrent of blood that was shed.

But suddenly between them a Shadow fell. And the Shadow's name was Death. Then those contending twain shrank from each other's grasp in fear, and covering their eyes they fled swiftly, and the Shadow went with them. And their blood sank into the cool, brown earth, and the flowers bloomed again. And God's Light lay still upon the mountains.

Two women came into the Light. They were great queens, brow-bound with gold and burdened with a weight of gems. With them they dragged a fainting, feeble creature like a child with wings; an almost dying thing that wept and wailed aloud and shuddered as it came. Reaching the Light, the women paused and faced each other.

"Loose thou thy hold of Love," said the one—"for lo, we have reached the goal, and, by the wonder of my beauty in the Light, both Light and Love are mine."

"O, traitress!" cried the other, "what hast thou to do with beauty where I am? I am the mistress of the world; Love is my servant, Light my heritage. Dispute no more, for Love and Light are mine." And again the Shadow fell. Then those two rival Queens grew pale and thin; and melted like frail ghosts into the darkness. But the winged child remained alone, weeping. And God's Light lay softly on the mountains.

A solitary wayfarer advanced into the Light, bare-headed and with uplifted eyes. He paused, and looked, and smiled. His limbs were very weary, his hands were hard with unrewarded toil; but, though his face was pale and worn, it was beautiful. His lips parted in a sigh of rapture.

"This is the Light!" he said. "My God, I thank Thee!"

And the winged Love, who wept alone, drew near to him and kissed his feet.

"O, who are thou?" it questioned him sobbingly. "Who are thou that just toiled so far to find the Light, and had no word of envy on thy lips, but only peace and praise?"

And the stranger, smiling, answered—

"I am known as the Despised and Lonely; in all the world I possess nothing, not even a blessing. Alone I have been from the first Beginning—alone I must be to the last End. But I have sought the Light and found it, wherefore I praise the Giver of the Light who hath not suffered me to be dismayed. For I bear the name most hated among men—Truth."

And again the Shadow fell. Only it was no more a Shadow but a Brightness, brightening into the Light itself. And tired Truth drank in the golden glory, and grew strong. Love dried its child-like tears, and afar off there was a sweet sound as of the singing of angels. And God's Light widened on the mountains.

The vision passed, and I pondered long as to its import. "Love" and "Truth," the only principles worth living for! A fearful reality appeared, and I saw the vision as picturing the slaying of Love, and the destruction of Truth.

The men and the women of the vision represented the creeds and the sects of Christendom, which, by their mutual intolerance, by their insane jealousies, by their reciprocal denunciations of each other, while distressed humanity was groping in darkness and seeking the Light, had buried the teachings of the Prince of Light beneath a heterogeneous heap of ecclesiastical rubbish and theological dogma.

As the quarrelling men fled, and the envious women melted away, so the existing churches disappear, or radically change ere that ineffable Spirit can come which is destined to ultimately govern all things. "Mene Tekel" (Dan. v. 26-27)

.. The Winding Trail ..

Two very desirable institutions are at present Gaps Which lacking in Summerland—one being a choral society, the other, a public library. The former, I believe, used to figure prominently among the social relaxations of the community, and will doubtless be sooner or later revived—the latter, so far as I am aware, is a feature still to come. This is a somewhat surprising fact, considering the population of the place and the intellectual standing of its citizens. A community which can support an open Forum for discussion of literary and social subjects, should surely be able and willing to establish a collection of books, which could be circulated amongst those who cared to read them. There are communities in this valley very much smaller than Summerland who have for years maintained public libraries by their own efforts, the books being donated by all who have them to spare, and their distribution looked after by voluntary assistance. Such an organization would hardly cope efficiently with the needs of this larger district, but it might serve as a beginning, and should easily grow with the demands made upon it.

The B. C. Monthly recently had a severe but The Dignity well merited criticism of the undignified of the House methods observable in the conduct of some of our public affairs. As thus: "When a judge of our Supreme Court Bench, discharging his judicial duties in a most serious criminal case, in his charge to the jury refers to witnesses as a 'sweet scented bunch of jailbirds,' there is a regrettable lack of dignity in his diction. Could one imagine a learned judge in Britain charging a jury in such language? Well, probably not, but when the Provincial House of Parliament sets the example, what can we expect from our law courts? Anyone who has read the reports of some parliamentary disputes at Victoria, during the past year, will agree that dignity was the very last element observable. When the Premier himself is twice called to order in one debate, and he and the leader of the Opposition indulge in repartee of the 'you're another' type, we certainly cannot concede the existence of a highly dignified standard of debate in that august assembly. And the episode of a prime minister offering to bet $5 with a police witness in a recent enquiry that he was wrong on a certain point, is not much mitigated by the fact that this was at a public meeting, and not on the floor of the House itself.

On many occasions the provincial debates have resembled nothing so much as schoolboy wrangles over a game at marbles, and do not commend themselves to people who reflect that these undignified disputes are being paid for by public money. As for dignity—the less said the better!

Between the hours of twelve noon, and one p.m. That Sacred or thereabouts, the business regions of Summerland take on an air of repose which is absolutely pastoral in its serenity, and argues a calmness of mind quite unruffled by the possible needs of any buyer so unreasonable as to wish to purchase during that interval of Sabbath calm. I do not know of any other place, even in this placid valley, where these conditions exist, and think there must be something in the atmosphere to account for it here. It is an idyllic condition of affairs, and seems to indicate an assurance of business which is able to be perfectly independent of public approval or otherwise.

The New York World has an article on the anti-tobacco movement in the United States, which makes Tobacco it quite clear that such a movement is an actual fact, and not a mere figment of imagination. The Victoria Daily Colonist confirms this by a statement that some of the Eastern States in that country are now trying to make smoking a crime, and notes also that Massachusetts is talking of legislation against high heels, and couples this announcement with an arraignment of the sucking of lollipops! If this is correct, it is easy to understand the Colonist's claim that prohibition movements are reaching such lengths that they are becoming ludicrous.

The real fact underlying these crusades is that they grow by what they feed on, and success in one movement, which was admittedly more or less justified by conditions, automatically breeds a desire for interference in matters which do not need it. The consoling feature is the certainty that public opinion will not submit beyond a certain point, but will revolt when officious meddling becomes unbearable. In the meantime, it may be a more practical and legitimate procedure on the part of anti-tobacco reformers and even the public in general, to take care that existing laws regarding the sale of cigarettes to minors is properly observed on this continent. We are much given to making laws, and exceedingly lax in seeing that they are enforced.

FARMERS ARE KEEPING ACCOUNTS

Twenty thousand Farmers' Account Books have been supplied to Canadian farmers by the Commission of Conservation for the purpose of keeping records of farm accounts. This farm record book enables the farmer to keep a complete account of all financial transactions on the farm—the receipts and expenditures for the several branches of work, for horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, field crops, etc., and for labor and miscellaneous. It provides also for an inventory of lands and buildings and of live stock, feed and supplies, and machinery, together with a summary of the year's business. Instructions for keeping the accounts are clearly set forth. Additional valuable features are a yearly crop yield record, a live stock service record, and aids in taking inventories. The Commission of Conservation still has a number of the Farmer's Account Books on hand, in both English and French, which may be obtained at 15 cents per copy.

To the Editor of The Review:

Dear Sir,—I noticed in a recent issue of your paper, under municipal meeting report, that the government engineer from Kelowna (got in here to give expert advice (so called) on the cause of bottom lands round my district being more or less flooded out and rendered useless, by ceavage and leakage from the south main and other preventable causes) stated that Lot 45, my one, showed signs of excessive irrigation, so much so, that next season, ditchman in charge of our section, is to be told to watch my gate and not let my lot by any chance get wet feet. It is really most amusing even if correct, but as it is not, the experts advice surely does not from results, pay for the cost of his fair here and back. He knows from me the "facts" re the boggy appearance of part of my lot and says the contents of my letter are noted (I trust sunk in deep). Yours truly,

A RURAL HIGH SCHOOL.

"A rural high school must be of a distinctive type. The course of study must be rooted in the agricultural community, and all that belongs to it. Instead of compelling a pupil to "plug" dead languages and "cram" history, classics and higher mathematics, instruct the boys in animal husbandry, field husbandry, economics, sociology, farm mechanics, and farm management; and instruct the girls in domestic science, home economics, home nursing and all other phases of every day rural life. In other words, let every municipal high school be a farmers' college on a small scale, modelled to educate the rural population in rural districts, right at home, so to speak, where they will be retained as creditable citizens, as asset to the community, instead of being alienated from the farm as they are by taking a course in the city high schools today."

Peachland Women's Institute Entertains

On Friday evening the Women's Institute entertained the people of the community to a concert given in the Orange Hall. The house was practically a full one, there being as well as the Peachland people, a number from Westbank, who came down to enjoy the treat. Treat it was, with music both vocal and instrumental, recitations and a dialogue. The programme was as follows: "The Maple Leaf," one verse and chorus; solo, "One Fleeting Hour," by Mrs. Martin, Mr. Martin assisting in accompaniment with the flute; trio, "Sailing, Sailing Over the Bounding Main," sung in costume by the Misses Edgewood and Miss Betty Buchanan; solo, "Friend of Mine," by Mrs. J. L. Elliott; solo-chorus, "Gentlemen," by Mr. Cutbill; duet, "Sunset," by Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Wright; solo, Wiggle, Waggle o' the Kilt," sung in costume by Miss Betty Buchanan; solo, "The Skipper," by Mr. Martin; recitation, "Widow Budd," by Miss Francis Clement; solo, "Dear Little Boy of Mine," by Mrs. J. Wright; solo, "The Old-Fashioned Town," by Mr. Martin; humorous sketch, "The Hypochondriac." A number of the above items were heartily endorsed, some of which were responded to, to the pleasure of the audience. Those taking part in the sketch were Mrs. Dryden, Mrs. Keating, Mrs. Gummow, Mr. Small and Mr. Geo. Robinson. Time and space will not permit speaking of this number in detail, but suffice it to say that the performers played their parts to the entire satisfaction and amusement of the audience.

Mr. N. S. Davidson left on Thursday morning for the Halcyon Hot Springs.

Miss Lily Cousins spent the week end at her home here.

The amount raised in Peachland in the recent Red Cross tag collection was $110. The fact is worthy of mention that one girl, Miss Francis Clement, was successful in collecting almost one-half of the amount, namely $54, although there were a number of girls collecting.

A pruning school was conducted in Peachland recently by Mr. Chesbro of Kelowna. A number of local orchardists took advantage of this opportunity to learn more of the art of fruit tree pruning. Theory lessons were taught inside, and practical demonstrations given in the orchards.

Mrs. C. W. Whyte arrived on the Saturday morning boat to spend a short vacation in town. She is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. Powell.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Moore have moved from the Maple Point lot and taken up winter residence in a portion of Mrs. House's dwelling on Beach avenue.

Mr. McHollister arrived on Saturday evening to join his wife here and spend the week-end at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Winger. Mr. McHollister is employed in one of the outlying districts back of Kelowna and Mrs. McHollister accompanied him on his return on Monday morning, where they expect to reside for a time.

The Rev. Andrew Grieve, of Penicton, again held the pulpit in the Baptist Church on Sunday and, much to the regret of the congregation, announced that he had accepted a call to the Ruth Morton Church in South Vancouver and would not be able to preach here more than "once more before leaving to take up his new appointment. He announced that he was planning to come up on Sunday next to preach his farewell sermon instead of the following Sunday, which would have been the regular order.

A small number of men are being employed at repair work on the irrigation system.

Mrs. J. Winger was a passenger south on Monday evening, spending a day in Summerland and returning home on Wednesday morning's boat.

Major and Mrs. Hardisty returned home on Monday evening after a few days spent up the lake.

Mr. A. J. MacKenzie and Mr. E. Nightingale returned to Summerland on Monday to resume their work there building a temporary home for Mr. Nightingale, who has purchased a property in Prairie Valley.

Miss Wilson returned home on Tuesday morning last after a short visit to Victoria.

Mrs. Willis, Mrs. McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Fulton were passengers north on Tuesday morning. The former two returned on the evening boat.

Friends here of Miss Ilyva Murdin were sorry to learn, through word sent to her mother here recently, that she is ill. Her condition is not serious, however, and her mother has since heard that the illness has turned out to be measles. She had counted on starting for home shortly but will probably be delayed for a short time.

Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. C. W. Aitkens and son, W. C., returned home on Tuesday evening from Kelowna, where they had gone because of Mrs. Aitkens' daughter, Mrs. Lupton, going under an operation. We are pleased to report that Mrs. Lupton has come through the operation successfully and is doing as well as could be expected. Mrs. Aitkens brought her little grandson home with her for a time.

Mr. W. L. Williams returned on Tuesday night's boat, after a short visit up the lake.

Mr. Grantham's smiling face is seen in town again this week, he having come in on Tuesday evening.

THE AD AND THE MAN.

He saw an ad from day to day
And muttered: I defy it;
Their stuff may be just what they say
But I'm not going to buy it.

As time wore on he made remarks
It would not do to mention,
For he was mad because that ad
War forced on his attention.

But in a week, or two, or three,
He said: There's no denying
The way that ad gets hold of me—
The stuff may be worth trying.

For just about a fortnight more
He dared mere words to win him,
And then the ad completely had Aroused the spender in him.

Next day he drifted in a store
And quietly expended
A few big iron dollars for
The stuff the ad commended.

He found it filled a long-felt need;
Its excellence surprised him,
And now he's glad because the ad
So deftly hypnotized him.

"Feyther," said little Mickey,
"wasn't it Patrick Henry that said
'let us have peace?'"
"Niver," said old Mickey. "Nobody by the name of Patrick iver said anything like that."

Valuable Discovery If Proven Success

B. C. Beekeeper's Remedy for Foul Brood Would Revolutionize Honey Industry.

Beekeeping on the Coast is a comparatively new industry. Early settlers brought a few hives from the south, and some even came over the mountains from Ontario, but their success was spasmodic, their culture often crude. Many bees took to the woods, others died of want in the spring, or sickness in the summer. It is only within the past few years that the production of honey has become a commercial enterprise.

Beemen began to fraternize, organization was discussed, associations formed, and just as the industry seemed to be finding its feet, a wave of diseases swept over the country, which in the past three years, has destroyed millions of bees, put some apiarists out of business and prevented many others from collecting the golden harvest the flowers provided. Known to the wise as European Foul Brood, to the learned as Bacillus pluton, this contagious disease was first identified in this locality by Mr. W. H. Lewis, the veteran beekeeper of Edmonds, who became convinced that his and other losses were due to this cause. He not only brought the danger to the notice of the authorities, but agitated for legislation to help in its combat, and it was through his efforts and by his assistance, with others, that amendments were put to the Apiaries Act which came into force in the beginning of last year.

All this was public work to prevent the spreading of the disease. For a cure he sought his own relief.

He tried the usual method of the East, that of cleaning out combs above a queen excluder. This gave no permanent satisfaction. A newer suggestion was shaking the bees on to new combs or frames and if possible starting afresh with a new queen in charge. The fault in this method is inability to do it early enough. To be really effective, it should be done in the spring, when the conditions of the hive do not permit such interference.

Then a grim determination fell over Mr. Lewis. He made up his mind to get control of Foul Brood altogether and entirely, or quit keeping bees.

He discarded all methods and plans mechanical. These, he felt, only abated the trouble, controlled or steadied it, or kept it down. The enemy was a germ and he determined to kill it.

He took the germicides and disinfectants that others had tried and many more that they hadn't. He doused and sprayed his poor bees until life was not worth living. He killed the brood, the eggs, the workers, he harried and scrubbed and sprinkled them till they wouldn't come home. They being about the yard, spent the night on the fence, neighbors came running with news of swarms big and little in all sorts of corners! What with disease and his attempts to find a remedy, the Lewis bees went through a wretched existence for a season or two.

But reward follows diligence. This summer brought rest to the hive and satisfaction to the owner. Mr. Lewis hit upon a patented preparation which attacked the germ without disgusting the bee.

There were difficulties in handling it, so additions were made and the stuff emulsified, which led to expediency without losing effect. Bees were shook from the comb while the cells were sprayed. The comb was put back immediately and the next one so treated. The bees took kindly to the odor and oil but the germs died down in a whiff.

The first comb was watched carefully to see the result, the queen laid new eggs in the old cells that developed healthy brood. The diseased cells were cleaned up and no further fatalities were seen.

The new dope worked! After giving the first hive time to prove its case, he went on to another. Success followed that, so the whole 22 colonies were treated.

This was in June. The bees set to work cleaning up their "hospitals" and they went out after winter stores. They have ended the season with full supplies, all clean and healthy, ready for whatever the flower-fairies shall send them next season.

Several experts have examined the apary and are as convinced as Mr. Lewis that European Foul Brood has met its Waterloo.

Of course, he is aware that a spring test is yet to be made. This is the crucial time for the cure, when the disease is most rampant. But the season is awaited with eagerness and not with fear. Mr. Lewis now feels that a hundred diseased apiaries round about him would not hurt him in the future. He would keep on with his spray and rest in confidence.

One hive he treated had six of the eight frames rotten with dead larvae, and was a very bad case, indeed, one surely headed for destruction. He gave three weekly treatments and it has gone into winter quarters perfectly clean.

A light case he can "knock" in five minutes, but if cells are sealed they must be sprayed repeatedly until all are unsealed. This will be the handicap in treating America's Foul Brood. The cure would act, thinks the inventor, if he could get it behind the cappings.

As an insurance and preventative the spray is considered absolute. It will cost something under ten cents per hive to disinfect a yard, little enough for such promise of safety.

The manufacturers are now working on laboratory tests to ascertain the proper strength of the new mixture. It is promised for spring and Mr. Lewis will be in a position to demonstrate the efficacy of his cure.

His experiments were made with a little tin spray pump, which was slow and inconvenient, giving risk of exposure to the brood, as the work was done in the evenings to prevent robbing from the open hive.

A compressed air pump, such as the Kantlog, will be used next year, giving both speed and uniformity of flow.

After one thorough spraying, Mr. Lewis thinks it will be sufficient for future immunity to just spray the top of the frames once a week. The bees will not mind. The preparation is non-poisonous, entirely without danger to man or bee if it touches honey.—Farm and Home.

Christmas, the celebration of the birthday of the Divine Child, is peculiarly the children's festival. And while it cannot, too, but be a time of special rejoicing among the grown-ups, we realize after all that it has no other charm to compare with the pleasure we take in some kiddy's delight over the doll or drum or picture book that our special Santa Claus has brought him.

CANADIAN HAPPENINGS

CHRONICLED IN BRIEF

Victoria.—To keep the money of the people in this province and to assist dependents, the British Columbia Government will establish a provincial bank, according to the announcement made by Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance. Another feature of the policy is the proposal to establish a capital reserve fund, in which all monies derived from the sale of natural resources will be placed. This capital fund would never be impaired, but loaned out on interest for the development of British Columbia.

Vancouver.—In order to emphasize the food value of the cheaper grades of salmon, such as pinks and chums in the United Kingdom and other European countries, the salmon canning interests of British Columbia are sending Col. F. H. Cunningham, Chief Inspector of Dominion Fisheries for British Columbia, there on a lecture tour. It is proposed to use moving pictures of the various phases of the canning industry along with the lecture.

Vancouver.—It is definitely announced that the steamer Oridono Maru, after a dispute over charter rights of the Japanese, will go into Barclay Sound on the west coast of Vancouver Island and load a thousand tons of herring direct for Japan. This is the first time that a ship has called there in 35 years. Hitherto, all fish from Barclay Sound has been brought to Victoria and Vancouver for transhipment to the deep sea ships. It is estimated that 25,000 tons of herring will be shipped to Japan this season.

Vancouver.—In order to establish cold storage facilities as close as possible to the actual fishing area, the Hardy Bay Cold Storage and Fish Company, Limited, are building a plant at Hardy Bay at the northern tip of Vancouver Island. This plant will be closer to the halibut banks than any other cold storage fish plant, and fishermen will be able to obtain ice and bait there.

New Westminster.—The British Columbia Cordage Company, owned and operated by returned veterans, will commence immediately to manufacture all classes of cordage from string to great hawsers. The company will employ sixty men, and it is expected that the output will be sufficient to supply local and provincial demand and enter the export market. The project has been made possible by financial aid given by the provincial government, and several shareholders, among them being Sir Arthur Currie, General Victor Odlum and General Turner.

Cranbrook, B.C.—The importance of British Columbia as a pulp and paper producing province is increasing every day, and plants are being located inland as well as on the coast. A large mill, employing at the outset, between 500 and 600 people, is to be opened up shortly about six miles from this point.

Yukon.—With the discovery of large silver areas in the vicinity of Kono Hill, the Yukon is entering upon a new industrial area, is the statement made by Dr. Thompson, M.P. for that district, who has been on an extended three months tour in that territory. He says that the new silver find will take the place of the gold which first put the Yukon on the map.

Edmonton, Alta.—During the past summer, reclamation work on water-logged and swamp lands in Central Alberta has been carried on very extensively. The largest scheme, the Daysland project, by which some 16,000 acres will be reclaimed, will take more than two years to finish, and already 9000 feet of main ditch has been dug. There are several other smaller schemes which will increase the arable area by about 15,000 acres.

Edmonton, Alta.—Drillers of the provincial government have definitely established the existence of an extensive field of high grade salt at Fort McMurray. It will be necessary to sink another well to get the full advantage of the discovery, but the strike justifies efforts toward the development of the salt field.

Edmonton, Alta.—All provincial records for realty auctions were shattered at a recent sale of school lands at Donalds when, under Dominion auspices, some 21,660 acres of those reserved farming areas, were disposed of to the highest bidders during the course of a one day's sale, the total realized being $485,000.

The highest price paid was $70 per acre.

Edmonton, Alta.—It is estimated by the Department of Agriculture, that the potato yield in Alberta this year will total 7,500,000 bushels. The area in crop was reported at about 60,000 acres, and the average yield per acre, 125 bushels. Winnipeg has absorbed the major portion of this season's exports, and is expected to furnish a large part of the market during the winter.

Edmonton, Alta.—The Mackenzie River Petroleum Company is seeking authority to construct a pipe line for the transportation of oil and gas from Rat River, in the area where oil has been struck, to the Alaskan international boundary.

Calgary, Alta.—The United Grain Growers, Limited, shareholders at the annual meeting, authorized the directors to increase the borrowing powers of the company from twelve to fifteen million dollars.

Calgary, Alta.—Oil well piping to the value of $500,000 is now waiting shipment from Calgary to the oil fields in Southern Alberta. The Imperial Oil Company alone has brought into the west more than $1,000,000 worth of piping.

Carmangay, Alta.—A representative body of farmers in this district voted unanimously to have all available land on or adjoining the Little Bow river, which runs through that territory, put under irrigation. Farmers in the neighboring municipal district are being canvassed, and provided that the general opinion is favorable, the government will be asked to make the necessary surveys to ascertain whether or not the plan is feasible.

Regina, Sask.—A paper mill is to be erected at a cost of $1,000,000 in southern Saskatchewan, to utilize the thousands of tons of straw that is annually going to waste. This will be the second straw paper plant in Canada. Hitherto the waste straw has been burned, there having been difficulties, now overcome, in converting it into paper.

Regina, Sask.—Sodium Sulphate Company of Saskatchewan, Limited, has been incorporated with a capitalization of $500,000, and will develop some of the deposits recently discovered.

Regina, Sask.—One of the outstanding events at the Regina winter fair was the purchase by G. N. Buffam, of Bechard, of an imported ram at $290, the highest price so far paid for a ram at any auction in Western Canada.

Moose Jaw, Sask.—One of the largest land deals in recent years has just been put through by John Grigg, when he purchased an entire section of land, nine miles northwest of this city at $100 an acre, with a cash payment of $23,600.

Winnipeg, Man.—The first open hearth reverberatory furnace in Manitoba has commenced operations at Selkirk, about ten miles northeast of Winnipeg. Its equipment is said to be of the most modern type, and all machinery is operated by electricity supplied by Winnipeg stations. The plant represents an investment of $1,000,000.

Beausejour, Man.—Ten tons of flax straw and 400 pounds of hemp fibre an experimental crop grown on one acre sown here, has been shipped to Holland for manufacture.

Ottawa.—During the month of October, 162,973 barrels of wheat flour were exported to the United States. This is considerably in excess of any month since 1913. Wheat exported during the same month to the United States totalled 9,784,307 bushels.

Toronto.—Ontario expects an influx of no less than 10,000 immigrant farmers from England and Scotland next spring, based on the statement of the Provincial Minister of Agriculture, who has recently returned from England after investigating conditions there. He states that the class of immigrants will include large numbers of tenant farmers of the finest class, and many farm laborers.

Welland, Ont.—Sir William Cross, head of a big fertilizer and chemical plant at Glasgow, Scotland, has completed arrangements for the establishment here of a large plant to turn out thousands of tons of chemical fertilizer annually.

Montreal.—There were more than 500 entries of silver black foxes at the exhibition held here, competitors coming from all parts of the American continent. Prizes in every class, with only two exceptions, went to animals exhibited by breeders from Prince Edward Island. A professor from the University of Sapporo, Japan, was a frequent and interested spectator, Japan having made heavy fox importations from Canada in the past few years. So successful has the exhibition been that the Fur Breeders' Association of Canada, formed whilst it was in progress, have decided to hold the event annually, and extend the scope to include all fur-bearing animals raised in captivity.

Montreal.—According to the latest figures available, the capital invested in the Canadian Textile Industry for 1919 is $58,750,000, the employees 16,000; wages and salaries during the year, $11,000,000, and the value of output $82,500,000.

Montreal.—In the Montreal district there are 53 factories producing 46 per cent. of all the leather footwear made in Canada. Ontario with the same number of factories, makes 31 per cent., and Quebec city and vicinity, with 32 factories, makes 18 per cent.; 16 factories in the Maritime Provinces make 5 per cent.

Montreal.—The McGill Centenary Endowment Fund, which has just closed, has been eminently successful in every way. A total of $6,321,511 was obtained, thus going over the objective by a margin of over a million and a quarter.

A lady from the backwoods went to a photographer's shop and asked, "Do you photograph children, sir?" "Yes, madam," was the reply; "that is my specialty." "What do you charge?" "Ten shillings and sixpence a dozen, madam." "Thank you very much," said the lady, "but I'm afraid I must call again later on. I've only got eleven."

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1920

A "CONTROLLED" PRESS.

We hear a great deal these days concerning a "capitalistic" press, controlled by big interests, much of the criticism being more or less founded on conjecture and suspicion, or reasoned out from mistaken analogies drawn between Canadian conditions, and those which may or may not be rampant to the south of us. As a rule, we do not consider it good editorial policy to condemn the opinions which may be expressed in public meetings or in our columns, but we feel it advisable to express our absolute disagreement with the stand taken on the modern press by the speaker at the Forum gathering on Sunday. With conditions across the line we have no concern—they are our neighbor's business, and not ours. But we do most emphatically deny that the Canadian press can be bought by any interests, big or little, or that the policy of the local newspaper can be controlled by its advertisers. The latter part of the indictment, in fact, carries within it its own contradiction, evident to any person who takes the trouble to think it out. Such conditions may be found, or imagined, elsewhere, by such writers as the one so freely quoted from on Sunday—their cast of mind seems peculiarly suited for such prurient "revelations"—to Canada and Canadians, suggestions of the kind are meaningless.

In one particular, the speaker was right—we have far too much American literature on this side of the line—the pity is that the same conditions said to exist there, are tacitly assumed as obtaining in this country.

THE HOSPITAL.

It has been the pleasant duty of The Review to comment more than once on the very satisfactory rate of progress made on the new hospital building. Those residents who have not seen the structure as it now is, would find a trip to Hospital Hill well rewarded. Summerland will have reason for some civic pride in the erection of this fine building when completed and equipped, and will doubtless appreciate the generosity of those who have so materially aided in the financing.

The contract work has now reached a stage when more money is required, and it is now imperative that the debentures granted by the Municipality be transformed into cash without delay. So far, very little effort has been made locally to dispose of these, but we understand that the Hospital Board is now opening a campaign with this object in view. It will be remembered that the Municipal Council made a grant of twenty year debentures, and these will now be offered to the public. The bonds are in denominations of $100 and $500, thus affording opportunities of investment to both small and large investors. They will be sold at a price to net 7 1/4 per cent. and therefore constitute a very desirable investment, apart from all other considerations. When it is borne in mind that the object of this issue is of the greatest possible interest to every resident and that it is an alternative to a campaign for personal contribution, the call for liberal response on the part of local people is apparent. The maintenance of adequate hospital accommodation is one of the first necessities of any community, and no better channel for available funds can be imagined.

CANADIAN RESOURCES AND AMERICAN FINANCE.

Can it be that American financiers have laid deliberate plans to obtain financial control of Canada? A writer in the Agricultural Journal has apparently reached that conclusion. Here is what he says on this interesting subject:—

"Evidence shows unmistakably that Canada is being bought up on the mortgage system. Out of $275,000,000 invested in the Canadian pulp and paper industry, now in process of expansion, about 80 per cent. is American money. It is estimated that $524,000,000 is the amount of money loaned to Canadian business, civic, Provincial and Dominion, from the United States; this is exclusive of the large amount of Canada War Bonds held in America. The exchange rate is against the investment of British capital. The stock argument is that because we import more goods from the United States than we export the value of our money depreciates. In other words, we are a good customer of the United States, purchasing from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000 worth of goods, giving them a profit over the cost of production of from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, and in return for our trade our buying power is reduced 8 to 15 per cent. on the dollar.

The sugar situation in the United States and Canada leads many to believe that an attempt to breach or break our financial fabric is well on the way. American financiers, fearing an enraged public opinion regarding boosted sugar, unloaded their surplus on to Canadian firms at over 20 cents per pound, some say $38,000,000 worth. Immediately afterwards all prices on sugar dropped in the United States. The Board of Commerce tried to stabilize, so that the Canadian refiners could get out without losing so heavily that the industry would be wrecked. Recent news informs that our Canadian sugar-refiners have been selling for 14, 15 and 18 cents that which they bought at more than 20 cents and still continuing business. We now hear that a wholesaler at Montreal is receiving large quantities of sugar and underselling the refiners, charging 11 and 12 cents per pound. Arrangements which had been fostered for united action by Canadian and American banks to handle the sugar situation in Cuba have been broken. Who broke the negotiations? Is it necessary to keep Canadian money away from the producing end of sugar so that control of supply will be in the hands of American banks?"

UNIQUE PROGRAM FOR SUNDAY NIGHT

Life of Jesus to be Depicted in Picture and Song at Lakeside Church.

Mr. Chas. Baker will present his lecture of the "Life of Jesus," illustrated by 60 beautiful slides, in the Lakeside church, on Christmas Sunday evening, Dec. 26. He claims this is the best public contribution of a purely religious nature he has to offer. He has presented it many times in the various cities of the west and it has never failed to win the highest commendation. Only recently has Mr. Baker been able to get a satisfactory quartette together, necessary to carry out the scheme of the lecture. He has now secured the co-operation of Miss Snider, who will sing the soprano parts, together with Mrs. C. Baker, alto; Mr. C. Baker, tenor, and Mr. T. Beavis, bass. They are spending much time in preparing the work, which promises to be very fine. The musical part of the lecture will be as follows: Solos, "Behold a Virgin (Handel)," "There Were Shepherds" (Handel), "The Ninety and Nine (Sankey)," "Jesus Loves Me" (Bradbury); quartettes, "Silent Night" (Haydn), "No Room in the Inn" (Updegraff), "Come Unto Me" (Adams), "The Lord's Prayer" —chant—(Gregory), "The Prodigal Son" (Sankey), "Tis Midnight" (Bradbury), "In Pilate's Hall" (Stocks), "They Crucified Him" (Whyte), "O, Come and Mourn" (Dykes), "Low in the Grave" (Lowry), "Why Weepst Thou" —chant—(Lorenz), "Hear Our Prayer" (Adams), "Abide With Me" (Trotte), "Behold I Stand" (Root), closing quartette, "Nothing but Christ" (Post).

Comment of Brandon Sun: "Rev. Chas. Baker conceived a fine idea of presenting the life of Jesus as instanced by the lecture in the First Baptist Church last evening. The unaccompanied singing of the quartette was without fault, as was also the reading which consisted of a scripture reference—without comment—on each picture shown and which together gave a most impressive dignity to the performance."

Comment of Yorkton Enterprise: "The City Hall was crowded on Good Friday evening to see and hear the presentation of the 'Life of Jesus' by Rev. Chas. Baker, of First Baptist Church, and no one was disappointed, for certainly nothing more fitting or effective could have been put on. Exact care had been taken in the preparation so that an amazing relevancy marked the whole affair. The quartette work was admirably done. The appreciation is best observed in the fact that at the close the audience requested that Mr. Baker repeat it to the school children of the town."

Lethbridge Herald: "There was neither abruptness nor diversion in any part of the beautiful service given in the Baptist Church last night, one of the most harmonious and effective presentations of the life of Christ that could possibly be given. A suggestion by the pastor in an introductory word that it was a service which lent easily to perfect quiet, was quickly and effectively contagious, which allowed to the full for the necessary careful interpretation of the music which was done in a masterly fashion by the church quartette, whose perfect phrase and balance showed more than a mechanical performance. Miss Hazel Keith, while suffering from a severe cold, sang 'The Children's Friend,' splendidly. The church was crowded; many could not be seated suitably. The one criticism was that the building was too short to get the best effect from such a fine performance."

BASKETBALL

Summerland vs. Kelowna.

A match was arranged by telephone between the home team and Kelowna, and was played in the Gymnasium on Tuesday evening, the visitors being handsomely trimmed by a score of 34 to 7. The referee for the first half of the game was Hilton Snyder, while P. C. Teos officiated during the second half. The play was not particularly high-class, but special mention may be made of the head work and general quality displayed so early in the season by Warren Gayton, Roy Danks and Gordon Blowitt. Our old standby, "Deadeye" Angove, was hardly up to his usual form.

The prospects of a league for the district seem to be rather poor, according to information. Kelowna players seem to be handicapped by want of a suitable building in which to play, and Pentleton makes no response to enquiries sent down by local enthusiasts. It seems a pity that more interest is not taken in the interest of local sport of this healthy type.

THE WOMEN'S INSTITUTES.

The West Summerland Women's Institute met on Friday afternoon, December 10th, in the Parish Hall. The meeting opened by singing "Auld Lang Syne," and the roll call was answered by quotations on "Knowledge."

Mr. D. J. Welsh gave a very interesting short talk on poetry, choosing Keats as the subject and outlined his "Ode to a Nightingale."

The Rev. H. A. Solly then addressed the meeting on "The Spirit of Christmas," telling about some of the old customs, which was both instructive and entertaining.

This was followed by two musical numbers, solos, by Miss Snider and Mrs. E. N. Rowley. Both selections were greatly enjoyed by everyone. The meeting was followed by a sale of home cookery and afternoon tea.

The monthly meeting of the Summerland Women's Institute was held last Friday afternoon, being the final one of the year.

The programme of the day was made up by Mrs. Fawkes giving the members a talk on "Parliamentary Rules for Debate, etc." The paper was much appreciated and enjoyed.

Dr. Andrew gave the meeting a talk on "Adonoids, Tonisals and Delective Teeth Amongst Children." The paper was very instructive and listened to with close attention. Votes of thanks were tendered both speakers.

Miss Barkwell rendered the well-known solo, "My Ain Folk," which was certainly a treat.

THE ELECTIONS.

By the grace of the coast cities the Oliver Government has been given another lease of life, and Premier Oliver will apparently have at his command a sufficient working majority to sustain control of the Legislature for another term. The House will consist of 25 Liberals, 15 Conservatives, 4 Independents and 3 Laborites. As the Independents are all credited with Liberal leanings it is not likely that any combination can be formed by the Opposition that will place the Administration in peril.

While the Government has thus a majority sufficient for its needs, it will be generally acknowledged that the increased strength of the Opposition will have a beneficial effect upon the conduct of public affairs in this province. It is also noteworthy that the next Parliament will contain a large percentage of new members, with a consequent possibility of fresh strength and virility.

A feature of the election that should carry some significance lies in the fact that had not the Opposition votes been divided among such a multitude of independent candidates, the Government would probably have gone down to defeat. Even in Vancouver, which returned five supporters of the Administration, only one of these—Mrs. Smith—secured a majority vote. A somewhat similar situation in Victoria made possible the election of three Liberals in the capital city, while an analysis of the popular vote throughout the country does not by any means indicate that the people of the province hold the Oliver Government in very high esteem.

Conservatives, although unsuccessful in reaching office, may reap some consolation from the fact that they gained six seats, and will be in a position to give a much larger measure of support to their leader in the House than has been possible during the past four years.—Vernon News.

"I want you to publish these poems in book form," said a seedy-looking man to the London publisher. Publisher—"I'll look 'em over; but I cannot promise to bring them out unless you have a well-known name." Poet—"That's all right. My name is known wherever the English language is spoken."

"Ah, indeed! What is your name?" "John Smith."

At the home of the bride, in Penticton, Mr. Charles Steuart, of Summerland, and Miss Jessie Weir, were united in marriage by the Rev. J. Ferguson Miller, on Wednesday, December 15th, 1920, at 9.30 a.m.

Irrigation Reservoirs Built of Ice.

At Ashland, Ore., a supply of water for use during the summer is being stored up by means of a dam of ice. The surplus water of the winter is being sprayed over a line across the valley with the result that it freezes quickly in this shape and is forming an immense dam which will hold back thousands of gallons of water and it is thought that this water and the ice itself as it melts during the warmer months will constitute a supply which will carry the people of the vicinity over the dry season.

RIOT OF CRIME IN UNITED STATES

The riot of crime that is prevailing throughout the country at the present time is something appalling, running as it does, through the entire gamut or transgressions of the law from petty larceny to murder. Human life is held so cheap in the United States that homicides are increasing with fearful rapidity, while hold-ups, burglaries and robberies are so common as to almost cease to attract attention. Life and property, especially in the larger cities, is unsafe, and even in the smaller towns bolts and bars do not always exclude the light fingered gentry. The deplorable feature of all this crime is that few of the guilty are apprehended, and courts are lenient in dealing out punishment. There are too many loop holes in the law through which criminals can escape. It may be impossible to eradicate crime entirely, but if swift and sure punishment followed the apprehension and conviction of those found guilty of wrong doing it would discourage those inclined to criminality and go far toward reducing the number of crimes.—Oroville Gazette.

PREPARING FOR CENSUS

Enumeration Will Cover Wider Scope Than Before.

Plans are well under way for the collection of the census returns on June 1st next, the records of which count will be in the hands of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Each constituency in Canada will be divided for the census taking into enumeration areas, each enumerator in the cities and towns having about 1000 persons to tabulate, and in the rural districts around 600 names. When the populations are very scattered in the northern prairie provinces, the Mounted Police will aid in the counting; in other far away places missionaries and Hudson's Bay factors will be called upon to assist. Two hundred and thirty commissioners will be employed, one in charge of each federal constituency, and they will be supported by 11,000 enumerators. With this staff the statistics bureau at Ottawa expects to clear up the getting in of the returns in about four weeks. This time the task will be more arduous as all animals in the cities and towns will be counted, as well as a report on all market gardens, poultry and apiaries.

Mr. Geo. H. Doherty's Jersey cow, "McDermaid's Figgis," heads the Dominion list of 4-year-olds for production, her record being 9,010 lbs. of milk, with a percentage of 6.08 fat. This record is for the 329 days in which she was in milk.

ONE PRAIRIE POINT OF VIEW.

The Edmonton Bulletin says: "The fruit growers of Yale voted to keep fruit dear on the prairies. That is all 'there is to the result in that constituency. The issue there was not fought out upon any questions of general policy, nor determined by any impulse to promote the general good. Under the protectionist doctrine, charity begins at home and stays there. The appeal was made directly to the personal interests of the fruit growers, and the only relevant plank in the government platform was the pledge that the prairie consumers are not to be allowed to eat Washington apples. The voters closed with the bargain and it is up to the government to deliver the goods in the shape of a tariff high enough to keep out the orchard products of the Pacific States. People on the prairies will have to pay the price or do without fruit."

"What sort of a man is he?" queried one Scot of another. "I'll just tell ye. He was helping me to whiskey the other day, and when I said stop, he stopped, and that will show you what sort of a mon he is."

CLASS ROOM PROBLEM REACHES ACUTE STAGE

With sixty pupils in temporary accommodation, sufficient for scarcely more than half that number, Summerland's High School housing problem has reached an acute stage. The seriousness of the situation has been explained to the board by Principal Welsh, who has pointed out that the high school will, without doubt, open next year with 75 or more pupils. Last Saturday afternoon the members of the school board, the principals of the high and public schools and several other teachers and a number of interested citizens, gathered at the central school building and discussed the problem in an informal way. The unit plan of school building, suggested early in the year by the editor of this paper as a possible solution, was considered from various angles. As an alternative to the erection of a large expensive building it seems the only way out. Were it considered possible and practicable to erect a ten or twelve room building for public school purposes, the present central school building could then be equipped for high school purposes. Several plans under the unit idea were proposed and considered, and those present were asked to give the matter serious consideration and meet the school board at its next regular meeting.

Mr. M. G. Manson, for many years engineer on the government dredge "Heron," died last Sunday at Penticton hospital.

The school children have been busy for some weeks rehearsing their parts for the entertainment to be given tonight at the Rialto theatre, in aid of their school fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Steuart will leave next week for Vancouver, and after a brief visit there, will probably go south to California, where they once resided and have many friends.

A pleasant social evening was enjoyed on Wednesday by a number of members of the G. W. V. A. and their friends who attended, by invitation, a social gathering held in the Parish Hall. The evening was spent at cards and with music, refreshments being served.

Mrs. F. Tingley went east a few days ago to spend the Christmas holidays with relatives in Toronto. When she returns, which will be shortly after the New Year, she will bring with her her little niece, Amy Wade, whose mother has been here for several months.

The Rev. D. E. Hatt, well-known to residents of this municipality, has issued a small volume of verse entitled, "The Okanagan," which will doubtless be eagerly sought for by his numerous friends here. Mr. Hatt, who now resides with his wife and family in Nova Scotia, was a favorite reader of the Drummond poems, and was also locally famous for dialect verse of his own composition.

PICKLING WORKS FOR VERNON

The Vernon News says: "Among the visitors to the city this week are Messrs. E. B. Reynolds and J. B. Hugg, of Winnipeg, representing Reynolds, Moore & Co., manufacturers of the well known Red Cross brand of pickles. "This company, during the past year, has shipped considerable quantities of salted cucumbers from Vernon to Winnipeg, where the finished product is turned out. They are now seeking to enlarge their local plant and do the bottling here. With this end in view, they are anxious to appoint a local board, and, if possible, enlist local capital in the enterprise."

Importance of Storage.

The life of all fruits and vegetables can be prolonged by storage. Some fruits and vegetables remain in good condition but a short time after reaching maturity, and are not suitable for storage, while other fruits and vegetables can, after reaching maturity, be preserved in good condition by proper storage, from two to six months, and longer. The function of the storage house is to preserve the product, and thus permit a wider and more even distribution and thereby regulate the markets.

WAR TROPHIES.

Not satisfied with its war trophies of a trench mortar and one machine gun, Penticton has asked the War Trophies Director for at least one field gun. The Board of Trade of that town has been advised by this official that he cannot at present comply with this request, explaining that the trophies have been allotted on the basis of enlistment, and that under this arrangement British Columbia is entitled to 35 guns. However, this province has been given 10 guns more than its share and the supply is exhausted. He concludes by promising that if further trophies are received from England, he will be glad to send a gun to Penticton. Summerland's contribution to the war has been recognized by a trench mortar and two machine guns. If a field gun is available to our neighboring town, Summerland is equally entitled to one.

Lord Northcliffe, some seven years ago, told the Toronto papers they were carelessly edited and inaccurate. It made some of them howling mad at the time. Well, to orr is human, whether in England or Canada, and Lord Northcliffe must admit that the publication of the "death of Baron Desborough in the Times yesterday was an embarrassing mistake. No doubt the vigorous, healthy nobleman arose Wednesday morning at Taplow Court, went down to the door for the milk bottle, let in the cat, and then glancing across the first news page of the Times exclaimed, "My word! I must write a letter about this."—Ottawa Journal.

NEW WATER SYSTEM ON SECREST FARM

Mr. A. W. E. Fawkes returned on Wednesday night from Parkview Ranch, near Fairview, the property of Mr. W. P. Secrest, recently of Summerland, and with him he brought a number of men who have been working on the irrigation system which Mr. Secrest has been putting on the property under the direction of Mr. Fawkes as engineer, and A. Rutherford as foreman. The other members of the working crew will return at the end of this week, when the work will be ended for the winter.

A dam 220 ft. long and 17 ft. deep at the highest point, has been built. This dam will hold water back for 1400 ft. and provides for storage of 30 acre feet of water. Some 600 feet of metal fluming, and 3300 feet of concrete lined ditch have been constructed. With the building of some more ditch of the same nature next spring, the system will be complete. The ditch has a capacity of 4 1/2 acre feet in 24 hours.

The dam has been built on a creek which has a minimum flow of 2 1/2 acre feet and the system will irrigate 400 acres. This system adds greatly to the value of the farm and Mr. Secrest is very proud of his new property.

No. 11.—THE HARP

The name "Harp" is attached to so many of its kind and all the instruments are plucked strings that it is advisable to mention some. The Irish harp is an instrument of the lyre family but having more strings and is only used to play simple melodies and to accompany another instrument. The harp-lute was an instrument of the guitar kind and an improvement was made by Edward Light, who produced this instrument with 12 gut strings, the finger-board having frets on it and a thumb key was fitted to each string, this key when depressed was to adjust the pitch similar to the modern harp and its pedals.

The harp is one of the most ancient and universal of stringed instruments, and possessed a larger number of strings than the lyre. The strings were plucked with the fingers. The triangular form of the present harp is very similar to that of the Egyptian and Assyrian harps depicted on the ancient monuments. The shape gives us the idea of it being derived from the bow of an archer, for we find the farther back we go that these instruments are bow-like in shape.

We read that the paintings dated from the thirteenth century B. C., have been discovered at the entrance of the tomb of Thebes, which depict two priests, one at each side of the portal, playing upon harps, these instruments are taller than the players.

We now come to the more modern times and find the harp now tuned in semitones and has a double row of strings. The Welsh harp has three rows of strings and is sometimes called the triple harp, the gut strings numbering 98. The outer-rows produced the natural tones and the centre row gave the sharps and flats.

The real modern harp has a double action, invented by Sebastian Erard about 1810. The modern harp is a graceful orchestral instrument possessing a triangular outline. It has a straight slender pillar, a slanting sounding box and a carved neck connecting the two, both pillar and sounding box rise from a circular base at which eight pedals are arranged in a semi-circle, the compass of this instrument is over six octaves. There is a limit to the technique on this instrument as the scales or passages of a chromatic order are almost impossible and even when practicable is ineffective. Simple chords and arpeggios are the most telling on this instrument. With but few exceptions, what music is suitable for the piano is suitable for the harp.

In the modern double action harp by means of the pedal the strings may be raised two semitones, affording great facility for modulations. The strings are arranged in diatonic scale and tuned in flats, the normal scale being E flat. Each lever or pedal controls two sets of disc, from each disc project two pins, the strings pass between the pins, but in pressing the pedal half way down, presses the pin against the string, thereby shortening it or making it one semitone higher, by pressing the pedal entirely down presses the second pin against the string shortening it yet another semitone. The seven pedals affect the strings but the eighth governs the damper. The voice of the harp possesses great sweetness, as the strings are not plucked sharply, but with a sweeping motion, producing a stately effect.

THE PRESENT.

(By Lee Shippey)

I am the Present. I am wholly yours
If you are mine. But if you vainly cling

To your dead love, the Past, or if you dream

A Future which is not my face and form

Grown dearer and made lovelier by your love

And toll for me, I am the passing
Wind

That whispers and is gone for ever more.

I am the Present. I have gifts for you,

True gifts, great gifts, and gifts to make you great,

Gifts you may weave into the web of life

Until its sinner background glows with gold,

Gifts on which you may build unto the skies.

You cannot build on dead things nor on dreams

But you can build on me till dreams are true.

I am the Present. I have shining eyes and love

For you, if you disdain me not,
And faith and hope and courage in my heart

And power in my arms, for you, for you!

I am your Opportunity, if now
You claim me. But if lost I shall become

The Past, for whose return you weep in vain!

The new Christmas game will be very fashionable. The players hunt through their pocketbooks to see how much money they have left. The one who has the most has to buy a present for New Year's.

Voluntary Choirs

A most interesting article lately appeared on this subject in a weekly periodical which I can best describe as one which claims to have more than "two million circulation." In it the writer deals with one phase of "the business side of the church," and his experiences and deductions are extremely interesting. Of course, he deals with the question from an American standpoint, but there is considerable uniformity in church matters the world over, and "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin." This touch is focused by the following paragraph: "A church choir has two natural enemies; one is the musical committee of the church and the other is musical temperament." I believe that music committees in Western Canada churches are few and far between, being apparently more common in the United States than in this country, and the writer of the article in question gives them very short shrift, putting the position somewhat in this fashion; "If the music committee, which is usually made up of two or three staid gentlemen who probably know very little about music, feels that its control of finances gives it the right to dictate the character of the music, the situation is pretty nearly impossible." He goes on to give the experiences of a choir director who, in addition to being a musical enthusiast, was also a good business man who brought his business capacity into use. The first thing he did was to throw the music committee overboard, on the ground that ordinary musical difficulties and musical temperament were sufficient to keep any director busy, without the interference of a musical committee. Then on the principle that "Satin finds some mischief still For idle hands to do." he proceeded to keep his choir always busy. He set a high standard of execution and selected anthems and cantatas which apparently were just a little beyond the abilities of his choir. When some of those selections had been successfully rendered, his choir began to feel the joy of success, and assimilated the enthusiasm of their trainer to such an extent that they were always eager for more work. The result was that the organization presently began to be locally famous and a waiting list of applicants was created. This enabled him to institute a system of fines for non-attendance, the proceeds of which were devoted to the holding of periodical suppers, any financial deficiency on these occasions being defrayed by the conductor himself. In effect, this worked out in such a way that the members never missed a practice unless absolutely forced, and the choir-master practically paid for the suppers himself, which he was only too pleased to do.

If there is a moral in this experience it would seem to divide itself into two heads, the first being that any church which is so fortunate as to secure the services of an enthusiastic musician possessing also a business training, should on no account let him go, and the second that if there is a musical committee in existence in that church, it should be careful to the last degree not to in any particular interfere with the actual musical arrangements, but confine itself to the financial end of the position.—Professor Crochet in "Broken Melodies."

Be enthusiastic. Enthusiasm is half the game of life; it lightens labor; tides us over disappointments and difficulties; and makes the reward of success doubly sweet.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesteads; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company. Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased, conditions upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the late war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers or pre-emptors recorded after June 20, 1918. Taxes are remitted for 5 years. Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfillment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole or original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING

Grazing Act, 1910, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

Queer Voluntaries.

I daresay it would be a great surprise to the members of a church congregation to learn that in some of the voluntaries extemporized by their organist, they had been listening to a skilfully disguised popular melody, harmonized out of immediate recognition by new harmonies and an altered tempo, but it is true, nevertheless. I remember listening, a good many years ago, to a melody which recurred again and again in an interlude during service, and suddenly recognizing it as the theme of a well-known music-hall song of the day. When I taxed the player afterwards he said: "Yes, quite right, but I thought I had disguised it beyond finding out." The curious thing is that such themes can sometimes be clothed in the most fascinating dress, the beauty of which will, of course, depend on the ability of the player as an extemporist, if I may be allowed to coin a word. A friend of mine who was organist at the parish church of a small English town, had a natural gift of setting most beautiful impromptu harmonies to any melody he once heard, and he never troubled to look up any music for his voluntaries relying entirely upon the inspiration of the moment. He delighted, by the way, to introduce queer effects in his accompaniments to the psalms, "frolicking" in the treble when "the mountains skip-ped like rams," for instance, or rumbling down in the Burdon stops to illustrate thunder. It was even said by some of his choristers that he had been known to introduce three distinct "hops" when "the land was filled with frogs," but I must confess to some hesitation in believing that, even on the word of a choirboy!—Professor Crochet in "Broken Melodies."

.. The Winding Trail ..

It will be remembered that the Agricultural Journal in a recent issue invited opinions from its readers as to the advisability of continuing publication of that paper. In the current number of the Journal, its editor reports the receipt of over thirty replies to date, out of which all but three are favorable. Three of the replies are published, one being a straight negative, one an equally decided affirmative, and the third also favorable—with qualifications. This third reply is the only one which contains any real practical argument on the subject, the other two being merely the expression of individual opinions. The practical letter, although printed as being favorable to the Journal, is in reality a condemnation of its publication as a governmental subsidized publication, which is exactly the position taken in these notes, and is really the crux of the whole question. No one can fairly object to the stand taken by any independent paper on public matters, the remedy obviously being in the subscriber, who can discontinue his subscription if he so pleases. But the taking of sides in class issues in a journal supported by the money of taxpayers in general, is a manifest injustice, and will certainly have to cease. The correspondent referred to writes in part as follows: "While conducted as at present, it (The Journal) appears to me the most valuable paper published as far as farmers are concerned, but to my mind its value depends entirely on the independent stand taken by the editor. As you know, there are certain alterations which, in my humble opinion, would tend to make the Journal more likely to help the co-operative movement, which appears to be its chief value.

"The most important of these alterations is to make it self-supporting. As long as it receives support out of the taxpayers' pockets, you say protests are in order; well, they ought not to be in order for the Journal to do its best work."

This accurately defines the situation, and the writer's suggestion, that the paid subscription list be increased, to do without money from taxes, and to call upon Co-operative Societies to support it, are all practical and to the point. His further proposition that if sufficient support cannot be obtained on these lines, the cost of production be reduced by cutting the garment according to the cloth, is also good business. If the co-operative organizations do not care to give enough financial support to a paper which has never tired of preaching their doctrines under government backing, they will have only themselves to blame if it ceases publication.

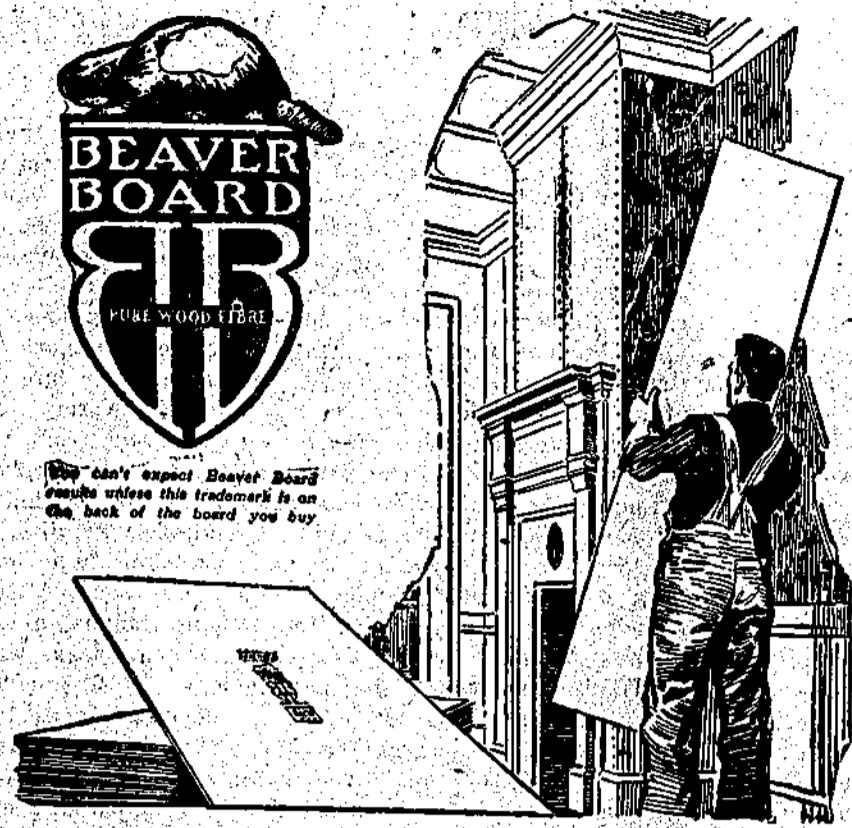

The current number of the American Bee Journal contains the initial portion of a series of papers written by a Swiss beeman traveling in Russia, and noting conditions. These papers, which are being translated by Mr. M. G. Dadant, promise to be full of interest, and the first of the series contain more than one surprise to the average reader. Not many of us would connect extensive beekeeping with the bleak Russia of popular imaginings, but it is a fact that the central and southern portions of that country are veritable gardens of Eden to the beekeeper. The individual apiarist, however, has not so far been greatly in evidence, the great bulk of the industry having been conducted by central apiaries, of which every community possessed one, and by the priests of the Greek Church at their monasteries or convents. The reason for this condition is found in the demand for the beeswax which went into the composition of the sweet-smelling altar candles which constituted so constant an element in all religious functions in Russia. It was part of the sacerdotal work of certain priests in every convent to attend to the bees, and it is probable that the Church was largely instrumental in the supervising of the community apiaries also. Now that Bolshevism has abolished religion and destroyed the Orthodox Church, these large apiaries have disappeared, the surviving colonies having been scattered amongst the country people, who lost the greater part through neglect born of ignorance of necessary conditions and mode of handling. Probably the bee will eventually share in the gradual return of the country to normal conditions, but at present it is undoubtedly in a bad way.

A paragraph from the Edmonton Bulletin, which appears elsewhere in this issue, serves to illustrate very clearly the differences of opinion which are created by diversities of points of view. The Bulletin's rather ill-natured and decidedly lopsided estimate of the sentiment underlying the return of the government candidate for Yale in the recent election, is one which will certainly not commend itself to those who aim to see this Dominion working together as a real commonwealth instead of continually pulling in conflicting directions. The ultimate prosperity of Canada depends on a unity of interests, and this is not aided by such narrow views as adopted by the Edmonton paper. Meantime it may be as well to demur to the statement that "the issue (in Yale) was not fought out upon any questions of general policy, nor determined by any impulse to promote the general good." Undoubtedly an "appeal was made to the personal interests of the fruit-growers," but it is not correct to imply that nothing else mattered. The record of the Union Government, adequately made known to the electors for the first time, had a very great deal to do with the result. And the "Bulletin" curiously enough, overlooks the fact that the defeated candidate himself publicly stated that he was in favor of a tariff on fruit!

To the Editor of The Review:

Dear Sir,—I herewith enclose a cutting from one of the well-known London daily papers which, now that Prohibition has been out-voted in British Columbia, I thought might be of some interest to your paper as expressing the views on this important question over here. Personally, I am a partial prohibitionist myself, but contend that any radical measure so entirely contrary to human inclinations as "bone dry" prohibition is bound to fail in the long run. What is required is some form of restriction which will hit the drunkard and not interfere with the average respectable citizen. Prohibition as we have had it in British Columbia does not appear to stop the drunkard from getting drunk, but on the other hand, what he does get by subterfuge is rank poison and very expensive. The moderate drinker, who likes his glass of beer in the evenings, but does not care to resort to hypocrisy and subterfuge to obtain it, is the very one who is hit hardest by Prohibition. I hope the enclosed cutting will be of interest to you as I think it contains a great deal of common sense. Yours faithfully,
P. G. KOOP.

Below is a reprint of the clipping referred to in the above letter:

What could be sillier than to prevent a club, for example, selling a glass of wine at a convenient time because in some public-house in the neighborhood of the docks there is a good deal of drunkenness?

And what is true as between the club and the public-house by the docks is also true as between different kinds of public-houses. Many of them are perfectly respectable social resorts, and it is quite unreasonable that those who use them for the legitimate purpose of social, sober entertainment should be inconvenienced because other public-houses are really only drinking shops which make largely for intoxication.

We want an elastic system which could be only an inconvenience to ill-conducted houses, and which could, by the pressure brought to bear upon them, be a constant and, in the end, efficient influence for promoting the sober consumption of alcohol by self-restrained human beings.

The worst of all possible forms of control is, of course, national prohibition. No one who does not hold the opinion that the consumption of alcohol is in itself wicked—an opinion totally inconsistent with the New Testament, as well as with common sense—ought to be in favor of national Prohibition.

Prohibition implies, on the largest scale, the sacrifice of the much more numerous class of sober drinkers, and the artificial restraint of the much less numerous class of drunken drinkers. The majority are sacrificed for the minority, and the minority get only a very limited benefit of external restraint from vice.

External restraint is not moral reform. The only moral reform really worth having is the conversion of the will so that it voluntarily rejects evil and chooses good.

Prohibition has, therefore, no real moral value, whatever may be its convenience as a method of social or sanitary improvement among the drunkard.

To the Editor of The Review:

Dear Sir,—Your leading article in last week's issue raised a point that should and will, I am sure, make all progressive and go-ahead ratepayers get together and endeavor to pick out from our midst five good men to look after and advance our municipality during 1921. I would suggest, as a starter, that the following men be approached and requested to take office for the coming year: Dr. Andrew or J. L. Logie, reeve, (one choice); A. E. Smith, R. V. Agur, W. A. Caldwell, S. B. Snider. This is only a "feeler." If anybody can suggest better men, come on.

EARLY CLOSING BY-LAW PASSED

to the rear of the lot and a dumping area be defined by posts and signs. Some effort has been made to find a more suitable site for a nuisance ground that will be common to the whole district and more suitable than the one that has been used and which lies south of the Gulch road. The Jones' Flat lot will serve for a portion of the community, but a suitable site for the use of the citizens along the lake front has not yet been secured. In the meantime the present ground and the road sides about it will be tidied up.

Mrs. K. Bentley had requested that a fume on Jones' Flat be enlarged. This request had been referred to the foreman, and Mr. Tomlin reported that the enlarging of this fume was covered by a previous report. Instructions were given that the constable take the necessary steps to stop the digging of holes on the roadside. It is said that a number of citizens have been taking sand and gravel from these pits.

The Indian agent wrote advising the council that he looked to the Municipality for payment for a horse alleged to have died in pound. He also asked for assistance in describing a horse which is said to have belonged to an Indian and which was sold many months ago by the poundkeeper. The council at that time promised to turn over to the Indian agent the proceeds, less expenses, upon his proving ownership. Information will be obtained from the poundkeeper with respect to the claim for the animal said to have died in pound.

The early closing by-law was given its final reading and the acting reeve and clerk authorized to sign and seal same. The clerk was instructed to publish the by-law.

Foreman Tomlin recommended that a change be made in the location of a section of road in Garnett Valley. Upon recommendation of the chairman of the roads committee, and in view of the fact that the road appropriation had been exhausted, this report will be referred to the incoming council.

The report of Councils Kirk and Johnston on the municipal convention was considered and it was agreed that several of the resolutions, endorsed by these councillors at the convention, be referred to Mr. J. W. Jones, M.L.A., with a request that he give them his support when they are presented in the House.

One resolution asked that the provincial school grant be a fixed proportion of the salary paid the teacher, the amount now being paid by the province being no greater than that paid 10 years ago, when salaries were about half what they are at present.

Another resolution asked that the province take over, maintain and operate the public schools.

There was a similar resolution relating to hospitals, but after some discussion the council declined to endorse this resolution.

Yet another resolution advocated national, provincial and municipal cooperation with respect to taxation.

That councillors should be elected for two years was the substance of another resolution.

WATER USERS HEAR REPORT

haps at any other point coming under his notice. He was not in a position to state exactly what the rate would be, but it was estimated between $7 and $8 on an average. The present act requires that a tax be levied against the acreage but it is possible, thinks Major McDonald, that arrangements can be made to have it so the user pay for the water used. The amount we have had from the conservation fund to date is $34,908, with about a thousand still on hand. The amount set aside for this district out of the conservation fund was $37,000, which leaves about $2000 yet to come. This means about $3000 to the good, which speaks well for the management. The speaker also touched on the question of the paying back of the loan and stated that it was arranged to be paid back at various terms. The amount expended on the reservoir was extended over thirty years—this because the nature of the work was so permanent. Other sections of the loan were arranged on shorter terms according to the nature of the construction. The amount to be paid back annually to the conservation fund would be about $4200. Local expenses were about $900. The assessing and engineering expenses would be extra. The acreage is to be gone over to ascertain the irrigable portion. An assessor has been appointed by the council and it is expected this work will be completed by the end of the year.

Mr. Powell, chairman of the local committee, was called on for a few remarks about the work. He mentioned as part of the policy of the committee that it proposed making new measuring boxes fitted with metal measuring plates, which would indicate measurements from two inches up in half inches. The user's name would be on each box and the days allotted to him, so that any person could at any time see for themselves the quantity of water passing through. This arrangement should materially assist in obviating bad feeling, sometimes in evidence under other systems. The speaker also explained the shortage of water this season. Owing to special conditions at the North Fork reservoir, it was decided to take the first storage water from the North Fork, leaving the water in the south fork dam till later, but when the time came to draw from the south fork it was found that between evaporation and seepage the stored water had vanished to a much greater degree than had been counted on. In future the custom of taking the water out of the south fork dam first will be followed. Another means to be used to increase the water supply for the coming season is to line a portion of the system where a considerable leakage has been found.

A lengthy discussion followed, among points discussed being that of the time of starting the measuring of the water in the spring. No definite rules were suggested but the chairman of the committee and Major McDonald assured the users that there seemed no good reason why water could not be turned on at the earliest possible moment and distributed to those needing it, in a satisfactory manner until the time of a shortage would arise. A suggestion was made to have a committee of three appointed out of each water community to collect the various views and complaints of their respective communities and lay it before the head committee in a condensed form and thus make the work easier for the committee in charge. It will be brought up at the annual ratepayers' meeting with a view to asking the reeve and council for 1921 to appoint such committees.

CHARGES PRESS IS MANIPULATED

appear to be generally accepted by the audience, and considerable criticism followed. Mr. W. C. Kelloy did not believe that the conditions referred to obtained in Canada. A paper without advertising or comment would be a very dull affair. The personal element in local newspapers should not be condemned, but commended. Mr. T. H. Riley followed along the same line. Mr. D. J. Welsh was somewhat interested in Upton Sinclair's books, but did not agree with him. He considered him the prince of muckrakers, and thought it better to dwell on the good influence of the press. So old and experienced a journalist as Rev. J. A. MacDonald, of the Toronto Globe, declared that no paper could exist without advertisements, but that the right of a publisher to refuse any undesirable material was sufficient safeguard. Speaking of The Review, Mr. Welsh said it was generally known as "our paper," and we were in a large measure responsible for the standard it attained. Editorial comment should lead along the lines of thought observable in the people.

Mr. A. McLaughlin contended that the local press was not one-sided, since its columns were at all times open to all for the expression of their opinions within reasonable limits. Mr. Riley asked if there was no organization from which accurate news could be obtained, and the chairman stated that such an agency existed in The Federated Press, largely controlled by labor. He also mentioned two papers in Vancouver, which were controlled in the inter-charge papers. Invalided soldiers are exempted by the Provincial Act.

A. Campbell said that he pays taxes in Vancouver. He had written the Soldier Settlement Board and had recently been advised to consult the local authorities on the matter of poll tax which he had been intending to do but had neglected it.

W. MacMillan stated that he had refrained from paying because he wanted to register a kick against an unjust law. After certain points in the Act were explained by the Court, Mr. MacMillan was told that he had now had his kick and it had only cost him $2.50.

David Lister pleaded that his failure to pay was an oversight. No fines were imposed, each being required to pay poll tax of $5 and costs of $2.50.

School Board Adopts Unit System of School Buildings.

A BIG SAVING

Class Room Accommodation at Fraction of Cost of One Big Building.

The last meeting of the year of the Summerland School Board was held on Monday night at the office of the secretary, when the usual list of accounts were approved for payment. These were:

Teachers' salaries	$1760.00
Secretary	10.00
Caretaking	106.00
Conveyance	421.20
M. H. Offices	31.25
C. E. Bentley, inspection of motor buses	10.00
Rent	56.00
Insurance	20.00
Fuel (P. H. English)	30.10
W. C. Kelley	15.00
Sundries	98.37
Total	$2557.92

It was reported that one of the conveyance contractors, J. D. Wood, of the Garnet Valley route, had refused to sign the conveyance contract. After some discussion it was decided to make an effort to combine the Jones' flat area, now served by horse vehicle, with the Garnet Valley circuit, and get a contractor with a motor vehicle large enough for this purpose. The matter was referred to Trustee S. Darkis to arrange.

By a resolution, the board conveyed to the principal and teachers of the Central School its appreciation of their efforts in connection with the school concert, and the secretary was instructed to record this on the minute book.

The secretary reported having received sundry items from Victoria as grants to the school garden, library and domestic science. Another, of approximately $172 is forthcoming for manual training. These are in addition to the regular grants for instruction.

Following the adjournment of the regular meeting, the members of the board, with several citizens, discussed the perplexing problem of class room accommodation. Among those present were Principals Welsh and MacDonald, H. W. Harvey, A. E. Smith and R. E. White. All seemed agreed that the expensive ten or twelve roomed building which had been talked of was out of reach of the community at this time. Agreeing on this, plans for establishing a nucleus for a group of buildings to be erected on the unit system were suggested and considered. It is thought that $30,000 (half of which is expected to be provided by the province) would provide for the needs of the community for some years, if expended in the erection of buildings under the proposed plan. This is in marked contrast to the cost of $160,000 which a new school building is costing a neighboring town.

After some discussion it was agreed to recommend that the School Board call a meeting of the citizens to discuss the school building question, and the board agreed to do so, fixing the time and date for 7.30, Tuesday evening, December 28th, and the place the Rialto theatre.

Sale of Work.

The Women's Auxiliary of Naramata held their initial sale of work on Saturday, and are particularly well satisfied with the result. The Unity Club, which was placed at the disposal of the members, was prettily decorated and the contents of the various stalls made a fine showing. The needlework stall received liberal patronage, while the homemade cookery stall was taken by storm. An attractive Christmas tree, a candy department and refreshing afternoon tea, all proved attractive to the many visitors, the gross receipts of the afternoon amounting to $200.

HOSPITAL DOING SPLENDID WORK

Report Shows Many Patients Obtain Benefits—Finances Good.

It is probable that many residents of Summerland do not fully realize the magnitude of the healing work done at the local hospital and the importance of such an institution in our midst. To such people the details of the year's work up to date will be more or less of a revelation. Put briefly, the eleven months' record may be summarized as follows: During the year the number of patients admitted has been 318, necessitating for treatment 3036 days. The amount charged for this treatment was $7954.40, the government grant was 2363.25, the municipal grant $337.50 (for nine months) and contributions and donations $538.55, making a total of $11,188.70 received. Against this there is an expense account amounting to $10,079.77, leaving a credit balance of $1,108.93. This works out with a daily average for the year to date of $35.07 receipts, and $31.60 expenses. It will thus be noted that the institution is rather more than self-sustaining, which is admittedly a satisfactory condition of affairs.

When it is considered that the medical and nursing staff have been working at a disadvantage in their temporary quarters and that rent of building is included in the above report, the gratifying element is increased. And the further consideration that the completion of the new building will relieve the institution of any rental charge, and will also add greatly to its efficiency, will indicate the desirability of pushing the work to a speedy conclusion.

A GLIMPSE OF THE ORIENT

Life in India Depicted in Pageant by St. Andrew's Willing Workers.

St. Andrew's Hall was filled to capacity Monday evening for the performance put on by the Willing Workers Mission Band. The stage was beautifully decorated with mats and various articles from India. The costumes were characteristic of the Orient, many of them originally having come from there.

Miss Canada, representing Canadian missions, opened the performance by a short recitation.

The second number was a scene wherein the abstract virtues, such as Joy, each in turn bequeathed their powers to the widows, young wives and the lower classes of India.

The main portion of the entertainment was a play, representing a Canadian missionary in India, with her daily troubles, pleasures and cares. Her greatest happiness is manifested when there is satisfactory progress made in her work. Her great helpers are the Bible Women, who are converted Indian women going among all classes of people and spreading the good word. But the lack of doctors and dentists make life hard as troubles, such as a common toothache and a broken arm, are constantly cropping up.

Perhaps the happiest moment of all is when news comes from home, bringing with it a cheering promise of further help. Another moment of happiness comes with her white visitor, perhaps the first in years.

In the final scene the missionary, the Bible Women, the princess and attendants sing and read the Bible together.

Miss Canada finished off the evening with another recitation. The whole entertainment was well carried out under the able leadership of Miss Sinclair, who took the role of missionary. The amount of $30, taken at the door, will be devoted by the girls of the Mission Band to their important work.

INCREASE IS FORTY PER CENT

Rapid Growth in Summerland's School Population.

HIGH SCHOOL 25 P. C.

Teachers Doing Good Work—Must be Given Class Rooms and Equipment.

The Rialto theatre on Saturday evening was the scene of a highly successful entertainment given by the school children of Summerland as a fitting close to their season's studies. Mr. John Tait, chairman of the School Board, was in the chair and in the course of his introductory address gave certain statistics which are of interest to the community in general.

The steady growth of the community is shown by an increase in school attendance of nearly 40 per cent. over last year, the figures for 1920 being a school roll of 322 as against 236 for 1919. That the policy of further consolidation, which was adopted this year has resulted in a saving of extra salaries is seen by the present distribution of attendance, which reads 302 at the Central Schools and 20 at Trout Creek. Last year the Central School roll was 184, leaving a balance of 52 divided up between Garnett Valley, Lower Town and Trout Creek schools. The two former are now eliminated and a considerable saving on the teaching staff made possible.

The High School has a roll call of 60 pupils, being an increase of 12 pupils for the past year, a growth of 25 per cent. And several applicants from outside points have been refused admission owing to limited class room. As a matter of fact, the accommodation for High School pupils is exceedingly unsatisfactory and should be amended. The way this school has been shifted around is not creditable to the community and something must be done to alter existing conditions.

The standing of the teaching staff in Summerland is as high as any in the province and parents should see that they receive every encouragement and support. How often does the average parent visit the school during the year? They should realize that they are always welcome and that their personal interest in the education of the coming generation will be appreciated by teachers and scholars alike.

The speaker concluded by wishing his hearers a merry Christmas and a more prosperous New Year, and called on the young performers to give their program, details of which will be found in another column.

We understand that the proceeds of the evening amounted to $130, which will be handed to the school fund and apportioned between the various school divisions. It will be used for the purchase of pictures, books, play ground apparatus, sports equipment, etc.

The theatre, which was lent to the school at a nominal fee by the kindness of Mr. Darkis, was closely packed by a delighted audience and many persons were unable to get even standing room.

ABSENTEE VOTE FAVORS JONES

Just as we go to press, we learn over the wires that the result in this constituency of the absentee vote is 110 ballots for Mr. J. W. Jones and 71 for Mr. L. V. Rogers, a majority in this instance of 39. The previously reported returns gave Mr. Jones a majority of 410. The final result now gives him a margin of 449; the total ballots cast for Mr. Jones being 1881; and for Mr. Rogers, 1432.

INSTITUTE HAD ACTIVE YEAR

Peachland Women Expend Nearly $500 for Betterment of Community—Other News.

The annual meeting of the Peachland Women's Institute was held recently in the Masonic Hall with a goodly number present. Mrs. Dr. Buchanan gave a paper dealing further with the health subject taken up in her paper given at the former meeting. This, as well as the former, was very instructive and interesting. Election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: Mrs. O. Keating, president; Mrs. H. E. McCall, vice-president; Mrs. B. F. Gummow, secretary-treasurer; directors, Mrs. Murdin, Mrs. Needham and Mrs. Smalls. The secretary, Miss A. Elliott read the following report at the meeting: "As the December meeting brings to a close the year's work of the present officers a short account of what has been done during the year may be interesting to the members. The regular meetings were held every month except during July and August. Seventeen directors' meetings were held. Sixty-five members were enrolled. The amount of money raised during the year was $573.35, with an expenditure of $406.32, leaving a balance on hand of $107.03. Commencing with the first meeting in January, Mr. Chidley gave a series of lessons in crepe paper weaving. In February, a small parcel of clothing was sent to the Belgian Relief Committee. The first of March, Miss Olive Hayes spent three days with the institute and gave three lectures. At the regular meeting an address and bouquet were presented to Mrs. Town, who was leaving to reside in Vancouver. An Irish concert was held on March 17th, receipts of which amounted to $36.75. Early in April the sanitary drinking fountain was erected at a cost of $156, and presented to the town. A tea was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Dryden, in aid of the drought sufferers of Southern Alberta with the following result—$25 and three boxes of clothing were sent to the committee in charge. On May 14th, a bazaar was held and $63.40 was added to the funds of the institute. On June 10th, Mrs. S. V. MacLachlan gave a lecture on "Health," and a committee was appointed to district nurse for Peachland. (Continued on Page 8)

PASS RESOLUTION

Endorse Proposals of School Board for Providing More Class Rooms.

The regular monthly meeting of the Trout Creek Local of the U. F. B. C., was held at the schoolhouse at Trout Creek on Tuesday evening. The routine business being disposed of, the meeting was devoted to the discussion of public affairs. After considerable discussion, the following resolution was submitted and passed unanimously:

Whereas, we consider that the administration of past councils, while admirable under the difficult conditions, has not been what might be termed strictly business-like; seeing that a council of five men, inadequately indemnified, has been called upon to consider all details in all features of municipal affairs, which work, by its very nature should be in the hands of a competent salaried official, who would prepare plans, specifications and estimates of the various undertakings upon which the council should pass, and could thus devote more time to discussing ways and means of financing same;

And, whereas, such administration as above referred to militates against the acceptance of nomination by a large percentage of our citizens otherwise well qualified for the offices of reeve and councillors;

And, whereas, the ward system has been abolished and we are now commencing a new era in municipal affairs;

Therefore, be it resolved that we, the Trout Creek Local of the United Farmers of British Columbia, are of the opinion that in order to enable the citizens to vote intelligently, all candidates for the Municipal Council should be asked to express their views as to municipal administration in public meeting as soon as possible after nomination day.

Mr. John Tait gave an outline of the proposals which are to be put before the people in the near future for meeting the ever increasing demands for space for our school children. These plans met with very general approval and Mr. Tait was given a hearty vote of thanks and was assured of the support of the Trout Creek citizens should he seek re-election.

CHRISTMAS SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Special Music and Other Features of Services on That Day.

The various churches of Summerland announce special services for Christmas, details of which will be found in our advertising columns. At St. Andrew's church special music will be given morning and evening, and at the Baptist church there will be carol singing by the choir before the two services.

On Sunday evening an illustrated story of the "Life of Jesus" will be given at the Lakeside church by Rev. Chas. Baker, special music being an attractive feature. The Sunday school of this church will also give an entertainment at the Men's Club room on the evening of Thursday, December 23rd, the proceeds of which will go to the aid of the starving children's fund.

Another Land Slide Near the Mellor Property.

On Monday a further fall of the cliff opposite the residence of Mr. H. C. Mellor took place, with the result that the roadway was completely blocked. The slide was apparently a continuation of the original break, which left more of the perpendicular cliff weakened. The present fall was to the north of the previous one, and one large portion struck the side of the Mellor barn. A cow, which was outside the building, was saved from injury by the presence of a telephone pole, against which it broke and spread. The provincial road foreman, Mr. McAlpine, was notified, and put a repair gang to work to clear the road.

SCHOOL CONCERT IS MUCH ENJOYED

Gathering Much in Excess of Capacity of Theatre—The Programme.

(By a High School Student) The Christmas school concert was held last Friday at the Rialto theatre. The matinee, held in the afternoon, did not prevent the building being filled to capacity for the evening performance. Many were turned away disappointed, unable to get in, all standing room having been taken.

The whole programme was a great success and all concerned are to be most heartily congratulated on the way in which it was carried out. The participants performed their parts without a hitch and showed good discipline throughout the evening.

Mr. John Tait, chairman of the School Board, occupied the chair. The first number of the evening was a chorus by the girls of the first division entitled, "Nowell," the well-known Christmas carol.

Miss Louise Bell did excellently in rendering her recitation, "Miss Jones and the Burglar." The girls of divisions V and VI drilled, robed as snow fairies.

The smaller boys, in their drill, dressed as roosters, afforded one of the best items of the program. It was well done and highly amusing.

The motion song by Divisions V and VI, was followed by a sketch "In the Land of Santa Claus," wherein Mrs. Santa endeavored to do the old fellow out of his yearly rounds, but through the efforts of a visitor she failed, also to the disappointment of the toy-makers, who had all planned to go with him.

Another chorus, "When I Wander in My Garden," was sung by the girls of Division I and II.

The second recitation, entitled, "When Pa is Sick," was well rendered by Loretta Inglis, after which came another motion song, "Santa Claus is Coming," by Divisions VII and VIII.

The boys of the first two divisions took the characters in the "Mock Trial." The judge tried five prisoners and sentenced them, but not according to their deserts. The one woman on trial proved the hardest one with which to deal and finally escaped by getting the best of the policeman.

The little girls of Divisions VII and VIII, arrayed in night attire and carrying candles, drilled and sang.

The last item on the programme was a third chorus by the girls, "Listen to the Sweet Chimes."

SAYS TYRANNY ON BOTH SIDES

Splendid Lecture is Second of Two on Problems of Industry.

GIVES REMEDY

World Unrest Will Find it Only in Principles of Founder of Christianity.

"World Unrest and Its Remedy," was the subject of a splendid lecture given at the Forum on Sunday afternoon by Mr. Chas. Baker. In his opening remarks the speaker said he was optimistic in the face of world unrest. This unrest does not date from 1914; the great war is not the great divide between the world that was and the world that is.

Some say this is not a new day, there always have been and always will be wars. Others describe it as a new day and a worse one and point out Russia in support of their contention. There are others who still see in the far distance the faint flush of millenium dawn. Mr. Baker said he would like to be counted as one of the optimists.

All would agree that the world is experiencing a great reaction in this strange transition period. It is seen in political life, the tendency being towards a new and better nationhood, with legislation for all and not any one class.

This reaction is also apparent in social life. Here again the speaker stood with his face toward the morning, believing the trend is toward better democracy. Royal purple was not the badge it once was. Reaction also reflects on our industrial life, and here again the speaker professed optimism. Two weeks ago he had laid the world's conditions of the industrial world as bare as he could; he could just as readily make out as good a case against Labor as he had against the oppression of capital. He could tell of instances where, though Labor was not oppressed and enjoyed good working conditions, the men still persisted in coming late, doing as little as they could, and dropping their tools with the clock, when on occasion, a few minutes more work would have meant much to the employer. While there may be oppression on one side, there is tremendous inconsistency on the other.

And what may we say about the religious world? Religion is not a departmental thing. The great Master considered it a great spirit ruling every act of life.

We have not kept pace in our religious life with other things in the world, and here religion was suffering in the reaction. With all the unrest the trend is toward good. This unrest would have come had there been no extremists, it has not come through organization but through the spirit and soul of the world; and will continue till men come to the full stature of God. The gospel of Jesus Christ has in it principles that will make democracy safe and worthy. Its Founder lived in a world of greater unrest than ours, and he was a man who understood that unrest. What Labor says it wants, is the very thing Christ said he came to give. Two weeks ago, the speaker had given secondary causes of the world unrest and the secondary remedies have their place. The primal causes must have their primal remedies. Political economy cannot give us rest, it is not the fundamental need of mankind, and deals only with supply and demand. Scientific Socialism has its place, but it will never give the rest we want, because it is scientific. In the main, Socialism has only given us transference of monopoly and tyranny. This is never progress.

Taking up the primal causes, the speaker assumed the premise that any force that creates a great problem has largely within it a solution of that problem. Jesus said he came to bring the sword; he also said that he was the light of the world. All the problems that vex the world today were raised by Christ. Our day cannot be compared with that day. There was slavery; Jesus did not talk against slavery, but much of freedom. Then, the labor was told to get out and he went; Jesus healed him. If this treatment were kept up, the labor would soon think he had some rights in the world. There was the woman outcast, whose affection (Continued on Page 4)

GREETING

The Poor Relation's Story

By CHARLES DICKENS

A Sympathetic Narrative by the Prince of Christmas Story Tellers

He was very reluctant to take precedence of so many respected members of the family, by beginning the round of stories they were to relate as they sat in a goodly circle by the Christmas fire; and he modestly suggested that it would be more correct if "John our esteemed host" (whose health he begged to drink) would have the kindness to begin. For as to himself, he said, he was so little used to lead the way that really—

But as they all cried out here, that he must begin, and agreed with one voice that he might, could, would, and should begin, he left off rubbing his hands, and took his legs out from under this arm-chair, and did begin.

I have no doubt (said the poor relation) that I shall surprise the assembled members of our family, and particularly John our esteemed host to whom we are so much indebted for the great hospitality with which he has this day entertained us, by the confession I am going to make. But, if you do me the honor to be surprised at anything that falls from a person so unimportant in the family as I am, I can only say that I shall be scrupulously accurate in all I relate.

I am not what I am supposed to be. I am quite another thing. Perhaps before I go further, I had better glance at what I am supposed to be.

It is supposed, unless I mistake—the assembled members of our family will correct me if I do, which is very likely (here the poor relation looked mildly about him for contradiction); that I am nobody's enemy but my own. That I never met with any particular success in anything. That I failed in business because I was unbusiness-like and credulous—in not being prepared for the interested designs of my partner. That I failed in love, because I was ridiculously trustful—in thinking it impossible that Christiana could deceive me. That I failed in my expectations from my uncle Chill, on account of not being as sharp as he could have wished in worldly matters. That, through life, I have been rather put upon and disappointed in a general way. That I am at present a bachelor of between fifty-nine and sixty years of age, living on a limited income in the form of a quarterly allowance, to which I see that John our esteemed host wishes me to make no further allusion.

The supposition as to my present pursuits and habits is to the following effect.

I live in a lodging in the Clapham Road—a very clean back room, in a very respectable house—where I am expected not to be at home in the daytime, unless poorly; and which I usually leave in the morning at nine o'clock, on pretence of going to business. I take my breakfast—my roll and butter, and my half-pint of coffee—at the old established coffee-shop near Westminster Bridge; and then I go into the city—I don't know why—and sit in Garraway's Coffee House, and on Change, and walk about, and look into a few offices and counting-houses where some of my relations or acquaintances are so good as to tolerate me, and where I stand by the fire if the weather happens to be cold. I get through the day in this way until five o'clock, and then I dine, at a cost, on the average, of one and three-pence. Having still a little money to spend on my evening's entertainment, I look into the old-established coffee-shop as I go home, and take my cup of tea, and perhaps my bit of toast. So, as the large hand of the clock makes its way round to the morning hour again, I make my way round to the Clapham Road again, and go to bed when I get to my lodging—fire being expensive, and being objected to by the family on account of its giving trouble and making a dirt.

Sometimes, one of my relations or acquaintances is so obliging as to ask me to dinner. Those are holiday occasions; and then I generally walk in the Park. I am a solitary man, and seldom walk with anybody. Not that I am avoided because I am shabby; for I am not at all shabby, having always a very good suit of black on (or rather Oxford mixture, which has the appearance of black and wears much better); but I have got into a habit of speaking low, and being rather silent, and my spirits are not high, and I am sensible that I am not an attractive companion.

The only exception to this rule is the child of my first cousin, Little Frank. I have a particular affection for that child, and he takes very kindly to me. He is a diffident boy by nature; and in a crowd he is soon run over, as I may say, and forgotten. He and I, however, get on exceedingly well. I have a fancy that the poor child will in time succeed to my peculiar position in the family. We talk but little; still, we understand each other. We walk about, hand in hand; and without much speaking he knows what I mean, and I know what he means. When he was very little indeed, I used to take him to the windows of the toy-shops, and show him the toys inside. It is surprising how soon he found out that I would have made him a great many presents if I had been in circumstances to do it.

Little Frank and I go and look at the outside of the Monument—he is very fond of the Monument—and at the Bridges; and at all the sights that are free. On two of my birthdays, we have dined on a-la-mode beef, and gone at half-price to the play, and been deeply interested. I was once walking with him in Lombard Street, which we often visit on account of my having mentioned to him that there are great riches there—he is very fond of Lombard Street—when a gentleman said to me as he passed by, "Sir, your little son has dropped his glove." I assure you, if you will excuse my remarking on so trivial a circumstance, this accidental mention of the child as mine, quite touched my heart and brought the foolish tears into my eyes.

When Little Frank is sent to school in the country, I shall be very much at a loss what to do with myself, but I have the intention of walking down there once a month and seeing him on a half holiday. I am told he will then be at play upon the Heath; and if my visits should be objected to, as unsettling the child, I can see him from a distance without his seeing me, and walk back again. His mother comes of a highly genteel family, and rather disapproves, I am aware, of our being so much together; but I think he would miss me beyond the feeling of the moment if we were wholly separated.

When I die in the Clapham Road, I shall not leave much more in this world than I shall take out of it; but, I happen to have a miniature of a bright-faced boy, with a curling head, and an open shirt-frill waving down his bosom (my mother had it taken for me, but I can't believe that it was ever like), which will be worth nothing to sell, and which I shall beg may be given to Frank. I have written my dear boy a little letter with it, in which I have told him that I felt very sorry to part from him, though bound to confess that I know no reason why I should remain here. I have given him some short advice, the best in my power, to take warning of the consequences of being nobody's enemy but his own; and I have endeavored to comfort him for what I fear he will consider a bereavement, by pointing out to him, that I was only a superfluous something to every one but him; and that having by some means failed to find a place in this great assembly, I am better out of it.

Such (said the poor relation, clearing his throat and beginning to speak a little louder) is the general impression about me. Now, it is a remarkable circumstance which forms the aim and purpose of my story, that this is all wrong. This is not my life, and these are not my habits. I do not even live in the Clapham Road. Comparatively speaking, I am very seldom there. I reside, mostly, in a—I am almost ashamed to say the word, it sounds so full of pretension—in a castle. I do not mean that it is an old baronial habitation, but still it is a building always known to every one by the name of a castle. In it, I preserve the particulars of my history; they run thus:

It was when I first took John Spatter (who had been my clerk) into partnership, and when I was still a young man of not more than five-and-twenty, residing in the house of my uncle Chill, from whom I had considerable expectations, that I ventured to propose to Christiana. I had, loved Christiana a long time. She was very beautiful, and very winning in all respects. I rather mistrusted her widowed mother, who I feared was of a plotting and mercenary turn of mind; but I thought as well of her as I could, for Christiana's sake. I never had loved any one but Christiana, and she had been all the world, and O far more than all the world, to me, from our childhood!

Christiana accepted me with her mother's consent, and I was rendered very happy indeed. My life at my Uncle Chill's was of a spare dull kind, and my garret chamber was as dull, and bare, and cold, as an upper prison room in some stern northern fortress. But, having Christiana's love, I wanted nothing upon earth. I would not have changed my lot with any human being.

Avarice was, unhappily, my Uncle Chill's master-vice. Though he was rich, he pinched, and scraped, and clutched, and lived miserably. As Christiana had no fortune, I was for some time a little fearful of confessing our engagement to him; but, at length I wrote him a letter, saying how it all truly was. I put it into his hand one night, on going to bed.

As I came down-stairs next morning, shivering in the cold December air; colder in my uncle's unwarmed house than in the street, where the winter sun did sometimes shine, and which was at all events enlivened by cheerful faces and voices passing along; I carried a heavy heart towards the long, low breakfast-room in which my uncle sat. It was a large room with a small fire, and there was a great bay window in it which the rain had marked in the night as if with the tears of houseless people. It stared upon a raw yard, with a cracked stone pavement, and some rusted iron railings half uprooted; whence an ugly out-building that had once been a dissecting-room (in the time of the great surgeon who had mortgaged the house to my uncle), stared at it.

We rose so early always, that at that time of the year we breakfasted by candle-light. When I went into the room, my uncle was so contracted by the cold, and so huddled together in his chair behind the one dim candle, that I did not see him until I was close to the table.

As I held out my hand at him, he caught up his stick (being infirm, he always walked about the house with a stick, and made a blow at me, and said, "You fool!"

"Uncle," I returned, "I didn't expect you to be so angry as this. Nor had I expected it, though he was a hard and angry old man."

"You didn't expect?" said he; "when did you ever expect? When did you ever calculate, or look forward, you contemptible dog?"

"These are hard words, uncle."

"Hard words? Feathers, to pelt such an idiot as you with," said he. "Here! Betsy Snap! Look at him!"

Betsy Snap was a withered, half-favored, yellow old woman—our only domestic—always employed, at this time of the morning, in rubbing my uncle's legs. As my uncle adjured her to look at me, he put his lean grip on the crown of her head, she kneeling beside him, and turned her face towards me. An involuntary thought connecting them both with the Dissecting Room, as it must often have been in the surgeon's time, passed across my mind in the midst of my anxiety.

"Look at the snivelling milksop!" said my uncle. "Look at the baby! This is the gentleman who, people say, is nobody's enemy but his own. This is the gentleman who can't say no. This is the gentleman who was making such large profits in his business that he must needs take a partner, 't'other day. This is the gentleman who is going to marry a wife without a penny, and who falls into the hands of of Jezabels who are speculating on his death!"

I knew, now, how great my uncle's rage was; for nothing short of his being almost beside himself would have induced him to utter that concluding word, which he held in such repugnance that it was never spoken or hinted at before him on any account.

"On my death," he repeated, as if he were defying me by defying him own abhorrence of the word. "On my death—death—Death! But I'll spoil the speculation. Eat your last under this roof, you feeble wretch, and may it choke you!"

You may suppose that I had not much appetite for the breakfast to which I was bidden in these terms; but, I took my accustomed seat. I saw that I was repudiated henceforth by my uncle; still I could bear that very well, possessing Christiana's heart.

He emptied his basin of bread and milk as usual, only that he took it on his knees with his chair turned away from the table where I sat. When he had done, he carefully snuffed out the candle; and the cold, slate-colored, miserable day looked in upon us.

"No, Mr. Michael," said he, "before we part, I should like to have a word with these ladies in your presence."

"As you will, sir," I returned; "but you deceive yourself, and wrong us, cruelly, if you suppose that these is any feeling at stake in this contract, but pure, disinterested, faithful love."

To this, he only replied, "You lie!" and not one other word.

We went, through half-thawed snow and half-frozen rain, to the house where Christiana and her mother lived. My uncle knew them very well. They were sitting at their breakfast, and were surprised to see us at that hour.

"Your servant, ma'am," said my uncle to the mother. "You divine the purpose of my visit, I dare say, ma'am. I understand there is a world of pure, disinterested, faithful love cooped up here. I am happy to bring it all it wants, to make it complete. I bring you your son-in-law, ma'am—and you, your husband, miss. The gentleman is a perfect stranger to me, but I wish him joy of his wise bargain."

He snarled at me as he went out, and I never saw him again.

It is altogether a mistake (continued the poor relation) to suppose that my dear Christiana, over-persuaded and influenced by her mother, married a rich man, the dirt from whose carriage wheels is often, in these changed times, thrown upon me as she rides by. No, no. She married me.

The way we came to be married rather sooner than we intended, was this. I took a frugal lodging and was saving and planning for her sake, when, one day, she spoke to me with great earnestness, and said:

"My dear Michael, I have given you my heart. I have said that I loved you, and I have pledged myself to be your wife. I am as much yours through all changes of good and evil as if we had been married on the day when such words passed between us. I know you well, and know that if we should be separated and our union broken off, your whole life would be shadowed, and all that might, even now, be stronger in your character for the conflict with the world would then be weakened to the shadow of what it is!"

"God help me, Christiana!" said I. "You speak the truth."

"Michael!" she said, putting her hand in mine, in all maidenly devotion, "let us keep apart no longer. It is but for me to say that I can live contented upon such means as you have, and I well know you are happy. I say so from my heart. Strive no more alone; let us strive together. My dear Michael, it is not right that I should keep secret from you what you do not suspect, but what distresses my whole life. My mother, without considering that what you have lost, you have lost for me, and on the assurance of my faith; sets her heart on riches, and urges another suit upon us, to my misery. I cannot bear this, for to bear it is to be untrue to you. I would rather share your struggles and look on. I want no better home than you can give me. I know that you will aspire and labor with a higher courage if I am wholly yours, and let it be so when you will!"

I was blest indeed, that day, and a new world opened to me. We were married in a very little while, and I took my wife to our happy home. That was the beginning of the residence I have spoken of; the Castle we have ever since inhabited together, dates from that time. All our children have been born in it. Our first child—now married—was a little girl, whom we called Christiana. Her son is so like Little Frank, that I hardly know which is which.

The current impression as to my partner's dealings with me is also quite erroneous. He did not begin to treat me coldly, as a poor simpleton, when my uncle and I so fatally quarrelled; nor did he afterwards gradually possess himself of our business and edge me out. On the contrary, he behaved to me with the utmost good faith and honor.

Matters between us took this turn:—On the day of my separation from my uncle, and even before the arrival at our counting-house of my trunks (which he sent after me, not carriage paid), I went down to our room of business, on our little wharf, overlooking the river; and there I told John Spatter what had happened. John did not say, in reply, that rich old relatives were palpable facts, and that love and sentiment were moonshine and fiction. He addressed me thus:

"Michael," said John, "we were at school together, and I generally had the knack of getting on better than you, and making a higher reputation."
 "You had, John," I returned.
 "Although," said John, "I borrowed your books and lost them; borrowed your pocket-money, and never repaid it; got you to buy my damaged knives at a higher price than I had given for them new; and to own to the windows that I had broken."

"All not worth mentioning, John Spatter," said I, "but certainly true."
 "When you were first established in this infant business, which promises to thrive so well," pursued John, "I came to you, in my search for almost any employment, and you made me your clerk."
 "Still not worth mentioning, my dear John Spatter," said I; "still, equally true."

"And finding that I had a good head for business, and that I was really useful to the business, you did not like to retain me in that capacity, and thought it an act of justice soon to make me your partner."
 "Still less worth mentioning than any of those other little circumstances you have recalled, John Spatter," said I; "for I was, and am, sensible to your merits and my deficiencies."

"Now, my dear friend," said John, drawing my arm through his, as he had had a habit of doing at school; while two vessels outside the windows of our counting-house—which were shaped like the stern windows of a ship—went lightly down the river with the tide, as John and I might then be sailing away in company, and in trust and confidence, on our voyage of life; "let there, under these friendly circumstances, be a right understanding between us. You are too easy, Michael. You are nobody's enemy but your own. If I were to give you that damaging character among our connection, with a shrug and a shake of the head, and a sigh; and if I were further to abuse the trust you place in me—"

"But you never will abuse it at all, John," I observed.
 "Never!" said he; "but I am putting a case—I say, and if I were further to abuse that trust by keeping this piece of our common affairs in the dark, and this other piece in the light; and again this other piece in the twilight, and so on, I should strengthen my strength, and weaken your weakness, day by day, until at last I found myself on the high road to fortune, and you left behind on some bare common, a hopeless number of miles out of the way."
 "Exactly so," said I.

"To prevent this, Michael," said John Spatter, "or the remotest chance of this, there must be perfect openness between us. Nothing must be concealed, and we must have but one interest."
 "My dear John Spatter," I assured him, "that is precisely what I mean."

"And when you are too easy," pursued John, his face glowing with friendship, "you must allow me to prevent that imperfection in your nature from being taken advantage of, by any one; you must not expect me to humor it."
 "My dear John Spatter," I interrupted; "I don't expect you to humor it. I want to correct it."
 "And I, too," said John.

"Exactly so!" cried I. "We both have the same end in view; and, honorably seeking it, and fully trusting one another, and having but one interest, ours will be a prosperous and happy partnership."
 "I am sure of it!" returned John Spatter. And we shook hands most affectionately.

I took John home to my Castle, and we had a very happy day. Our partnership thrived well. My friend and partner supplied what I wanted, as I had foreseen that he would; and by improving both the business and myself, amply acknowledged any little rise in life to which I had helped him.

I am not (said the poor relation, looking at the fire as he slowly rubbed his hands) very rich, for I never cared to be that; but I have enough, and am above all moderate wants and anxieties. My Castle is not a splendid place, but it is very comfortable, and it has a warm and cheerful air, and is quite a picture of Home.

Our oldest girl, who is very like her mother, married John Spatter's eldest son. It is very pleasant on an evening, when we are all assembled together—which frequently happens—and when John and I talk over old times, and the one interest there has always been between us.

I really do not know, in my Castle, what loneliness is. Some of our children or grandchildren are always about it, and the young voices of my descendants are delightful—O, how delightful—to me to hear. My dearest and most devoted wife, ever faithful, ever loving, ever helpful and sustaining, and consoling, is the priceless blessing of my house; from whom all its other blessings spring. We are rather a musical family, and when Christiana sees me, at any time, a little weary or depressed, she steals to the piano and sings a gentle air she used to sing when we were first betrothed. So weak a man am I that I cannot bear to hear it from any other source. They played it once, at the theatre, when I was there with little Frank; and the child said wondering, "Cousin Michael, whose hot tears are these that have fallen on my hand!"

Such is my Castle, and such are the real particulars of my life therein preserved. I often take little Frank home there. He is very welcome to my grandchildren, and they play together. At this time of the year—the Christmas and New Year time—I am seldom out of my Castle. For, the associations of the season seem to hold me there, and the precepts of the season seem to teach me that it is well to be there.

"And the Castle is—" observed a grave, kind voice among the company.
 "Yes. My Castle," said the poor relation, shaking his head as he still looked at the fire, "in the air. Join our esteemed host suggests its situation accurately. My Castle is in the air. I have done. Will you be so good as to pass the story."

NATURE OUR TEACHER.

Many inventions have been the result of close observation of Nature. Making paper from wood is one of the world's most important discoveries and industries. An old hornet's nest was the cause of a doctor making close and painstaking search as to how the paper nest was made, and making him think that it might be possible for human beings to manufacture paper of the same kind. The doctor knew that there were not enough rags and cotton in the world to supply the enormous quantities of paper which newspapers and journals require, so one day he took the hornet's nest to a friend, and they tried to see if it were possible to make paper in a like manner to the little hornet.

They sat down, took the nest to pieces, analysed it carefully, and decided that if a hornet could make paper out of wood, man could do the same. The doctor first discovered that the hornet chewed the wood into a fine pulp. Then they decided to make machinery which would accomplish this in huge quantities. The experiments were at last completed satisfactorily, and paper made from wood pulp was the result.

Logs are now floated down a river to a pulp-mill. In an amazing short time each log comes out in great masses of pulp, ready to be sent to the paper mill to be rooled, chemically treated, and dried.

It is then delivered in great rolls or sheets ready to feed the printing press.

It is interesting to know that the copy of The Review you are holding now was not so very long ago, part of a flourishing tree in a British Columbia forest.

VASTNESS OF BABYLON.

Though Nitetis had been brought up among the huge temples and palaces of Egypt, she was still astonished at the size and grandeur of this gigantic city.

Its walls seemed impregnable; they measured more than seventy-five feet in height and their breadth was so great that two chariots could conveniently drive abreast upon them. These mighty defences were crowned and strengthened by two hundred and fifty high towers, and even these would have been insufficient, if Babylon had not been protected on one side by impassable morasses. The gigantic city lay on both shores of the Euphrates. It was more than forty miles in circumference, and its walls enclosed buildings surpassing in size and grandeur even the Pyramids and the temples of Thebes.

The mighty gates of brass through which the royal train entered the city had opened wide to receive this noble company. This entrance was defended on each side by a strong tower, and before each of these towers lay, as warder, a gigantic winged bull carved in stone, with a human head, bearded and solemn. Nitetis gazed at these gates in astonishment, and then a joyful smile lighted up her face as she looked up the long broad street so brightly and beautifully decorated to welcome her.

The moment they beheld the king and the gilded carriage the multitude burst into loud shouts of joy.

It was long since the populace had seen Cambyses, for, in accordance with Median customs the king seldom appeared in public.

Thus all Babylon had come out today to look upon their lawful ruler.

The windows were crowded with eager, curious women who threw flowers before the approaching train, or poured sweet perfumes from above as they passed by. The pavement was thickly strewn with myrtle and palm branches, trees of different kinds had been placed before the house-doors, carpets and gay cloths hung from the windows, garlands of flowers were wreathed from house to house, fragrant odors of incense and sandal-wood perfumed the air, and the way was lined with thousands of gaping Babylonians dressed in white linen shirts, gaily decorated woolen petticoats and short cloaks, and carrying long staves headed with pomegranates, birds or roses, of gold or silver.

The streets through which the procession moved were broad and straight, the houses on either side built of brick, tall and handsome.

The procession approached the royal palace. This corresponded in its enormous size to the rest of the vast city. The walls surrounding it were covered with gaily colored and glazed representations of strange figures made up of human beings, birds, quadrupeds and fishes. By the side of the river towards the north, rose the hanging-gardens, and the smaller palace lay towards the east on the other bank of the Euphrates, connected with the larger one by the wondrous erection, a firm bridge of stone.—From "An Egyptian Princess," by George Ebers.

Why We Celebrate on December 25.

Nobody knows whether that is the exact date on which Christ was born, or what people first celebrated the festival on that date. After the triumph of Christianity the prejudice of the early Christians against the celebration of birthdays as heathenish died out. Some time between 387 and 352, Pope Julius directed Saint Cyril to ascertain the correct date. He reported that the western churches observed it on December 25, although other churches kept the day in January, April, May, March and September. Pope Julius was so satisfied with Saint Cyril's report that he set December 25 as Christmas Day, and our observance of that date has come down to us from that decision.

"The story is told of an argument that ensued between a little Roman Catholic and a Jew boy as to the merits of their respective churches. One word led to another until the Roman Catholic boy said: "Our priest knows more than your rabbi does, anyway." To which the Jew boy retorted, "Well, why shouldn't he? You tell him everything."

MUNICIPAL MANAGEMENT.

The resolution adopted by the United Farmers at Trout Creek Point on Tuesday evening has the full endorsement of this journal. Never will our municipal affairs be efficiently managed until a duly qualified official is shouldered with the sundry responsibilities created by the several and not insignificant public utilities which are being operated by Summerland, along with the usual business of municipalities in general. When the 1919 Council went into office, the Reeve and at least one other member of the Council, the editor of this paper, had definitely fixed in their minds just such a plan, but for reasons that need not be stated now they were never able to put their ideas into effect. Unless this principle of management is carried out to cover every branch of municipal endeavor, it would seem essential that the irrigation system be separated from Council control, and put under the management of a separate commission.

WAR TROPHIES ALLOTMENTS.

The letter from a Peachland correspondent, appearing in this issue, seems to indicate some oversight on the part of the War Trophies Director, which calls for prompt amendment. Our correspondent is quite correct in his statement that Peachland was, at least, second to none in its response to the call for voluntary enlistment, and it is probable that the lack of acknowledgement by way of war trophies may be attributed to some purely clerical error in the department responsible. In any case, a speedy rectifying of the oversight is called for.

BRITISH COLUMBIA FOR SEED GROWING.

Mangel seed was grown at Summerland, B. C., Experimental Farm, which yielded 1,844 pounds per acre. Here is an industry that ranks with the banana years of the small fruit industry, and a wider market stands waiting for it. G. H. Clark, Dominion Seed Commissioner, predicted that within the next ten years this Province will become the seed garden of North America. This is one of the few benefits conferred by the war. Until 1914, as nearly everyone knows, this country depended upon foreign-grown seed. It was partly our own fault. We simply couldn't believe that our neighbor next door was able to grow seed anywhere like as good and reliable as the seed we bought in packets from the store. A great deal of this imported seed came from Germany and from other countries that were allied against us, and naturally the progress of the war revealed the fact that we could not hope to get any more from those sources. Therefore we had to use our own seeds after all, and now everybody comes and tells us that they are the finest seeds they ever saw!

Seed growing as a business requires business-like preparation and study, but almost everyone can grow some sorts of seeds if reasonable care and intelligence is used. Why not look into the matter a little more? Perhaps this is the side line that you have been looking for that will make your place yield what you think you have a right to expect, instead of what you are getting at present. Extensive information is readily given by both the Dominion and Provincial Governments, and these winter evenings are the very time when you have the leisure to go closely into the matter.—Daily Colonist.

SAYS TYRANNY ON BOTH SIDES

tion and love had been worn out; she forgave.

Jesus did not say that we must sign the pledge, but he talked so much about the sacredness of the body and keeping it pure, that if this argument were kept up one would not do anything to mar the body. In those days there was class distinction, Jew and Gentile. He told the woman of Samaria that she need not go to Jerusalem to worship God. They had their industrial problems and taxes. The Romans took the half, and there were still other taxes to pay. Christ did not talk Socialism, but talked about the great brotherhood of man in the fatherhood of God. Hearing much of this one would hesitate at exploiting his fellow man. He fed the hungry, but told them they could not live by bread alone. We must have Christ's solution of this unrest, call it what you will. We must not forget the finer and fundamental things of life. The solution of all our problems is based on the common brotherhood of man. The working out of this problem is a hard task, and the Master knew it would take a long time.

The speaker condemned the strike. There was no love there. It was but another form of oppression and tyranny.

Mr. A. J. Boer, proclaiming himself a Socialist, said he believed in following in the steps of the Master, but, to apply the grace of God, there must be a change of system.

J. W. S. Logie resented the statement that scientific Socialism was simply a transference of oppression and tyranny. Perhaps the speaker referred to the dictatorship of the proletariat, as in Russia. This was only a temporary condition. He referred to the working of the guilds in Britain, which were erecting buildings without taking profits. Conditions change, and while Soviet government might be all right in Russia, Mr. Logie was in doubt as to its value in Canada.

Mr. G. J. Coulter White presumed that those who called themselves Socialists and those who called themselves Christians, who are members of churches, hold much the same high ideals. The fault has been that by some means there has come to be a narrowing of the outlook. This narrowness and selfish spirit of sectarianism did not exist at the beginning. All have to recognize a broadening of interests and responsibilities and get down to it in practice and in deed that the world may be made better. We are not living for ourselves alone. The greatest law is love. Our theories will not work in themselves, but require the force and spiritual law of love.

Replying to Mr. Logie on Scientific Socialism, Mr. Baker said that whenever any institution arises, it must show that it has a better spirit than the one it would supplant, but there was just as much bitterness and bigotry in Scientific Socialism as in anything that existed today. It

THE WILLIAM LANE EXPERIMENT IN PARAGUAY.

Toronto "Saturday Night" not very long ago printed an account of the rise and fall of what was described as "The World's Greatest Experiment in Socialism," written by Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, and supported by facts brought out in the testimony of the Prime Minister of Australia before the British Coal Commission early this year. The story makes interesting reading, and in its condensed form, is as follows:

William Lane, a brilliant English writer, who lived many years in Australia and was imbued with the idea of a great Socialist community, obtained from the government of Paraguay a concession of a tract of land thirty miles long by twenty miles wide, on which to found his ideal brotherhood, and gathered around him a band of ardent Socialists from the mainland. These men were hardy and industrious and between them contributed a fund of $100,000, with which to purchase tools and supplies. With this capital the pioneer band sailed for their new home and were met by government delegates, who banqueted them, placed a great building at their disposal, arranged for good terms of long credit and sent them on their way with all good wishes. On arrival, they built their community home, and began to work in a country which possessed a perfect climate and whose land was in full bearing of fruits of every kind.

For a time they were in a Garden of Eden, and the analogy was soon to be accentuated by the appearance of the serpent. To use the words of the Toronto writer, "there came the startling discovery that Socialism ruled with an iron rod. Lane began with the statement that, freed from the vicious influence of capitalism, the Socialists would dwell together in brotherly love, without restriction. But he soon found that some one had to apportion the work." Apparently he first endeavored to allot the various duties to those best fitted for them, but soon found that system a failure, and announced a benevolent despotism. The result was that bitter charges of favoritism were made against him; and he became tyrannical to the extent that the time came when no settler could leave without his permission. One man wrote to a friend in Australia: "We have lost all civil rights, and become mere cogs in the wheel. Lane does the thinking and the colonists do the work. A man is practically a slave; result, barbarism."

Next came the discovery that, instead of Socialism abolishing poverty, it increases it. The community owned 350,000 acres of the finest land in the country, capable of pasturing 70,000 head of cattle, and independent settlers around them were doing well, yet, in twenty years, this colony had reached the point where members would have starved to death but for the assistance of the Government of Paraguay. "The degree of poverty to which they were reduced is seen by the fact that the schoolhouse for the community children eventually dwindled to an old covered wagon." Their initial stock of 3000 cattle had dwindled to 900. A passage from their own report says: "A blight seemed to descend on everything managed by the community, and their children proved no exception to the rule. Untaught and unrestrained, the neglected children seemed doomed to suffer all their lives for the follies of their parents."

The inevitable change came when the situation became absolutely impossible, and both this colony and a second one founded by Lane, after his withdrawal from the original community, appealed to the government to grant them private ownership. This was granted, and under normal conditions, the whole aspect of the situation was transformed. "From sunrise to sunset, they began to work like bees and beavers. Benjamin Kidd, the philosopher, witnessed the beginning of the new era. He tells us that men who were indolent and worthless under Socialism, became enterprising, ambitious and skilful under individualism. In an incredibly short time houses shot up, surrounded by well tilled gardens, with carefully fenced crops, and soon once more the pastures were covered with herds and flocks. Single individuals prospered so marvelously that in a short time they owned a larger number of cattle and horses than had formerly belonged to the entire colony. Their own member and historian being the judge, the fruits of Socialism were indolence, poverty, discontent, favoritism, mismanagement, strife, hate, theft, crime, while the last six years under individual ownership exhibit sudden growth, prosperity, wealth, as the fruits of industry, economy and self-reliance."

The attitude taken by the "Saturday Night" narrator in reproducing the account of this experiment, is that of one who is open to conviction. He writes: "If individual ownership created poverty, hate and crime, we want to know it. If Socialism under ideal conditions will abolish poverty, hate, warfare, fear for old age, and create abundance and prosperity, we want to know that." He shows that William Lane himself expressly stated at the outset of the experiment that "everything has been prepared for in advance, nothing left to chance, and therefore, if failure takes place, it must be traced to something in our plan itself." This is certainly very explicit, and warrants the conclusion drawn, that, "under ideal conditions, having absolutely everything that the Socialists have demanded, this experiment has demonstrated certain facts. It shows that Socialism is not the trustworthy panacea it was advertised to be. It has not lessened strikes. It was not democratic.

This laboratory demonstration, under ideal conditions in Paraguay, has once more proved that the whole beautiful balloon of Socialism—the greatest gasbag of all dream Zepplins—bursts like a bubble when you prick it with that plain, common, everyday pin, named—human frailty."

was his personal grief that the churches had narrowed down the influence of the pulpit. He would not ask a man to take a pulpit, if he did not believe he knew more of his subject than his hearers, and declared that a preacher should not be called a heretic if he speaks of evolution. To Mr. Boer, he replied that while Christ spent the night in praying, he worked during the day in the streets. During the half hour before the lecture, Mr. T. P. Thornber delighted the audience with several selections on the piano, and Mr. T. G. Bonvisini rendered a vocal selection, entitled "The Ebb of the Tide," which was much appreciated.

No. III.—PERT REMARKS

The chesty concert singer said to his friend, "I am thinking of touring South Africa next year." His friend said, "Take my advice and don't, an ostrich egg weighs two or three pounds you know." What a difference to that most lovable and interesting character, Chopin, his delicate touch was full of expression and exquisite grace, his physical condition debarred him from every bodily exertion. He was seriously restricted always by a lack of strength, and died at the age of forty. Listen to what Chopin said of himself: "I am well and in good spirits, why, I do not know, but the people here (Vienna) are astonished at me, and I wonder at them for finding anything to wonder at in me. My manner of playing pleases the ladies so much, I move in the highest circles and I do not know how I got there, I am in the world like an E string of the violin on a contrabass."

Living during the same period but in the little country of Belgium was de Beriot, a man of different habits. This talented violinist was appointed solo violinist to William I. King of the Netherlands. "De Beriot" received a New Year's present of a dozen bottles of champagne from a wealthy friend. The violinist consumed the wine and returned the empty case with his card, on which he had written "encore." His patron did not resent this, but sent a second lot with his visiting card, on which he had written the word "finale." Joachim was another great violinist; who is known as the most distinguished teacher and greatest violinist of recent times. Joachim insulted the Kaiser, for when the Kaiser asked Joachim to teach two of his sons the violin, Joachim replied: "Your majesty, I fully appreciate the honor of teaching your sons, but I am very sorry to say that all my time is so taken up with talented students that I find it impossible to accept your majesty's offer." Ever after that time Joachim was no longer a favorite with the Kaiser. Joachim was the greatest teacher of his time, he took no pupil at any price who was not already an artist of talent, yet we often think of the words of Jacob Abbott who said, never get out of patience with dullness or stupidity, but we are inclined to question when we read of an examiner asking the following questions and receiving these replies: What is a double sharp? When you strike two black keys at the same time, one with each hand.

Define "form" in music? Well it is not good form to applaud by stamping the feet, you should clap your hands.

What does "st" signify? So far for one-day's practice.

What is a Minuetto? A short piece that you can play through in one minute.

We cannot but smile at some answers, for Willie after reading about the Guitar asked, what is a guitar? Why, said Johnnie with a sneer, it's a disease in the head. No, it ain't, said Freddie, giving his chum a nudge, it is a lump growing on the throat.

The violinist was certainly put to a test for an answer when the landlady said to the violinist, who also was a new lodger: Oh, good-morning. Good morning, answered the new lodger. I hope you had a good night's rest, said the landlady. No, I did not, said the mild looking man; your cat kept me awake. Oh, said the landlady, tossing her head, I suppose you are going to ask me to have the poor thing killed. No, not exactly, said the gentle lodger, but would you very much mind having it tuned.

Speaking of singing, we cannot do better than listen to the soap-box orator. "Yes, said the orator, this is indeed a wonderful country. We have thousands of women who are wonderful singers—thousands of women who hold their audience for hours, at a time—after which they lay it in a cradle and rock it to sleep.

An Intelligent Anti-Suffragist.

Lady Astor told in London a story about an anti-suffragist.

"Anti-suffragists are all alike," she said. "Once I was canvassing for signatures to a petition about Lord Milner, the viceroy to India at that time. When I called on Mr. Boggs, the grocer, he read the petition carefully and then said:

"Who is this here Milner, ma'am?"

"Our Indian viceroy" said.

"Wot's a viceroy?" said Mr. Boggs.

"A pro-consul, you know." And I explained Lord Milner's position in detail.

"Mr. Boggs, satisfied, dipped his pen in the ink; then he looked up anxiously.

"You're not lettin' the women sign this, are you?" he said.

"Oh no, indeed, said I.

"That's right," said Mr. Boggs as he slowly traced his signature.

"That's right ma'am. Women don't know nothin' about these things."

"Good citizenship is the subordination of one's desires and inclinations to the common good; the faithful observance of just laws and ordinances; the acceptance of the duties and obligations of citizenship as well as its advantages and its protection; loyalty to one's family, one's city, and one's Nation."—L. F. Kneipp.

THE MUSICAL CRITIC.

The literary critic has been defined as an author who has failed, and probably much the same definition would apply to some people who write criticisms on musical performances, but according to some very funny stories I was reading lately, it is not always considered that such critics need have even a superficial knowledge of music. It is said that the promoter of a concert in a town which we need not look for on the map of this province, phoned up to the local paper for a reporter to cover the entertainment, and on being told that all the staff were out with the exception of a live stock reporter, requested that this gentleman be sent along. When the managing editor pointed out that the reporter of live stock exhibitions would probably not know anything at all about musical matters, he replied to the effect that there was nothing in that to prevent him taking the assignment, because, all he had to do was to follow the program, and write up the items printed thereon. I understand that the result was something wonderful, the tenor soloist being credited with a fine rendering of a string quartette, and the leading soprano being gently criticized for an undue preponderance of brass!

The explanation was, of course, that the reporter had simply mixed up the numbers, and the unfortunate "stars" had to swallow their astonishment as best they could. This reminds me of a very genuine and heartfelt decision arrived at by a great horse-racing enthusiast who was sitting near the stage on the occasion of a piano solo by a celebrated performer. He was observed watching with staring eyes the rapid movement of the pianist's fingers up and down the keyboard, and at the conclusion of the solo, which ended with a smart staccato release, he sank back in his seat with a sigh of relief, and exclaimed, "A dead heat, by jove!"—Professor Crochet in "Broken Melodies."

Here is the quaint finding of an Indian jury at the inquest on a man whose fate had been to assuage the appetite of a tiger: "That Pandso died of tiger eating him; there was no other cause of death."

STAGE FRIGHT.

A correspondent to Musical Canada deals with the matter of nervousness felt by great performers before appearing before their audiences, and instances the curious case of Paderewski, who is reported to "shake like an ague" before going to the platform for a recital. The writer asks, "Why should an artist like Paderewski be nervous? His technique is perfect; he knows he can do everything that is requested of him; he has been all over the world, and faced thousands of audiences; what can he have to fear?" In his comments on this question, the correspondent remarks that that is simply the "common sense" view of the matter, and does not take into account the artistic temperament. As a matter of experience, it is a well-established fact that the nervousness of an artist is in most cases ineradicable and does not grow less by custom, being in fact an inseparable part of his highly strung organization. Chopin said that the very breath of an audience intimidated him. Wagner was utterly unnerved on several occasions, and had to give the baton to Richter. Spohr, the great violinist, said that he always lost about twenty per cent. in finish through nervousness. Caruso declares that nervousness is the secret of his singing being so effective. All this is perfectly understandable, and probably the only type of performer who does not feel this nervousness is the one who lacks real musical genius, however finished he may be in the technical side of his art. The singer who, to use Dickens' expression, "has tears in his voice," is naturally sensitive, and pays the penalty.—Professor Crochet in "Broken Melodies."

At Christmas-tide the open hand Scatters it's bounty o'er sea and land.

The latest American church device for raising the wind is what a religious paper describes as some collection box. The inventor hails from Oklahoma. If a member of the congregation drops in a 25-cent piece, or a coin of larger value, there is silence. If it is a ten-cent piece, a bell rings; a five-cent piece sounds a whistle, and a one-cent fires a blank cartridge. If any one pretends to be asleep when the box passes, it awakens him with a watchman's rattle, and a kodak takes his portrait.—From the London Christian World.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the late war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after July 20, 1918. Pensions are retained for 5 years. Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, securing rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfillment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. GRAZING

Grazing Act, 1910, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commission. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

It is idle for farmers to blame "grain gamblers" for the slump in the price of wheat. Natural and inexorable laws of supply and demand regulate the price of wheat, which is, moreover, a world market. Like the dial on a weighing machine, it simply moves up and down until it reaches a point where supply and demand seem to "balance" and that is the price for the time being. So-called "gamblers" may win by studying market probabilities and going with them, but in modern times there has been no combination of gamblers or financiers, or both together, strong enough to push, pull or drive the market away from its natural point by as much as 5 per cent. or maintain it there for so long as 30 days. Be reasonable, Mr. Farmer, Wall street is no God that can divert the sun from its path and Wall street has the brains to know it cannot.—Ex.

When through some lonely city street, For months and years we've gone our way,

When some remembered face we greet; "How are the folks at home?" we say.

"How are the folks" our eager cry; "The folks are well, they speak of you,"

"With thoughtful care, with softening eye," "They send their love, they miss you too."

We go our way in crowding throng, Our hearts are light with glad some glee,

Our steps are dancing to the song; "The Folks at Home Remember Me." —Theodore Sharpe.

"YULE"

To refer to the middle of the summer as "Yule-tide" would, at the present day, be considered not only incorrect, but idiotic. For the word "Yule" has come to be associated solely with the period around Christmas. Among the Scandinavians, however, the word "Yule"—meaning "wheel" and the source of our present "Yule"—was used to denote the turning point in both the summer and winter solstice of mid-summer and mid-winter. Many authorities, indeed, maintain that the same word is responsible for our present "July," generally believed to have been derived from the name Julius Caesar. It is probable that the fact that "Yule" was applied to the mid-summer month in some parts of the empire induced the courtiers at Rome to suggest that the name "Julius," which so closely resembled it, should supersede the older Latin "Quintilius," that that the same reason led the Roman senate to adopt the idea.

The ancient notion that the sun was mounted on a wheel, of which the earth formed the hub, is apparent in a number of customs, some of which persisted until a comparatively recent time. As late as 1823, for example, the inhabitants of the village of Konz, on the Moselle, were in the habit, on St. John's Eve, of taking a great wheel wrapped in straw to the top of a hill and after lighting the straw, allowing it to roll all the way down. If it reached the river before being extinguished, a good vintage was anticipated.

WHAT TO SPEND FOR ADVERTISING

An interesting talk was given at the Electric Club luncheon today by Mr. James Lightbody, publicity manager of the B. C. Electric, on "Advertising." Speaking at considerable length, Mr. Lightbody touched on many phases of his subject, such as mediums, circulation of publications, the policy of advertisers, amount of advertising appropriation, preparation of copy, etc. He maintained that the amount and character of circulation were important points in placing advertising in publications. He also condemned the practice of including donations in advertising appropriations, maintaining that advertising should be regarded as a legitimate expenditure.

Many successful firms, the speaker said, appropriated 5 per cent. of their gross sales to advertising. New firms frequently expended 10 per cent. of the estimated gross revenue of the first year to advertising expenses, lowering this amount as they became well established, until they dropped to the minimum of 5 or whatever percentage they decided to set aside each year for this purpose.

FEEDING GROUNDS FOR THE MIGRATORY BIRDS

To Increase Numbers of Birds the Inland Lakes and Swamp Areas Must be Perpetuated.

Friends of our migratory birds appreciate that in the adoption of the Migratory Bird Treaty the first important step for the perpetuation of the birds has been made, but that another vital safeguard remains to be provided.

For purposes of shelter and refuge during migration and for feeding and rearing their young, it is essential that small inland lakes and swamps and marsh areas be perpetuated. With protection the birds are rapidly increasing, and provision must be made that as fast as possible, natural conditions shall be available for them in their passage north and south.

Canada is appreciating this condition, and is setting aside areas throughout the country as bird reservations. These are under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parks Branch, which has the administration of the Migratory Bird Treaty and the Northwest Game Act. Many private reservations are also being established, and it is hoped that with the increase of bird life many of the onomias of agriculture and forestry will be overtaken. The farmers of Canada can well afford to encourage the birds, as they very much more than pay their way.

It was three months ago when he first took ill, and shortly after was operated on, and there have been frequent operations since. It is now hoped that he will pull through all right without the loss of any part of his hand.

A consignment of fruit has been sent from here to Vancouver by the Baptist Church and Sunday-School, which will be distributed among those in the Italian Mission being administered by Mrs. J. J. The abolition applies to all luxury taxes adopted in the last budget except those on spirituous and alcoholic liquors, medicated wines, patented and proprietary preparations containing alcohol, lime and fruit juices, spirits and strong waters, perfumery and toilet preparations, playing cards and confectionery. All luxury taxes, except those mentioned, are abolished, whether paid by merchants, manufacturers or importers.

Santa Claus' reindeer, with their spreading antlers, may have walked two and two out of the ark, when it rested on Ararat's crest after the flood subsided, but who cares? The gift of eternal youth is theirs and they are too busy to bother with family records or chronological tables. Each year the rhythmic patter of their tiny hoofs will be heard on your roof on Christmas eve if your heart keeps young and true and your ears are still attuned to the faintest whisper of God's own messengers. Santa Claus finds his happy way into the homes of the rich and the poor alike, into the palace and into the cottage, wherever children have been sent to brighten and to bless.

White Bread Blamed for Neuritis.

At a recent conference of master bakers at Adelaide, Dr. Hargraves, a distinguished Australian chemist, declared that the nations which eat white bread were getting close to the border line of neuritis. He advocated brown bread, saying that modern science demanded that wheat should be milled whole. He said that undoubtedly campaigns in favor of whole meal bread will be launched shortly in the United States and England, and it behooved Australia to take prompt action along the same lines.

Joe Gayton returned home this week from Victoria, where he has been attending Normal School.

Patrons of the local motion picture house are well provided for an Christmas Day, if one may judge from the published program. "The Winning Girl" sounds attractive, while the ever fresh "Charlie" in "Sunnyside," promises plenty of genuine fun for those who enjoy a hearty laugh.

It was announced from the platform at The Forum on Sunday that the executive was arranging for some good addresses during the winter months. Some outside talent will be invited, the first of which will probably be heard on or shortly after the re-opening session, which will be on Sunday, January 9th, gatherings having been suspended until that date.

The ordinary land slide, causes enough trouble to repair, but when it assumes a form in which most of the gap is at the bottom, and has to be filled in from below, the awkwardness is increased. This is the position on the stretch of road leading to the Rayner ranch and the first bench in Naramata. Traffic is impossible on this section until repairs are made.

The gossip is the most useless piece of human furniture. The idea is inspired less by the presence of malice than, the absence of brains. In the mildest type there is not much harm, nor much else. The person simply represents a waste of material. However, the scandalmonger, that most unclean of human beings, is allied to the gossip, only going a few steps further. This person is worse than the common thief, for he steals reputations and characters. He strikes honor and defiles what is good. No life is too upright for him to attack, no motive too unselfish to be misrepresented, for he expects no reward save the gratification of his malice. He invades the home with the poison of his tongue, and even the grave is not proof against his relentless pursuits.

The Unconsidered Cipher.

The question of whether a cow should be milked twice or three a day would be much more important than it now is, if the daily yield of the average milker was as great as that inadvertently given in a paragraph in our issue of the 10th instant. A cow giving 600 lbs. of milk a day might well be attended to three times daily or even oftener; she might also claim to have a marble feeding trough and velvet hangings to her stall!

Incidentally, the importance of an extra cipher, which can make 600 out of 60, is once again demonstrated.

A stout woman always took two theatre seats for herself, so as to be more comfortable.

On one occasion, the attendant said, "Excuse me, madame, but who is going to use your other ticket?" "I am going to occupy both seats," replied the woman.

"Just as you like, madam, only they happen to be on opposite sides of the aisle."

To the Editor Summerland Review: Dear Sir,—In the last issue of your paper you state that Pentiction applied to a government official for a field gun, in addition to its present war trophies. And you say that if Pentiction gets such a gun, then Summerland is also entitled to one. And probably it is. But, compared with Peachland, both these towns and many other places, have been well treated. I believe it is generally admitted that Peachland, in proportion to its population, contributed more men (by voluntary enlistment) to the over-sea forces than any other community in British Columbia. Its list of casualties was also very heavy. Yet, up to the present time, it has not received any trophy whatever; although surely entitled to one of the best. Therefore, I think that it is high time that our leading citizens bestirred themselves and drew the attention of the War Trophies Director to his duty in this matter.

Yours very truly, S. J. McGIRR.

I never think of hospitals but my mind instinctively goes back to the artist who drew that unrivalled picture, "The Doctor," and to the writer who might easily have taken that picture as his type of healer. Luke Fildes' delineation and Charles Dickens' constantly expressed sympathy with sickness and suffering, go hand in hand together. It is a noteworthy fact that Dickens never once penned a line which could be construed as a reflection on the profession of healing, but invariably handled it with a sympathy which seemed to forbid any approach to even the mildest of genial satire. The lawyer, the cleric (of a sort) even the schoolmaster, felt the sting of sarcasm as occasion demanded, but doctors and hospitals were sacred. The nurse, as satirized in the person of the immortal Mrs. Gamp, belonged to a type which needed the lash, but even she was castigated in such kindly fashion that her virtues are more evident than her faults. The buxom Sairey, with her mythical friend Mrs. Harris, and the unbelieving Betsy Frig, constitute a trio we would hardly care to lose. And apart from these, we find an absolute tenderness of handling of all matters connected with medical profession. From the meek little Dr. Chillip in "David Copperfield" to Allan Woodcourt in "Bleak House," we note the same kindly touch, and this is still more in evidence in his treatment of hospitals. Especially is this to be seen when he deals with institutions devoted to the care of children, a feature we would naturally expect from a writer who loved children as Dickens did. It would be hard to find anything in literature more sympathetic than the following passages from "Our Mutual Friend": "Johnny came to himself, out of a sleep or a swoon, or whatever it was, to find himself lying in a quiet little bed, with a platform over his breast, on which were already arrayed, to give him heart and urge him to cheer up, his Noah's Ark, the noble steed and the yellow bird, with the officer in the Guards doing duty over the whole, quite as much to the satisfaction of his country as if he had been on parade. And at his bed's head was a coloured picture, beautiful to see, representing as it were another Johnny seated on the knee of some Angel surely who loved little children. And, marvellous fact, to lie there and stare at, Johnny had become one of a little family, all in quiet beds (except two playing dominoes in little arm-chairs at a little table on the hearth); and on all the little beds were little platforms whereon were to be seen dolls' houses, woolly dogs with mechanical barks in them not very dissimilar to the artificial voice pervading the bowels of the yellow bird, tin armies, Moorish tumblers, wooden tea things, and the riches of the earth. He had to be washed and tended, and remedies were applied, and though these offices were far, far more skillfully and lightly done than anything had ever been done for him in his little life, so rough and short, they would have hurt and tired him but for an amazing circumstance which laid hold of his attention. This was the appearance on his own little platform in pairs, of All Creation, on its way into his own particular Ark; the elephant leading, and the fly, with a diffident sense of his size, politely bringing up the rear. A very little brother lying in the next bed with a broken leg, was so enchanted by this spectacle that his delight exalted its enrapturing interest; and so came rest and sleep."

The appreciation of Maggy, in "Little Dorrit," is on different lines, but is none the less wholehearted. "But what a nice hospital! So comfortable, wasn't it? Oh, so nice it was! Such a 'Ev'nly place! Such beds there is there! Such lemonades! Such oranges! Such d'licious broth and wine! Such chicking! Oh, ain't it a delightful place to go and stop at!"

The institution of Guy's Hospital, probably the best known in the world, is said to have arisen from the ashes of a love affair which burnt itself out in an unlooked for manner. Guy, the founder of this notable institution, kept a book shop in Cornhill, and was of a most frugal habit of mind, but, falling in love with his servant maid and yielding to her wish, so far relaxed his purse strings as to order some improvements in front of his place of business. The maid, not content, persuaded the workmen to extend the improvements beyond their instructions, which so enraged her elderly lover that he broke off the engagement, gave up all thought of marriage, and took to the praiseworthy pursuit of founding almshouses and hospitals. This beneficent hobby seems to have decidedly agreed with him, as he lived to the good old age of eighty years. Guy's Hospital became his chief memorial, receiving from him an endowment of $1,000,000, which meant a great deal more in those days than it would now. Thus, the course of true love, although it certainly did not run smooth, was diverted into a channel which still flows to the benefit of humanity.

AUTOLYCUS.

JOE MILLER'S JESTS.

Eighteen years hence somebody will find in August a reason for celebrating a bicentenary of Joe Miller, for the name has now outlived the man these 182 years, and may be counted upon to last much longer, says The Christian Science Monitor. Everybody has heard of Joe Miller; and nearly everybody thinks of him as the author of "Joe Miller's Jests; or the Wit's Vade-Mecum." But Joe himself provided no more than a well-known name although the title stated that the specimens of humor had been "first carefully collected in the company"—for Joe was an actor—"and many of them transcribed from the mouth of the facetious gentleman whose name they bear." Almost anybody except Joe Miller himself might in this manner have contributed some of the jests. But Joe was no joker, and the book was a joke book containing the "jest" then current in London, with Miller's name given it to attract popular attention.

Such books were then common and it was also common to commit selections of their contents to memory as an aid to social conversation. John Motley, a mediocrity in the writing world of London, happened to turn out a joke book which became what we would now call a best seller among its kind, and the people found them conversationally useful, and as time went on the hearer of an oft-repeated joke, no matter what book it came from, was likely to reproach the teller by remarking, "That's a Joe Miller."

Yet those who knew him personally declare that Joe Miller never made a joke, and that his demeanor in the company of lighter tongues than his was so serious that it became the custom of these wags to attribute jokes to him; to say that Joe Miller had made this joke or that, was a joke itself. A fictitious reputation as a "facetious companion" was thus attached to serious Joe, and no Miller's Jests; or the Wit's Vade-Mecum contributed to the sale of "Joe Miller."

Although he really made no jokes, Joe Miller was an excellent comedian whose name first appears on the bills of Drury Lane Theatre in 1715. He remained for most of his life a successful comic actor, popular with his companions, despite his solemnity and apparently highly respected for his personal character. An old print shows him as a rather round-faced, serious man in a curled wig and cocked hat. His professional appearance at the fairs that then occurring regularly in the vicinity of London added no doubt to his wide popularity and to the later value of his name on the cover of a jest book. For these miscellaneous outdoor entertainments, famous in their day as Bartholomew's Fair, Smithfield May Fair, or Greenwich Fair, extended the working season for industrious actors. They came at the time of year when the regular theatres were temporarily closed, and companies of actors were formed to appear in booths erected at the fair. Joe Miller at one time was manager of such a booth theatre.

The success of "Joe Miller's Jests" ran to several editions and a number of other collections were brought out from year to year under similar titles, until the name of the comedian became inseparable from the idea of an old joke. Joe Miller himself might not have appreciated this old and far-reaching fame, but it would undoubtedly delight those "facetious companions" who regarded it as a chucking matter to attribute this joke and that to their friend, Joe Miller.

YOUR FUTURE.

It is a natural instinct and a pleasant diversion to dream of one's future. The good old platitude that distant hills look greenest has much truth to commend it.

Unfortunately, so many worthy souls regard the future as something entirely dissociated from the present. "Some day," says the young man with a congenial bent for writing, "I shall be an author."

With which rosy thought he proceeds to squander his time and his brains with inane pleasures. "I shall be a great pianist," affirms the daughter of the house, and dances into the small hours until her pretty head is incapable of sustained study.

So the world goes on—with people always sighing for the moon. If you want success in the future, get a firm grip on today. Today is the parent of tomorrow.

Don't make the future an excuse for neglecting the present. Achievement requires a stronger foundation than a wish.

Regarded as one of the largest bridges in the world and one of the engineering marvels of the country, the bridge over Deep Creek on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, 1200 feet long and 239 feet high, has reached completion. Throughout the course of construction not a single accident occurred.

Protect the Birds.

The true position of birds in relation to man is not generally or at all adequately recognized. If some species or even a few individuals of one species, manifest injurious tendencies this fact is at once noticed, but the good work which is carried on, quietly yet unceasingly, by the great majority of species passes almost unrecognized. There is also a good deal of misunderstanding in regard to the economic status of various species. Thus all hawks and owls are frequently condemned as injurious and are shot at every opportunity, though as a matter of fact we have in Ontario only two common injurious species of hawks and one injurious species of owl, while we have five common hawks and four common owls which are beneficial. These nine beneficial birds of prey are of inestimable value to the farmer in his warfare against injurious rodents. One of their principal items of food is mice, which do an immense amount of damage to agricultural products by eating grain, destroying the roots of grasses, thus sometimes ruining meadows, and by gnawing young trees in orchards.—Hon. M. W. Doherty.

Pearl Diver's Perils.

Congor oals grow to enormous size in the pearl lagoons of the Pacific, a diver says, as reported in The Atlantic. The divers must keep a close watch for them. The oals lie in holes and crevices of the coral and dart out their heads to seize a passing fish, or the wrist of a diver. When the congor's jaws close on wrist or ankle, the diver needs a cool head; no amount of struggling will pull the oal from his hole. The diver must wait quietly until the congor relaxes his jaws preparatory to taking a better grip. Then a quick wrench and the man is free.—Outlook.

CANADIAN HAPPENINGS

CHRONICLED IN BRIEF

Victoria.—At the fall fairs at Salt Spring Island, Cowichan and Comox on Vancouver Island, soldier settlers were successful in securing 99 prizes for exhibits shown by them. One man, S. N. Dimoline, secured twelve firsts and four seconds, also being awarded the silver cup for the winner of the most prizes at the fair.

Vancouver.—It is proposed by the Vancouver Island Whaling Company, Limited, to establish a modern plant for the extraction of oil and manufacture of fertilizer on the shores of Barclay Sound next year. Four steamers have been acquired.

Vancouver.—As a result of the reciprocity treaty with the West Indies, manufacturers agents there are endeavoring to stimulate trade with Canada, and have written the Vancouver Board of Trade, explaining methods of business in the West Indies, and are making an effort to have the British Columbia manufacturers extend their operations to that country.

New Westminster.—The first annual meeting of British Columbia Honey Producers' Association, held here, showed a membership of 280 bee keepers. During the convention it was decided to adopt a label that stamps a guarantee on all their product.

Edmonton.—It is estimated that coal produced in Alberta mines this year will total 6,750,000 tons, exceeding previous records by half a million tons. The quantity of coal being shipped eastwards is showing a large increase, and to date almost 500,000 tons have been shipped to Manitoba.

Calgary.—In previous years Alberta exhibits of cattle and grains brought away premier honors at the Chicago International Livestock and Grain Show and this year proved no exception. Prizes were won by Alberta exhibits in first, fourth and sixth places for steers coming from Alberta University and local breeders; first and second in college special groups in three and five heifers; and other awards in the Hereford and Aberdeen-Angus classes. In the grain exhibits, Alberta carried off the first and seven additional prizes in oats, J. B. Lucas, of Cayley, winning the grand championship.

Lethbridge.—During the year the Southern Alberta Wool Growers shipped sixty-seven carloads of wool or about 1,400,000 pounds; this is approximately 500,000 pounds more than last year's total. Altogether the total wool clip, including quantities forwarded independently, was valued at $2,000,000.

Calgary.—Movement of Alberta's large grain crop this year has been going on steadily and without a hitch. During the month of November the Canadian Pacific Railway alone hauled no less than 25,000 cars, representing approximately 32,500,000 bushels of grain, the major portion of which was wheat. During the corresponding month in the bumper year of 1915, 10,000 cars were dispatched, carrying 20,800,000 bushels of grain. Grain shipments, therefore, in the month of November this year have been the largest ever known in the history of the province.

Winnipeg.—It is announced that the Rockefeller Foundation has granted $500,000 to the University of Manitoba for the general endowment of medical students, subject to the conditions that the medical college building permit and annual budget has increased to the satisfaction of the foundation. The grant is Manitoba's share of the five million dollars to be given to Canadian universities by John D. Rockefeller. It is also reported from Edmonton that a grant has been offered to the University of Alberta, amounting to $25,000, which will be given them when they comply with similar conditions imposed on the Manitoba University.

Winnipeg.—It is announced that the provincial government have granted powers to the Imperial Oil Company to hold land valued at $2,000,000, instead of the former authority which limited them to $150,000. It is believed in local financial and other circles that this is the precursor of great activity on the part of this corporation in Manitoba oil prospect districts.

Ottawa.—Canada won twenty-one out of twenty-five prizes, including the first three for spring wheat, at the Chicago International Live Stock and Grain show. In oats, Western Canada, in competition with the Northwestern States, won all the prizes but the sixth, and Eastern Canada, in competition with the New England and North Central States, won the first, third and eighth prizes. Canada also won the first three prizes for flint corn and first and third for field peas.

Ottawa.—In a preliminary report on the rubber industry, just issued by the Bureau of Statistics, some interesting figures are found. The report shows that nearly $43,000,000 is invested in the industry and it employs approximately 11,500 people.

Toronto.—As a result of the recent transcontinental flight made under government auspices in relays of 250 miles each, the feasibility of ocean to ocean aerial transport in Canada is expressed by authorities, and that relays may be extended to 300 or 400 miles.

Montreal.—The money test of immigrants of the artisan or laborer class into Canada has now been raised to $250, and this amount the applicant for entry must be possessed of in addition to full fare to his destination within the country. When an adult emigrant is accompanied by his family, he must have in addition $125 for each member over 18 years of age, and $50 for each child between the ages of 5 and 18. The new regulations come into effect along the international boundary on the 15th of December and at ocean ports on January 1st.

Montreal.—Large numbers of good class Irish settlers, many of them officers who served with distinction in the war with the Imperial army, are arriving in Canada. The majority are bound for the west with the intention of settling on farms in the spring.

land and Westbank. Swings were erected on the school grounds at a cost of $50, and a baseball diamond made at a cost of $57; 6.50 was given in prizes for school gardens. At the September meeting, the institute entertained the Summerland and West Summerland Institutes at a picnic on Mrs. Wilson's lawn. At the October meeting an address and bouquet was presented to Mrs. Mitchell, who was leaving to spend the winter in the east. The annual flower show was held on October 14th, the receipts of which were $59.00. The expenses were $78.40. The government grant was $15. The membership fees were $29.50. At the November meeting a very instructive paper was read by Mrs. Buchanan, followed by a helpful discussion. The Scotch concert, held on December 10th, netted the institute $40.25.

Mr. and Mrs. Alpaugh were visitors to Kelowna on Wednesday of last week, returning on the evening boat.

Representatives of the fire control branch visited town during the past week, spending Wednesday night in town.

Visitors from here to Kelowna on Thursday of last week were Mr. Dryden, Dr. Buchanan and Mr. Hyde.

The C. P. R. pilot driver arrived on Friday last to make some repairs on the C. P. R. wharf here.

The school closing exercises for the Christmas holidays took place on Friday last. The primary and intermediate rooms closed early in the day in order to let the teachers, Miss Carter and Mr. Bell, respectively, away in time to catch the K. V. E. westbound at West Summerland on route for Vancouver, where they purpose enjoying the vacation. The other rooms in the Central School closed later in the day. The Trepanier had their closing in the afternoon, in connection with which they enjoyed a short program. The other teachers are remaining here for the holiday and we might mention here that our former High School teacher, Miss Whitman, has come back to spend her Christmas holiday here. She is a guest at the home of Mrs. and Miss Noodham.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig arrived here on Friday evening last from the prairie and are visiting with Mrs. Craig's parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Shaw, at the Trepanier townsite.

Mrs. E. Brinson enjoyed a visit recently from three of her brothers who arrived Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Miller were passengers south Friday evening for Victoria, where they expect to spend a month or so.

Miss Wright was also a passenger south on Friday evening's boat.

Another car arrived this week to make its home in Peachland, Mr. Taylor being the owner. Mr. Lee Hatfield brought it up from Summerland on Friday and returned by boat in the evening.

Quite a goodly number gathered in the Orange Hall on Friday evening to take part in the "Light Fantastic step" and on this particular occasion were treated to something special in the music line. The manager of the hall was able to get in touch with and secure the services of the Banff Orchestra, who were touring the valley, and those present at the hall that evening were loud in their praise of the music supplied throughout the evening. It was a four-piece orchestra. The members came in on the evening boat and left the following morning.

Major Hardisty was a passenger north on Saturday morning.

Mrs. R. O. McCall and son, Carlton, of Penticton, arrived on Saturday morning, having accepted an invitation to a party being held by Mr. and Mrs. L. D. McCall, in honor of Mr. McCall's birthday. Mr. Roy McCall got off on the return of the boat in the evening to attend the party and visited in town over Sunday.

Mr. Cutbill held an auction sale on Saturday afternoon at the Orange hall. Mr. J. L. Vicary acted as auctioneer and Mr. H. E. McCall, as clerk. There was a fairly good attendance considering the nature of the weather on that occasion, Summerland and Westbank both being represented by those who came to take part in the bidding. Some stock, implements and quite a lot of blacksmith supplies made up a major part of the stock offered and there did not seem to be a very large demand for a good deal of it, but taking everything into consideration the sale was fairly satisfactory.

Mr. Gillespy of Summerland, came up on Saturday morning's boat to attend the auction sale and returned on the evening boat.

Mr. J. Winger arrived home on Saturday from Summerland. After a few weeks' holiday, spent at his home here, Mr. H. Ferguson left last week.

Mr. W. J. Robinson and Dr. R. C. Lipsett, motored up from Summerland on Saturday last and attended the sale. Other out-of-town attendants were Mr. Wm. Hewlett, Mr. A. Nichols and Mr. and Mrs. Moffat of Westbank.

Mr. and Mrs. Cartwright and daughter, Margaret, from Okanagan Landing, arrived on Saturday to spend a short time with Mrs. Cartwright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Moore.

Rev. Andrew Grieco, of Penticton, who has been preaching here for the Baptists every fortnight, preached his farewell sermon on Sunday afternoon, having accepted a call to one of the Vancouver churches. The church here were loath to accept his resignation. He is trying to arrange to spend a day or two visiting among the members before he leaves the valley at the end of the year.

Mr. Bert Keating was a passenger north on Monday morning, having spent the week-end with his people here.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. MacKenzie and some friends motored to Penticton on Monday last, enjoying a short run through West Summerland and Frairie Valley district on the way through. They returned the same evening.

The Murdins are enjoying a visit from Mr. Murdin's brother, Will, who arrived from the prairie Tuesday evening.

After an extended visit here with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Buchanan, Mrs. Ian Sutherland left on Tuesday morning for Toronto to join Mr. Sutherland there. She was accompanied as far as Kelowna by her brother, William, who returned on the evening boat.

MUCH BUSINESS TO CLEAN UP

Last Regular Meeting of Council Had Lengthy Agenda.

LONG SESSION

Selling Debentures. Damage Claims. Decides to Call Meeting of Ratepayers.

Such a volume of work confronted the members of the Municipal Council on Tuesday, and there were so many demands upon their time by waiting citizens, that the session continued till after 10 o'clock. At one time during the afternoon the completion of the agenda seemed impossible, and as no other vacant date could be found, it was suggested from the chair that the members of the board would be justified in thus spending Christmas in the service of the public.

Mr. W. C. Kelley, who had been commissioned to sell hospital debentures, reported that he felt confident of selling enough debentures to meet the requirements of the building committee for January. He had interviewed a few citizens and found a number of them ready to invest in these bonds.

At the request of Mr. Ritchie, an order was given to extend the new piece of sidewalk which had been laid in front of the grocereria south in front of Mr. Ritchie's office.

T. B. Young, complained of damage done by water to his property, claiming quite a bill of damages against the Municipality. After some discussion, Mr. Young very materially reduced his demands and an adjustment was made whereby a rebate on irrigation rates was allowed him in full settlement of any claims.

Reporting that the main drive belt in the power house, which had been in service for about two years, was deteriorating rapidly and would no longer properly grip the surface of the drive wheels, Municipal Electrician Thorner recommended the purchase of a new belt at once. When asked why the lights were so exceptionally bad on Wednesday afternoon, the 22nd inst., Mr. Thorner said it was due to slipping of the belt under the heavy load that was being carried. Finally, by the application of dressing, the belt was made to hold a little better.

The letter received from Major Hutton with respect to the sale of the shore lot to the Naramata Supply Company, was again before the council, and on motion of Couns. Kirk and Blair, the clerk was instructed to invite Mr. Logie, the former clerk, to meet with the Council and go over with them the minutes of previous councils touching upon this sale.

An offer from E. F. Sanborn to pay $1000 cash upon receipt of deed for District Lot 1178, was referred to Coun. Johnston for a report on the property. This lot was bought at tax sale and is one of 188 acres lying north of Jones' flat, a small portion of it being below ditch level. Mr. Sanborn will require an undertaking from the Municipality that no irrigation rate will be charged on the property with the exception of what-over area might be cultivated, perhaps about 5 acres. We understand Coun. Johnston will bring in a report recommending that the property be held for a higher price. It is upon a section of alkali on this property that the council proposes to establish the nuisance ground.

The street regulations bylaw was given its final reading and the Reeve and Clerk authorized to sign and seal same. Stating that it would cost too much to publish the bylaw, Coun. Johnston suggested that posters be put up to acquaint the citizens of the existence of such a law and advising the public to call at the Municipal Office, where a copy would be posted. (Continued on Page 8)

Grand Forks Returns Liberal.

The counting of the absentee vote has reversed the original verdict of Grand Forks and given the majority to the Liberal candidate, E. C. Honinger. This leaves the present standing in the legislature as follows: Liberals 20, Conservatives 14, Independents 7. There are still some returns to come, but they are not expected to materially alter present figures.

ANOTHER PROTEST ON SIDEWALK

"Ratepayer" Points Out Menace to Public Safety.

The anonymous letter writer never receives the consideration that would be given him had he signed his epistle in the proper form. Many newspapers will not publish a letter unless over the signature of a writer; none will give a letter publicity unless it is accompanied by another signed by the writer. Municipal Councils look upon such communications in much the same way. Acting Reeve White read such a letter at a meeting of the Council held on Tuesday, when a Councillor promptly suggested that the letter be burnt because it was anonymous. The purport of the letter was to complain against the inaction of the Council in allowing the sidewalk in front of the Johnston block to be obstructed by a step and boxes, and pointed out the menace these were to the public. If Mr. Johnston did not erect his building so as to provide for steps, that is his own lookout, and the writer asked why the town should give him the sidewalk. The writer, "A Ratepayer," said: "I, for one, protest. My little child stumbled over a piece of wood used as a step, and hurt her arm very badly."

A number of such complaints have been received by the Municipal Office from time to time and the Council has been making every effort to improve the condition of the sidewalk along the whole block and to go as far as they can to meet Mr. Johnston, who had asked that the sidewalk in front of his block be raised to a height similar to that in front of the Supply Company block to the west. An engineer was employed to prepare plans giving a new grade for the walk and this has been adopted. On Tuesday, Coun. Kirk submitted a sketch showing how the proprietor of the Johnston block might alter his building at small cost at no serious inconvenience to comply with the new grade. Instructions have been given to have that section of the sidewalk put at the established grade. This will, no doubt, meet with the approval of "A Ratepayer" and citizens in general.

Mr. L. V. Rogers Leaving Kelowna.

Mr. L. V. Rogers, the Liberal candidate in the recent provincial election, has resigned his position as principal of High School, Kelowna, and has accepted a similar post in Vancouver. A banquet was given in his honor by many Kelowna and other valley friends on Wednesday evening.

BAKER LECTURE WELL RECEIVED

Will be Repeated Next Sunday in Baptist Church.

The illustrated lecture on "The Life of Jesus," given on Christmas Sunday evening by Rev. Chas. Baker, attracted an overflowing audience, the church being filled to its utmost capacity, the aisles being used for extra seats over and above the usual accommodation. The presentation was preceded by a short service, conducted by the Rev. H. E. Livingstone. The series of pictures, which were exceedingly fine, formed a succession of views beginning with the Annunciation and depicting familiar events in the life of the Saviour. Each view was accompanied by an appropriate scripture reading by Mr. Baker, and musical numbers were interspersed at intervals. A mixed quartette composed of Mrs. Baker, Miss Snider, T. G. Bonvis and C. Baker, rendered some very effective numbers, which were agreeably varied by selections by a male quartette comprising Messrs. Baker, Bonvis, Newton and G. Thornber. Miss Ruth Baker also sang, "When Daughters of Salem," very sweetly. Miss Dale presided at the organ.

Too much praise cannot be given to the high standard of the many views, shown as they were, to the best advantage through the medium of Mr. Baker's large lantern. We can well understand that this lecture has proved attractive wherever it has been given.

Since the above was written, we learn that this lecture will, by request, be repeated at the Baptist Church on Sunday evening, January 2nd.

MUCH INTEREST IN UNIT SYSTEM

Minister of Education Hears Delegation From Summerland.

SUCCESS ELSEWHERE

Hon. Dr. McLean Had Heard of System. Gave it His Hearty Approval.

An interesting ceremony was observed in Penticton on Monday, December 27th, when the corner stone of the new "Senator Shatford" public school was "duly and properly" laid by Dr. J. A. McLean, Minister of Education. The proceedings were necessarily brief, owing to the prevalence of a strong cold wind that made standing very uncomfortable. The attendance was not large. Reeve Chambers and Mr. W. A. McKenzie, M. L. A., made brief speeches congratulating the School Board on the success of their efforts on behalf of education in Penticton. Mr. McKenzie pointed out that when this building was completed, Penticton would be the proud possessor of two of the finest schools in the province, and suggested that the School Board take such steps as might be necessary to put into book form, for the benefit of the people of the community, a good historical account of the lives of the two men, Ellis and Shatford, whose names had been given to these buildings.

Dr. McLean, in a happy manner, congratulated the people of Penticton on their determination to handle the school problem, which he declared was one of the biggest problems the province as a whole had to grapple with. Every community was facing the same situation, and it needed the intelligent consideration of the keenest minds to attain the greatest benefit. Dr. McLean pointed out that the province was now spending annually five and a half millions of dollars on education, over two millions of which was provided by the government. The minister suggested that the expenditure of so vast a sum put the young people of this land under a great debt, which it was their duty to repay by a noble and generous service to the country at large. It is the duty of all responsible persons to see that the children are taught to recognize their obligation to the state in this matter. At the present time we are adding about ten per cent. to our school population each year. The number of children attending the public schools of the province is over 78,000. During the past year it was necessary to add over 200 teachers to the public school staff, and 37 to that of the High School.

A delegation from Summerland, consisting of Messrs. Tait, Zimmerman, McDonald, Baker and Welsh, motored to Penticton to interview Dr. McLean concerning the school situation in Summerland. The doctor listened with interest to a careful statement of the problem in Summerland, and declared he was particularly interested in the "unit system" of school buildings proposed by the School Board, a system which he knew to be working with great success in California and which he himself had advocated for two years as the best to be adopted in this province in many districts. The minister assured the delegation that the plan had his hearty approval, and that as soon as the board could get their plan into definite shape his department would give all possible aid in its execution both financially and otherwise.

What Bradstreet Says.

"He did not advertise" is the financial epithet pinned to 84 out of every 100 men who failed in business in Canada and the U. S. during the past year, by no less an authority than Bradstreet's Commercial Agency. Hundreds of statisticians and business experts were engaged in all parts of the two countries to collect the required data, so it was no advertising agency report that Bradstreet's turned out. "It pays to advertise" has become the cardinal doctrine in articles of faith of every successful business concern that has any commodity or service to sell to the public.

Great Britain at one time obtained $100,000 a year from a tax on users of hair powder.

Increase Authorized Last September To Be Cut Down.

Railway passenger rates throughout the Dominion will be reduced 10 per cent. on New Year's Day. This is in accordance with the order issued by the Board of Railway Commissioners on September 9, making general increases in passenger rates of 20 per cent. applicable to the end of the present year. Afterward, until July 1, 1921, the increase was to be 10 per cent. On July 1, passenger rates come back to the basis in effect prior to the coming into force of the order. There will be no reduction in the increase granted in parlor and sleeping car rates and excess baggage.

With the end of the year also, the general increase of 40 per cent. granted in eastern freight rates will drop to 35 per cent.; the increase of 35 per cent. in western freight rates will drop to 30 per cent.

Coming Lecture on "Astronomy" by Principal Welsh.

We understand that Principal Welsh will, at a date in the near future, give an illustrated lecture on "Astronomy" with slides lent by Dr. J. T. Plaskett, Director of the Dominion Astro-physical Observatory, Victoria. The lecture will be given primarily for the benefit of High School pupils, but the general public will also be heartily welcome.

CITIZENS FAVOR UNIT PLAN

School Board Gets Unanimous Support of Public Meeting.

Resolution Commends Action of Trustees. Will Work Out the Details.

The meeting called by the School Board to consider the matter of increased school accommodation, was held in the Rialto Theatre on Tuesday evening. Mr. John Tait, chairman of the School Board, presided, and about forty persons were present. Mr. O. F. Zimmerman was called upon to put before the gathering the scheme of unit extension proposed by the Board, and gave full details of the proposition, after which the meeting was thrown open for discussion. Much interest was taken in the plans which were submitted by Mr. H. W. Harvey, to make clear the system suggested, and the general feeling of those present was evidently in favor of the scheme. Mr. W. C. Kelley was at first inclined to oppose it, but on hearing the details changed his standpoint to one of approval. Principal Welsh dealt at large with the conditions at present existing in the High School and convinced his hearers of the necessity of some action being at once taken. At the close of the discussion, a motion by Mr. G. J. Coulter White, expressing appreciation of the School Board's handling of the problem, and advising the securing of all possible information, was passed unanimously. It is understood that the Board will submit the results of their further investigations to another meeting to be called in due course.

Tourist Benefits to Towns.

Money circulates in the average towns. Its circle is from industry to employes, from employes to stores, from stores to banks, and back to industry again. Any additional gains from outside sources are real gains and real profits to the community. The tourist spends his money and admits the scenery. The scenery costs nothing, and is still there when the tourist is gone. It is an undiminishing asset, and as it draws tourist travel and tourist money, the money thus obtained is not profit. It therefore follows that the town which repels automobilists by poor roads, lack of signs and petty traffic restrictions is losing money. The community that goes out of its way to attract motor travel is doing real good for itself. To draw the stranger and treat him well is more than advertising—it is making money.—Western Canadian Motorist.

EAST ADOPTING OUR METHODS

Box Maker Says Ontario Fruit Growers to Use B.C. Package.

MEANS COMPETITION

Western Packing Methods will Give More Favor to Eastern Fruit.

Fruitgrowers of British Columbia will soon meet with much keener competition from Ontario on the prairie markets, as the eastern fruit shippers are adopting western packing methods. These are considered by experts everywhere as the most up-to-date and efficient in preparing perishable products for shipping.

This is the information given by one of the largest fruit package manufacturers in British Columbia, who has recently returned from Ontario, where he investigated the fruit-marketing situation.

"Ontario lacks organization in the assembling and distribution of fruit. Our co-operative fruit-shipping associations have put this province right in the forefront of marketing agencies, but Ontario is years behind," said the box manufacturer.

"For years the eastern grower has packed all his stone fruits in 6 and 11-quart climax baskets, with a handle. This package is a thin veneer basket that has time and again proven to be an unsuitable carrier. When a good many hundred of these are packed in a car and shipped to the prairies, in the majority of cases fruit and packages are mixed in a terrible mess. With B. C. packages it is indeed very seldom that broken boxes are found upon arrival at the markets. And that is the reason the Ontario men are seriously investigating the possibilities of the western boxes."

The manufacturer described a meeting which was held recently by the Hamilton Board of Trade in the interests of the fruitgrower, at which P. W. Hodgetts, fruit commissioner for Ontario, declared that Ontario growers would save thousands of dollars if they would adopt the B. C. system of packing.

Experiments were made a few years ago by Dean Clement of the University of British Columbia, who at that time was superintendent of the Vineland Experimental Station, Niagara, with eastern and western packages, and in every case the B. C. crates proved to be the best and most suitable carriers.

It was stated by the British Columbia box maker that already quite a large number of growers had placed orders for boxes that will be made in this province.

With Ontario using western fruit packages, that province will be able to ship its fruit to Western Canada, British Columbia's principal market, in excellent condition, and in a much more satisfactory manner than has been the case in the past.

It is stated also that egg crates made in British Columbia are being used in Ontario and are giving good satisfaction.

"Now that Ontario has realized that British Columbia employs the most advanced packing methods, it will mean that a big volume of box business will come to this province, resulting in our being able to develop an industry that will continue to grow," he concluded.

Shippers Win Case Against Kermees Farmer.

Judgment in favor of the plaintiff has been handed down by Mr. Justice Macdonald in the action brought by the Okanagan Fruit Market, Ltd., against Thomas Daly, a Kermees farmer, for non-fulfillment of a contract for delivery of potatoes in December, 1919. The amount of damages will be settled by the respective counsels, and if they cannot agree the trial judge will decide.

Immigration into the United States from any foreign country has been suspended for a period of one year. The ban will not be effective until two months after the passage of the bill by Congress. But the Canadian dollar can go, and probably will continue to go, where Canadians can't.

MAKE COMPARISON OF SALARIES

Say Summerland Pedagogues Are Better Paid.

Some very interesting comparisons of High School costs were made at a recent meeting of the School Board at Penticton when the school teachers of that town made application for an increase in salaries. The request was presented to the Board by Principal Miller of the High School, and Principal Matheson of the Public School. The arguments in favor of the increase were—that teachers have long been underpaid in comparison with other workers, especially when the training required for teaching is considered; that the dignity and attractiveness of the profession is threatened when so many refuse to continue in it because of small salaries; that Penticton salaries are lower than in other similar points in the Okanagan, the valley being also as a whole considerably lower than the Coast; that a continuance of lower salaries would be in the ordinary way mean the loss of many good teachers having opportunities elsewhere, thus bringing about a lowering of the splendid teaching standard now in existence here.

The board members pointed out that Penticton taxpayers were already burdened with taxation, and it was a grave question whether increases could be made, no matter how much the board might be in sympathy with the requests. The attention of the delegation was also drawn to the fact that living costs are dropping everywhere throughout the country and wage scales are coming down. It was agreed by all members of the board that the present teaching staff in Penticton is of a high calibre, and is also overworked. For instance, Penticton Public School, with fourteen teachers, has the same number as Kelowna, but the local fourteen teach 104 more pupils than do the fourteen in Kelowna. The Kelowna Public School principal, for instance, has 22 pupils in his room, as compared with 38 in Principal Matheson's room.

Figures produced by Principal L. J. Miller of the High School, showed that whereas the principal receives $2,200 per year and his assistant Mr. Boggs gets $1800, the cost per pupil per month being $5.80, Summerland pays $2,400 and $2,000 respectively and its cost per pupil is $7.70 per month; Kelowna pays $2550, $2000 and $1680, at a cost per pupil of $8.90 per month. In Vancouver the High School salaries run from $2,750 down to $2000, most of them being from $2400 to $3000, and the average is $2589.

The whole situation, says Mr. Lowe, illustrates the benefits of co-operation within the Okanagan United Growers and also co-operation between that concern and the other shipping organizations of the valley. The O.U.G. sales manager pointed out that Wagener apples, in extra fancy grades, are now being sold at $1.00 to $1.10 per box f.o.b. shipping points in the Western American States, with $1.25 as the best price obtainable. Even with the duty and exchange added, the Okanagan Wageners brought considerably more than the American Wageners to the growers, because of the fact that the O.U.G. had made its sales early. The O.U.G. pools on Wagener are expected to close at a price of $2.70 f.o.b. shipping point.

Commenting on the work of the past term, Principal Geo. P. Black said: "At the beginning of the fall term we undertook to demonstrate in preliminary junior that given fair play, Latin and French may be learned as thoroughly as any other subjects on the High School curriculum; and we claim to have succeeded. Already we have covered more than half of the total preliminary junior work in Latin and French; in Latin four pupils obtained 90, 90, 94, 89; and in French three pupils obtained 91, 90, 90.

"The spirit of earnest effort thus shown in preliminary junior is characteristic of the entire High School, and we believe that equally good work will be accomplished during the coming term.

"We feel grateful to the School Board for the chemicals and chemical apparatus purchased for us."

EARLY SELLING PROVED BEST

Okanagan Very Fortunate With Respect to Apple Crop.

AMERICAN PRICES

O.U.G. Salesman Says Valley Co-Operation Means Much to Growers.

Okanagan fruit growers fared very well this year in comparison with the growers across the line, says Sales Manager C. W. Lowe, of the O.U.G., who returned with W. T. Hunter, chief Okanagan horticulturist, last week-end from an auto trip to Spokane. Mr. Lowe states that O.U.G. prices this year for apples run anywhere from 75 cents to $1.00 per box higher than those received across the line by the American shippers. Furthermore, the O.U.G. sold practically all of its apple crop early in the fall, and the falling market does not in any way now disturb the co-operative organization, whereas many other shippers, particularly in the Western States who held for higher prices, are caught in the slump.

The fact that there was a short apple crop in the west this year was taken by many shippers to mean that prices would rise. Trips east had convinced him, however, said the O. U. G. official, that New York and other Eastern States would have a bumper crop. Accordingly the O. U. G. decided to sell early, and it fixed its winter apple sales about the first of August.

In co-operation with other valley shippers, in connection with quotations to the prairie trade, the O.U.G. was able to make favorable sales early in the fall, and had practically no cancellations, despite the fact that recently the apple market has been steadily dropping.

The whole situation, says Mr. Lowe, illustrates the benefits of co-operation within the Okanagan United Growers and also co-operation between that concern and the other shipping organizations of the valley. The O.U.G. sales manager pointed out that Wagener apples, in extra fancy grades, are now being sold at $1.00 to $1.10 per box f.o.b. shipping points in the Western American States, with $1.25 as the best price obtainable. Even with the duty and exchange added, the Okanagan Wageners brought considerably more than the American Wageners to the growers, because of the fact that the O.U.G. had made its sales early. The O.U.G. pools on Wagener are expected to close at a price of $2.70 f.o.b. shipping point.

The O.U.G. has now only about two cars of apples unsold, this remaining quantity being but a drop in the bucket.

Despite the short apple crop this year and the final slump in the market, the growers who shipped through the O.U.G. are apparently obtaining very good results as compared with the American growers. Other Okanagan growers, except perhaps those shipping where heavy cancellations occurred, are in a somewhat similar and fortunate position.

Mr. Lowe gives the following figures to show how O.U.G. apple returns for 1920 are ahead of those for 1919. These figures only include pools already closed, are f.o.b. shipping points, and refer to No. 1 apples, other grades being in proportion:

—Per Box—
1010	1920
Transcendent	2.90
Duchess	2.83
Gravenstein	2.15
Joffrys	1.99
Snows	2.10

Mr. B. L. Hatfield, proprietor of the Summerland Garage, received a welcome surprise around Christmas time, and believes in Santa Claus now if he never did before. As is well-known, Mr. Hatfield is local agent for the Canadian Fairbanks-Morse Electric Lighting System, and has apparently worked to such good purpose that he captured the prize for best results in territory proportionate to population. This prize took the form of a cheque for $250.

West Summerland, B.C.

To the Editor Summerland Review:

Dear Sir,—I remember reading in a document which was at one time considered dangerous and revolutionary, but which is now endorsed by the best people, a story about a man who stood in a temple and thanked God that he was not like other men. We find his modern prototype in Canadian editors, who thank God that they are better than men placed in similar circumstances south of an imaginary boundary line. They seem to forget that the system is the same whether in Canada or Calabar, that the Guggenheims, Rockefellers and Morgans own vast interests in this country and that it is just as necessary to influence public opinion in one place as another.

Upton Sinclair, in "The Brass Check," proves conclusively that the newspapers and magazines in the United States are either directly owned by big interests, controlled through financial and social pressure applied to the owners or influenced through advertising. You seem to be very sure that such is not the case in Canada, and as you should be conversant with the conditions prevailing in your own profession, perhaps you will be so good as to answer the following questions:

(1) If the news service furnished by our big dailies is absolutely reliable and unbiased, why do we read in the Daily Province, under big headlines on the front page, that the peasants of Russia are rising in revolt, the workers in the cities on strike, Wrangel making big gains and the Bolshevik regime tottering to its fall, when a week later we hear that Wrangel has been hopelessly beaten and that the Soviet government is more strongly entrenched than ever? And why does a European correspondent a few days later innocently make the statement that now that Wrangel has been decisively eliminated as a factor in Russian affairs it is possible to tell the truth as to his desperate plight for the past few months, the rascality and utter incompetence of his Czarist followers and particulars of the French capitalists who have been backing him?

(2) Does it not appear that we are only given the truth when lies are no longer available and that this campaign of misrepresentation and falsehood, in which our Canadian papers are as guilty as any others, has been going on for some years? (3) Why does Autolycus make the assertion, "Now that Bolshevism has abolished and destroyed the Orthodox Church," when it would require just a little investigation of latest unbiased reports to show him that his statement is not in accordance with the facts? (4) Why are the daily papers only now publishing reports from Russia, such as those of H. G. Wells and others when many which stated substantially the same facts have been systematically ignored and suppressed for over two years?

(5) Are we getting facts or propaganda and is not that propaganda of the most insidious and deadly nature? (6) If the Canadian papers and magazines are so pure and holy and so exempt from all capitalist taint, why is the Dominion Government afraid to make it compulsory that all facts as to ownership and control should be published? This is done by the publicans and sinners to the south of us.

(7) If advertising does not influence editorial policy, how does it happen that all the daily papers in B. C. were mum as oysters when a large departmental store at the Coast was accused of falsifying its income tax returns and defrauding the government of $40,000? Under pressure, the government finally appointed a commission to investigate. What has become of that commission and are we not entitled to the utmost publicity with regard to its proceedings?

(8) You publish from time to time a plate with cuts bearing the inscription "by courtesy of the C. P. R." Do you pay for this service or is it furnished free by the C. P. R. publicity department? Some time ago you published a long extract of a speech by the President of the C. P. R. attacking the principle of public ownership of railways. Was this an expression of personal opinion or did the C. P. R. pay for inserting the plate?

(9) When is the editor of The Review going to be able to report a meeting without writing his personal bias into the report? An chairman of that meeting in the Forum, I can point out several inaccuracies in your account of it.

(10) If news is never suppressed, why are the citizens of Summerland only now finding out that the Council may likely be the defendant in a costly law suit? As this situation evidently arose some time ago, why were the facts not given to us before?

(11) Is it in the best interests of this district that the editor of The Review should be on the Council when we look to The Review for constructive criticism of our municipal affairs and, needless to say, do not find it?

When I shoot the rapids in my canoe I want to have my eyes wide open, to know what I have to face and just how to face it. The rapids are not very far away and I consider that Mrs. Fosbery performed an act of patriotic service in telling us even a little of the real situation. No doubt we will have something pleasant to say about the press as soon as we are satisfied that we are getting the truth and that we are not drifting on to the rocks with our eyes bandaged and our senses lulled with journalistic dope.

I am sending you and "Autolycus" a copy of the "Brass Check," and as soon as you have read it and answered the above questions to my satisfaction then we will be ready to look further into the subject of our Canadian press.

Yours truly,
JACK LOGIE.

"GOSSIP."

(With apologies to Shelley)

I bring fresh news whenever I choose
To the afternoon teas.

I discuss with care each scandal
there,

As I sit at ease.
From my budget I take them, add to and remake them;

Recount them one by one,
With a luscious zest, and I do my best.

To poke malice at everyone.

I wield a flail makes women quail,
And men grow black as thunder.

With my vicious tongue I make things hum;

And part true friends asunder.
Such delight I take more mischief to make,

As here and there I run.
And my poisoned dart thrusts every heart

And none escape—not one!

And my motto accursed is "Believe the worst,"

I judge by myself, you see.
And in all mankind, no good I find,
For there is no good in me.

Foul weed of night, loathed parasite,
I fatten on human pain;

And bring fresh woe, where e'er I go,
And the tears that fall like rain.

I am the child of envy wild
Envy and malice and hate,
And in every heart where these have part,

There am I throned in state.
And o'er every wrong that is ever done,

I chuckle in fiendish glee,
For the brave man's shame and the maiden's blame
Are meat and drink unto me.

Tho' you travel afar, by ship and by car,
You will find me everywhere,
Till the world shall end and the angels send

To banish Spite and Despair.
For in Envy and Strife, I got my life,
And when those shall cease to be,
From the human heart, I, too, shall depart

And leave it clean and free,

The Loneliest People.

The loneliest people in the world, the inhabitants of the little island of Tristan da Cunha, in the South Atlantic, will shortly learn something of the big movements of the outside world when the annual mail reaches them.

Two mail bags containing letters and other packages addressed to the settlers in the island are now on their way to Cape Colony. Thence they will be conveyed by H.M.S. Dartmouth from Simonson to Tristan da Cunha direct.

Many of the settlers are descendants of the crew of the Bounty, who landed on that lonely coast, but eventually grow to like the place. Incidentally a British garrison was maintained as a sort of warden of the ocean area until after the death of Napoleon at St. Helena.

Cattle and sheep raising, poultry farming, and vegetable growing, with ample fishing facilities, make up an ideal sort of existence of the Robinson Crusoe type.

Bean Pod Spot

(Experimental Farms Note)

Vegetable growers are familiar with the spotting of bean pods, which commences as a dark red pin point, enlarging rapidly, becoming darker in colour and forming a more or less kidney-shaped canker or sore. Sometimes the pods are nearly all covered with these sores, rendering them very unsightly and worthless. The seed from infected pods have black or brown spots on them, and invariably the plants bearing diseased pods will be seen to have numerous spots on the leaves and stems, somewhat similar to those on the pods, but smaller and more elongated.

Investigations have shown that this Pod Spot or Anthracnose, as it is called, is caused by a fungus, and that the spots on the seed carry the fungus over from one growing season to another. When this seed is planted and begins to grow, the fungus grows up with the plant and if the weather is wet and cloudy, which provides good conditions for the growth of the fungus, it may kill the small plant when it is a few inches high or even before it gets above ground, so making misses in the rows. In any case, if the fungus growth has not been rapid enough to kill the plant, it will cause the spotting described above and in these spots can be seen a yellow or pink slimy material which is composed of the seeds or spores of the fungus. These spores are scattered to neighboring plants, principally by rain, where they grow and form new spots, so spreading the disease through the field.

The losses from this disease have been very considerable in some localities and in certain years when weather conditions have been particularly favorable to the growth and spread of the fungus. The losses are brought about in three ways:

1. The killing of the young plants gives a poor stand in the field.
2. The destruction of the pods and the weakening of the plants reduce the yield.
3. When the crop is to be sold for seed, the presence of the spotted seeds will reduce the value considerably. The seed would not be bought by anyone familiar with the disease it conveyed.

The Best Means of Control.

The use of sprays has given no results. The more obvious way to combat the disease is to devise some means of making sure that the seed you plant is not conveying the destructive fungus. This can be done with very good success in the following way. Set aside a small plot of land, preferably some distance from your bean fields and grow your own seed supply in this. Plant in this plot plump, clean seed of the varieties you wish to grow the following season. Inspect these plants as frequently as you can during the growing season and weed out all plants which appear sickly or have any spots on the stems, leaves or pods. When the crop from this plot is harvested, go through the pods and discard all those which have any signs of spotting and keep the selected ones separate from all the other beans. If your selection has been carefully done you may be reasonably certain this seed will produce a clean crop the following year.

BROOM CORN.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Broom corn is an annual plant and is grown on this continent mainly in the State of Oklahoma and neighboring States. It requires a warm sunny climate and is more resistant to drought than ordinary corn, from which it is entirely different botanically. The flowers are produced in a branching tuft at the top of the stem, and it is from this part, known as the "brush," that brooms are made. The brush is enclosed when young in a sheath, and in moister climates when the brush does not emerge wholly from the sheath it is liable to be discolored by damp or attacked by plant lice.

Being an annual plant and liable to be injured by frost, it is likely to succeed only where there is a long growing season. The most suitable parts of Canada for its culture would appear to be the Dry Belt of British Columbia and the Southern part of the Province of Ontario. There does not appear to be any record of its cultivation having been attempted in the former region. In the year 1911, a plot was grown on the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa, but the brush obtained does not appear to have been long enough for manufacturing into brooms. For this purpose, the brush requires to be from 18 to 24 inches long.

In the year 1916, a plot on the Central Experimental Farm measuring 31 by 27 feet, was sown with seed obtained from Washington, D.C. The seed was sown on 27th May in rows, three feet apart. The first flowers opened on 8th September. The average height of the whole plot on 25th September was 7 feet, while the tallest plants were about 10 feet high. The growth was terminated by frost on 1st October, and the crop was cut on 6th October and dried. It was sent to the Parker Broom Co., Ottawa, for report, but that firm stated that no part of it was sufficiently good to be put on the outside of a broom. None of this crop ripened any seeds.

During the year 1919, a small sample of seed Broom Corn was obtained from a farmer in Quebec, who stated that it ripened seed every year when sown on his farm. This was sown on 27th May and yielded a good crop of seed. The brush was of a fair length, though not long enough to manufacture brooms, but it is possible that the quality could be improved by careful selection of seed.

The United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, D.C., has published two Farmers' Bulletins on this subject. Number 678 entitled, "Dwarf Broom Corns," was published in 1916, while Number 958 on "Standard Broom Corn," was published in 1918. They are probably still obtainable for 5 cents each.

Some men are truthful at all times—except when their wives ask for money.

A BIRD TABLE.

Lovers of birds can secure a splendid opportunity to study local bird life by providing a bird table such as is used in some European countries, where the birds are helped through the rigors of winter by a supply of food. All that is necessary is a shallow box fastened on top of a stake thrust in the ground. Bore holes in the bottom of it so as to allow drainage for rain or snow-water. Keep it away from the house, trees or any adjacent lurking-place from which cats could pounce upon the birds. Every day provide any eatable scraps such as crumbs, cabbage, lettuce, apple cores, or whatever is available, and the birds will come in flocks. One man found twenty-seven different kinds of birds at his bird table one morning.

If you convince a man against his will you may have to do it over again next day.

Current Events of Town and District

The Girls' Basketball Club held a whist drive in the Unity Club on Thursday evening, December 23rd. There was a very good attendance in spite of a stormy night, and the girls netted a considerable addition to their funds. The prizes for highest scores went to Mrs. Mason and Capt. Languedoc. Refreshments were served under the direction of Mrs. Walters, assisted by the girls of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Rayner, who have been visiting Mr. T. Rayner, left Monday to take up their residence in Alberta.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church held a sale of work at the Unity Club on Saturday, December 18th, Rev. H. A. Solly opening the sale at 3 p.m. There was a varied display of articles for sale, and a large attendance of people ready to buy. Special mention might be made of the appetizing display at the homecooking booth, presided over by Mrs. Geo. Weaver, where the usual collection of homemade delicacies was most unusual in its variety, and presented an appeal not to be resisted. The Christmas tree, in charge of Miss Gordon, assisted by Miss Enid Rayner, was hung with novelties in demand at Christmas time, and this, with the tables of whitewear and needle-work, were all well patronized. Tea was served by Mrs. Brodie, Mrs. Rayner, Miss Wheeler and others. The sale evidenced a great deal of work, ingenuity and good management on the part of the ladies responsible and merited the substantial financial return it gave. The proceeds, which reached nearly $200, will be devoted partly to missions and partly to local work.

Defective Wiring.

The small son of a well-known electrical engineer is more familiar with the appliances of modern civilization than with the small things of nature, and when visiting the country unhesitatingly picked up a hornet to more closely inspect its mechanism. When his father hurried out to discover the cause of the commotion which immediately broke the peace of the summer day, the little lad was ruefully sucking a thumb, while tears streamed down his face.

"Why, what is the trouble, son?" he was asked.

"It was the bug," he managed to explain between sobs. "I think his wiring is defective. I touched him and he wasn't insulated at all!"

NOVA SCOTIA'S APPLE INDUSTRY.

(By D. J. Murphy, Colonization Agent, D.A.R., Kentville, N.S.)

A development that must impress the traveller no less than the orchardist of the Annapolis Valley, is the remarkable growth of warehousing accommodation for the care of products of the farm and orchards.

Not only in numbers are they impressive; their substantial appearance and the evident care of their up-keep gives an air of prosperity that will do much to influence the settlers when the tide of immigration turns this way.

Looking back twenty-five years to 1895, there were but two warehouses, one at Port Williams and one at Cambridge. After this the growth was gradual until the big apple crop of 1911; that year the yield was a record, and practically double of any crop hitherto, amounting to 1,700,000 barrels of commercial apples.

Fortunately, the season was a mild one, otherwise there would have been a heavy loss, as apples were stored in barns and cellars until such a time as room could be provided in existing warehouses as the crop moved forward. Since then the growth has been keeping pace with the demand, until now the value of the apple warehouses is comparatively estimated at a replacement cost of $1,100,000.

Along the line of the Dominion Atlantic Railway there are 107 warehouses. They total a basement and main floor space of 866,182 square feet, and a normal storage capacity of 60,250 barrels.

The intention was to keep to a standard building 100x40 feet. This may represent a majority of the warehouses for width, but in length there are now several of 200 feet with a storage capacity each of 18,000 barrels. If these warehouses were placed end to end in a row they would cover an area 21 miles in length with an average width of 38 feet.

With the exception of those owned by various speculators which would represent 30 per cent, the balance are controlled by farmer co-operative organizations, a system that has given excellent satisfaction.

Industries that have developed with the growth of orcharding, and are now firmly established are those of evaporating and canning; also plants for the conversion of cider into vinegar, temperance drinks and jellies. From two small evaporators in 1911, there are now 13 in an area of eight miles with capacities ranging from 180 to 400 barrels of apples a day. The canning factories last season had a turnover of 10,000 cases of canned apples, apple butter and apple conserve; two vinegar factories produced over 120,000 gallons of cider vinegar, besides carrying on very large trade in the manufacture from apple cider of various temperance drinks. One factory at Bridgetown specialized in cider beverages was not able to keep pace with the demand for their goods last year.

Experts tell us there are orchards enough now to produce a 3,000,000 barrel crop provided all orchardists had the same experience and skill in the care and cultivation of their trees. Compared with the acreage available, the amount of orchard now set out is a mere trifle.

With the influx of settlers, we may look forward to an era of agricul-

THE KETTLE ALWAYS HOT.

There's many a house of grandeur,
With turret, tower and dome,
That knows not peace nor comfort,
And does not prove a home,
I do not ask for splendor
To crown my daily lot;
But this I ask—a kitchen,
Where the kettle's always hot.

If things are not all shipshape,
I do not fume nor fret;
A little clean disorder
Does not my nerves upset.
But one thing is essential,
Or seems so to my thought,
And that's a tidy kitchen
Where the kettle's always hot.

In my Aunt Hattie's household,
Though skies outside are drear,
Though times are dark and troubled,
You'll always find good cheer;
And in her quaint old kitchen,
The very homeliest spot,
The kettle's always singing,
The water's always hot.

And if you have a headache,
—Whatever the hour may be,
There is no tedious waiting
To get your cup of tea.
I don't know how she does it,
Some magic she has caught,
For the kitchen's cool in summer,
Yet the kettle's always hot.

Oh, there's nothing else so dreary
In any household found
As a cold and sullen kettle
That does not make a sound.
And I think that love is lacking
In the hearts in such a spot.
Or the kettle would be singing,
And the water would be hot.

Foiled Himself.

A successful lawyer tells the following story anent the beginning of his professional life. "I had just installed myself in my office," he said, "had put in a phone and had preened myself for my first client who might come along when, through the glass of my door I saw a shadow. Yes, it was doubtless someone to see me. Picture me, then, grabbing the nice shiny receiver of my new phone and plunging into an imaginary conversation. It ran something like this: 'Yes, Mr. S.' I was saying as the stranger entered the office: 'I'll attend to that corporation matter for you. Mr. J. had me on the phone this morning and wanted me to settle a damage suit, but I had to put him off, as I was too busy with other cases.' But I'll manage to sandwich your case between the others somehow. Yes, Yes. All right. Good-bye.' Being sure, then, that I had duly impressed my prospective client, I hung up the receiver and turned to him. 'Excuse me, sir,' the man said; 'but I'm from the telephone company. I've come to connect your instrument.'"

SUMMERLAND'S SCHOOLS

The unforeseen and unprecedented growth of the public schools in Summerland during the past few months has created a situation, so far as class room accommodation is concerned, that deserves the careful consideration of every citizen who has the welfare of the community at heart. Summerland is a district that is particularly well favored by nature in respect to climate and productivity of soil. Its name suggests to the prairie farmer a certain escape from the biting blasts of a long and weary winter, while the large consignments of luscious fruits every season to the east tell their own story of the wealth producing power of the community. Summerland, too, in the early days gained an enviable reputation as an educational centre, due to the enterprising character of the men and women who had come from the eastern provinces to make their home here. That reputation has been of great value to Summerland in the development and expansion of recent years. On no account must it be lost, and yet there is grave danger that it may, if we cannot now find an adequate solution for the school building problem. In the High and Public Schools we have an enrollment of 382. The present classrooms will accommodate 280 pupils. This leaves approximately 100 pupils for whom room is urgently needed if the standard of efficiency is to be maintained in our schools. Of this 100, the High School with its enrollment of 60 pupils, is crowded into two little rooms, each 14 ft. by 30 ft., while the balance is distributed in the various rooms of the Public School, thus overcrowding each division. The School Board is endeavoring to provide the accommodation necessary in the most economical way possible and in its attempt to do so, deserves the intelligent, sympathetic co-operation and support of the community.

The unit system of school buildings recommended by the Board seems to be one of the very best for a district like Summerland. It was introduced into California some years ago and has met with universal approval. Dr. McLean, the Minister of Education, endorses the system and is very anxious to see it adopted in some of the Municipalities of British Columbia. In this district it will probably mean that in addition to the help received from the Government the Municipality will have to raise $15,000 to $20,000 by means of debentures. The bond market for this class of securities is in a very demoralized state at present. There is almost no demand except at such a discount as to make the rate of interest paid by the Municipality prohibitive. If we are to relieve the congested conditions of our schools and bring them up to the highest standard of efficiency, the citizens of Summerland must buy their own bonds. The security is good. The rate of interest fair. The values are bound to be enhanced if our public institutions are not allowed to deteriorate for want of necessary expenditure at this time. The instinct of self-preservation ought to induce all who have a stake in the community to buy local bonds in order that progress may be maintained.

THE MODERN PHARISEE.

In a communication which appears in the present issue of The Review, we are asked by the writer to answer certain questions, tabulated and numbered in his somewhat lengthy epistle, and we will endeavor to do so to the best of our ability. By way of premise, we may state that we have no recollection of assuming the "holier than thou" attitude, so kindly attributed to us, and we have not noticed any tendency in that direction among Canadian editors in general. We did not even make any accusations against our brethren across the "imaginary" boundary line, that responsibility being taken by the Forum lecturer, and her American authority, Upton Sinclair. This may seem to our correspondent a trifling detail, but we do not think that way. Our stand is simply one of protest against the charges of outside control of the Canadian press, made directly and by implication at the meeting reported.

Taking the questions in order, we would reply as follows:
1. The news from Russia appears to us to be given fairly. Events in that country have followed each other so rapidly that reports of victory one week and defeat the next, do not by any means indicate inaccurate news.

2. No—it does not so appear to us.
3. This question has been referred to "Autolyceus."
4. The reports from Russia of H. G. Wells and others are apparently being published in order of sequence. Conditions now being noted by Wells are recent, and could not have been reported earlier.

5. Facts.
6. We are not aware that it is obligatory on the Dominion Government to follow United States customs whether it approves of them or not. If the charges brought against the American press accurately represent conditions over there, the system of compulsory publication of ownership does not appear to be particularly efficacious.

7. We have no knowledge of the facts as stated by our correspondent, and prefer to await further information.

8. The question of payment for matter used in this paper is one which concerns ourselves alone. With regard to the speech referred to, we exercise our editorial discretion as to reporting speeches of public interest, and do not necessarily agree with the views of the speaker, whoever he may be. As a matter of fact, we are inclined to favor government ownership of public utilities when political conditions permit.

9. It was understood that reports of the Forum meetings would be furnished to this office by some person delegated for the purpose, but the meeting referred to was not so reported. Nevertheless we think our report impartially covers all the salient points raised on that occasion.

10. The matter referred to had not previously reached a stage which allowed of definite handling, and it would have been premature to report the situation earlier.

11. This is a matter for the community at large to decide, but we fail to see any impediment to the giving of constructive criticism in the fact that the editor of the local paper takes his share of public work. Conversely, it is very generally held that a newspaper editor is in most cases possessed of a wide general experience of community matters which renders him peculiarly fitted to take part in civic legislation.

In this connection, we wish to point out to our correspondent his unfortunate tendency to read ulterior motives of self-interest into the actions of those whose motives are doubtless just as open and honest as his own. An example is found in his query concerning the publication of cuts supplied by the C. P. R. We are quite sure that our readers in general are interested in these cuts, and do not associate them with the idea of railway propaganda. Obviously an organization like the C. P. R., which covers the whole of the Dominion, is in a position to supply many pictures and items of public interest, and no intelligent editor would decline to use such proportion of these as he feels would interest his readers.

If our correspondent would cultivate the gift of allowing to others the possession of the same business integrity which he would certainly claim for himself, he would be able to see many things in a different light.

A LOCAL NEED.

Our contributor, "Autolyceus," lately suggested that Summerland lacked one or two institutions which it might, with advantage, possess. It has long been our opinion that there is a very great need for a local laundry, run on good business lines and employing skilled white labor. It does not seem a satisfactory condition of affairs that a community having the population of Summerland, and being in close touch with two other thriving places which would probably be willing to send us much of their trade, should lack such an elementary industry as a well-equipped laundry, and we would much like to see the proposition taken up by some capable individual or group of individuals. While we do not pretend to possess any technical knowledge in this matter, we take it that such an enterprise, well managed, would be profitable to its organizers. That it would be welcome to our citizens is indisputable.

NO ROOM FOR PESSIMISM.

The man on the farm is sometimes inclined to look at the future with a certain degree of pessimism. He sees prices declining in many lines and in some instances inclines to the belief that the good days are past. Well, perhaps the days of $3.00 wheat are a thing of the past. Perhaps also the days of top prices for beef cattle and hogs, and butter and eggs and cheese, have gone for good. They were bound to go eventually, because they were the result of a world torn with struggle, a world so needy that no price was too great to be paid. But while the golden prices may be a thing of the past, not so the golden days. It is not the actual money, but its purchasing power that matters, and the purchasing power is advancing as the farmer's prices decline, so that he actually stands to lose comparatively little, and that little he gains in peace and good will and a world free from the dust of war.

There is nothing in the present situation to remotely suggest a return to the old hard days of farming. They have passed, as they should pass, to return no more. There is a world need for food, a world appreciation for the work of the farmer, and a world acceptance of the fact that he is entitled to his reasonable profits as in any other essential business. There is, indeed, in the present days no room for pessimism.—Farmers' Magazine.

Big Fire at Princeton Coal Mine.

Early on Tuesday morning the watchman at the Princeton Coal & Land Company's plant noticed flames issuing from the bunkers, and failing to check it, gave the alarm. The conflagration spread so rapidly that to the spectator who had been aroused by the continuous call of the mine whistle, the tippie and bunkers seemed to burst into flame spontaneously. A large steam pipe running through the building exploded almost at once, and this prevented the pumping of water from the river. Fortunately the water tank, holding 30,000 gallons, was practically full, and this supply was utilized to prevent the spread of the fire to those buildings which were intact. These included the boiler house, compressor house, machine and blacksmith shops, bath house, storekeepers office and oil house. These were all saved, but the tippie, tippie machinery, hoist, track scales, screen machinery and several coal cars were completely destroyed.

It is not easy to estimate the loss owing to the present high cost of material and labor. The buildings were erected in 1912 at a cost of approximately $35,000, but the cost of replacement would today be considerably higher. The insurance carried practically covered the original cost.

About three cars of coal were saved, which will be used for local supply. It is intended to continue operations on a small scale by means of temporary arrangements until the machinery can be replaced.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Two outbreaks have occurred on these workings, one of which was proved to be incendiary, although the culprit was never discovered.

Life may be a gamble, but you play your own cards.

MUNICIPAL REFORM.

Representations have been repeatedly made to the provincial government by the Union of B. C. Municipalities, with a view to gaining continuity of office in municipal councils.

It is unfortunate that they have not yet received approval. A two year term for aldermen, with rotating retirements, such as now occur in the personnel of school boards, is all that is asked. As things are, it is possible, if improbable, to elect entirely new councils. The sequel might not be happy for the ratepayers or the councils.

Two years ago, at the instigation of the Union of B. C. Municipalities the appointment of police commissioners was abolished, and their election substituted. They now serve for two years, like the trustees, instead of one year, as do the councillors or aldermen.

Another suggestion is that the mayors or reeves be elected from their own number by members of the council, following the English custom.

In Kamloops the plan of appointing a city manager, with an unpaid mayor and council, appears to be successful. The manager "runs" the city as a business and the elected representatives sit as a species of directors. This scheme has attracted much notice elsewhere, and other municipalities are considering its adoption.—Cowichan Leader.

"How is it Arthur never takes you to the theatre nowadays?" queried Marie.

"Well, you see," her friend replied, "one evening it rained and we sat in the parlor."

"Yes?"
"Well, ever since that we—oh, I don't know; but don't you think that theatres are an awful bore!"

FLASHLIGHTS

Ottawa.—An order-in-council has been issued, prohibiting all "fancy" flying in civilian aviation.

Toronto.—A reduction of wages averaging about 10 per cent., has been introduced in the clothing industry in Toronto as a result of a decision of the permanent board of arbitration.

Toronto.—After January 1st, 1921, the name of the G. N. W. Telegraph Company will be changed to Canadian National Telegraphs.

Ottawa.—Walter C. Nichol, of the Vancouver Province, has been appointed Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia.

Regina.—Fire from an unknown cause destroyed the riding school at the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Barracks, on Thursday night last. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

Halifax.—Fire of unknown origin on Friday last destroyed business properties to an estimated amount of half a million dollars.

HAVING THEIR TROUBLES.

Penticton Herald.—"What do you think of the enclosed?" asks Mrs. Mitchell, formerly of Penticton, in writing to The Herald from Vancouver. The "enclosed" is a clipping from the B. C. Electric weekly pamphlet, "The Buzzer." It reads:

"I'll never say another word against the B. C. Electric service," said a Vancouver man who returned from a visit to Penticton the other day. "They have a municipal plant up there and they charge 15 cents a kilowatt hour. When I was there the current used to go off regularly about 7 o'clock each evening and we never sat down to dinner without candles on the table."

"This is better service than they got before. They used to have only one gas engine which supplied current only at night and only one day a week through the day. If you had ironing to do you had to do it that one day or at night."

"I never appreciated continuous, dependable service such as the B. C. Electric gives for 6 cents a kilowatt hour until I went to Penticton. The people of Vancouver don't realize what there must be behind a system such as yours, which keeps going day and night."

WINTER.

When icicles hang by the wall,
And Dick the shepherd blows his nail,
And Tom bears logs into the hall,
And milk comes frozen home in pail;
When blood is nipt, and ways be foul,
Then nightly sings the staring owl

Tu-whit!
Tu-who! A merry note!
While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

When all about the wind doth blow,
And coughing drowns the parson's saw,
And birds sit brooding in the snow,
And Marlton's nose looks red and raw;

When roasted crabs hiss in the bowl,
Then nightly sings the staring owl

Tu-whit!
Tu-who! A merry note!
While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.

—Shakespeare.
"You admit, then," said an Alabama judge, "that you stole the hog?"

"Ah sure ha to, Jedge," said the colored prisoner.

"Well, nigger, there's been a lot of hog stealing going on around here lately and I'm just going to make an example of you, or none of us will be safe."

ST. ANDREW'S S. SCHOOL CONCERT.

The St. Andrew's Sunday School held their Christmas Tree and entertainment on Tuesday evening of this week. The Church was packed for the excellent programme, which was made up of recitations, songs and dialogues. A special collection was taken up in aid of the starving million in China.

The Church was appropriately decorated and with the large tree on the platform. The several recitations were well rendered. Songs were sung by the different classes and by the whole school. The dialogues were very good, showing that a great deal of work had been put on them. Santa Claus gave each little boy and girl a bag of candy.

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

On Thursday evening the members of the Baptist Sunday School held their Christmas entertainment, which included many features of interest. A pageant depicting the Coming of Christ, followed by a tableau of The Guardian Angel, were excellently presented, after a mixed programme of songs and recitations. The Rev. Isaac Page in native costume gave a short account of New Year customs in China. The giving of prizes and rewards for work done during the year, and the stripping of the Christmas tree were followed by a presentation to the Pastor.

The offering was in aid of the Vancouver Italian Mission.

LAKESIDE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONCERT.

The Lakeside Sunday School Christmas entertainment, held in the Men's Club Rooms on Thursday evening, December 23rd, was a great success. The gymnasium was suitably decorated, and a programme provided by the children reflected credit both on themselves and the committee in charge, Mr. S. Sharp, Mrs. Beavis and Mrs. Livingstone.

In the boys' toy contest Harvey Wilson won the prize.

Santa Claus, in his usual costume created much amusement by coming on the stage through an imitation fireplace, and after addressing the young folk proceeded to auction sundry articles, which sold at record prices. Santa then distributed bags of candy to the children, and after singing the National Anthem all dispersed, having had an enjoyable time.

The net proceeds, including six dollars contributed since by two children, amounted to $34.00, and is being forwarded through the Red Cross to starving Europeans.

BASKETBALL.

Two more games of basketball between Summerland and Kelowna were played Wednesday night in the College Gymnasium. Summerland came out victorious in both games, the scores being—Girls, 20 to 8; Boys, 31 to 10.

BIRTH.

SUMMERLAND WEATHER REPORT

Below is a report furnished by the Dominion Experimental Station here for the week ending Tuesday:

Table with columns: Date, Max., Min., Rain, Sun. shine. Rows for Dec 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28.

Quite a number of Mnsos of Summerland joined their Ponticton brethren on Monday night at a banquet in one of their periodical lodge functions.

The sad intelligence was received over the wire by relatives here on Sunday of the death of Mrs. Thos. Panocek of Winnipeg, who passed away on Christmas Day. Mrs. W. J. Robinson is a daughter of the deceased, and the oldest son, Stanley, has recently come to Summerland to reside. There remain four other sons, Walter, Edgar, Roy and Thomas, the first of whom was at one time manager of the Hotel Summerland, and Edgar and Roy were for a time living in Naramna. Another daughter, Mrs. Jean, is a resident of Alberta.

The common peanut is the source of a new substitute for milk which so closely resembles its prototype that it turns sour and curdles, produces buttermilk when churned and may be made into cheese.

Passing Events: Social, Personal, &c.

Mr. R. H. English was a business visitor to Vancouver last week.

Mrs. C. J. Coultas returned on Thursday of last week from a visit to Vancouver.

Mr. G. R. S. Blackaby of the Bank of Montreal staff, spent Christmas with friends at Kelowna.

Mr. and Mrs. O. Atkins and family went down to Vancouver last week to spend Christmas with Mrs. Atkins' sister.

Miss Gertrude Elsey came in from Rock Creek, B.C., to spend the holidays. Miss Elsey is teaching a school at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Young came in from Vancouver on Friday to spend the holiday season at the home of their son, T. B. Young.

Miss Marion Harwood, who has been teaching at Arrowhead, is spending the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Harwood.

The town of Princeton now has a 24 hour electric service provided by the Princeton Coal & Land Company, which company obtains its power from the West Kootenay Power line recently extended into the Similkameen.

The ratepayers of Summerland are being called together by the Board of Trade next Tuesday evening, to consider the personnel of the 1921 council. Advertisement of this meeting is published elsewhere in this paper.

The death of Mrs. Smith, mother of A. E. Smith and O. G. Smith, occurred at the home of the former on Sunday morning early. The body was taken to Virden, Manitoba, on Monday, by Mr. O. G. Smith. The deceased was 79 years of age.

Rev. and Mrs. Alexander, who have been living in the Feltham house since their arrival here, have moved into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Stuart, where they will reside until the Stuart's return from California. The latter left here on Wednesday morning of last week.

We understand the storekeepers of Summerland are well pleased with the volume of business done this Christmas, some of them doing more than they had anticipated. It is a good thing to find the community shopping from the local storekeepers who they, no doubt, found were well able to supply their holiday needs.

The trunk road from Enderby to Vernon is reported in better condition than it has ever been at this season of the year. This fall the road department adopted a policy of road rut filling with excellent results. Heretofore little or no work of this kind has been done in the fall or the heavy hauling season and the improvement is favorably commented upon.

Major Hutton was on Wednesday afternoon the popular convener of a gathering of about thirty-five delighted youngsters, who assembled in the Parish Hall as guests of Miss Virginia Van Dan Nost and Masters John and Peter Acland. An attractive Christmas tree and seasonable festivities formed a program which was thoroughly enjoyed.

On Thursday, December 23rd, the wedding of Mr. Wilson C. Bray to Miss Irene McCallum, took place at Ponticton, where the young couple will reside for the present. It will be remembered that the father of the bridegroom purchased the Lipsett home, but later resold to its original owner, and afterwards bought the Ponticton Hotel, where the newly married pair are now living.

The ranchers on Shuttleworth and McLean creeks, near Okanagan Falls, have petitioned the government to form an Irrigation District, under the new Water Act, to be known as the Okanagan Falls Irrigation District. This would entitle them to assistance from the government in raising the necessary monies to construct a permanent irrigation system and storage reservoirs. The district would include some 6500 acres, of which about one-third might be classed as agricultural land, providing there is sufficient water available to irrigate it. The total cost of a permanent irrigation system would probably run to $250,000, but this expenditure need not all be undertaken at first.

Mrs. Clay and her son, Carleton, have gone down to Vancouver, where they will reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold English went down to the Coast last week to spend the Christmas season.

A small slide on the Peachland road north of Crescent Beach interfered with traffic on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kennedy of Keremeos were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Rowley for Christmas.

Some time ago Rev. H. E. Livingstone forwarded $89.50 to the China Famine Fund on behalf of the Lakeside residents.

Mrs. W. A. Alexander will receive at the home of Mrs. Basil Stuart, on Thursday afternoon, January 6th, from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. J. Pennant gave a Christmas party last Friday to about twenty children. There was a Christmas tree and a present on it for each child.

Miss Laura Carruthers, who has been employed in the office of R. Pollock for some months, has returned to her home in Bradner, near New Westminster.

Donald McIntyre is spending the Christmas vacation at his home here, having arrived a few days ago from Wardner, in the Kootenay District of B. C., where he is teaching.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McPherson and little son Douglas have been spending the Christmas holidays here with Mrs. McPherson's parents Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Snider. They will return to Vancouver on Sunday.

Arthur Gartrell, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Gartrell, Peach Orchard, was operated on for mastoid trouble by the specialist, Dr. Herold, in Kelowna hospital, last week. The patient is reported to be doing well.

Miss Belle Vanderburg, one of a number of Summerland young people engaged in school teaching, arrived from the Arrow Lakes a few days ago to spend Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Vanderburg.

Mr. P. Dumoulin, for the past 16 years manager of the Bank of Montreal at Kelowna, has been appointed manager of the branch at Kingston, Ont. His long residence in the valley has made Mr. Dumoulin well known throughout the district.

Miss K. Brown has returned from Alberta where she has been teaching school, and will remain at home here for the next two months, as many prairie schools take their vacation during the winter, and continue the session through the summer.

Mr. C. B. McCallum was the host at a small party composed of the visitors staying at the hotel over the holidays on Christmas Day, and provided an enjoyable repast, in the endeavor to make "a home away from home" for his guests on that day.

Santa Claus made a second trip to Summerland on Christmas Day, making Mr. and Mrs. Tildesley, of Naramna, who were enjoying the festivities of the day at the Summerland Hotel, the proud parents of a little daughter. Mr. Tildesley, we understand, is going to the Experimental Farm to take a vocational course, as he was somewhat badly crippled up in the Great War and was only discharged from the army last October.

The New Year's Eve masquerade, to be held in Steward's Hall, this year, will take the form of a Movie Ball. Prizes will be awarded for the best representations of the famous movie actors in both dramatic and comic and a prize will also be given to the best Charlie Chaplin. A good supper will be served in the Glen, and there will be confetti, serpentine and balloons to add color to the affair. An orchestra of six musicians, under the direction of W. S. Emmerton, will provide music with a "moaning."

Attention is directed to an advertisement in this issue of an illustration or lecture on "Joan of Arc" by Rev. Chas. Baker. On an earlier occasion Mr. Baker gave this lecture here, and it was very highly commended at the time. During the war Mr. Baker gave his lecture in different towns, the proceeds going to the Red Cross funds, and each time similar praise was given to it. Mr. Baker owns one of the best lanterns in the country and no doubt those who attend this lecture will enjoy a treat, the proceeds of which will be given to the Hospital fund.

REV. ISAAC PAGE TO LEAVE SUMMERLAND.

At the regular mid-week meeting of the Baptist Church, the Rev. Isaac Page announced that he had received a call from the Ponticton Church, and would be leaving Summerland shortly.

Much regret will be felt at the loss of Mr. Page, who will take with him the best wishes of this community.

NOT GETTING VERY FAR.

The city manager plan was discussed at a recent meeting of the newly formed ratepayers' association in Ponticton, but the number of diverse opinions seemed to be as great as the number of speakers, and the only business done was to appoint a committee to go over the same ground as had been previously been covered by the original committee.

A Series of Talks on Music

By Prof. C. C. Laugher, Mus. Bac.
Sarnia, Ont.

No. IV. — INSTRUMENTAL ACCOMPANIMENT.

Instrumental accompaniment means to accompany with the instrument, or as someone puts it, to add an accompaniment to an ornament.

We readily think of the piano as the general accompaniment for the singer or soloist.

The first mention of the pianoforte as an accompanying instrument was made in 1767 on the play bill of "The Beggar's Opera." Between the first and second act Miss Brickler was announced to sing a popular song from Judith, accompanied upon the new instrument by Mr. Dibdin. In London, June 2, 1768, John Christian Bach, was heard in a pianoforte solo, the first of its kind.

The purpose of the accompaniment is to support the principal part. It must be independent but should always be subservient to the chief part. An instrument such as the piano, harp, or organ may be used in accompaniment, even a chorus of voices may successfully carry an accompaniment part.

To acquire this art, the accompanist must have great care and judgment. He must not overwhelm the voice, but must assimilate with the quality of the voice, taking special care of the contrast. Too often we hear such an accompaniment that is so strong that the soloist is simply an occasional part, and the effect is very ridiculous.

We read that at the time of the old miracle plays the accompaniments were performed by a double lyre, an harpsichord, a double guitar and two behind the scenes, simply to add musical effect, and even Wagner went back to the old way of hiding the orchestra.

Back in the days of 1600, Cavalli arranged instrumental effect of sights and sounds of nature, such as the murmuring of the rivers and the sighing of the winds.

Caccini, a great vocalist of Italy, in the sixteenth century, broke away from the old style composition of many voices and wrote for one voice only. These compositions he sung to his own accompaniment, playing on the Theorbo, a pear-shaped instrument four feet long, with a number of strings of different lengths. Caccini met with great success.

These early musicians aimed only to devise means to combine music with poetry, so that the two arts should enhance one another, but when it is understood that the accompaniment to the recitative and solos were provided only with a figured bass from which to read and play, it was the accompanist at the harpsichord that must apply the details. This weakness and ineffectiveness would make the music unendurable to a modern audience.

From about this time on, particularly in the matter of accompaniment, the resources of expression in music was becoming much enlarged and elastic, for the harmony was more richly developed and the tonality better understood. The modulation now came in as an additional means of effect.

Dr. Parry adds: "Where the words are thoroughly musical and the composer sensitive and skilful the music fits the words at every instant and makes the words glow with meaning."

Both Schubert and Schumann were very expressive in this form. Schumann's genius showed itself in his power to suggest unexpressed depth of feeling in a few lines. The piano accompaniment and postludes to many of his songs intensifies this emotional atmosphere.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only. Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres before receiving Crown Grant. Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesteads; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company. Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the late war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for 5 years. Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920. SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfillment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole or original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING

Grazing Act, 1910, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commission. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

Songs of Yesterday and Today.

An article by an American musical writer recently gave some pungent comparisons between the standard of the songs of the present day as against those of earlier times, not as regards the musical composition, but considering the literary end only. The judgment of the writer in question is that we have taken a decided step downwards, and I doubt whether there would be found any competent critic to disagree with him on this point.

Some of the comparisons he makes are scarcely reasonable, because he puts such a song as "Juanita" in competition with the modern topical song; which is, of course, out of the question, but if we compare the love lyric of old times with the maudlin, slushy effusion which is called a love song today, we shall, I think, be simply astounded as the result of the comparison. For instance, take the theme, the sense, and the poetic genius of such songs as: "The Thorn," "Drink to Me Only," "Good Night Beloved," "Stars of the Summer Night," and so on, and then think of such banality as the "drivel" of a typical modern production like "Sing Me to Sleep." The unfortunate tenor who has to sing this stuff, is to be commiserated; any able bodied man who has to face an audience with the inane announcement "I want you only, you and your song," has my sincerest sympathy. Take the opening lines of "The Thorn" in comparison and note the difference:

"From the white blossomed sloe, my dear Chloe requested,
A sprig her fair breast to adorn."
Again:
"Drink to me only with thine eyes,
And I will pledge with mine.
Or leave a kiss within the cup,
And I'll not look for wine."

Then again:
"Stars of the summer night,
Far in yon azure deeps
Hide, hide your golden light,
She sleeps!
My lady sleeps!"

Even if we leave the region of classics such as these, and come down to a type of songs like Sullivan's "Once Again," we find the comparison is still in favor of the earlier writers. Take this:

"I feel warm fingers clasped in mine,
I see those quivering lips,
Whose murmurs come like music through,
When mine have set them free."

"And measure it up against the following:
"Honest and truly, I love you dear,
Honest and truly, I want you near,
Stars may shine, and hearts may pine,
Still I love you dear, be mine."

Is there any difficulty in arriving at a verdict?—Professor Crotchet in "Broken Melodies."

Tone Color.

Most musicians are aware that, by changing the key of a given piece of music, a very appreciable difference in tone will frequently be brought about; e.g., a change from the key of A to A flat will produce a softness in tone in the latter key which will be largely lacking in the first. Pianists, especially, will notice this, though perhaps many will not speculate a great deal on the subject. It is one of the phases of tone color, a thing which is none the less real because it is so generally ignored. I believe it to be a well-grounded fact that, if a blind man is asked what color is suggested to his mind by the sounding of a trumpet, he will answer: Red, and everyone will at once recognize the absolute fitness of the reply. The trumpet call is supreme in all ages for its stirring appeal to the senses, and nothing will quicken the pulse more certainly. Let the call be sounded in D major and our blind man will probably amplify his choice, and cry, Scarlet.

The psychology of all this is an entrancing study, but too wide for these notes to follow. I can only suggest, and leave the rest. However, I will just point out that, in "The Messiah," Handel's genius unerringly selected D major as the key for "The trumpet shall sound," and he who has heard, as I have, this wonderful composition sung by Lemmons-Sherrington with the obbligato played by the greatest solo trumpeter of his day (T. Harper), is never likely to forget the lesson in tone color.—Professor Crotchet in "Broken Melodies."

False Quotations.

"Charles is very interesting," said the stockbroker's daughter.
"What does he talk about?" inquired her father.
"Why, he's over so well posted in Shakespearean quotations."

"My dear," said the financier sternly, "don't let him deceive you. There's no such stock on the market."

Peachland Doings

A Weekly Chronicle Furnished By Our Local Representative.

The Misses Ilyva Murdin and Alice Cousins, Eddie Cousins and Jack Hamilton returned home for the Christmas season after having spent the past term attending Normal in Victoria. They report having enjoyed the work and carried away good criticisms.

Mr. and Mrs. Fyfe Moore returned on Wednesday of last week, having spent some time in Penticton clearing and improving their property in that vicinity. They expect to remain for a short time before returning.

Mrs. Cudmore received the sad news last week of the death of her sister who lived in Alberta. Mrs. Cudmore had recently paid her a visit.

Mrs. Geo. Keys went to Okanagan Landing last Wednesday to take her little grand-daughter, Philis, up to her father, Mr. Geo. Phillips, who had come that far from the main line on a rush trip through to his home at Calgary. Mrs. Keys returned the same evening.

Mr. H. E. McCall, with some friends, motored down to Prairie Valley, Summerland, and Trout Creek on Wednesday of last week, returning the same day.

Mr. John Kudelka, with wife and family, came in from Rumsay, Alta., and have taken up residence in the Buleya house overlooking Beach avenue. If they can find a suitable property they will probably settle here.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy McCall and son, Carlton, of Penticton, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. McCall and family on Christmas. They remained over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pinneke are enjoying a visit from their daughter with her husband and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Herd, who arrived last week from Botha, Alta., to spend Christmas and visit a while here with their parents.

Mr. Allan Wilson is enjoying a visit from another of his sons from Alberta, who came in last week to pay the family a visit.

After a pleasant and profitable visit to the Halcyon Hot Springs, Mr. N. S. Davison returned on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Evans, of Pine Creek, Alta., are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wilson and family. Like many other farmers from the provinces to the east of us they are seeking a better climate.

A large announcement in the Peachland general store last week stated that Santa Claus had sent a message to the proprietors, Cudmore & Drake, that he would visit their store between 2 and 3 p.m. on Friday, and asking them to let all the boys and girls know. Needless to say there were a large number of children, as well as quite a goodly number of large ones, on hand when Santa appeared. He arrived by auto with his pack and after addressing the gathering and shaking hands with a number of small children, he presented each boy and girl with a bag of pop corn. This done, he bade the gathering good-bye with a Merry Christmas and started off in the direction of Westbank. This is probably the first official visit Santa has made to any of the stores in Peachland and the children all hope it will not be the last, as also do Messrs. Cudmore & Drake.

The Christmas season brought back some old Peachland residents in the persons of the Kirby's, who came last week to enjoy the festive season with Mrs. Kirby's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. McLaughlin, and the other members of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. John McDougald came in from their ranch to enjoy Christmas dinner with the home folk. They motored up on Friday afternoon.

Mr. J. E. Kerr and his mother took the boat for Penticton on Friday to spend Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. R. J. McDougald and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Koyen spent

Christmas in the Gellatly home, motoring up in the morning and home the same evening.

Among the passengers arriving on Christmas morning were Mr. and Mrs. Walters and baby from Summerland, who came as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Smalls. They returned on the evening boat.

Miss Bradbury came home from Penticton on Saturday morning to join the family circle for Christmas festivities. She returned to Penticton on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor enjoyed the company of some friends who came down the lake to spend Christmas with them. They arrived on the Saturday evening boat and returned on Monday morning.

Bert Keating was among the arrivals to enjoy Christmas here with his family circle. He remained home over the week-end.

A combined Union Sunday School and church service was conducted in the Methodist church on Sunday morning by the Rev. C. D. Clarke, the subject being, "Lessons to be Learned from the Christmas Tree." To illustrate his talk he had a tree adorned with articles representing food, clothing, literature, music and pleasure. The application was made as each article was taken from the tree and last, but by no means least, was a copy of the Bible. The school was well represented in the service and the children answered promptly and intelligently when asked questions by the speaker.

Peachland witnessed its heaviest fall of snow of the season on Sunday last when between two and three inches on the level fell during the day. Previous to that there had been only light falls with little more than enough to whiten the ground.

After a short visit with friends here, Mrs. F. R. Whyte left on Monday morning to fill a position in the east for a time.

Wes. Ramsay left on Monday last to return to the Coast via the K. V. R. He was taken down to Penticton by auto by his uncle, Mr. Fyfe Moore.

A number of the members of the Peachland Masonic Lodge, A. F. & A. M., were passengers south on Monday night last to attend a Masonic gathering in Penticton. They returned on the following morning boat.

Mrs. J. Winger was a passenger north on Tuesday morning last, expecting to spend a short time in Vernon.

Mr. Higginson had been away from home for a week, and on his return found that burglars had visited the house, and, although one had been wounded, they had succeeded in getting away.

"And so you shot a burglar while alone and unprotected," he said to his wife.

"You are a brave little woman! What became of him?"

"The other man carried him off," she replied.

"The other man?" he asked.

"Yes," she said, "The one I aimed at."

A Curious Sequel. The reported collapse of the Farrow Bank, and the arrest of its founder, offers a curious and possibly instructive example of the inevitable result of Quixotism, on the part of would-be reformers. The campaign of Thomas Farrow against the rapacity of money lenders is very fresh in my memory. On general principles it was undoubtedly largely justified, and I believe brought about some legislation which was designed to put some limit to the extortions practised by the more unscrupulous loan offices. Had Farrow been content with that result, all would have been well, but apparently he considered it practicable to run a financial proposition on philanthropic lines, and instituted a bank which was to give its depositors benefits which more experienced men knew were incompatible with safety. In his arraignment of the money lenders he failed to allow for the immense risks which they took in many cases, and seems to have supposed his bank could take those risks without the high rate of interest they called for. The outcome, as reported, is the failure of his bank, with liabilities of approximately $15,000,000; mostly deposits from people of small means—in other words, individuals of the very class he set out to help.

It is a curious situation, but one which points the moral that no would-be reformer, however ardent and well meaning, can safely disregard certain fixed laws in the world's economy. Thomas Farrow was not satisfied with bringing about legitimate reforms of certain abuses—he must needs run a tilt against basic and fundamental principles in matters of which he was ignorant. In running foul of the elementary principles of finance he was pitted against laws which are adamant, and which punish inexorably. In that one particular he differs somewhat from many impractical visionaries, who often work mischief to others whilst escaping themselves. But the results to those whose money is lost are the same as usual.

A Matter of Psychology. The problem of what to do when held up by a thing pointing a revolver at close range is in most cases soon settled—the victim's hands go up, and the robber works his will. It seems to be the general notion that there is no other course to adopt, unless one wishes to be neatly perforated in a vital spot, which would be exceedingly unpleasant. Within the last week or two, however, there have been instances recorded where members of the fair sex have, under such circumstances, scorned the idea of thus yielding, and have incontinently routed their assailants. An instance of the kind happened only a few days back. In this case, the lady, after witnessing the surrender and spoilation of her male escort, refused to obey the demand when addressed to herself, with the result that bold Turpin took to flight. In another instance the revolver was sent spinning by a sudden blow from one of a party of four who were threatened, and an alarm raised—again by a lady.

It may be that this defiance is born of sheer inability to realize the possible results, but there is another aspect of the matter. The almost invariable success of the threat made from behind a pointed revolver, is generally due to the suddenness of the attack, which leaves no time for thought. If it were not for this psychological fact, many a would-be robber might find his urbane intentions frustrated and himself landed in jail. In most cases the firing of the revolver is the last thing wished for by the assailant, since that means an alarm and pursuit, and it is certain that the average thief relies almost entirely on the element of surprise.

If there is a moral to this dissertation, it is that the feminine mind is sometimes a whole lot quicker than that of her natural protector.

An interesting commentary on the opinion expressed by a recent speaker at the Summerland Magazine Forum, to the effect that Canada has too many American periodicals, is found in the warning lately given by the educational secretary of the Victoria I. O. D. E. This lady gave a long list of Hearst publications which, she stated, carried on a persistent campaign of anti-British teaching in various forms and disguises. To counteract the tendency of these magazines, she advised the various chapters of the I. O. D. E. to subscribe to more British periodicals for the use of school children, and so foster a taste for British literature.

The advice is good and might, with very great advantage, be acted upon by the general reader.

AUTOLYCUS.

Figure This Out for Yourself. How many apples did Adam and Eve eat? Some say Eve 8 and Adam 2—a total of 10 only. Now we figure the thing out far differently: Eve 8 and Adam 8 also—total 16. We think the above figures are entirely wrong. If Eve 8 and Adam 82, certainly the total will be 90. Scientific men, however, on the strength of the theory that the antediluvians were a race of giants, reckon something like this: Eve 81 and Adam 82—total 163. Wrong again. What could be clearer than if Eve 81 and Adam 812 the total was 893? I believe the following to be the true solution: Eve 814 Adam and Adam 8124 Eve—total 8938. Still another calculation is as follows: If Eve 814 Adam, Adam 81242 oblige Eve—total 82,056. A well-proportioned man should weigh 28 pounds for every foot of his height.
