ELIMINATION OF THE MILK CLAUSES

Legislature Finally Disposes Of Gauthier Liquor Graft Charges Against Members

House Decides the Allegations Shall Be Investigated by Royal Commission to Be Appointed Under the Public Inquiries Act—The Carlow Charges Will Be Investigated by the Same Commission.

Victoria, March 3.—Finally disposing of the Gauthier charges against members of the House in connection with the government purchase of liquor, the legislature Wednesday decided the allegations should be investigated, as proposed by Premier Oliver, by a royal commission to be appointed under the Public Inquiries Act.

The conservative alternative proposal that the investigation should be conducted by the campaign funds commission, whose power would be extended to permit them to go abroad, was turned down on division 23 to 19.

After accused members of the government had denounced the Frank Carlow charges as an absolute fabrication, had variously dubbed Carlow a liar and a "character murderer," and had revealed that Carlow came to the government last December and offered to go away to the United States if given some liquor orders, the House Wednesday night disposed of the latest allegations against cabinet ministers by deciding to have them investigated by royal commission under the Public Inquiries Act.

Premier Oliver indicated the inquiry would be carried out by the same commission which the House earlier voted for the purpose of going into the Gauthier accusations.

Carlow was Liberal candidate in Esquimalt in the last election. He charged liquor commission bribery against government members.

SHOT AND KILLED HUSBAND; GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Victoria, March 3.—Mrs. Margaret Catherine McRae, who shot and killed her husband, Alfred Fred McRae, at their home, 851 Broughton street, on the morning of Wednesday, Nov. 17, 1926, was found guilty of manslaughter by the assize jury, which tried the case here.

CALEDONIAN PLAYERS GIVE GOOD PROGRAM

Presented Where Singleness Is Bliss, Second Time.—Fourth Act Added

Players from the Caledonian Society were greeted with as much or more applause than at their former appearance in January, and they created more fun and amusement from the audience as well.

Mrs. Alex Steven was able to put that real Scotch characteristic humor into the part she had and to bring out the subtle humor of an apt reply and observation, which, while to the point, was neatly buried.

Mr. Steven did the minister justice, putting the right touch of composure and unflinching manner into his part right through, so that the idea of a minister's home was clearly pictured.

Mrs. Woods as "Lottie" made Tam Kilgour's (G. Marshall) life a real embarrassment for a while, and his well acted Scotch self control lent real color to the whole selection and he really excelled himself in the fourth act.

Sandy Morrison (Tom Ramsey) was embarrassed by the situation into which Lottie had enveloped him, but being there, he began to see the humor of the situation poor "Tam" was in.

The fourth act demands recognition of the fine arrangement of the stage settings. Some creditable work was put in on this part, which helped much to set off the final situations, and there were many.

Previous to the start of the players' part of the program, Mrs. Mossop and Cyril rendered some very fine piano duets, giving an especially fine one previous to the fourth act.

Praise of the whole entertainment was generously given on every hand and truly earned.

WILL OPEN NEW BUTCHER SHOP

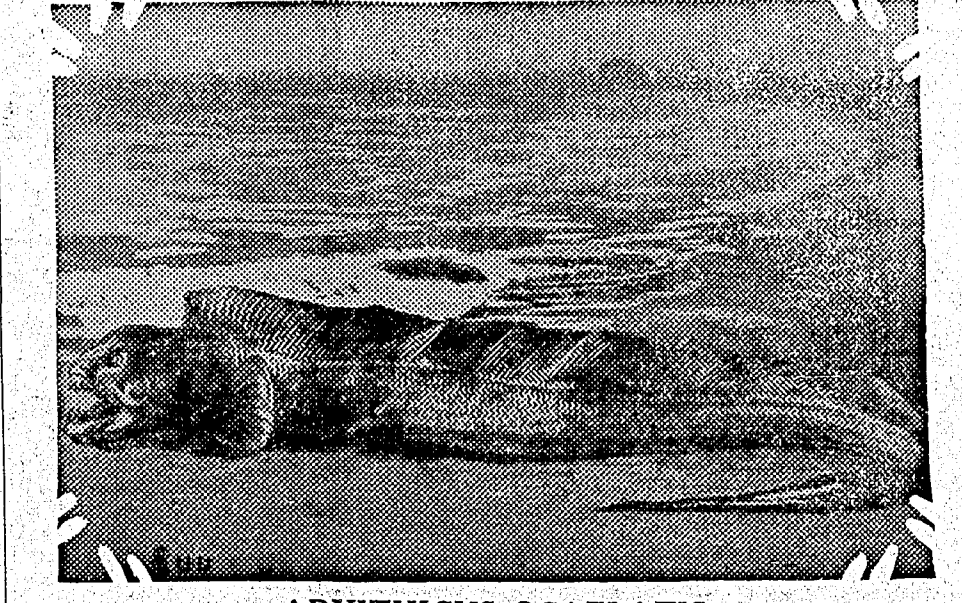

Kelowna Man to Establish at Lake Front—Moving Family Here Soon.

This week Mr. J. Enemark of Kelowna came down to Summerland and looked over the prospects for starting in the butcher business.

He will have delivery facilities, fitting up a car specially adapted to the work. It is his intention to establish a local slaughter-house and use locally raised stock as far as possible.

INTERESTING MOTOR NOTES

The Automobile Club Urges Accident Prevention and Gives Sound Advice

Paralleling the introduction of new car models for 1927, the Automobile Club of British Columbia, in a statement issued recently by its service bureau, urged the importance of a larger proportion of model motorists for 1927.

A uniformly progressive motorist demands that the motorist's qualifications keep pace with the car he drives, it is pointed out by the club bureau, or he will be at the wheel of a car which has improved far beyond his capabilities to meet the new situation in motoring.

The Automobile Club sounded a warning that advanced ideas of traffic regulation and uniformity in driving customs are not more important than the development of responsibility on the part of the individual user of the highway.

"We know now," the statement reads, "that the human equation is present in the majority of accidents, and in these cases, it is the presence of the 'minus' that causes the trouble.

We have ample proof of this in the fact that relatively few members of our club are involved in accidents. We attribute this not so much to the safety education conducted by our club as to the fact that our members constitute by and large a highly intelligent group."

COURT CASE MAIL STOLEN

Juvenile Offender Receives Second Chance—Must Report to Magistrate

There has recently been some tampering with the West Summerland post office boxes and some mail has been missing. This is a severe offense, the minimum punishment being three years imprisonment.

On account of the youthfulness of the offender the magistrate allowed him to go on suspended sentence on condition that he keep away from the post office altogether and report to the magistrate at stated times.

He was caught having taken things from the office, and a lighter charge laid against him, although apparently letters were abstracted at the same time.

He was allegedly attempted to cross the international border at Diano illegally. Clifford Love, age 23, Canadian and resident of Edmonton, was arrested by the U. S. immigration authorities and is held in the county jail at Bellingham in default of $1500 bond.

DEATH OF COW ENDS BIG PLAN

Jersey Breeders Had Hoped For Big Lift in Records of the Breed

The untimely death of the Summerland Experimental Station heifer, Farleigh St. Maves Retta, in the hour of her triumph, has put an end to a breeding experiment that would have been of much interest in Jersey circles.

Arrangements had been made to mate Pretty Lady's Lad, the herd sire of the Spencer, Jersey Farm, Haney, with Farleigh St. Maves Retta, he being, like the heifer, of straight St. Maves-Rosaire Olga breeding.

Never in the history of the Jersey breed has it been possible to mate a cow with two world's records to the son of a cow which also had made two world's records, both animals being of the same blood lines, and the results of such mating, unhappily not impossible, would have been awaited with interest by Jersey enthusiasts.

According to the arrangement made Pretty Lady's Lad was to be at the Summerland Farm during May, June and July and it was also intended to mate him with several other animals in the farm herd, including a full sister and a half-sister of Retta's.

Whether this arrangement will now be carried out or not has not yet been decided.—Province.

REPLACE TOWN WATER PIPES

Springs Are Flowing Well—Guardian Fish Has Gone From His Old Home

At the lake-front they did not know that the water supply had been shut off for a few hours while necessary repairs were being made at the springs above the town, on Friday.

Dr. Dixon, H. J. King and J. Morrow took out three lengths of pipe just below the filter box and replaced them with new pipe. The old pipe had sprung a leak, and for the sake of better pressure and service a replacement was found necessary.

The springs are just as strong as ever, even if the source is merely conjecture. It makes no difference on their volume whether Enos Creek or Prairie Creek are flowing and whether the source of either of these streams has anything to do with these springs is not known.

For a long time a little fish that never seemed to grow any, stayed in the filter box, but Dr. Dixon says he missed it a year ago and cannot suggest what happened to the guardian of the box; its disappearance is as much conjecture as its appearance there in the first place.

AMENDED FORM OF BILL APPLIES TO FRUIT AND VEGETABLES ONLY

Minister of Agriculture Puts Up Big Fight in Last Minute Stand—Unable to Muster More Than Twelve Supporters For Dairy Section—Amendments by Premier Oliver Make Power of Committee of Direction Exclusive—Manson Bill Also Passes.

(Special to The Review)

Victoria, March 4.—Dairy sections of the Government's Produce Control Bill were finally eliminated Thursday night when the long-heralded show-down between supporters and antagonists of the milk clauses was held in the House.

In its amended form, applying only to fruit, vegetables and berries, the measure then finished its journey through Committee of the whole House with practically no serious opposition. Its approval in Committee ensured its final formal acceptance by the House on the third reading.

Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, put his back to the wall and made a last minute stand to save the dairy portions of the bill, but on the vote was unable to muster more than twelve members in this support. These were: Premier Oliver, Attorney-General Manson, Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Hon. W. H. Sutherland; Messrs. Leary, Rothwell, Stoddard, Davie, Coventry, Wallinger and Catherwood.

An effort by Dr. J. D. MacLean to have the Ashcroft District excluded from operation of the act was rejected by a majority even greater.

A similar amendment seeking to have Kamloops removed from the control area was withdrawn by J. R. Colley, Kamloops member, when the Ashcroft proposal was voted down.

Minor amendments offered by Premier Oliver were accepted at midnight last night. These make it clear that the power of the Committee of Direction is exclusive, also that no Committee of Direction appointed under the main clauses of the Bill shall encroach on or exercise the powers of the Interior Tree Fruit and Vegetable Committee.

MANSON BILL PASSES COMMITTEE

Attorney-General Manson's Bill to regulate mercantile agents, passed through committee in the House last night, with the addition of a number of amendments.

One reduced the responsibility of the brokers in respect of preservation of records, making it obligatory to keep such documents only for four years instead of six. Another change brought pools under the provisions of the Bill.

A. J. BEER SAYS GOOD OUTLOOK

Canada Facing Prosperous Times—Summerland Will Share in Them.

Having had a little time to consider the business situation back east, Mr. Beer says that he much prefers to be in business on this side of the line.

In Toronto there was a very optimistic feeling, sound and firm, while in the States, he felt the reverse was the case. In the auto manufacturing there there seemed to be a feeling that over-production existed, he said. This had a reaction on the business pulse.

He compared the east and west much in the west's favor. He felt that Summerland's future was brighter than it had been and that this year it would feel the benefit of the brighter outlook that Canada as a whole, was just now presented with.

TEMPERANCE WORKERS MEET

Frances Willard Memorial Service Held—Rev. Reed Speaks

Friday, February 25th, the Frances Willard Memorial Service was held in the Baptist Church. Owing to the illness of Mrs. McAlpine, the president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, Mrs. Coulter White, vice-president, was in the chair.

Rev. Mr. Reed gave an account of some of his experiences in temperance work in England and Alberta, telling some sad stories of the poverty, crime and degradation resulting from the liquor traffic. He told that Alberta had accepted prohibition, when the men only had the vote and turned it down later when the women had the franchise. We hope the women will do better the next chance they have.

Mr. White spoke of the present situation with regard to temperance legislation in the Dominion, instancing Nova Scotia as the most outstanding province in that line except Prince Edward Island, perhaps because they had no large cities and because of a trained public sentiment which was not interfered with by immigration from other countries to the same extent as the provinces further west. He also spoke of the disconcerting state of things in B. C. and predicted that the other provinces which have accepted government control will find their troubles coming fast. The young people were well represented in the audience and assisted in the program.

The Oh-west group of the C.G.I.T. was represented by Misses King and Sutherland in a piano duet. The Polyantha group sang "Follow the Glean" and the Sempre Fideles group was represented by Miss Wilson in a piano solo. The Scouts sang "Cyril Mossop, who played a piano solo.

The chairman spoke very briefly of Mrs. Willard's lack of early advancement, and her wonderful accomplishments, urging that each young person present cultivate an ambition to make their lives worth while.

PRESENTATION TO N. BENTLEY

Members of the mechanics' class at the night school last week, made a presentation to Mr. Ned Bentley, the instructor, in appreciation of the time and effort he has devoted to the work.

On behalf of the class, Mr. Geo. Sinclair, in handing him a silver cigarette case, mentioned that those who had been in attendance felt that they would like to show that they really appreciated the attention he had given them and felt they did not want to let the class close its season without showing this in some tangible form. There were twenty-two members of the class present to support Mr. Sinclair's remarks.

Mr. Jack Logie, who was there also, informed the class, much to their delight, that they were entitled to three more evenings, as funds had gone far beyond what was first expected.

All the members of the class were highly gratified with the results of the work on the evenings that have been devoted to the work.

PUBLIC SCHOOL CLASS REPORT

Stand of Pupils in the Different Classes at Central School

Interest in the progress of the pupils as they pass along the different grades at school is always keen. Besides giving an opportunity to see where their own children are standing, parents can tell if proper use is being made of the advantages that the children are given. The February report from the principal has some interesting information.

RHODE ISLAND RECORD HEN

Lays Twice in Twenty-Four Hours—Has Good Breeding Back of Her

Summerland has some fine brood poultry on its different fruit lots, but Mr. J. R. Sutherland has something unique. He has informed the Review that on March 1st, he received 16 eggs from a hen of 15 Rhode Island Reds. The day previous he gathered 16 eggs from the same hen, and it is impossible for any other hens to get in the pen.

One of the hens had laid very early in the morning and then at about 7 p.m., when Mr. Sutherland was fixing the pen for the night, he discovered the hen on the nest, with an egg just laid. Out of consideration for her he placed her back on the roost for a night of comfort.

He says he knows that he was getting something good, but had not counted on quite such a result as this.

O'FARRELL OF THE PRINCESS PATS

A STORY OF THE GREAT WAK

(By J. Williamson)
(All Rights Reserved)

Meanwhile O'Farrell, a desire for solitude overcoming his natural desire for company, escaped from the dinner table as soon as he could politely withdraw. He found the top deck comparatively deserted. With the exception of the man on duty and a few loungers who were busy with their private musings or employed in desultory conversation, the majority of those on board were at dinner or amusing themselves in the smoking and reading rooms.

Making his way to the stern of the ship, Phillip leaned over the rail and gradually became absorbed in the turmoil of the waters beneath. The screws were churning up the sea, which seethed and hissed as it gave place before the terrific driving power of the propellers. Away in the wake of the transport stretched a foamy path. Less than a quarter of a mile behind followed the nearest vessel. Once, far astern, came the vision of a regular interval, as far as the vision could reach, the ocean was dotted with steamers. North and south similar lines closed in on the Grampian and her sister ships, while beyond, on the fringe of the horizon, ever vigilant and sleepless roamed the dark, vicious looking battleships.

The sun had gone down in the west, placing a black barrier, as it were, between Phillip and the land of his birth. From each ship signals began to flash and searchlights raked the straggled convoy. In every direction, once, far astern, came the boom of a heavy gun. This was answered by another league ahead, and followed in quick succession by echoes from the flanking vessels.

"Some danger ahead," mused O'Farrell as all the lights on the transports were suddenly extinguished. All was hushed below. Hardly a sound reached the upper deck, beyond the subdued music of a stringed orchestra and an occasional burst of laughter from a party of merry-making soldiers between decks.

Night came on quickly, but the sky was cloudless. The stars began to sparkle in the heavens and were temporarily obscured to the rear where the accumulated banks of smoke, drifting from many funnels, formed distorted figures ever changing in outline as they slowly disappeared on the edge of the horizon.

Dreamily taking mental note of these things and interested in the phosphorescent globules as they rose, split asunder, and spread over the surface of the sea, Phillip did not hear a faint footfall behind him, and was startled when a small hand was placed on his arm and a low voice at his elbow said:

"Lieutenant O'Farrell, I have searched the ship for you. I have something of importance to say that will not brook delay."

"Miss Haslett!" exclaimed Phillip. "You startled me, but this is a great pleasure. I did not expect to meet you again before morning."

"No more did I," said Nena. "But I have a message for you from Lady Caerton. It is for your ears alone. Do you think we shall be overheard if we remain here?"

"I think not," replied Phillip. "Let us sit with our backs to the stern of the ship. Then we shall be able to see anyone approaching."

"My wardrobe has become so depleted," she began, "I had to borrow one of the travelling rugs you left in the stateroom."

He was unaware of the fact, but was glad to catch the note of gratefulness in her voice as she explained, and spent some unnecessary time in making her comfortable. When they were seated, she, in her whimsical manner, began to dilate on the exquisite fragrance of the sea, the twinkle of the stars, the low rumble of the machinery, and to draw fantastic comparisons between the atmosphere of the former and the latter of the latter.

Phillip listened to her prattle, drinking in the music of her varying tones, afraid to interpose an opinion lest he should put an end to the harmony of her voice. Presently she noticed his silence and commenced to chide him for inattention.

"It is too great a happiness to hear you speak," he muttered.

She searched his eyes to their very depths in her desire to fathom his meaning. Apparently satisfied with his excuse, she began to unfold her errand.

"Lady Caerton desires to be reconciled to her husband. You are his friend. Will you help her?"

"With all my heart," responded Phillip. "I was endeavoring to plan some means to bring about the same end when you came."

had to become more intimate with him than was, perhaps, prudent in view of her husband's chronic drunken condition.

"Meanwhile Von Kolkow presumed on her apparent preference for his company. When her husband found him in her stateroom at the time of the collision he had forced his presence upon her. She had ordered him to leave the room just as Caerton rushed in to tell her of the accident and her danger. He was too full of drink and jealousy to heed her attempted explanation. Before she realized what he was about to do, Caerton drew a gun and shot Von Kolkow."

"The man was only slightly hurt, a mere flesh wound, but Caerton did not know this as he hunted for a lifebelt for his wife. During his absence she abstracted the papers she wanted from the inside breast pocket of the insensible German."

"Caerton returned for his wife, saw her safely in one of the lifeboats and then disappeared. She never heard of him from the sinking of the liner until she saw him in your cabin tonight, and was convinced he had perished. She is an excellent woman and adores her husband. If you will repeat her story to Caerton he will surely believe you. You will explain, will you not?"

She pleaded, looking steadily into O'Farrell's eyes as if to read his inmost thoughts.

"Of course, I will," he answered. "Nothing will give me greater pleasure than to bring about an understanding and reconciliation between them. I have already made a similar proposal to Caerton. He was too bitter to consider it coolly, but I have given him until tomorrow to think it over. He is a man of strong passions, but considerate in the extreme to those he may have wronged. That is my own experience, and it is evidently yours also. I will speak to him after breakfast tomorrow morning."

Nena looked the gratitude she felt. She merely said, "Thank you," but the two words conveyed a world of meaning to the man who sat beside her, and a wild longing to take her to his heart almost overpowered him.

Nena appeared to feel instinctively the trend of his thoughts. His silence drew her attention to his agitation, and she rose hurriedly to go to her stateroom. Phillip could not bear to part from her at that moment. He had seen so little of her. He begged her to stay a while longer and relate her adventures as she had promised.

"Don't you consider you have had sufficient explanations tonight?" she asked, coquettishly. "Tomorrow will be a long day. But, if you insist," she continued, as she noticed his exclamation of disappointment, "I had, perhaps, better satisfy your curiosity."

She returned to her seat beside O'Farrell, spent a moment in thought, and began:

"You will remember, after our adventure in the park, I told you I had arrived in the city in search of my brother and that I had found and persuaded him to leave for home with me. When I left you at the hotel that night, I went to his room and waited for his return. We had a long conference, the result being we decided to start for home at once via New York, where he had important business to transact. During my absence he had received a cablegram instructing him to obtain certain official documents from the British War Office."

"We packed our luggage before retiring, and caught the early morning mail. We stopped over for a few days in Chicago, but arrived in New York well ahead of the date fixed for the meeting between my brother and the British agent. My brother was very reticent with respect to the nature of his mission, but I began to suspect it was of a dangerous character."

"One evening, as I entered his room intending to question him on the subject, I saw a stranger searching through his desk. I challenged his right to be there, but he laughed lightly and told me my brother had sent him for a letter that would be found among his papers. I asked him to describe the document, but he either could not or would not. I allowed him to leave the hotel without alarming anyone. It was well I did so."

"My brother returned at midnight in a high state of nervous excitement. He had been lured to a house in the Bowery, where he was made prisoner by four men, who searched him for the papers entrusted to his care by the British agent. Not finding them on him, three of them stood watch while the fourth was despatched to search our hotel, with what result I have explained. The men mentioned to murder my brother should their companions fail to return by midnight. It was a miracle I did not call in the police."

"We embarked on the Cygnut, bound for Liverpool, the next day, but were hardly outside the three-mile limit when we were stopped by a submarine. A six-inch shell across our bows brought us to a halt. Orders were given to stand by the lifeboats. Several officers and men came aboard from the submarine, and a master of the passengers and crew was called. My brother handed me a package requesting me as he did so to conceal it about my person."

"They will not harm you," he said, "but it will be death if the papers are found on me."

"Lady Caerton, who was standing near and overheard the conversation, called me aside and requested that she be allowed to take charge of the package."

"I am a secret agent of the British government, and I know the contents of those documents. I can conceal them where they won't be found." (To be continued.)

PEACHLAND NEWS

By Our Resident Correspondent

Eddie Williams came ashore this week off the S.S. Scamou. He expects to be home for a short time.

The local Orange lodge held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday evening of this week and put on an initiation.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlton and family returned home on Wednesday evening's boat after spending the winter at the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Inglis and family have moved from town to the fruit lot, where they will make their home for a time.

Quite a number of local folks have been laid up lately with colds and "flu," and many of them are out again and getting back into form.

The spring pack at the local union has been completed and all shipped out, but the last car, which is in readiness for immediate shipping as soon as the order comes through. For the most part the storage apples came through in pretty good shape. The total spring pack, including the car which is packed but still in the house, was 3,744 boxes.

The Women's Auxiliary of the United Church held their annual meeting at the home of Mrs. Morsh Wednesday afternoon of this week. The Easter devotional program, was carried out, after which the annual reports were read, showing good progress during the year. The election of officers resulted in the re-election of old officers for the ensuing year. Mrs. Elliott sang "Hold Thou My Hand." At the close of the meeting the hostess served tea.

The postponed meeting of the Peachland Fruit Growers Union was held on Wednesday afternoon in the municipal hall, with a good representation of the growers present. President E. F. Smith was in the chair and Secretary H. Richards at the table. The notice of meeting was read by the secretary, dealing with the election of directors for the ensuing year and deciding on the grader question. Before nominations for directors the following resolution was passed with only two dissenting votes: "Whereas the directors of the Peachland Fruit Growers Union have served without remuneration of any kind in the past and the duties of the directors take considerable time and effort, and whereas this local union is the only co-operative shipping through the Associated Growers which does not acknowledge the services by a small remuneration; we, the shareholders of the Peachland Fruit Growers Union, hereby resolve that payment shall be made to the elected directors at the rate of $50 a year and $75 a year to the elected president. These payments are not adequate remuneration, but as an acknowledgment of their time and efforts given in the interests of all growers."

The president called for nominations for directors for 1927 and the following names were the result: E. F. Smith, H. E. Trimble, B. F. Gummow, P. N. Dorland, R. E. Taylor, W. R. Buchanan, E. Rufflo, W. Rontrow, W. R. Metcalfe, R. J. Harrington. Ballots were handed around and the growers asked to vote on five of the names on the board to form the new directors, with the following result: E. F. Smith, P. N. Dorland, B. F. Gummow, H. E. Trimble and E. Rufflo.

The grader question came up next and Mr. B. F. Gummow, chairman of the committee which had been appointed at the former meeting for the purpose of looking into the question, gave the committee's report. The committee had decided that in the best interests of the growers it would be better to not the grader sold and go back to bin packing, and gave some facts and figures which they had secured, showing the extra expense of operating the grader. The matter was then thrown open for discussion and several present aired their views both pro and con. It had been recognized that the grader is not, and has not, been operating properly, but the committee based their figures and remarks on the assumption of the grader running properly. It appeared from the general discussion which took place that it was not a question of "is a grader better in the house than bin packing?" but local conditions. Many varieties and too many small lots of numerous varieties have brought many of the growers to think that it is not economical to try to run them over the grader. The secretary, Mr. Richards, was asked to say a few words. He stated that the grader produced a better and more uniform pack, and that more extra fancy could be obtained from a pack by the use of the grader. He figured, while there would be a saving in actual expense of packing over the bins, the loss would be greater in the grading of the fruit.

Mr. Barrett of Kelowna was present at the meeting and was asked to say a few words. He remarked that while listening to the discussion of the growers throughout the afternoon that it seemed a matter for local decision. He, of course, approved strongly of a grader where it could be worked to advantage, but he noted that apparently Peachland was in a more or less peculiar position with her many varieties, and it might be hard to run the grader economically if there were not sufficient quantities of apples.

The editor of the Summerland Review has asked us for a little information in respect of "Podunk" Davis. His first query is on behalf of a lady admirer of "Podunk's" heroism, residing at Port Alberni, and concerns his financial rating. She thinks that, while the medal for bravery may be all right, his circumstances may be such that a more tangible expression of appreciation might not be out of place, and generously offers to contribute if steps should be taken to raise a fund in his behalf. The second question is prompted by the editor's own curiosity and has to do with how Mr. Davis came by his nickname of "Podunk."

As the subject of the conversation blew into town yesterday on one of his visits, which are rather infrequent during the winter owing to the fact that the snow is deep and he lives some distance out, we were able to secure an interview and promptly sought to annex the information craved.

In reply to our first question "Po-

She thinks that, while the medal for bravery may be all right, his circumstances may be such that a more tangible expression of appreciation might not be out of place, and generously offers to contribute if steps should be taken to raise a fund in his behalf. The second question is prompted by the editor's own curiosity and has to do with how Mr. Davis came by his nickname of "Podunk."

As the subject of the conversation blew into town yesterday on one of his visits, which are rather infrequent during the winter owing to the fact that the snow is deep and he lives some distance out, we were able to secure an interview and promptly sought to annex the information craved.

British Columbia Beers are Pure, Matured and Fully Fermented

NOT only are beers made by the Amalgamated Breweries pure and wholesome by test and delicious to the taste; they are thoroughly matured beers and fully fermented.

Due to the huge brewing and storage capacity of the Amalgamated Breweries (approximately eight times British Columbia's present consumption of beers), ample stocks are always on hand, maturing in great casks under most perfect and sanitary conditions. All beers are allowed to ripen for periods of about five months. Fermentation is completed, absolutely, before they are put on the market. You are assured of a healthful, fully matured beverage when you purchase beers made by the Amalgamated Breweries.

For sale at all Government Stores and Licensed Premises

In the Amalgamated Breweries are associated Vancouver Breweries Limited, Westminster Brewery Limited, Rainier Brewing Company of Canada Limited, Silver Spring Breweries Limited, and Victoria-Phoenix Brewing Co. Limited.

"dunk" opined that as long as there were plenty of pine needles and a stray chicken hawk left in the country he himself could always manage to winter through, but admitted that he was a little hard put to finance for hay for his team of horses. Cheerily as the words were spoken, we could not surmise that they were altogether in jest and audibly wondered if, and when, the government intended to counter upon this deserving old-timer the post of game warden here, together with the modest increment attached—a position which he had received encouragement to apply for, and which it was generally believed would be provided for him without any unnecessary loss of time.

Questioned in respect to his cognomen of "Podunk," the white-haired old veteran of 60-odd winters sensed that it was meant for publication and we had to use our best persuasive powers to get the story. Briefly stated, it runs like this:

Back in '76—he thinks that was the year, at any rate it was the year that the James boys and Younger brothers pulled off the big robbery at Northfield, and those who wish to verify the date can do so—he was lying one night curled up on some hay on a cattle chute at the stockyards at Sioux Falls, Dakota, waiting for a freight train on which his father was an engineer to pull up, so that he might see him on the way through. He was at that time only ten or eleven years old.

It was a dark night, and while waiting he heard a couple of men approaching the track and discussing arrangements for boarding the freight when it pulled in. Later they walked away, leaving a couple of suitcases concealed under the chute. Curiosity prompted him to examine the cases, and hearing the ticking of watches, he suspected something was wrong and notified the sheriff, whom he happened to know well.

The men were taken when they returned for the goods a little later and at the trial the sheriff gave all the credit for the capture to the boy, referring to him as "Podunk" Davis. The allusion was to "Deadwood Dick," familiarly known to the miners, for whom he had rendered some splendid service in the detective line, as "Podunk" Sheriff Simons had been reading of the exploits of "Podunk," hence the sobriquet which he attached to his little accomplice—one which has stuck for half a century.

Mr. Davis appeared to have a very clear recollection of all the circumstances of the case. The burglars, whose names were Lindemyer and Stull, received long terms of imprisonment. Henry Day was the name of the jeweler whose store had been robbed, and "Podunk" still cherishes a ruby and ring with which the reward hunter for the important part he took in the recovery of the stolen goods—Princeton Star.

EFFICIENCY IN TUNING

It takes years of careful training, that more years of hard work satisfactorily performed, before the words "experience" and "ability" take on their full meaning, and I have qualified on both these points.

Coming strongly endorsed by the best authorities in Canada — piano manufacturers who are positively particular where they put their signature, as follows:

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS
Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emption is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is not timber land, i.e., carrying over 5000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range, and 8000 feet per acre east of that Range.

Applications for pre-emption are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner. Pre-emption must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres before a Crown Grant can be received.

For more detailed information see the Bulletin "How to Pre-empt Land."

PURCHASE
Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land, $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Land."

HOMESITE LEASES
Unsurveyed areas not exceeding 20 acres may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES
For grazing and industrial purposes areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING
Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administrators under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued, based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ten head.

MOTORISTS RESPONSIBILITY

Because of his better equipment, made possible by the better new model cars, more is going to be expected of the 1927 motorist.

This year he is to be asked to use more consideration on the road and to use more efficiently the equipment he has been presented with by the designers of the engines.

He is going to be allowed the liberties that are rightly his only if he exercises judgment and does not abuse the privileges which the people are ready to accord him.

WHAT'S IN A NAME

Nicknames are generally inspired by suggestions on the play grounds at school, or on fields of sport, and they are stuck with great tenacity to some youngster or idol of the fans witnessing a game.

True, the name is usually primitive and its origin crude, but because of its simplicity it carries some suggestiveness about it that stays by the owner often throughout life.

These old handles help us to carry the owner through life and single him out no matter how many others round about may have the same Christian and given name.

"Podunk" Davis, because of his nickname, is now more interesting to us, and the one word tells us a whole story.

TIME IS CAPITAL

There is an old adage that has lived because of its sound business value, which says: "Time is Money." If the main end of effort is to accumulate finances, the assertion carries weight.

Those firms who send out agents on the road have gone the old saying one better and instill into the minds of their representatives that their time is their capital.

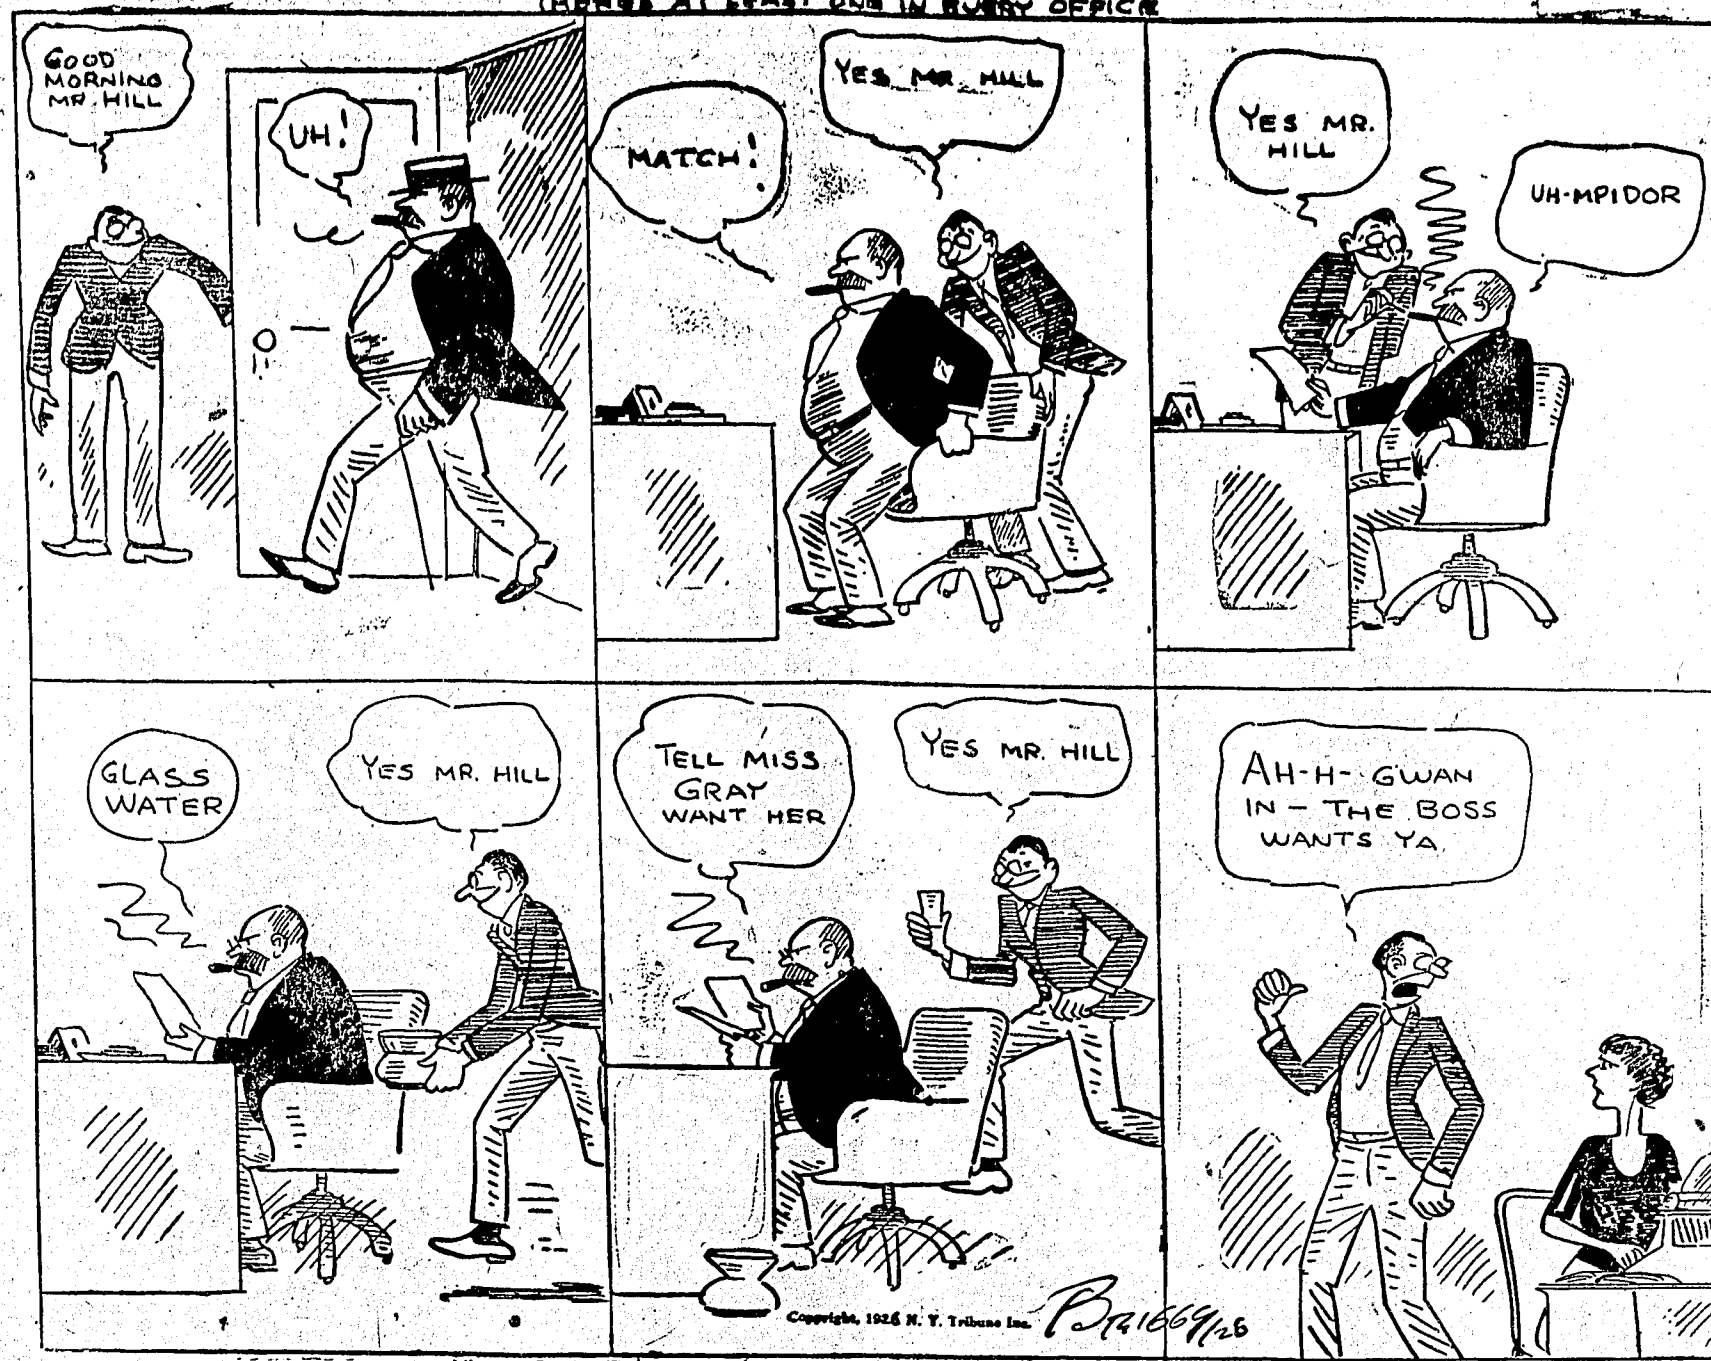

To prevent the squandering of this valuable asset the banks have shortened hours in which they will transact business, and their customers must pass by little wickets; no chairs on which they may sit and fritter away the employees' time or clog the avenue of business.

Talking with one of our local business men this week, he was lamenting over the way his customers wasted, so willfully and thoughtlessly his time and their own, yet he felt powerless to remedy the evil.

He turned the idea out for inspection in another way, saying that many of his callers were not as well off as they might easily be, because they placed no value whatever on time.

CANADA'S JUBILEE

Old Clocks to Mend

(By D. Gillies MacKirdy)

Leaning back in my chair, which had been placed on the shady side of the house, I watched Veuve Dubois finish the last row she was hoeing and start back to the farm.

"It is hot, m'sieu," said the woman, coming to a halt near me as she placed the hoe against the wall.

"Ah, m'sieu," she said, "my little farm produces nothing now to what it did. Look, those fields were once waving with wheat and grain for our cattle, but now, alas, those ugly trenches, weaving their way across the best of the land, have spoiled them."

"See, m'sieu," she said quietly, "the shells from the enemy penetrated the walls, destroying our good property. Alas, it was one of those shells that killed my good Henri. He would stay here, m'sieu, although I begged him to leave with me when he sent me away to the house of my father. It was just before little Julie was born."

"So, m'sieu, I hope so; but in the meantime we live on a pittance. I had I but the money to get help, in a few weeks more could be done to make our farm fit to produce a living for my little ones. We have no horse, we have but two cows left. Ah, m'sieu, the war is cruel, and only who that live amongst it know how cruel, but it is doubly cruel for a widow like me."

"Ah, yes, m'sieu," she continued, taking advantage of someone who was a stranger yet could understand her language, "if I had but the money to reclaim those fields. It is strange, m'sieu. While my Henri lived we had money, and he often spoke of taking those papers he bought with our money—investments he called them—to mine the notaire for safekeeping, but after he died I could not find them. I went to see the notaire. Alas, he did not have them, he said, and so I am desolated."

She turned away, shaking her head despondently, and entered the house. Evening was coming and there was much to do before the sun sank, announcing the close of another day, and I was left to myself. For a few moments I smoked, and then rose and went down into the village.

It was the next afternoon when I arrived from headquarters that I heard the sound of a familiar voice in the yard as I came through the wide gate.

"Just what I thought," replied Watson, with a smile. "Sure is a big price for hay."

"Well, Watson," I said, with a smile. "Found a home for the next few weeks?"

"Yes, sir," he answered, acknowledging the accusation with a grin. "Seems about the best I've struck for a long time, sir. She's a good cook, too; that supper she handed me sure had the bully best heat I met."

"Nothing much, sir," said the blonde giant, with a grin. "I was just trying to ask her if she had any more clocks that wanted fixin'."

On a little shelf in the corner of the room stood a clock. An ornate affair, with little wooden spires making it look taller than it was.

"Come outside," I said. With our cigarettes going, I told him all that the widow had said, and for a few moments he stared out across the deserted trenches at the far end of the farm.

"Gosh, sir," he said suddenly, "ain't that the luck? I've fixed lots of clocks in this country, but this is the first time I've run across a real one like that wanted fixing, and for a fool notion she doesn't want me to touch it."

"Hard luck, all right," I replied; "but it's her clock."

"To my mind the reason was easy to find. It was the silent clock standing on the shelf in the corner of the room. It seemed to fascinate him, and because the door was always shut the fascination was greater."

"I was at the corner of the house when I heard a cry of dismay and astonishment, and as I approached the door, saw her standing just inside. With amazing rapidity, she was hurrying torrents of reproaches at the unfortunate George, whose incoherent replies came to my ears now and then through the rain of words she poured forth."

written large on his face. He seemed to be helpless. "Madame," I said softly, "I am sorry indeed that this should have happened."

"Instead of soothing, as I had figured, she swung on me like a tigress. Bitterly she repeated her reproaches, he was an ingrate, a boor, a traitor. Rapidly she flung the words at me, and gathering from the tone of her speech that he had displeased her, Watson began to talk also.

"For a few moments pandemonium rang in my ears. It was impossible to understand them both at once. My knowledge of French became blurred, as her fiery words were mixed with those of the soldier who was earnestly endeavoring to convey his side of the question to me.

"At last I turned a deaf ear to the woman and let the man have his say. "Honest, sir," he pleaded, "I never thought that she'd get so mad. When she went away this morning, she was wagged for five minutes and pointed to everything—this room, your room and her own room, and then said, 'Comprez.' Sure I comprehended. I thought she wanted me to take a walk at the old clock while she was gone, sort of didn't want to see me touch it. You know, sir, just like an old maid that wants you to kill her pet dog to save him from dying of old age, but doesn't want to be there when you do the deed."

"Seeing that I was paying attention to Watson, Veuve Dubois ceased talking, and with her dark eyes flashing angrily followed every word, as if trying to grasp the meaning.

"And there wasn't much wrong with it," went on the unfortunate clock repairer. "There was a bit of paper folded up and worked right in between the wheels. I got it out carefully so that there wouldn't be any pieces left."

Triumphantly he darted to the table and held the salvaged obstruction towards me, but Veuve had evidently construed much of the meaning of his long speech, and impatiently snatched it from him, and with a look of withering scorn, unfolded it.

Her mouth opened to speak, but instead, a gasp of surprise came forth as she glanced at the writing she held, and as if stunned she stood staring at it while an awkward silence pervaded the room, broken only by the loud ticking of the clock.

"With a shrill laugh she looked up and without warning flung herself at Watson, embracing and kissing him warmly on both cheeks, and then as suddenly she ran out of the room, her footsteps echoing as she went down the heavy stone steps into the cellar."

"Gosh!" The exclamation from Watson brought my attention back to what he was groping for a chair and sat down, running his finger around the inside of his tunic collar as if it were too tight.

"The sound of those quick steps came to me and I turned bewildered as the widow reappeared with a bottle in her hand. Dusty and begrimed, cobwebs trailing in the air, it spoke eloquently of age. Without much ceremony she placed it on the table, and, as if by magic, three glasses quickly followed it. A corkscrew next came to light, and with an expert twist she pulled the cork and a delicate aroma filled the room, bespoken the vintage of the wine. Carefully, yet with an excited haste, she filled the glasses, presenting one to each of us and talking the third herself.

"To M'sieu Georges and his clock repairing skill," she said, with a flourish, and silently I drank the toast, noting that George drank also, oblivious to the great honor she was doing him. "But what's all the commotion about," he queried with a perplexed air.

"Look," I said, taking the paper from the widow and placing it before him. "It is the receipt for her husband's securities which he placed in the hands of the wily old notary, and who thinks that it is lost forever. I guess the concussion of the shell that killed Monsieur Dubois shook the paper from his hiding place in the top of the clock into the works and stopped it."

"Gosh!" repeated George weakly, and, as if agreeing with him, the clock chimed once sweetly, as it reached the half hour.

World of Politics

(By an Ex-Writer of the Ottawa Press Gallery.)

SESSION DRAWING TO A CLOSE

The session of the provincial Legislature now drawing to a close has been one of the most lurid in the history of that august body. What with charges of one kind and another and the ensuing inquiries, including those finished and those about to be started, the session has not been one that will lead to the enhancement of the reputation of our political salons at Victoria. The most regrettable developments have been those arising out of the revelations of the Royal Commission of inquiry into the Dominion Customs Department touching upon the liquor traffic and the allegations of one Gauthier implicating Hon. Dr. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, and Speaker Buchman of the Legislative Assembly. In many years of parliamentary reporting I do not remember any charges of wrong-doing more difficult to make head or tail of than those which are apparent from the quantity of smoke in evidence that there is some fire. The weakness of the Government's position in regard to the allegations would appear to lie in the fact that it seems to be established beyond reasonable doubt that Gauthier was paid a large sum of money to surrender certain documents. On the other hand, the weakness of the case for the opposition is that Gauthier does not seem to be a very desirable character. Quite apparently these allegations have been in the air for some time, but Mr. Tegg of Victoria was the first member of the opposition to hear of them who had the courage to bring them to the attention of the Legislature and the people of the province. The Government, on the other hand, it would seem was uneasy enough about the matter to make an effort to have it hushed. The one thing that has recently clear at this time is that the allegations must be probed to the bottom. The Vancouver Province puts the matter very forcibly and clearly in thusly closing an able editorial dealing with the charges against the Liquor Board officials and the Gauthier allegations: "This is no time for loose language or for innuendo. The government of Premier Oliver must be heard in its defence. If the government can clear itself, it will be greatly for the welfare of good government and clean politics in this province. The point is that it has become necessary to impress Premier Oliver and his fellow cabinet ministers with the gravity of the situation which confronts them. If they do the right thing, the sensible and the logical thing, they will appoint one tribunal for the complete and wholesale investigation of these matters. They will see to it that the tribunal is above suspicion as to its competence and honesty. And they will play no more politics in this thing. That is the only way." The Legislature did not take the advice of the province and refer all the charges to one tribunal, but everything is to be delved into and it is to be hoped that the mess will be cleared up as quickly as possible no matter who may be affected thereby.

PROGRESSIVES MAKE PROTESTS

Down at the Dominion capital the members of the Progressive party, inclusive of some of those who label themselves as Progressive-Liberals, have shown their teeth in Parliament because of the failure of Hon. J. A. Robb to make any further tariff reductions in his recent budget. Some of them allege that there has been collusion between the two main parties in respect of the tariff and that the Mackenzie King government has departed from its announced policy of paring down the duties, more particularly in the spots where they are supposed to be somewhat heavily upon basic industries. Progressive members from the floor of the House announced that the government must give them a definite assurance that it had not changed its policy if it is to secure their support for the budget. The reply from the government side of the House, Charles Dunning, Minister of Railways, and the representative of the province of Saskatchewan in the cabinet. Mr. Dunning was quite emphatic in asserting that the government does not propose to be intimidated by Progressive threats and intimated them that a year ago the automobile industry attempted to put a gun to Mr. Robb's head but without effect. He did go so far as to say that the policy of the Liberal party had not been changed, but that it proposed to make haste slowly and not rush matters. And that, after all, is the best policy whether the policy is right or wrong. If it is right, no great harm will be done by caution, and if it is wrong in the best material interests of the country, the slower it is put into effect the less harm will be done. Before this appears in print the budget will probably be voted as there is no danger whatever to the government in the Progressive threats as the Conservatives will not support the amendment calling for tariff reductions. As a matter of fact, the Progressives are simply making a play to the low tariff sentiment of the west and for that they need not be too severely censured, as that is the sentiment they were sent to Ottawa to represent.

CONSERVATIVE NATIONAL CONVENTION

The decision of the inner council of the Conservative party in session at Ottawa to hold the national convention in Winnipeg in October next is another one of those developments that is likely to make Canadian history, for it is not at all improbable that geographical considerations may prove to be a considerable factor in the choice of a permanent leader. It is beginning to look as though the list of aspirants for the leadership have dwindled down to Hon. Hugh Guthrie and Mr. R. B. Bennett of Calgary. There may, however, be some significance in the fact that Hon. Robert Rogers had enough influence at the recent Ottawa gathering to bring the convention to Winnipeg, and it is possible that he may prove to be a formidable candidate for leadership. The convention promises to be quite as big an affair from the standpoint of attendance as was the Liberal convention at Ottawa in 1919, which hoisted Mackenzie King to the oasis of the night. The four representatives of each constituency will be allowed to send full account for 1000 delegates; while members of Parliament and defeated Conservative candidates in the recent election, will add another 250. In addition Conservative Senators, presidents of Conservative Associations, and others eligible will make up another two hundred delegates, making a grand total of approximately 1500. Selection of a leader should be a comparatively easy task as compared with the framing of a party platform, and the most contentious matter the delegates will have to settle will be the future policy of the party in regard to the tariff. On this point there is bound to be considerable pulling between the east and the west and the result of the deliberations will also constitute another of those decisions that make history. The best chance at the moment would appear to be that the Conservative party will compromise the matter on the basis of advocacy of a system of moderate protection.

U. S. FARMERS TURNED DOWN

While the farmers of Canada will have cause to rejoice over the decision of President Coolidge of the United States to veto the farm relief bill passed by both branches of Congress the decision is one that may have far-reaching political consequences in the United States. The bill constituted the most radical move to give relief to the farming class ever attempted in any country, and the effort made at Victoria to show that the measure bore a strong resemblance to our own marketing measure bolstered on the amount. What was proposed in the United States, briefly stated, was to provide the huge sum of $250,000,000 as the basis of a revolving fund with which to unduly inflate domestic prices of farm products and to dump the surplus on the markets of Great Britain and the continent at ruinously low prices for the competing farmers of other countries. Aaron Sapro, the apostle of co-operation in the United States, has denounced this measure from the beginning, but it was noticeable that the Farm Board it was proposed to set up was to consist of twelve representatives of co-operative organizations, each of whom would have drawn a salary of $10,000 per annum. In the organization of this board independent dealers would have been ignored. In this one particular alone the contrast between the U. S. bill is as striking that it ought to convince reasonable people of the entire lack of similarity in the proposals. As a consequence of his veto President Roosevelt has raised the ire of the farmers of the middle west and may lose the republican nomination next year. There is, however, a prospect of a compromise and it may take the form of legislation which would enable congress to provide unlimited funds to be loaned to co-operative organizations at a low rate of interest. Mr. Coolidge favors action along this line, and it is possible that the farm block which for two years has backed a plan of farm relief which has little to commend it and which in all probability would have failed, may be disinclined to accept the reasonable compromise. It is unlikely that anything will be done at the present session of Congress.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Mrs. Turley and children left Tuesday to join Mr. Turley at the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Booth moved this week to the ranch which they purchased from Mr. A. Pentland.

Mr. and Mrs. Pentland have moved closed to West Summerland, next to Mr. Pincos's.

Miss Mary Betuzzi was a visitor to Kelowna last week.

Mr. T. B. Young leaves today on a trip to Bowden, Alberta.

Mr. Wm. Nichol was a visitor to the coast on business this week.

Harvey and Elsey are carrying a full stock of White Holland reed for basket makers.

Mrs. Boyer is again visiting her daughter, Mrs. Powell, in Prairie Valley.

Miss Freda Secord is up from Vancouver for a few days. She reports that there is quite an epidemic of measles there just now.

Cliff McWilliams was in town for a few days on business, from Vernon. He reports our spring quite a little in advance of their weather up the lake.

Mr. Charles Cavani and son Dan have returned after spending a pleasant holiday in Kelowna.

Mr. Orval Sproule went out to the coast Wednesday, after spending a few weeks here with his sister, Mrs. J. Harrigan.

Friends were pleased to see Mr. F. Carvick in town this week after spending three months in the Summerland hospital.

The Junior group of St. Andrew's C.G.I.T. will hold a sale of home-made candy, small fancy articles, afternoon tea and cup reading in St. Andrew's hall.

Mrs. "Bud" McCallum is a visitor in town, having come over from Beaverdell to spend a few days renewing acquaintances.

The annual meeting of the Art League will be held Wednesday, March 16, at 8 p.m., above the drug-store. Election of officers and important business to discuss. All invited to attend. 9-2-c

Golfers are not waiting for the Paradise links to open, but have already opened up a course at Crescent Beach. Quite a turn-out of members on Thursday enjoyed an afternoon's sport.

Mrs. M. E. Fisher has received word from her sister, Mrs. Murray that Mr. Murray stood the trip to Unity, Sask., very well, and appears to be improved in health.

Miss Sinclair entertained the members of her mission band this week, showing them many postcards of India, using a reflector lantern that delighted the little folk.

Jack Harris came in on Tuesday morning from Vancouver. Jack has not been feeling any too well for the past few weeks and the doctor has advised a three months' rest at home.

Wm. Haddrell returned from the coast where he was getting final medical attention and closing with the insurance people. The adjustment of his artificial limb has been very satisfactory he says, and the company gave him every attention while at the coast.

T. J. Garnett received word this morning that his brother Ed Garnett, who lived out of Calgary, had died suddenly Monday last. Mrs. A. E. Smith and Mrs. G. W. Williams, his sisters, live here, and Mrs. McClellan of Penticton is also a sister.

A very unusual situation was reported by the driver of the Kelowna stage. On his way down the Inokoshoro road he saw the lake frozen right across for a distance of about four miles. The air had been absolutely calm and the thermometer had registered a few degrees below freezing.

A fine pair of white swans were sighted along the Inokoshoro road just below the Experimental Station. It is hoped they will not meet with any fate such as befell others of their number last year.

Ten thousand oastern brook trout eyed-eggs have been placed in Mission

Creek by G. N. Gartrell, fisheries overseer, Summerland. The eggs were from the Nelson hatchery. Mr. Gartrell expressed his approval of the recent application of the local fish and game club to stock certain lakes.

SUCCESSFUL POULTRY YEAR

There Are Good Prospects For Coming Season—Inspection Needed

On Thursday evening the annual meeting of the Summerland Poultry Association was held. The financial statement was presented by Mr. Jenkinson in the absence of Mr. Sanderson, who is not quite recovered enough to take charge of the work.

Mrs. Fosberry, president of the association, commented on points of interest to the members. The election of officers resulted in last year's officers being maintained.

The work of the year was very satisfactory, especially the reports of satisfaction from those who bought regularly from the association. Some of these customers placed the local organization as being the most satisfactory dealers with whom they have done business.

Mr. John Tait signified his desire of starting a Boys and Girls Club if he could get at least twelve to enter, and he desired to have them start immediately. Boys and girls are to be asked to communicate with him, Mrs. Fosberry, or leave word at Mr. Sanderson's office if they wish to enter.

Plans were discussed for entering an exhibit at exhibitions at the coast this fall. It is believed that this can be done. There was expressed a need for an inspector to visit the district regularly.

BRIDGET SAYS

Try Barbecued Lamb

Cut roast lamb in thin slices and reheat in sauce made by melting two tablespoons butter, adding 3-4 table-spoons vinegar, 1-4 cup currant jelly, 1-4 teaspoon French mustard, salt and cayenne to taste.

Carrots and Peas

To serve with the barbecued lamb, serve carrots and peas. Wash and scrape carrots, cut in small cubes, cook until soft and boil in salted water or stock. Drain, add equal quantity of cooked green peas and season with butter, salt and pepper.

Baked Indian

Five cups scalded milk, 1-2 cup of molasses, 1-3 cup cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon ginger. Directions: Pour milk slowly on meal, cook in double boiler 20 minutes; add the molasses, salt and ginger; pour into buttered dish and bake 2 hours in slow oven. Serve with cream. If baked too rapidly it will not whey. Ginger may be omitted. This sounds like a lot of milk for such a little meal, but it is right.

VARSITY VS. SUMMERLAND

The basketball games on Saturday evening, attracted one of the largest crowds this season, fans all being desirous of witnessing the game between Varsity and the local Seniors.

The first game, between two Scout teams, under the leadership of Jack Shields and Billy Gartrell, resulted in a decided win for Gartrell's team, the final score being something like 20-2. Following this game the return game between Kelowna and Summerland Senior "B" teams, final play-off. The game started with the score standing 42-17, in favor of Kelowna, and the final score shows that almost the same number of baskets were netted down here, 85-83 being up on the board at the end of the game. As this indicates, the visitors had by far the best of the game, being more accurate in their shooting and working their signals with greater success. Summerland seemed unable to get their working except on one or two occasions, and their shooting was rather weak. They were somewhat handicapped also by the fact that only one spare was available, T. Harris being sick.

A. Dunston showed up well for Summerland, breaking up many of the Kelowna rushes, J. Purvos being the best of the forwards. Following is the lineup and individual score: Kelowna: D. McNaughton, 12; C. Pattman, 6; C. Boyer, 6; B. Lewis, 6; L. Lanthley; D. Lowors; G. Griffiths; G. R. Taggart, 4.

Summerland: Purvos, 8; A. Dunston; J. Dunston, 6; F. Dunston; Nield, 4; Johnston, 2.

The Varsity team caused quite a lot of amusement upon entering the gym, each member of the team wearing a Christie stiff, belted with price labels, having purchased them the night before in Kelowna; but there is nothing funny in the way they play basketball. They play the five-man defence to perfection, and their shooting is something to talk about. J. Swanson was high man, with 22 points to his credit, but each member did his share, all working together to win the game.

Summerland put up a good fight but had hard luck with their shooting, with the result that the end of the game found the score reading 36-25 in favor of Varsity. Summerland players state they found the visitors a fine bunch of fellows, clean players, and will be glad to welcome them back next year. Following is the line-up: Varsity: Swanson, McEwan, Thomp-son, Williams, McIntyre, W. Webster H. Straight, L. Buckley.

Summerland: I. Adams, C. Adams, E. Wilson, A. Wilson; H. Daniel, C. Ritchie, G. Fudge, C. McAlpine.

Liquor Bill Introduced Into Ontario House

Bill Provides for Usual Residents' Permits as in British Columbia—Also Grants Permits for Month to Visitors—May be Imbibed in Places of Temporary Residence—Brewers May Sell Only to Liquor Board, Which Will Be Placed Above the Courts.

Toronto, March 10.—Premier Ferguson introduced Ontario's liquor legislation in the House yesterday. The new bill provides for the usual residents' permits as in B. C., but also grants permits for one month to visitors. Liquor cannot be consumed in public places, but may be imbibed in places of temporary residence such as hotel rooms and camping tents. Breweries and distilleries may only sell to the Liquor Board. Inspectors are to be stationed in each establishment. No public advertising of liquor. No liquor stores in any places where Ontario Temperance Act or Local Option had been in effect. Illegal liquor selling brings jail term on first offence. The Liquor Board shall be above the courts.

PARKING BY-LAW NOW NECESSARY; LIGHTS FOR CRESCENT BEACH

School Board Request Sidewalk to School on Kelley St.—Ditchmen to be Hired by Some New Method—Roads to Receive Prompt Attention.

Tuesday's meeting of the council was devoted to several important matters, some of which were discussed at the annual ratepayers' meeting. Changes in the methods and personnel of the ditchmen, and a bylaw to control the parking of cars, irrigation problems, and a few delegations took the most of the afternoon.

The water committee was called on by the reeve to report. Mr. Wm. Barton's tender on the boxes was accepted. A new gate was required at the north main and it looked like an expensive proposition that was facing the committee. The present gate cannot be operated and is too large. It had been a piece of boiler plate taken from some other place and put into harness. The suggestion was to simply raise it and go a little further up the flume and construct a proper gate. The water committee was given instructions to act as they saw best.

The council will visit the proposed sites that might be used and authorize the work done that is needed.

SUMMERLAND WANTS ROADS SUPERINTENDENT

East and West of Lake Should Have Separate Attention—W. C. Kelley Is Delegate to Liberal Convention.

At a meeting of the Summerland Liberal Association held on Monday night, several matters of importance to the municipality were discussed, one being attention to the road from the Westbank ferry south to Pentiction.

POOLS ON PEARS HAVE BEEN CLOSED—MORE PAYMENTS TO COME.

The correspondence was the next item brought before the board. The department of fisheries had sent a letter connected with the fish hatchery. The adjustment of a water service required attention from a fire hazard point of view, and the use of sprinklers in the summer time. The final arrangements of details were left over for next meeting.

SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS

SUMMERLAND MOURNS LOSS OF DEPENDABLE CHURCH ADVISOR

Rev. J. Fergusson Millar Passed Away After Brief Illness—Constant Assistance to Summerland For Many Years—Entered into Many Church Functions Here.

On Thursday Summerland received the saddening word of the passing of the Rev. Fergusson Millar, a man who had in past years endeared himself to the people of the community. His assistance in the work of his denomination was often asked for and because he had been so relied upon the loss becomes so much the greater.

Graduating from Queen's, as B.A. in 1901, and in theology in 1904, he was called immediately to Blakeney, Ontario. He spent the last sixteen years of his life in Pentiction, where he had endeared himself to the whole community by his cheerful disposition and his activity in every object which worked for the uplift and betterment of his fellow townsmen. While never of a robust nature, he gave of his time, his energies and his means with an enthusiasm and a heartiness which was infectious. Particularly did he spare no effort to help the children and the youth of the town in their games and athletics. At picnics and sports days he was always looking after the enjoyment and interest of the children. But many of those of maturer years will miss him as a sympathetic friend and adviser. As chairman of the relief committee he did much to relieve distress in many quarters of which the general public was ignorant. No one in the community had the love and respect of his fellows to a higher degree than Mr. Millar, and it is not too much to say that no one, young or old, but feels they have lost a best friend.

When the question of building Pentiction Hospital was raised he was one of its first directors and continued as one until his death, being chairman for a number of years. His church gave him the highest honor in British Columbia, namely Moderator of Synod and Moderator of Presbytery. For many years he was closely connected with the Home Mission work of the church, and was called several times to Toronto for consultation regarding the work in British Columbia. He was a member of the General Assembly of 1925, which consummated Church Union, and he returned from it with a great message of hope and work for the United Church of Canada. He was dearly loved by his local congregation, who only two weeks ago had given him a three months' leave of absence with the thought that the relief from responsibility might help him to recovery.

His activities included membership in the Masons, Royal Arch and Elks. He was in close touch with the Scout movement, having been Scoutmaster. The Canadian Girls in Training, and every youthful organization had his helpful support. His place will be hard to fill in the community and the benediction of a loving and helpful life such as his will long remain with the people of Summerland.

Mr. Millar is survived by his wife, whom he brought as a bride to Pentiction in 1911, and by his only son, Bruce; also four brothers and two sisters, viz., Rev. J. M. Millar, D.D., of Edmonton; George, of Vancouver; Mrs. Ivor Thomas of Nanaimo, and Robert William and Elizabeth, of Kincardine, Ont. The funeral service was held at St. Andrew's church, Pentiction, Friday, at 2 p.m.

The funeral was a public one. Pallbearers were appointed from the Masonic and Elks' fraternities to which Rev. J. Fergusson Millar belonged, two from each, and two others representing the family.

FERRY MAKES SPEED TRIAL

Took Five Minutes to Cross from Kelowna to Westbank

Along with the schedule of rates to be charged by the Kelowna Westbank Ferry, which has been discussed at considerable length by the Board of Trade and interested parties, there comes the news of a speed trial of the ferry.

Took Five Minutes to Cross from Kelowna to Westbank

The male choir which is to take part in the Musical Festival is making marked progress under the leadership of Mr. Mosser. There is likely to be a splendid representation from Summerland singing in the contests in Kelowna. If arrangements can be made, a special boat will be chartered to take those who will participate in the music and others who wish to go up for the occasion to listen.

BAPTISTS CALL TO PASTOR

Expect Him Here at Close of School—Coming From Manitoba

Members of the Baptist Church received word this week that Reverend J. J. Smith has accepted their call to the pastorate. He is now at Shon Lake, Manitoba, and has been also at Strathclair.

BAPTISTS CALL TO PASTOR

Expect Him Here at Close of School—Coming From Manitoba

For some time now the congregation has been in communication with him and was pleased to receive his acceptance of the call. He will not be able to move his family until near the close of the school term, so that the congregation do not expect him until some time in May.

Killed in Japanese Quake Placed at Five Thousand

Homeless Number 75,000—Property Damage Amounts to $75,000,000—Rivers Overflow Banks—Villages Wiped Out—Another Shock Tuesday Night—Many Factory Girls Crushed or Burned to Death—Scenes of Desolation and Destruction Appalling.

Tokyo, March 10.—Some estimates place the dead in the latest Japanese earthquake at five thousand and homeless and property damage running to seventy-five millions.

Tuesday night razed the last dozen houses remaining in the village of Kuzumasa, killing two survivors of the big quake. The total damage done by the quake is placed at from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000, apart from the loss of life. Amino, a large town in which there were many factories, is a scene of desolation. Many young factory girls were crushed or burned to death in the falling buildings. Floods are turning desolated villages into vast mudholes.

BOARD OF TRADE HOLDS BANQUET IMPORTANT PROBLEMS DISCUSSED

Westbank Ferry Rated—Jam Factory Considered—Officers Elected and Assistance Given to Art League—Committee to Interview the Council on Industries.

Thirty members of the board of the board of trade turned out to the banquet and meeting on Tuesday. The president referred in complimentary words to the attention and service of the evening by the new management of the Premier hotel. He remarked that in his opinion it was the critics of the board of trade who made it impossible for members to accomplish what was in their power.

The changes in the running of the Westbank ferry were considered and quite a lot of very valuable information given to those present. The new schedule that is proposed will keep the ferry going with probably two shifts, from 7 a.m. till 8 p.m. The proposed charges came up for some opposition. The president explained that the reason the ideas suggested by Summerland had not been adhered to, was that when the Valley Boards of Trade had met they were not in unison on the question, so the tariff that is proposed reads now:

To Secure Industries There were several communications that the president read for discussion. The business men at the lower town requested the board to present to the council a request that the council state what they were prepared to do to encourage industries to establish here. There was a feeling that some definite policy should be mapped out which would enable our citizens when approached by business men, to say what help would be given. Free sites, water, taxation fixed and other inducements should be made, was the feeling expressed by several of the members. Reeve Johnston, who was present, considered the council could not do much without submitting the matter to the ratepayers, but knew that the council would do whatever was the expressed wish of the citizens in the matter.

Kelowna Ferry Rates Automobiles and trucks, with drivers, load extra: Tare weight up to 2000 lbs., $1.00; 10 tickets for $8.00. Tare weight 2000 to 3000 lbs., $1.25; 10 tickets for $8.00. ## LEGIONS' WORK REVIEWED

New Officials Appointed—Good Membership Enrolled.

Annual meeting of the Canadian Legion was held on March 9th in the Veterans' Hall. This is the first annual meeting since forming Summerland branch of the Legion, and therefore most of the business dealt with winding up the old G. W. V. A. Comrade Theo. Harmon, the retiring president, in giving his report, pointed out that in the eight months since the Summerland branch of the Canadian Legion had been formed, 69 members had been enrolled.

There were a number of other rates submitted to the members and discussed at some length. Mr. Bentley stated that the work done by Summerland board on this subject was commendable. There was not unanimity at all among valley boards in asking for the $1.00 rate to be established. He felt that as soon as the ferry became commonly used by any section a reduced rate would easily be obtained.

ART LEAGUE EXTENSION

Mr. Jack Logie was Present to Speak on the Work of the Art League and the Proposed Extension.

Mr. Logie stated that the last time he had been before the board of trade, was to tell them of the aims of the Art League. This time he was present to tell them that the aims had in a great measure been achieved. The League was now proposing, he said, to expand, and because it was a public institution, it needed the support of other public institutions.

ART LEAGUE EXTENSION

Mr. Jack Logie was Present to Speak on the Work of the Art League and the Proposed Extension.

The League desired this support because of the financial progress they had made. December sales alone amounted to over $300. The Ogonopos cards had all been sold at Christmas time, and had been sent to South Africa, Egypt and many distant points. Over 1000 visitors had been at the cabin this year. The proposed extension was the establishing of a row of cabins along the Okanagan-Cariboo Trail to sell the products of the art industry. The immediate future would give employment to twenty-five people the year round. Most tourist supply places carried stocks of goods made in Germany, Japan and other foreign lands, but this proposition intended to take its supplies from local workers.

ART LEAGUE EXTENSION

Mr. Jack Logie was Present to Speak on the Work of the Art League and the Proposed Extension.

The League now needed support in its request for sites along the highway, Mr. Logie said, for its cabins and he hoped the board of trade would see their way clear to give what all they could.

The matter caused considerable questioning and a resolution was passed supporting the movement, with instructions to the secretary that copies of the resolution be sent to different interested departments of the government.

By Our Resident Correspondent

The last of the spring pack of apples at the local Union was shipped this week.

Mrs. McIntosh and little son Peter left early this week en route on a visit to the coast.

Mr. Fred Reck, a waiter from the S.S. Sicamous, spent a few days visiting in town, a guest of his friend Eddie Williams.

Mr. Wes. Waldriff recently left for Oliver, where he has accepted a position running an edger in the mill there.

Mr. Allen Wilson recently purchased from the municipal council the property down at the old mill, known as the Kelly Douglas property.

After several week's visit at the coast Miss Candace McDougald returned home this week. She reports having enjoyed a very pleasant vacation.

His many friends regret to learn that, following a rather protracted attack of the "flu" he is confined to his bed suffering from inflammatory rheumatism.

The newly appointed board of directors for the Peachland Fruit Growers Union at their first meeting elected as follows: Mr. E. P. Smith, president, and Mr. H. P. Trimble, vice-president.

The famed boy singer, Cyril Rice, entertained a Peachland audience with his pleasing manner and splendid voice on Tuesday evening of this week, under the auspices of the local branch of the Women's Institute. A goodly representation of the community gathered in the municipal hall for the occasion: Mrs. Smalls, president of the institute, was in the chair. Miss Coldham acted as pianist, and Mr. Rice commented on the marked ability with which she handled his accompaniments. To assist the singer at intervals during the evening, Mrs. Elliott, Miss Francis Clements and Mr. C. C. Inglis were asked to sing and credibly acquitted themselves.

Among the more important activities of the Peachland municipal council, tenders were called for a supply of wood for the power house and the municipal hall. Several tenders were put in. Mr. J. L. Elliott was the successful bidder. A motion was passed to the effect that a new nuisance ground be established, and that it be on municipal property. The owner of the former nuisance ground property was accordingly notified that the municipality would not require the site any longer. It was further decided that the removal of garbage to the nuisance ground in future would have to be paid for by each individual concerned. Those wishing garbage removed may notify the municipal office, when the truck drivers will be instructed accordingly. The question of the cleaning of the interior of the municipal hall was discussed and the property committee instructed to take the matter in hand. The mill rate for 1927 was raised to 45. The school estimates for 1927 were accepted and passed by the council.

Constable Crookes met the councillors in special meeting and placed before them his resignation as municipal constable, asking that it take effect at once. His request was acceded to and the council called for applications to fill the position. There were three applications, Mr. Baptist, Mr. H. Williams and Mr. George Jones. Mr. Jones' application has been accepted and he was appointed to the position at a salary of ten dollars per month. Application for position of assessor has been called for and announcement made that particulars as to duties were to be had at the municipal office.

A letter was received by the council from the Kootenay Power and Light Company Limited, to the effect that they could not see sufficient business in and around Peachland to warrant the continuing of their line from Summerland. They went on to say, however, that if the council would let them know as to the total revenue from the present electric plant, and if the same proved encouraging they would be pleased to go into the matter further with the council. This will be interesting to those who took part in the discussion on this subject at the annual ratepayers' meeting.

year was on ground at the mouth of Bromley Creek, along the shore of the Similkameen River, and in narrow benches above the river. Test holes indicate values averaging two dollars per yard; most of this being in gold with some platinum. With a good yardage blocked out, the company is now making plans for the installation of a steam shovel, coupled to a movable grizzly and sluices for washing the gravel. This machinery has now been designed and will be fabricated in Vancouver. It should be in operation by April. The manager of the company, Mr. Norman McCormick, is also personally visiting dredging operations in Washington and California, to select a suitable machine for handling the wet ground in the leases.

On the high bench along the Tulameen river, one shaft has been sunk. Further prospecting is being carried out, but work to date is insufficient to furnish conclusive data as to value or depth. While this company has only been operating since July, it has done effective work. It has been under capable management and has given its shareholders good value for their money.

Upper Tulameen Further prospecting was done on Slate Creek, three miles above Tulameen, where the Slate Creek Syndicate, under the supervision of Mr. McCormick is driving a tunnel to tap bedrock in a tertiary channel of Slate Creek. While creek gravel has been encountered in the tunnel, the bedrock objective has not yet been reached. At last report the tunnel had come against a wall of rock, which it is thought may represent a water-fall in the old creek. Upraising is being done to ascertain the true conditions.

An English syndicate has taken up ground between Bear and Eagle Creeks on the Tulameen river, including the Tulameen Platinum, Southern and Marks leases. Tests have been carried on during the year and total recovery from known yardage has been sent to England. It is reported that this ground shows average values of eighty cents per yard. Ample water supply for hydraulic is available in Eagle Creek.

Other Operations Some prospecting was done on placers below Princeton, but no striking results have been reported. The National Holdings Limited operated a pump hydraulic in a small gulch, three miles above Princeton, but as work was discontinued in the early fall, the results could not have been up to expectations.

Summit Camp From the Eureka Andy Jensen shipped twenty-four tons of high-grade silver-lead ore to Trail. He also had his ground surveyed and is obtaining Crown grants. Mr. Jensen has succeeded in interesting American capital in the Eureka.

The Cascade Consolidated This company, which is sponsored by the C. C. Julian Company of Los Angeles, has purchased the Mary E. ground, adjoining the Eureka, and has been doing very active work all fall and winter. Sixty-two men are at present employed on the development property, three tunnels being driven on the Tulameen slope of the mountain. One of these is seven hundred feet, one five hundred and one three hundred. A fourth tunnel is now being opened. Crosscutting and raising has also been carried on. The company built, or reconstructed, 24 miles of road from Tulameen station on the Kettle Valley railroad. The government has given approximately twenty-five per cent of the cost of this road. During the fall hauling was done by truck but in December the company purchased a caterpillar tractor from Kaufman, Morrison Limited of Vancouver. Snow conditions had become so bad that it was impossible to continue haulage by truck. The tractor, with snowplough equipment, successfully solved the problem. W. D. Dornberg is manager in British Columbia for the Julian interests. An up-to-date plant, costing some $40,000, has been installed on the ground and development work is being done at a speed that has been unknown in the mining camps of the interior.

Another company that deserves favorable comment is the Princeton Mining and Development Company, which is opening a copper mine, four miles down the Similkameen river from Princeton. Although handicapped by lack of funds at certain stages, the directors of this company, of which Fred F. Foster is manager, have steadily persevered in their programme of blocking out ore, getting a maximum of work done for the money expended. This winter ten men are being employed. No. 2 tunnel is being driven four hundred feet, No. 3 one thousand feet and a second raise between numbers three and two is now up one hundred and sixty feet, all in ore. No. 2 tunnel is at present in a diorite dyke which was cut also in No. 3; the tunnel below. This dyke is one hundred and twenty-five feet wide in No. 3 tunnel. The company has at present two thousand tons of copper ore on its dump. It lies very close to the Great Northern Railway track, is equipped with ore bins and has a four hundred foot spur track connecting with the railway line. The company does not propose to undertake mill construction until ore has been blocked out and the mine opened up to maintain steady production. Values are mainly in copper with some gold and silver. It is probable that sorted ore from the dump will be shipped to smelter, satisfactory freight and treatment charge having been negotiated. This company has purchased the compressor plant formerly used in the Voigt property, Copper Mountain.

Voigt's Camp Consolidated has taken an option on Voigt's Camp, adjoining Copper Mountain. Nearly a million dollars has been spent on development of this property in the past. Consolidated has one diamond drill at work.

Coal Mines Coalmont Collieries increased their production from 115,284 to 121,199 tons for the year. Steady production was maintained with the exception of a shut-down for a short period when bush fires burnt two towers on the tramway, forcing shipments to be suspended.

Tulameen Collieries increased their production from 7,764 to 13,187 tons. This property lies three miles up the Tulameen River from Princeton on C. Hunter's farm. Mr. Hunter is managing the mine. Princeton Coal and Land Company, which produced 6,885 tons in 1925, only produced 314 tons last year. The company is now in the hands of a receiver.

Ridgeway R. Wilson has been diamond drilling and drifting on coal property close to Princeton, which he bonded from Schull and Mullen. Some work was also done on coal at Nine Mile Creek. While reports have been received that excellent coal was found in these workings, there is no definite information available as to its extent.

Boundary District Shipping mines—Beaver, Bell, Imperial, Jewel, Providence, Rentrev, Sally, Wellington. Under development—Revenge, Highland Chief, Rambler, Tiger, Standard, Gold Drop, Black Diamond, Union, LeRo.

Wallace Mountain This camp did not have the spectacular boom that appeared to be materializing, but a good deal of genuine work was done and considerable rich ore shipped.

The Bell Mine, Duncan McIntosh and Harry Lee owners, showed good results for the year. The Sally shipped 1130 tons, but did not make the spectacular dividend payments of previous years. The Sally Mines Limited has been organized, taking over the Wallace Mountain Mines Limited's property, with some additional claims. The Sally was bonded to the Federal Mining and Smelting Company in 1925, a substantial cash payment being made. The company carried out considerable work but did not find any large tonnage of milling ore and did not complete purchase. The mine reverted to the Wallace Mountain Mines in such shape that considerable work was necessary to resume the production of high-grade ore. Additional plant was installed and production is now being made on a larger scale than formerly, though revenues have been lessened by the drop in silver.

The Beaver, on which development was carried out in the summer, was closed when the silver market dropped. The Wellington was worked, with satisfactory results, by Al. Morrison, who shipped 211 tons of high-grade ore to Trail.

Greenwood Development work was carried out on the Imperial Group, Rock Creek, by the Hecla Mining Company, who optioned the property.

A Penticton syndicate, which has an option on the Gold Drop, did some further work. Consolidated has taken an option on the LeRo Group, between the forks of Rock Creek.

George White has been working the Jewel Mine, Eholt, and shipped 58 tons of lead ore. Okanagan Placer mining operations were carried out on a small scale on Cherry Creek and plant is installed for more pretentious work this year. E. I. West and W. E. Loveridge, formerly of the

MINING IN B. C. PROSPEROUS

General Conditions Good—Preparing for Further Developments

The Mining and Industrial Record has an interesting review of mining conditions in the lower B. C. country. The producing mines in the Similkameen District are Copper Mountain, Coalmont Collieries, Horn Silver, Tulameen Coal, Eureka, small placers along the Tulameen river.

Under development—Nine Mile Coal property of K. R. Wilson, Princeton Mining and Development Company, Voigt's Camp, Tulameen Gold and Platinum Recovery Company, Cascade Consolidated, Nelson Group and Boston Group.

Closed down during year—Princeton Colliery, National Holdings.

Allenby Copper Mountain Allenby Copper Mountain operated steadily throughout the year, handling on an average of two thousand tons of ore per day. Production for the year was ten thousand tons of copper, about seven thousand ounces of gold and two hundred and fifty thousand ounces of silver.

Hedley Gold Mining Company The Hedley Gold Mining Company, Limited shows a falling off in production of five hundred tons of ore handled and about three thousand ounces of gold. During the year 49,657 tons of arsenical gold ore, carrying average values of $7.35 per ton, was mined, yielding 16,450 ounces of gold; 13,778 ounces of this gold was recovered in the company's own cyaniding plant, the balance being saved from concentrate shipped to Tacoma. This concentrate contained five hundred and ten tons of arsenic, for which the smelter makes no payment, but on account of which improved treatment rates are given. It is estimated that the constant drilling campaign has been carried on to locate further ore reserves in the Hedley property. The company has bonded the Boston group one mile from the camp, from J. Stump, and is now drilling this ground. The Pittsburgh group has also been bonded from the L. W. Shatford estate. A bond has also been taken on the Nelson group on the Incomendone Mountain, six miles south of the Nickel Plate mine, and at seven thousand foot elevation. James McNulty is the owner. In the spring a road is to be completed to the Nelson group and a camp built to enable development work to be carried on. The Hedley Company is actively seeking further ore reserves. Unfortunately the rich pay in the company's own holdings seems to be exhausted, present operations yielding sufficient to cover cost but leaving no margin of profit.

Horn Silver The Horn Silver got its all-sliming plant in operation during the year but was unable to maintain production until the mine had been more fully opened up. Work is now under way to enable mining to keep pace with full milling capacity.

Placer Mining Placer production, gold and platinum, will be about $1,500 for the year. Production was made on the Southern, Marks, Ruby and National Holdings ground. A new entrant in this field during the year was the Tulameen Gold and Platinum Recovery Company. This company holds three leases along the Tulameen and Similkameen rivers. The Tulameen leases cover a high bench lying some six hundred feet above the river. Ground is also staked covering alluvium from this bench. On the Similkameen river the company holds eight leases, all of which front on the river. Two passes between the rivers have also been staked.

The main development during the year was on ground at the mouth of Bromley Creek, along the shore of the Similkameen River, and in narrow benches above the river. PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emption is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is not timber land, i.e., carrying over 5000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range, and 8000 feet per acre east of that range.

Applications for pre-emption are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner. Pre-emption must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres before a Crown Grant can be received.

For more detailed information see the Bulletin "How to Pre-empt Land."

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land, $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

HOMESTEAD LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesteads, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued, based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ton head.

offered the use of his launch for their accommodation. Great "Little Bobs," the idol of the army, the hope of the British people. Long had his warning voice been heard urging the preparation for the Armageddon that had arrived, but with the same fate that dogged the lives of almost every prophet, in every age, his voice was raised in vain, when it should have been heard and obeyed. The parting between Nena and Phillip was sad, but Nena's knowledge of the safety of her brother broke the clouds that hung over her and her usual gaiety soon reappeared, while O'Farrell was happy in anticipation of meeting her again within a short period.

Lady Caerton and her husband bade each other an affectionate farewell, fortified with the certainty of a speedy and happy reunion. The pair extended a cordial invitation to Nena and Phillip to spend some time with them in their country home after their marriage took place. Cheers upon cheer went up from the throats of the Canadians as the launch containing the ladies and Lord Roberts sheered off and made for the Hoe. By his kindly consideration for their welfare, "Bobs" had already won the hearts of the men from the Land of the Maple Leaf, and the ladies were hardly second in their thoughts on account of the severe trials they had undergone. ### OFF VARIETIES RECEIVE MORE ATTENTION

Middleton and Tait Meet With Growers and Present a Selected List of Varieties.

Another evening has been devoted to the discussion of the elimination of off varieties in the orchard and the building up of a more reasonable planting plan based on the Okanagan Valley as a whole, rather than individual localities. On Thursday night, with Mr. M. Wilson in the chair, Mr. Middleton and Mr. Tait met the growers in the interests of the department of agriculture, in St. Andrew's Hall, to discuss with them the recommendation of the committee previously appointed. On this committee were Messrs. Steuart, Huddleston, Palmer, Benmore, M. Wilson and Jno. Tait.

These men had met and drafted up a list of plantings that they would deem advisable, a list of varieties that should be retained, a list of tolerated varieties and another list that they strongly recommended should be done away with.

Mr. Tait read out these varieties which were recommended for Summerland planting: Newtown, S. Winesap, Delicious, Old Winesap, Yellow Transparent (limited planting only). The other lists were quite extensive, but were on papers handed to the growers present.

Mr. Tait explained that the toleration list showed varieties that the committee recommended should be gradually worked out and at an early date. The undesirable varieties, he said, were being severely dealt with by many growers right now. He advocated prompt but thoughtful consideration of these varieties by all growers.

Mr. Middleton considered the committee was to be relied upon to recommend the very best varieties from a production point of view and a quality consistent with what the market firms would handle. He also stated that different varieties required different handling and cultural methods and so, many varieties in an orchard made orchard work expensive. He thought the list arranged was very reasonable and he strongly pushed the idea that if the district was to make a name for itself it must limit its number of varieties.

He was thoroughly convinced, he said, that the valley must work from a waley standpoint. It is surprising the lack of allotment to sections that now exists. Any variety winning a name is and has been planted whether or not it is suitable to the district. He referred to the Cox Orange. It had brought a big price on the market this year because that apple had a light crop in the Old Country orchards and the price was high. He ventured that this would be the means of many planting it this spring and they would be making a grave mistake. Delicious because of much advertising had been planted indiscriminately from the north to the south of the valley, and north of Summerland it has been dying off, it cannot stand cold winters. In Vernon they have gone behind a percentage plan of planting, and that was a good idea he thought, and that the valley was to make a success it must figure its plantings from a dollars and cents point of view, and forget personal prejudices and fancies, and look at the proposition from the point of the selling agents' abilities to market the whole valley's output. Forty per cent McIntosh is the valley's limit for planting, twenty per cent is its present planting, but the northern end of the valley should be allowed to set out most of this variety. At the south end varieties can be successfully grown that could not be profitably handled at the north end. Jonathan is going out rapidly at the north end, it can be increased correspondingly at this end of the valley.

Nursery men are willing to help too, he stated, for it would assist them in their work. After a session of questions and answers, a vote of thanks was tendered the committee and the speakers of the evening.

"THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING" AT EMPRESS

The latest sensation in "Dear Old London" is one of interest to local theatre goers, as it is directly connected with the hilarious comedy coming to the Empress Theatre on March 15—next Tuesday.

Under a London date line of Feb. 2, the newspapers of this country carry the information that London society is all agog over the announcement that the Earl of Shaftsbury, the 20 year old heir of the Earl of Shaftsbury, has succumbed to the charms of the well known theatrical star Miss Sylvia Hawkes. The beautiful bride of this proud scion of nobility is very prominent in London theatrical circles, and has been appearing in the tremendously successful run in the British metropolis of the same big laughing hit soon to be here—"The Whole Town's Talking."

It goes without saying that a comedy which can make the same instantaneous hit in London that it made in New York must have real merit, and our play-going public can look forward with assurance to entertainment of a high order when that brilliant actress, Miss Verna Felton and her specially selected cast present it here on the above dates.

Those who were fortunate enough to see this same company a few months ago when they presented "So This is London," here, will require no urging to be present during the coming engagement when "The Whole Town's Talking" will be the bill, and it is only right and proper that our theatre-goers generally should, by their whole-hearted support encourage the coming to town of this and other companies of the same high calibre.

THANKS to the people of Summerland for the excellent support — our business is growing by leaps and bounds. A visit to our store—make all the comparisons you wish. You will understand why we are gaining popularity with Summerland shoppers.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HEARS LECTURE ON USE OF MILK

Many Interesting and Instructive Facts on the Composition of Milk—The Bacterial Infections of This Food Were Also Discussed and Its Value as a Food—Egg Day Chosen For the Hospital.

On Friday afternoon the Women's Institute held their regular monthly meeting in the parlor of the Lakeside church. Notice was received from the department that the provincial conference would be held this year at Chilliwack either in May or July, whichever was most suitable to the Institutes.

Mr. Derrick then gave an interesting address on "What Women Should Know About Milk." In considering this subject, the speaker said, "the words of that dean of dairymen, Prof. H. H. Dean of the Ontario Agricultural College, come to me, viz., 'Let us study for a short time this life-giving fluid, milk.'"

But disease germs will not be killed at that temperature. For this reason I have always considered pasteurized milk not as wholesome as the raw milk, and to satisfy myself on the point I took advantage of an opportunity to visit one of the largest milk establishments in Canada, where both pasteurized and certified raw milk are handled.

Milk must be handled carefully at the beginning by men who are trained in the work, else there is no guarantee of its wholesomeness. I have never seen a by-law governing milk supplies which was worth the paper it was printed on.

There are four disease germs sometimes found in milk, viz., diphtheria, typhoid, scarlet fever and tuberculosis. Only careful handling of milk from cow to consumer can protect against the first three; while the tuberculosis germ may be in the milk before it is drawn.

Third—Milk in relation to our diet is a lengthy subject in itself, which we will not have time to deal with except to say that all growing boys and girls should be allowed to have as much milk in its natural state as they will drink at meal time.

PEACHLAND NEWS

By Our Resident Correspondent

The regular monthly meeting of the Peachland Women's Institute was held in the municipal hall last Friday afternoon. There were 31 ladies present. The meeting was opened in the usual manner by singing the Institute Ode.

The minutes of the February meeting were read and approved as well as the treasurer's report. The convener of the library committee made a request for donations of books for the library. It was reported at this meeting that the teachers in the public and high schools are co-operating with the Institute and are having the scholars put in an exhibit of their work at the fall fair. Mrs. Dorian gave a most interesting demonstration on the making of paper chrysanthemums. Mrs. Tibbles gave her first tating lesson, eleven ladies joining the class. Daily refreshments were served by some of the younger members of the Institute. The meeting was closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The annual meeting of the Peachland Irrigation District was held in the municipal hall Tuesday afternoon. The chairman of the water board trustees, Reeve R. H. Harrington, was in the chair, and Clerk C. C. Inglis was present. Minutes of the former meeting were read and adopted. The chairman announced that the clerk would read a couple of letters before taking the financial statement and auditor's report. The letters were referred to irrigation district indebtedness, giving the figures in connection with same and showing the financial position. The clerk then read the financial statement and auditor's report, which, after a healthy discussion, was adopted. Then followed a lengthy debate on the irrigation tax sale which has been announced for the end of April.

ORCHARD HINTS

TWENTY HINTS FOR THE ORCHARDIST

(By J. Tait, District Field Inspector)

Have your vegetable and flower seeds to hand now. Seed potato orders should be placed. Secure certified seed if possible and note the increased yield.

All Fire Blight cankers should be cut out by the end of this month. Have your orchard inspected and display card posted.

Where the old apricot trees are showing blight or no crop, it would be advisable to cut the tops considerable to obtain new fruiting wood.

Much top-working of the apple may be done this spring. Have scions cut from suitable variety trees at once and buried in moist sand until required. These scions will also do for bridge-grafting mixed-grained trees.

Dormant LS spray for Blister Mite should be applied, without delay.

Nitrate fertilizer may be applied now and disked in.

where very satisfactory, and your trustees are convinced that the installations will be for the benefit of the water users.

In accordance with a resolution passed at a general public meeting in July last, your trustees informed the water department at Victoria that the district was willing to waive the existing moratorium in order to secure the promised rebates on reverted lands and this necessitated the issue of an amended tax notice revising the rates for the current year.

A considerable increase in the levy was entailed thereby, but it is hoped and expected that the ultimate benefit will be real and permanent. A brief explanation of the working of this relief is as follows:

Under the plan of permanent relief the district is allowed to become technically in default in its annual payment to the Conservation Fund to the extent of the uncollected current taxes, making no provision for delinquents. As the properties revert to the crown from tax sales the government will credit to the district a sum equal to the amount which should have been paid by the reverted lands had no moratorium been granted.

In connection with the current expenditures for the past year, your trustees wish to point out that in several departments they compare very favorably with those of 1925. It will be noted that there has been a net saving of $451.98 in general expenses, a reduction of $278.59 in cost of water distribution, and some other decreases in minor expenditures. On the other hand, the fixed assets of the district have increased in value to the extent of $1,327.61. These features were noted with approval by our auditor, who expressed his satisfaction with the general showing.

An agreement has been entered into with Mr. Dan McKay, in accordance with the instructions given to the trustees at the semi-annual meeting, agreeing to pay to him the sum of $200 if the district use the site shown by him at any time during the next twenty years.

The trustees are pleased to state that the auditor reports that he finds the books and accounts in exceedingly good shape.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

F. R. CROSS, Sec'y.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

PRE-EMPTIONS

Vacant, unreserved, surveyed Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agricultural purposes.

Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emption is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is not timber land, i.e., carrying over 5000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range, and 8000 feet per acre east of the Coast Range.

Applications for pre-emption are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner. Pre-emption must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10. per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres before a Crown Grant can be received.

PURCHASE

Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land, $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands."

HOMESITE LEASES

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites, conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed.

LEASES

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company.

GRAZING

Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued, based on number of acres, and are given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free permits are available for settlers, campers and travellers, up to ton head.

THE SUMMERLAND REVIEW

Established August, 1908 (Published at Summerland, B. C.)

WALTER M. WRIGHT, Editor and Manager

OKANAGAN HISTORY

Before all those who have been in touch with olden days in the Okanagan have passed on, a commendable effort is being made to gather as much as possible of historic facts into book form.

Up until this year it has been left in the hands of individuals by themselves. They gathered information as they had time and means, but always from a local standpoint, not from the view of the valley as a whole.

Summerland people are among those who are contributing towards the gathering of the information. It should give us here a good deal of satisfaction to know this for we will be certain that the many incidents that happened and the places and names of interest to us will not be overlooked.

Already many of the names that have been given to spots in the valley, cannot be traced to the incident that brought them into use. Only a few of the old Indian legends can now be gathered, and so the little record that is being published by the Okanagan Historical and Natural History Society will be greatly prized by very many residents of the Valley.

NIGHT SCHOOL CLASS

For a number of years now Summerland has been encouraging the night school and a good deal of interest has been worked up. This year the mechanical class has been very well attended and the work has been quite satisfactory.

There was a little handicap experienced for lack of funds, but this can be worked out another year. The class, no doubt, would have enjoyed putting the parts needed into the engine to actually fit it for running.

In Vancouver after the war, the soldiers undertook a similar line of work in the vocational school. They had an old car donated and the whole thing fitted up for the road.

If it were possible for someone to give some time to working up the finances necessary, a similar programme might be worked out for next year and as many more students enrolled as there was room for.

FRUIT SALES

Because there are so many oranges, grapefruit and lemons used, and because the retail price is really substantial, a question presents itself, should Canadian fruit growers stand by and see this money pass them and yet do nothing about it?

Surely more apples would be eaten if the same attention were given to advertising this fruit and not just apples, but Canadian grown apples. These citrus fruits are not so convenient to use, they are more expensive and are foreign grown, yet because of persistent advertising they have been placed in this country and in every little community as well as the cities.

There is much that might be accomplished in this way, then, instead of so much being spent by Canadians in support of an industry in other countries, they would receive more fruit for their expenditure, and would be encouraging an industry at home that has a large capital invested.

The fruit warrants advertising. We have splendid variety and an excellent flavored product. It can be used as ripe fruit on the table to be eaten as it grows, or it may be used in many ways cooked. This latter is a great advantage that it has over citrus fruits and it has not won its rightful place because growers, shippers and merchants do not spend anything like what their competitors do in publicity.

World of Politics

(By an Ex-Writer of the Ottawa Press Gallery.)

COMPETITION NOT THE LIFE OF TRADE

Mr. Henry Wise Wood, that remarkable proponent of co-operating marketing from the state of Missouri, now of Alberta, created something in the nature of a furor in his recent address before the members of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

WHEAT HAS A WORLD PRICE

The Prairie Wheat Pool, operating upon the safe basis of a world price, is in a position, with sixty per cent of the farmers signed up and controlling twenty-five per cent of the world's surplus, to accomplish definite results, although the wheat trade insists on maintaining that the pool has rendered no real service to the farmers.

"THIS IS OUR WHEAT"

Another outstanding idea voiced by Wood is one that is taking the business world in general a long time to assimilate: that the producer of farm commodities is the owner of the commodities, just as surely as the manufacturer owns the products of his factory, and that he is entitled to sell his produce at a fair value and not have it bought from him at the other fellow's price.

FEDERAL CUSTOMS DEPARTMENT DISAPPEARS

It will require some mental effort on the part of Canadians to remember later on that the Department of Customs has disappeared, but that will be the net result of legislation that recently occupied the attention of the Federal Parliament.

O'FARRELL OF THE PRINCESS PATS

(By J. Williamson)

(All Rights Reserved)

CHAPTER X.

O'Farrell Joins the Princess Pats

Nena determined to proceed to her home immediately on landing, but in order to relieve the anxiety of her parents she decided to wire them before leaving London.

"Sorrow pressed heavily on the hearts of the old couple. They were not aware of their son's safety, but Nena did not leave them long in suspense. Her own happiness was too bound up in them to allow her to keep them in doubt."

Nena went through her adventures many times over, in answer to the oft-repeated questions of her curious parents. The evening passed into late night before her story was ended. She entered fully into her relations with Lieut. O'Farrell, and told of her promise to marry him.

This was followed, by a cable message to the hospital authorities in New York, authorizing them to spare no expense in the care of Lieutenant Haslett, and asking that he be sent to England as soon as his health permitted.

Phillip chafed under the enforced inaction of the next few days. Thirty-three thousand men, fully equipped for war, could not be landed in short order, even in those days of expedition and invention.

As they marched through the streets of Plymouth they received an ovation such as only Britishers are capable of extending to their overseas kith and kin. Many of those in the ranks, and many who lined the sidewalks of the historic old town, had known each other in the far-away wilds of northern British Columbia, among the gold fields of the Yukon, the mining camps of the Kootenays and the Caribou, the logging camps of the Pacific Coast.

stock which peopled the country, and they had longed from childhood to see the green fields, the hawthorn hedges, the winding country lanes, the old Roman roads and walls, and the ruined Norman castles of which their elders had told them such strange and glowing stories.

With the cold, mud, rain and poor housing of the Canadian Division at Bristard, West Down South and North, Pond Farm, Lark Hill and Sling Connection, our narrative has little connection. With the chronic grumblers there was little sympathy. They were not to be found among the men from the trailless forests, the pathless mountains or trackless prairies.

"Every man there crowded round O'Farrell and silently congratulated him with that hearty hand grip that means more than a thousand words from trusted friend or companion. Phillip left the room, too full to attempt further speech, and sought his own quarters, where he remained closeted for some time before regaining his usual composure."

"During the first week O'Farrell was kept busy in camp. His duties were of a general character, but of such a nature as to barely give him leisure to get his meals. He found a few minutes in which to reply to Mr. Haslett's invitation and to express his pleasure with the intimation that his proposed marriage with Nena was agreeable to her parents.

"On the morning of the eighth day an orderly appeared at the opening of the tent in which O'Farrell was snatching a hasty breakfast before going on duty. "Colonel McHarg desires your presence, sir," he said, saluting.

"I will wait on him immediately," replied Phillip. He found the Colonel at headquarters surrounded by several of the public officers of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. He felt sure you will appreciate the honor conferred on you when you realize that none but veterans were allowed to join the regiment. Your name was submitted to the Princess Patricia, who has called her gracious consent from Ottawa. What is your decision? Will you accept the commission? I can hardly express my gratitude to you, sir, for the interest you have taken in me. I appreciate the honor and accept, with the deepest sense of my unworthiness," replied O'Farrell, emotion and pride overcoming him.

"Now that you have accepted, I may as well confess that you are envied by every man in this room. Only their loyalty to their own battalion prevented the commission being offered to one of them. You have endeared yourself to us all and we wish you luck."

Colonel McHarg picked up a roll of papers from the table at which he was standing. Handing it to O'Farrell, he said: "I have pleasure in presenting to you your commission. You will report at once to Colonel Farquhar, whom you will find one of the most loyal men in the Canadian contingent. I have already explained my intention to marry Miss Haslett, and he has agreed to grant you a month's leave of absence. And now," he continued, stepping forward and grasping Phillip by the hand, "let me congratulate you for the second time. We all admire Miss Haslett, not for her beauty alone, but for the sterling womanly qualities she has exhibited while with us. I do not care to predict how many of us will come through this war safely, but I do hope for her sake that you will be spared. Farewell, O'Farrell; may we all meet again under the shadow of the Maple Leaf."

Phillip left the room, too full to attempt further speech, and sought his own quarters, where he remained closeted for some time before regaining his usual composure. In due course, O'Farrell received his papers to Colonel Farquhar. The Colonel, who had been expecting the visit, introduced him to the officers of the regiment. By their affability and geniality they made him feel quite at ease and invited him to join them at dinner. That formal function over, Colonel Farquhar told Phillip he might begin leave the next morning, if that arrangement were in accord with his own wishes. O'Farrell admitted that it was, and, thanking the Colonel, withdrew to his allotted quarters. Here he wrote a short note to Nena to acquaint her with his good fortune and urging her to hurry forward the preparations for their wedding. He explained the need for a visit to London to replenish his wardrobe, promising to leave for Haslett Hall by the week-end.

Tallies are credited with being prolific of promise but lax in performance. How far that might have been true in ordinary pre-war days it is not possible to say, but most people had doffed their chaplains to the man of the needle and shears after the war broke out. The mighty demand for khaki was met in a most extraordinary and unaccountable manner, but the man who required a dress suit had to take a back seat until his brother for the front was supplied.

While waiting the convenience of his tailor, O'Farrell took the opportunity to see London. What man will ever forget the feeling of pleasurable anticipation with which he looked forward to his first visit to the capital of the British Empire? This applies in no small degree to the Englishman himself who, as a rule, is not a great traveller in his own country. To the Canadian, accustomed from childhood to vast, solitary silence, the prospect is wonderful, but the actual experience bewildering.

The crowded thoroughfares, the noise of the traffic, the bustle and hurry of pedestrians and the closely packed buildings, confuse his half-formed ideas of the aspect of the metropolis. He has well-defined views of Trafalgar and Leicester Squares, Parliament Buildings, Westminster Abbey, the House of Commons and Buckingham Palace. He knows the history of the Tower, Windsor Castle, the British Museum and Tower Bridge better than the average Londoner who has lived within a stone's throw of either structure all his life. In imagination he has sat in the strangers' gallery of the House of Commons and listened to the great politicians, and he has heard the mysterious whisper of the masses around the great dome of St. Paul's. He has seen the Lord Mayor's show and called the "Pharos," just as many thousands of London's citizens have, in some moving picture show, but he never walked the Strand from Charing Cross to Ludgate Hill before, and he cannot sit his imagination to the human flood that dashes along as relentlessly as the roaring rapids of his native land.

Such was O'Farrell's experience, though the picture, in his case, may not be perfect in perspective. Large cities were not strange to him, yet he discovered many new sensations during his visit to London. Packing his purchases was a task calling for much care. In addition to his own requirements he had bought several presents for Nena and her parents. He left his hotel at midnight and caught the express from Euston to Liverpool, where he arrived in the early morning to find Mr. Haslett on the platform waiting for him. Snatching a few hours' rest at the Adelphi, they motored over to Haslett Hall, which they reached as lunch was about to be served. Nena greeted Phillip with quiet reserve, but her heart went out with overwhelming love to the man who was soon to become her husband. (To be continued)

"WHAT HO! IS THE KING'S BREAKFAST READY OR MY QUEEN? - I WOULDST REPAIR TO THE CITY AS I HAVE GOBS OF WORK TO DO THIS DAY!"

"DON'T I COUNT FOR ANYTHING? AROUND HERE!"

"PAPA WILL JUST HAVE TO BE PATIENT TILL I GET MY LITTLE BOYS FACE ALL WASHED UP AND WON'T HE!"

"NEVER MIND - I CAN DO WITHOUT BREAKFAST - I DON'T MEAN ANYTHING AROUND THIS HOUSE!"

"NOW DON'T BE CHILDISH!"

"AND SO THE DAY WAS COMPLETELY SHOT TO PIECES."

"I DON'T TAKE NO ABUSES FROM NO MAN - MUCH LESS FROM SUCH AS YOU -"

"YOU'LL HAVE TO WAIT TILL I GET WILLIE OFF TO SCHOOL"

"MOUNTED POLICE INDIANS ATTACK"

(Continued from Page One) Willie Ignace. They were brought before Magistrate Pope, in Penitentiary, Tuesday, the school cases being disposed of by a fine of $10 and costs.

When the assault cases were called Wednesday morning, Mr. E. W. Wood, who appeared for the Indians, laid objection to the hearing of the charge against Francois Timoykin on the grounds that certain remarks made by Magistrate Pope in the previous cases might be construed as prejudiced. Magistrate Pope concurred and Magistrate W. G. Wilkins was asked to take a place on the bench. Indian Agent F. J. C. Ball also gave assistance during the trial, bringing out several points in connection with the grievances of the Indians. All the Indians except Timoykin pleaded guilty to the charges of obstruction, but claimed they only did so when one of their women was placed under arrest. Magistrate Pope imposed fines of $10 and costs in each case, but pointed out the law placed the penalty at $100 fine or imprisonment for two years. He took a lenient view of the case because of the wrong impressions they held of the intentions of the government in erecting schools on the Indian reserve. Mr. Ball also pleaded leniency for the accused, stating they had been influenced by others to resist arrest. On behalf of Francois Timoykin Mr. Woodward claimed that no assault had been made by his client except that he refused to be handcuffed. The evidence of Inspector R. L. Cadiz of the R.C.M.P. and of Constables Carnae and Woodcock was to the effect that when the constables tried to effect arrest on the morning of Tuesday, the Indians gathered in a threatening manner and they were unable to carry out their duties. Returning in the afternoon, accompanied by Corporal O'Reilly and the Indian agent, Mr. F. J. C. Ball, Woodcock and Carnae attempted to arrest Timoykin, when they were attacked by 25 to 30 men and women. A free fight took place in the council hall and the officers had to fight their way to the door with their prisoners. Cut heads and faces were in evidence in the court house yesterday as evidence of the severity of the melee. The officers' uniforms were also badly damaged. "Timoykin has been active among the Okanagan Indians on the Penitentiary reserve for some time past and has caused much anxiety to Indian Agent Ball. The band he is leading is composed of the most vicious elements to take from them the land on which the school was recently built, and Timoykin wrote to Ottawa complaining of the supposed injustice. There is some reason for their discontent, however, apart from the present trouble, in the fact that 14,000 acres of the reserved lands on the west side of Okanagan lake were taken from them some time ago and they were not given any compensation from the government other than a school built on the reserve by the government.

WHEN GOOD ADVICE IS BAD

A farmer wrote to the editor of an agricultural paper asking for a method of ridding his orchard of the gnawing-plague. In the same mail was a request from an anxious mother about her baby twins who were having a hard time teething. The editor's stenographer mixed the replies with the result that the farmer received the following: "Wrap flannel cloths around their throats. Rub their gums with castor oil and massage their stomachs twice a day." The anxious mother received this startling advice: "Cover with any straw. Soak thoroughly with cold oil and apply a match. The little pests will soon stop bothering you."

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Kelley, who have been at Vancouver for the past week, returned home on Wednesday. Mr. Kelley was successful as counsel in two important matters in the Supreme Court, which were heard in Vancouver on Monday.

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held at Summerland on Wednesday, March 9th. There was a good attendance and addresses were given by Mesdames James, Welch and Wright. Officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Mrs. J. Shepherd; secretary, Mrs. C. Mitchell; treasurer, Mrs. G. Harding. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Smith & Henry are putting up additional accommodation to their premises. Excavation has been finished for a new coal shed and the cement retaining wall is now being put in. They will have very efficient accommodation for their trucks and school vans.

Borton's place is probably the busiest in Summerland just now. Three-quarters of the large measuring boxes for irrigation connections are completed, and the small ones will be started immediately.

Harold Arthur, the little four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Neve, was taken suddenly ill, Monday, stricken with meningitis, and passed away about eleven o'clock the same night. The little fellow was familiarly known as Bud. The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved parents. Mrs. Neve, a daughter of Postmaster Bowering, was formerly a resident of Summerland.

LIBERALS' CONVENTION

was approved. Better terms were discussed by the premier, who showed the unfairness of the position B. C. was in, and the convention approved of a conference between the Dominion and other provinces to improve relations. Social legislation was widely discussed and a number of resolutions passed under this head. Mr. Kelley moved the resolution approving the course of the Dominion and B. C. governments as to old age pensions, which was carried. B. C. had been the first province to introduce legislation on old age pensions.

Mr. Kelley says the opinion is widely held at the coast that the Conservatives are feeling some of their members erred in playing too much politics at the recent session, and making serious charges which were untrue and cannot be proved, and the Liberals expect the results of the several inquiries under way will recoil with damage on the Conservatives. When it was proposed at the convention to discuss certain matters in camera, so the press would be excluded, Premier Oliver rose and said: "In my political life I have done nothing that I am afraid to have anybody know. If they have done nothing that they are ashamed to have known. When the time has come that the Liberal party does things it is ashamed to have the public know, then it is time to disband the Liberal party." The convention cheered this speech again and again and unanimously resolved to throw the doors wide open, and the reporters were called in to report all the discussions and speeches.

Kamloops and Penticton contended for the next convention, and on a vote Kamloops won out.

PENTICTON PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO REV. J. FERGUSSON MILLAR

Residents Turn Out in Their Hundreds to Take a Last View of Beloved Pastor—Impressive Burial Service in Charge of Local Freemasons — Boy Scouts Line Up With Draped Colors—Memorial Service Attended by Representative Clergymen.

Residents of Penticton turned out in their hundreds Friday afternoon to pay a last tribute to Rev. J. Fergusson Millar. Over 150 automobiles attended the funeral cortege to the cemetery and the surrounding towns and districts were represented by many of their public men.

The funeral service was held in St. Andrew's United Church, Main Street. Rev. H. Feir of Oliver, chairman of Kamloops-Okanagan Presbytery, conducted the service. The address was given by Rev. W. H. Smith, D.D., principal of Union College, Vancouver and president of the B. C. Conference of United Churches. Prayer was offered by Rev. G. A. Wilson, D.D.; superintendent of missions. Scripture was read by Rev. A. E. Whitehouse, acting secretary of the Presbytery. There were also present on the platform Rev. A. W. McMinis of Kelowna, Rev. J. A. Doud, Rev. A. McMillan, Rev. Thomas Colwell, Rev. William Reed and Rev. J. A. McKeen.

Following the service, the remains were taken in charge by the Orton Lodge of Freemasons, of which body Rev. J. F. Millar was a prominent member. At the graveside the fraternity gathered round, while Bro. Kirkpatrick conducted the impressive burial service of the Order. Paying a last tribute to the departed, evergreens were strewed upon the coffin by each of the brethren in turn.

About one hundred wreaths were sent by friends in Penticton, while others were received from almost every town on the lake.

The Boy Scout troops lined up outside the church, with colors lowered and draped. The reverend gentleman was an enthusiastic supporter of the Scouts and was at one time their Scout Master. He was lately active in the endeavor to provide the boys with a drill and recreation hall.

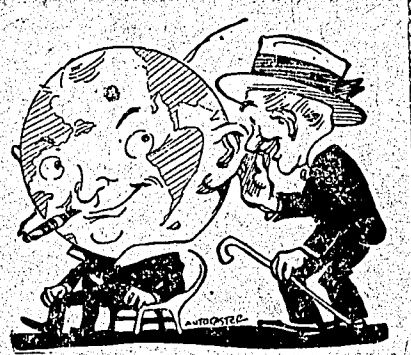

From 1:30 Friday afternoon all the stores in town closed their doors until 3:30. The public school children were also dismissed for the whole afternoon. The remains were on view in St. Andrew's church from 12 to 2 p.m., hundreds taking the opportunity to bid adieu to the departed clergyman.

Basketball spectators and players stood for one minute in silence at the hoop games on Thursday evening in a tribute to Rev. J. Fergusson Millar, president of the local basketball association, whose death occurred Wednesday. The Seniors also wore crepe on their white over-sweaters. In the passing of this fine sportsman, the athletic circles of Penticton have suffered a loss which only time and the inability to successfully fill his place will bring home to the players. He was universally liked and respected by all and his unselfishness in giving much of his precious time in filling executive positions on different sports societies and coaching the players of different games, only helps to speak for the fitness of his character.

On Sunday evening a memorial service was held in the Senator Shatford auditorium, which was attended by representatives of almost every religious organization in the municipality. Several of the churches withdrew their usual Sunday evening services to give the congregations an opportunity to attend.

Rev. A. E. Whitehouse presided and on the platform were representative clergymen. Rev. Mr. Bowbrick read the Scripture lesson; Rev. A. W. K. Herdman offered prayer. Rev. Harry Feir, a friend of many years' standing, spoke of the personal intimacies he had had with deceased, instancing many incidents which showed the fine spirit of service and sacrifice which was ever to the forefront in times of need. Rev. A. E. Whitehouse of Penticton, in a brief meditation, gathered together the tributes that had been made into a compressed sermon on "The Sacrament of Life," earnestly beseeching the large audience to regard the life of their beloved friend not merely as that of an active citizen but as a vehicle of Divine grace the use of which was their responsibility. The service was most impressive.

"The Best for Less"

Choir's History Parallels England's

(1) Choir boys of Westminster Abbey waving good-bye to England as they sailed on the C. P. "Montrose" for Canada. (2) The Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor, Chaplain to His Majesty, chatting to the senior officers on board the "Montrose." (3) Six century old cross made from a beam of Westminster Abbey, presented to the Anglican Church at Windsor, Ontario, by the Dean of Windsor.

The history of England and the history of Westminster Abbey and St. George's Chapel, in Windsor Castle, are so closely allied that the long story of England's glory is told, almost completely, in the pages of the latter.

The gentlemen of His Majesty's Chapel and thirteen boy choristers of Westminster Abbey, who are making a complete tour of Canada, represent the most historic choir in the world; one whose history dates back to the reign of Edward III.; to the days when the great-grandfather of Columbus watched the ships sail west from Genoa, and feared lest they might drop over an unknown edge; and to the days of the Rockingham reign in Canada. Just as the choir has sung on various occasions at King George's request, the choristers first sang to the order of Edward III. in the Chapel of St. George at Windsor, six centuries ago.

For the first time in 600 years this famous choir has, as a body, visited outside of England. Their Canadian tour began at Fredericton and was scheduled to extend over the Canadian Pacific All-Red route to Vancouver and return. The visit is not only a mark of inter-empire courtesy, but a gesture that should do much to reveal possessions common to both Canada and Great Britain. They were brought to Canada under the auspices of the National Council of Education.

Accompanying the choir are the Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor, Chaplain to His Majesty; Rev. Edmund H. Follows, director of the choir of St. George's Chapel, and Sydney H. Nicholson, organist of Westminster Abbey.

The Dean of Windsor brought with him to Canada a cross made from a beam of St. George's Chapel, 600 years old, which he presented to the Anglican Church at Windsor, Ontario.

ive and will live for many years to come in the memory of all who were present. There were few dry eyes within the building.

The United choirs of St. Andrew's and Trinity, together with the Orchestra, led the music, under the leadership respectively of B. C. Bracewell and Mr. Whimster.

Ex-Reeve J. Kirkpatrick spoke in eulogistic terms of the splendid work Rev. J. F. Millar had accomplished during his sixteen years residence in the municipality, especially referring to his untiring efforts of the younger generation by his example and precept.

Rev. Principal J. M. Millar of Edmontan, brother to the deceased gentleman, said a few words of thanks for the sympathy and tenderness shown to the bereaved family, not only by the people of Penticton, but by the whole province of B. C. Rev. Dr. Millar closed the service by giving the benediction.

ORIENTAL SITUATION IS SERIOUS; DELEGATIONS BEFORE COUNCILLORS

Board of Trade Asks Council to Adopt Policy For Industries—Water Users Want to Come Under Summerland System—New System Water Meter to be Installed—New Road Preparation to be Used—Light For Crescent Beach.

On Tuesday there was considerable business of importance at the council meeting when delegations and communications of importance were received. The board of trade had a delegation there to discuss the adoption of a policy on helping to establish industries. Crescent Beach request for light connection was in again, with N. Higgin presenting the petition a second time. The Oriental question received a large portion of the time allotted to delegations and some frank statements with reference to the Summerland's interests were brought out. A policy and to be made with regard to sections of outlying lands which use the same source of irrigation reserves as Summerland. This arose over a request from Mr. Norris as to property at Faulder.

There was a request in for a water connection so that the land in question could be sold. The purchaser was a Japanese and this started a very serious discussion. There were many who had put themselves out considerably to prevent property passing to Orientals, and the council did not feel at all disposed to favor the idea. In fact they went so far as to offer to try and secure a white tenant for the land. There was a feeling expressed that the Orientals were being pushed out of the fisheries and back on to the land where there was a less effective organization to oppose them. They even went so far as to say that unless a most drastic position was taken on the question, Summerland was going to be selected as a fighting ground, and now that we had established our own irrigation system, built up the best consolidated school system in the province, had municipal ownership of many of our utilities, it was an exceedingly shortsighted policy not to make a most decided stand against the invasion. The connection was left in abeyance.

FLUME WORK PROGRESSES

Garnett Hill Section Finished—Frames Up For Steel Flumes

Construction work on the flumes about the municipality is progressing under pressure from Foreman Tomlin. Already the framework is up for the major portion of the steel from the Booth orchard across Mrs. Begg's toward C. Pines's. A slight change will be made and the old ditch closed there and connection secured with the steel flume coming behind the school.

Another section of metal lined fluming near R. J. Hutchinson's was taken down where the frame work had given way and a new flume put in. This work was completed the first of the week and the men moved to other sections.

MORE PRIZES FOR FESTIVAL

Another Day Needed to Hear All Contestants—Big Time Anticipated

Keen interest through the whole length of the valley is being taken in the Musical Festival in Kelowna. There has been another day added and the event will now extend from April 28th to 30th inclusive. Without doubt this will be the big musical event of the year. Special arrangements for transportation have had to be made for these dates. Intending competitors and those musicians who have not so far given it their consideration are not yet too late to put in an entry.

Since the syllabus was published many special prizes have been donated, amongst them being a silver cup for the winner obtaining the highest marks in classes 12, 13, 14 and 15 for boys and girls solo and young vocalist classes. A special prize for the winner obtaining the highest marks in classes 18 and 19 (junior pianoforte); a silver cup for the winner obtaining the highest marks in classes 24 and 25 (junior elocution); and a silver cup for the highest marks obtained in classes 6, 7 and 8 (adult choir). Entries from Summerland already include two mixed choirs and one boys' choir from the public school; one male voice choir; Canadian Legion, and a few individual entries. The local committee would like to see more solo entries being made. In addition to the medals awarded to winners, certificates will also be given for first and second place, and in case of ten or more entries, for third place. A challenge shield has been donated for the highest marks obtained in the juvenile choir classes.

SENDING OUT FINAL CHEQUES

Co-operative Growers Will Have Cheques Out First of Week

FIRST OF SERIES OF RADIO TALKS

Universal Radio of Canada Will Broadcast Talk on Cariboo Trail

The first of a series of radio talks advertising the Okanagan-Cariboo Trail will be broadcasted by the Universal Radio of Canada, on Sunday evening, March 27, at 9:30 o'clock, from station C-F-Y-C, Lulu Island, Vancouver, B. C., in the course of a mixed programme sponsored by the Greater Vancouver Radio Association. The Okanagan-Cariboo Trail Association has arranged to have two such talks broadcasted, one at 9:30 p.m., next Sunday, March 27, and one at the same time on the following Sunday, as a test as to the value of radio advertising. If these show satisfactory results some further talks will be sent out on the air.

Addressing the Kelowna Board of Trade recently, Mr. M. S. ## ORGANIZER NOT YET APPOINTED

An official statement given out by J. E. Carpenter, secretary of the Conservative Association, following a meeting of the organization committee of the British Columbia Conservative Association, Friday night, reads as follows: "The reports which have emanated from Victoria, announcing the appointment of W. A. McKenzie, M.L.A., as provincial organizer of the Conservative party are erroneous. The committee received reports from over 80 organizations since the Kamloops convention, and are now working out plans for a thorough system of organization in the different sections of the province, which will be announced in due course."

HOW THEY DO IT IN ONTARIO

Merchant Combats the Mail Order Competitors With Advertising

What appears to be a most effective way of counteracting the baneful inroads of mail order business into the rural sections has been adopted by Pedlow's dry goods store, Renfrew, Ont., in advertisements in the Renfrew Mercury. The plan has been one of simply exposing all supposed "bargains" by showing that they are not bargains at all, and that just as good goods may be purchased in local stores at lower prices than are quoted in the catalogues. On one list, taking up four columns of The Mercury, it was shown that from 10 per cent to as high as 70 per cent could be saved by purchasing these in Renfrew. This certainly is good medicine, and more of it should be made use of by the merchants affected.

TONG WAR STARTS THROUGHOUT STATES

New York, March 24.—Deadly warfare between Chinese gangs in widely scattered sections of the United States flared up today resulting in five deaths and three persons shot.

Last week's report of Jack Logie's address on early Indian history of the Okanagan covered only the first part of his story. We have been requested to give a report of the points that we had passed over. It was an interesting part, too, and many will no doubt be interested in it.

The food of early days showed the country to be a real Paradise for the Indians. One writer said that he had counted five hundred deer on one occasion between the points where now are the towns of Summerland and Peachland. This wonderful wealth of provisions was known far and wide, and because there was no lack of Okanaganians were considered a very rich tribe by the northern Indians.

Not only was there plenty of fish and game but bulbs and roots. The curious cooking method seems now to be unique. The Indians did not make pottery nor could they handle metals, but boiled their food in birch bark containers. On the face of it this seems impossible but they got around the difficulty by heating stones and dropping them into the water, and laid the tubers on racks of reed in the water.

Their fireplaces are yet to be seen about the country. They camped at the same places and built their fires up against the same tree trunks or stumps and so gradually burned out a fireplace.

For their bows they used generally the yew tree wood. Because they had few wars they used to exchange in times of peace, and so secured better wood and better arrow heads. There were not many flint arrowheads because there is no real flint in this country. One of the arrow heads must have come from the Yosemite Valley, possibly dropped by a hunter. It had been picked up in Garnett Valley. It may have been secured in some trading done at a distance and brought home by some of the local Indians.

The clothing was of good weaving. Several pieces were shown. The decoration showed marked taste and development. They did not know the art of making pottery, at least they did not use it because they used stone, wood, or bark in preference. The baskets were very sturdy and well put together. They had to be because they were used to carry heavy loads. Many of these were made of twisted cedar roots and cherry bark, and were decorated in a very skillful manner with various stains.

They left traces of paintings. There are some at Dog Lake, at Naramata and at Oliver, and each of these has its own meaning. Some of these pictures he gave interpretations of.

The education of the medicine men was quite a story in itself. If a young Indian decided he wanted to follow the calling he was required to follow a picture of some story. If his painting stood the ravages of the weather and exposure he was passed into the circle, if it was washed off by the rains and elements then he could not go ahead with his idea.

PEACHLAND NEWS

By Our Resident Correspondent

Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Lipsitt of Summerland motored up and spent part of a day visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Bullock last week-end.

Mrs. Wright of Summerland motored up on Friday of last week to attend the W.A. of St. Margaret's church, held in the municipal hall.

The members of the local Lady Orange Lodge are busily engaged this week preparing for the tea which they are holding on Saturday in aid of the True Blue Orphanage at New Westminster.

Bishop Doull accompanied the Rev. H. A. Solly from Summerland on Sunday last and conducted the afternoon service in St. Margaret's church in Peachland.

Friends of the family will regret to learn of the death in a Vancouver hospital, of Ned Drought, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Drought of Westbank, former Trepanier residents. Ned went to the coast last year and was employed in the city. He has been ill for nearly six months and passed away on Saturday last.

Mr. O. G. Miller had the misfortune to suffer an accident while plowing at the Trepanier townsite Tuesday. The horse stopped suddenly, which caused the plow handle to prod Mr. Miller in the groin, and although he went on working for a little while, he soon had to give in and had to be hustled away to the hospital in Summerland, suffering quite severely. Definite word has not yet been received as to Mr. Miller's condition.

Peachland experienced quite an innovation this week when a couple of men came into town operating as chimney cleaners. This is the first time this occupation has been conducted as a trade or profession since Peachland first came on the map. These chaps were awarded several jobs cleaning private home chimneys and pipes, and the school, Baptist church and the municipal hall.

The community Trail Ranger organization which has been conducted in Peachland now for two years and the older boys have organized as a Tuxis Square to advance in the work. New members are being added to each organization. The Rev. T. A. Sadler is taking up the work as Mentor of the Trail Rangers and Mr. McCall, former Mentor of the Trail Rangers, is continuing with the older boys as their Mentor. The both groups are quite enthusiastic. The C.G.I.T. girls are getting well under way now with their branch of the C. S. E. T. programme. The girls are holding their meetings on Thursday afternoons after school. The boys have been conducting their meetings on Friday evenings, but there is some talk of a change of time of meeting for both Trail Ranger and Tuxis.

Word has been received in town that Eddie Cousins, well known to many here, was married the other day in Greenwood, and his home town friends are wishing all the happiness of the occasion on him and his bride. Eddie, with his brother Francis, and Lorne Shaw, have for some months past been employed at Beaverdell and that is where he is making his home still.

OKANAGAN FALLS

Mr. and Mrs. A. Jakins of Oliver spent the week-end visiting at the Falls.

After spending the winter on the townsite, Mr. W. McLean has this week moved his family back to the ranch.

Mr. A. Silvester spent the week-end the guest of his parents in Penticton. Mr. M. Garwood accompanied Mr. Silvester on his return.

Mrs. W. McAllister, who has been very ill for some time, is reported as being slightly better. May the improvement continue. Mrs. Crabb and Willie Thomas are also said to be convalescent. It appears to us that Okanagan Falls has been having far more than its share of sick folk the last while. We hope that spring weather will soon clear up the sickness.

Mr. Durson, the well known trapper, will reside with Ira Dalrymple for a short time. Mr. Durson plans to trap the colony of beaver which has lately made their home in our midst. These busy little animals have located near the end of 5th street was in an unsafe state of repair, so the municipal council took action and arranged to have it taken down. It has been there for many years and was the scene of aquatic sports, in the days when the towns on the lake used to put on a gala day once a year, yieing with each other with the war canoe, single and double sculls, pie-plate canoeing and swimming.

BEST VARIETIES OF APPLES MUST BE CULTIVATED

The varieties best suited to it, also keeping in view market requirements, and to go away from growing odd varieties, difficult to market. It was unfortunate for the fruit business that so many varieties did so well in so many different sections.

The plan favored by the department was to appoint in each locality a small committee of growers and shippers and any others who would be influential in deciding the varieties best suited to each section, their decision to be ratified by a larger public meeting, and then a conference of the whole Okanagan Valley to be called to decide upon the conclusions reached by the district meetings.

From consultation with shippers, it had been ascertained what respective percentages of an average 3,000,000 box crop could be handled in the principal varieties. The result was that the recommended sorts were reduced to eight, including McIntosh, Jonathan, Delicious, Yellow Newtown, Wealthy, Winesap, Rome Beauty and Stayman Winesap.

Not Over-Planted Shippers reckoned that McIntosh could form 40 per cent of the total crop, which meant that there was no over-planting of that variety, as was believed by many people, but that there was still room for expansion, as the 1925 survey gave the McIntosh percentage of total number of trees as 20.4. The McIntosh was a good apple for storage and for export.

For Jonathan the percentage that could be marketed was 15, while the planting was 16.5, so that no further planting of that variety should be done. The planting of Delicious was also up to the marketing percentage being 9.6 for number of trees as against 10 per cent. Delicious had not proved hardy in the north end of the valley and the trees were being taken out there by the use of a hardy stock, such as Canada Baldwin or Winter St. Lawrence, upon which to bud or graft Delicious, it might be possible to get away from winter injury.

More Could be Done The marketing percentage for Yellow was 10 per cent, while the acreage was only 5.1 per cent, so that some more planting could be done. The variety was tender in northern sections unless a hardy stock was used. Rome Beauty, with 4.7 per cent of the total number of trees was about up to its marketing percentage of 5. It was a hardy tree and should be grown more in the north end of the valley than the south.

Yearly were over-planted, with 8.5 of the acreage as against a possible marketing percentage of 5. It was a variety that had not received a square deal, as it was a much better apple in September and October than the McIntosh, which was not really fit for market so early, and if the Macs could be held back until about December

MARRON VALLEY

Amongst the women there seems to be a revival of the old time "arts" of hooking mats, picking quilts, carding, spinning and knitting wool, crocheting and knitting laces, etc.—not a reversion to the past, but, to quote Kipling, "the wheel comes full circle."

The farmers are very busy with fencing, getting the year's wood supply, caring for their animals and preparing for the spring work.

Several of our valley folk plan to go to O.K. Falls Friday evening to attend the supper and dance given by the Women's Institute.

Also made the trip as far as the post office last Wednesday, the first in some weeks, but our telephone and mail services have been uninterrupted all winter.

ist and the Wealthies protected, the latter would fill the bill for fall apples and fill the Not Given Square Deal. He did not think the McIntosh was given a square deal either. It was forced on the market much too soon and if held back, it would be a better apple and would be better received. It was topping the market in New York today, beating out the Montana Macs, which were softer and not so good.

There was room for considerable expansion in Winesap and Stayman Winesap, both valuable varieties, the marketing possibilities of Winesap being 10 per cent of the total Okanagan production, while the acreage was only 2.7 per cent, and for Stayman 5 per cent of the total crop as against a planting of 1.2 per cent.

Other varieties of apples could be eliminated. The Valley was not in such bad shape, as the over-planting of unsuitable varieties was not serious in extent, but readjustment of varieties to the localities in which they did best was a matter of the utmost importance.

Get Behind the Movement He wished to leave with them the idea of inducing every one to get behind the movement for elimination of unsuitable varieties, and to counter the influences that induced growers to plant a few of this variety and a few of that. For instance, C.K.'s Oranges had fetched abnormally high prices this year, but owing to conditions on the British market which might not recur for a number of years, and, unless headed off, that variety might be extensively planted from end to end of the valley.

He hoped the board would be able to get a committee of growers and shippers to go into the matter of varieties thoroughly, and look ten years ahead in forming their conclusions. It was not to be expected that the growers could pull out all their odd varieties within one or two years, but by specializing on the best kinds the others would gradually go out. In Wenatchee district the growers were pulling out trees wholesale, having got down to a dollars and cents basis there, but the same quantity of total area was not yet available here, otherwise it would be much easier to deal with the problem.

CAUSE OF BREAK-DOWN IN APPLES

Picking at right time The question of picking apples at the right time was of great importance to orchardists, this being largely determined by the apple's color. The apple's unblushed side presented three different stages, distinct green, green-yellow and distinct yellow, and as it should not be harvested too ripe, the middle stage was the correct one.

To enable orchardists to recognize this middle period the Summerland Experimental Station has prepared a chart showing these color stages, with an opening on the opposite side in which an apple could be placed and compared. Results Compared Possible after-harvesting treatment as a cause of breakdown had also been investigated. The use of sulphite wrapping paper, oiled paper and loose storage all showed practically an equal amount of breakdown. It had, however, been proved that "scald" could be minimized in all varieties except Yellow Newtown, by the use of oiled paper.

Results from common and cold storage were compared, and it was shown that a proper temperature delays breakdown but does not prevent it. In connection with the storage of apples, Mr. Palmer exhibited an ingenious invention by Dr. J. R. Magnus, formerly of Oregon and now of Washington, D.C., by which the hardness—and thus the keeping quality—of apples could be determined with accuracy. This instrument is now being used with much success in local cold storage warehouses.

Brief reference was made to "water core" and "corky core," which were often confused with breakdown, and also to frost injury. In the latter case Mr. Palmer advised that apples should be left alone and they would sometimes recover. Honor Their Alma Mater In conclusion, Mr. Palmer said that the reputation of the Jonathan apple, which had unjustly been much impaired by its tendency to breakdown, was gradually coming back, as it had been proved that good fruit, properly harvested, was not very liable to this injury.

In moving a vote of thanks, Prof. P. A. Boving complimented Mr. Palmer on his paper and said it was highly gratifying to see that young men who had graduated from the university were doing such important work and bringing honor to their Alma Mater.

WARSHIPS SHELL CHINESE TROOPS

(Continued from Page 1) In the afternoon the Cantonese troops looted British, American and Japanese consulates, wounded the British Consul and killed the Japanese Consul. The number of American civilians killed and wounded is uncertain, but it is feared that the number is large.

The British and American naval commanders have presented an ultimatum to the Cantonese commander at Nanking stating that unless all foreigners are brought to the British and American warships by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, they will open fire on Nanking and treat it as a military area. The Chinese General is given until eleven o'clock tonight to appear on the British cruiser Emerald and start negotiations.

Nanking is reported on fire. The city's population is one-quarter million. It is 120 miles up the Yangtze from Shanghai.

THE MEANDERINGS OF "MAC"

IN COME TACKS

A few days ago I received in the mail a very bulky envelope, the heftiness of which caused my expectations to rise to the heights of the Hope mountains, and then, after I had eagerly examined the contents thereof, sent me into the dismal depths of despair, as low as the bed of the Grand Canyon.

It was only Income Tax forms in triplicates—er, I mean—in triplicate. Why I should thus be complimented by the provincial assessor was beyond my comprehension, except that perhaps he sends them out on principle to everyone whose name begins with "Mac."

However, I listened to thank him for the honor, protesting that it was a gross mistake for I hadn't sufficient income, coming in, to justify spoiling such nice paper, but I'm afraid that provincial assessors have no sense of humor when discussing "income tax"—neither has anyone else that I ever met.

Well, it was no use delaying the business of reporting the incoming and outgoing of my wealth, so, digging out the triplicates from their hiding place I carefully read the first one over. I also scanned the second and third. They were all the same, and I didn't understand much more about the thing than I did about the first.

I found out, however, that there was a reward given for filling the forms out in proper style, and that was, if I returned two copies to the office of origin I could have the third all to myself.

And I also discovered that, if I failed, refused or neglected to furnish such returns within the given period, I would be liable to heavy penalties, the exact proportions of which were not stated, but should be one tempted, induced or enticed to contemplate evading the business, there was an invitation to read up the penalties in the "Taxation Act."

I wonder how many people have ever been curious enough to read up that section of the "Taxation Act," I wonder.

Now I've got that job off my hands I feel better.

My net income from business, as per statement of prophetic loss, was easy. So were my salary and wages, but I had to hesitate on the professional fees. It was only when a good friend pointed out that my rank amateur standing as a golfer or billiard player precluded me from the professional class that I passed on to the next question.

The latter did not worry me, neither did the rest until I came to "Income From Other Sources." That clause, I am sure, was inserted for fellows who occasionally sit in on a poker game. It kept me guessing as to whether I should report that two bucks I won in a game last spring, until another kind friend reminded me that I dropped twenty-five dollars in the next game, and then I ruled the motion out of order. Still, it's wonderful how a fellow only remembers the times he won a dollar or two in a game.

Dividends from bonds, debentures and shares left me cold. I once bought some shares in an aluminum mine and I'm still waiting for the dividends—in fact, I was never able to get any reply from the address which the prospectus gave as the registered office of the company.

After filling in all enquiries and a few more, telling the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, I found that the darned thing wouldn't balance for the total exemption allowed was greater than my income by several hundred dollars; and furthermore, when I approached the provincial assessor about the matter, he said it was impossible for me to get a grant from the government to make up the deficit.

What's the use of having the privilege of a large exemption if your income isn't large enough to allow you to exercise your privileges? I'll have to write to the papers about it!

WHITE GROWERS ARE NOT ABLE TO SUPPLY ONIONS

British Columbia Vegetables All Came From Gardens of Chinese SUPPLIED TO TROOPS

British Government Commissioned Ottawa to Purchase Onions The dispute which started in Vancouver on the discovery that British Columbia vegetables sent to the British troops in Shanghai had all come from Chinese gardens has reached the Mother of Parliaments after a preliminary discussion in the Ottawa House.

Sir Worthington Evans, secretary for war, was asked whether the government would not take any action following upon the complaint that the orders for vegetables should have been placed with white producers rather than Orientals. He replied that the British government had arranged with the Canadian government to buy vegetables for the British defence forces at Shanghai and Hong Kong and he refused to interfere in any way, notwithstanding charges made of preference to Orientals.

When the question came up at Ottawa, the minister concerned explained that the London order specified that the shipments had to be made within a certain time and that the quality must be good. His Vancouver agent, the minister declared, had been unable to find white producers who could fill the large order within the time specified and still maintain the quality required. It was promised in Ottawa that in future orders whites would be given the preference.

PRE-EMPTIONS Crown lands may be pre-empted by British subjects over 18 years of age, and by aliens on declaring intention to become British subjects, conditional upon residence, occupation and improvement for agricultural purposes. Full information concerning regulations regarding pre-emptions is given in Bulletin No. 1, Land Series, "How to Pre-empt Land," copies of which can be obtained free of charge by addressing the Department of Lands, Victoria, B.C., or to any Government Agent. Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is not timber land, i.e., carrying over 5000 board feet per acre west of the Coast Range, and 8000 feet per acre east of that Range. Applications for pre-emptions are to be addressed to the Land Commissioner of the Land Recording Division in which the land applied for is situated, and are made on printed forms, copies of which can be obtained from the Land Commissioner. Pre-emptions must be occupied for five years and improvements made to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivating at least five acres before a Crown Grant can be received. For more detailed information see the Bulletin "How to Pre-empt Land." PURCHASE Applications are received for purchase of vacant and unreserved Crown lands, not being timberland, for agricultural purposes; minimum price of first-class (arable) land is $5 per acre, and second-class (grazing) land, $2.50 per acre. Further information regarding purchase or lease of Crown lands is given in Bulletin No. 10, Land Series, "Purchase and Lease of Crown Lands." HOMESITE LEASES Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites conditional upon a dwelling being erected in the first year, title being obtainable after residence and improvement conditions are fulfilled and land has been surveyed. LEASES For grazing and industrial purposes, areas not exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or a company. GRAZING Under the Grazing Act the Province is divided into grazing districts and the range administered under a Grazing Commissioner. Annual grazing permits are issued, based on numbers ranged, priority being given to established owners. Stock-owners may form associations for range management. Free, or partially free permits are available for settlers, owners and travellers, up to ton head.

O'FARRELL OF THE PRINCESS PATS

A STORY OF THE GREAT WAR (By J. Williamson) (All Rights Reserved)

CHAPTER XI

The Bells in the Old Tower Ring Haslett Hall stands on an eminence on the Cheshire side of the Mersey. From its castellated turrets may be seen the broad expanse of the river, with its estuary away to the north-west.

alter in the enjoyment of their love." "Yes, of course you would," agreed Nena; "but this legend was not written. It was handed down from father to son for generations, and everybody in this district implicitly believes it to be true."

Philip was entranced with the lovely view as he mounted the turret of the old hall, at the express desire of Nena. His feet were spread out on a beautiful park belonging to the estate, its grassy slopes, on the one side, reaching for a mile in the direction of the river, and, on the other, to a quaint old roadway and mere which circled it and formed the boundary line to the south.

"I shall never forget him," laughed Philip. "I could not do so without forgetting you and that is an impossibility." "Together they descended to the hall, where they met Mr. and Mrs. Haslett who had just returned from town after a fortnight's absence.

At the lovers reached the upper tower, their ears were greeted with the merry sound of church bells. They looked at each other in silence for a few seconds. It seemed to be an omen of good luck, at least that was the thought that ran through the girl's mind as she stood beside her betrothed.

"Thank you," responded O'Farrell. "Nena and I have fixed it already. She votes for Sunday next. That evening we will leave for Ireland, and we intend to spend a week in the land of my forefathers. We have also promised to accept the invitation of Lady Caerton. That will give me a few days to prepare for my return to duty."

There is a tendency to pull down the standard of living that Canadians are finding it hard enough to keep up, let alone raise. We have to assimilate every year, many people from Europe who have standards much below our own. They can be worked in by degrees to take a creditable place and become part of us, but this can not be with Orientals.

"Very well, my son," said Mr. Haslett affectionately. "I will do all I can to expedite matters. Everything and everybody will be on time." The wedding took place according to arrangement. The officiating minister was Sir Stanley and Lady Caerton, none but close friends of the family were invited to the celebration. This was at the desire of Nena, whose wish was law to her parents as well as to Philip.

Dr. D. Warnock, deputy minister of agriculture, struck a piquant note in his speech at Nelson last week when he spoke of the duties of the board to be appointed to control the marketing of fruit during the coming season. The points touched were the very ones likely to pierce the inflated idea of directing distribution of the fruit crop for disposal at top prices.

The Lake Chelan Chamber of Commerce, which by the way is a very lively and active organization, has decided to print the map of the Okanogan-Cariboo Trail on its official letterheads. So thorough is the co-operation of the members of that organization that the local merchants and business men are also printing the map on their own letterheads.

In the first place he explained that the grower who shipped to foreign markets would not be controlled as far as prices were concerned. They are to have an absolutely free hand. That means that the board of control will not control such shippers. What will happen in those markets if similar conditions exist this year as obtained last year in the overseas markets? The British markets were glutted with the Canadian and American product, Canada alone almost doubling her shipments to Britain.

"The bells are not saying 'turn again Whittington' this time, Nena," whispered Philip, as he placed his arm affectionately around his bride and kissed her as the carriage moved off, "and we did not meet the fate of poor Mildred and Ethelred."

Perhaps the most important point in Dr. Warnock's speech was that referring to the disposal of McIntosh apples. "The duties of the committee," he said, "would be to set the price at which produce might be sold, to direct it to the best markets and to tell the shippers what percentage of their crop could be shipped at stated times. This would prevent overlapping and shippers of McIntosh apples would have to hold their crop until the Wenatchee crop is sold."

"The decision has been reached to allow one professional or semi-professional voice to take part in classes 41 and 42, but this does not apply to other than these two classes, and only one such voice may be included in a quartette. Leaders of choirs and choruses are asked to state the number of voices included, so that the necessary admission tickets may be sent."

OKANOGAN-CARIBOO TRAIL SNAPSHOTS

(By the Field Manager)

A number of enquiries have been received recently as to the date of opening of the Sunset Highway, the Okanogan Passes on the Sunset Highway, between Wenatchee and Seattle, Wash. A communication from the office of the Washington Automobile Club at Wenatchee points out that last year these passes were open to traffic during the first week in May, about the time of the Apple Blossom Festival.

To compare the report in the Penticton Herald to the effect that Clarence Burch came home last Sunday with two three-and-a-half-pound bass from Vasseaux lake, with reports in the daily papers of blizzards and frosts in other parts of the country, brings a realization that the Okanogan Valley has a climate about which it is worth while to "tell the world."

The people of the various towns affiliated in the Okanogan-Cariboo Trail Association have been quick to realize the value of the suggestion that maps of the "Trail" be printed on the backs of letterheads sent out by both civic bodies and private business establishments.

There appears to be considerable misunderstanding in some of our British Columbia towns with regard to the spelling of the words forming the name of the Okanogan-Cariboo Trail Association. The following notice, printed under a bold heading on the maps published in 1926 by the Association, explains this matter about as briefly and as clearly as possible.

The Lake Chelan Chamber of Commerce, which by the way is a very lively and active organization, has decided to print the map of the Okanogan-Cariboo Trail on its official letterheads. So thorough is the co-operation of the members of that organization that the local merchants and business men are also printing the map on their own letterheads.

VALLEY MUSICAL FESTIVAL ITEMS

Announcement of the inclusion of a sight-reading test for pianists will be found in the advertising columns, thus widening the scope of the coming valley festival in a desirable direction. The concert to be given by Mrs. Hodgson Wednesday should be more than passing interest, not only because of Mrs. Hodgson's successes in competition, but also because the profits from the evening will go to the public schools and be used to help cover the expenses of the competing choruses.

LOOKING FOR CONTROL HEAD

High Priced Man Wanted - To be Paid Cabinet Salary

In preparation for the early inauguration of British Columbia's new fruit marketing law, the department of agriculture is looking for a man to appoint as chairman of the control committee which will handle the Okanogan fruit and vegetable crop this year.

While no selection has been made yet, it is known that the department and fruit industry favor the choice of a man from outside the Okanogan area, together and probably from outside the province, so that he may be free of any suggestion of partiality as between the organized co-operators and the organized independents. Lewis Duncan, Toronto lawyer who conducted the Nash fruit combine investigation and assisted the provincial authorities in drawing up the fruit marketing legislation at the Legislature's last session, is mentioned as a possible selection.

BRITISH COLUMBIA APPLE SOLVES FOOD PROBLEM FOR HUNGRY ELKS

New Zealand is a land devoid of large animals. An experiment to acclimatize elk was made recently, when several of these great deer were sent from Canada to the sister Dominion in the Pacific. As the animals subsist chiefly by browsing, a large quantity of willow tops and twigs from other shrubs was provided for food during the rail and ocean journey. This food was refused utterly by the beasts. Various kinds of "greenstuff" were likewise spurned and it seemed as if the creatures would perish from starvation ere they had even reached the ship. The attendants in charge were, needless to say, greatly perturbed. Then a curious thing happened. Whilst the capacious wooden crates containing the hungry animals stood on the wharf awaiting shipment, a small boy, filled with small-boy curiosity, ventured gleefully the better part of the large deer. He was munching a fine big British Columbia apple. Presently, he casually offered the half eaten apple to one of the elks. It was eagerly accepted and apparently keenly relished. At once the food problem was solved, and for the remainder of the journey the captives lived and doubtless thrived, on the product of the sunny apple orchards of Okanagan.

World of Politics

(By an Ex-Writer of the Ottawa Press Gallery.)

ASSISTANCE FOR THE MARITIMES The Dominion government is going a good deal further this session in complying with the recommendations of the Duncan Commission in regard to the Maritime provinces than it was generally thought it would. Not only will the increased subsidies totalling approximately $1,500,000 be voted to New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, but the twenty per cent reduction in freight rates will be brought into effect, barring certain modifications regarding through rates. As these freight rate reductions are to be borne by the Federal government, it means that in increased subsidies and rates the people of the Maritime provinces will not now get a good deal of additional financial help from the other Canadian provinces. Of the minor recommendations made by the Royal Commission several will be acceded to immediately. The recommendation that immediate consideration be given to the tariff in relation to coal and coke has been met by the statement that this matter is already before the Tariff Board. The only recommendation rejected in toto was one suggesting that the Railway Board be vested with fuller advisory powers. As this is a matter directly affecting all the people of Canada the government was right in ignoring it. In reporting his summary of the government's decision, Premier King, however, the hope that the great question involved should be removed as far as possible from sectional discord and party strife. As this is being written before comments on the Government's policy have had time to appear in the newspapers, one can only guess as to the reception it is likely to receive, but it is safe to assume that the recommendations made and to be dealt with by parliament will receive the approval of a large majority of the members of the House of Commons. As the matter is one involving large expenditures of money, it cannot be interfered with by the old fashioned Upper House, who are showing the usual disposition to interfere with legislation sent to them by the Commons. The government, however, is reasonably sure of the support of its own adherents and the solid delegation from the Maritime Provinces, of whom a considerable majority are Conservatives. As a matter of fact, it would not be surprising if the opposition to the bill is confined to a few scattered members representing both eastern and western constituencies, and there may be no serious opposition at all.

AFTERMATH WILL BE INTERESTING Acceptance of the majority of the recommendations of the Duncan Commission have become a certainty the chief expression in the future will centre on demands that are certain to be made for the Maritime provinces, for a variety of reasons, has been asking "better terms" from the Dominion government for years and it does not seem so long ago when the late Premier McBride walked out of an inter-provincial conference at Ottawa in high dudgeon because he could not get what he wanted for this province. More recently the claims of British Columbia have been kept to the fore by Premier Oliver and the members from B. C. in the Dominion House. We have been travelling pretty much the same route as the Maritime Provinces in that Hon. Justice Martin of Saskatchewan was a premier of that province, has been named by the Dominion government as a commissioner to inquire into the B. C. claims. If Mr. Martin, who undoubtedly is a broad-minded and reasonable man, deals as generously with British Columbia as did the Duncan Commission with the Maritime Provinces, Premier King, about a year hence, may make an announcement that will be comforting to the people of this province. The granting of a twenty per cent reduction in railway freight rates to the Maritime provinces is something that is bound to have an interesting aftermath in Western Canada. The only thing that will serve to emphasize the great difference in the rates paid generally in Eastern and Western Canada. The Winnipeg Free Press just the other day made the following enlightening comment on the complicated freight rates fight at Ottawa: "The investigation going on at the present time into railway rates in Canada has already performed two notable services to Western Canada. The first is that the old argument, that the railways, under the Crow's Nest Pass rates, hauled grain in Western Canada at a loss has been exploded. The second is that it has been established that the railways have been keeping their general rates from 15 to 20 per cent higher on the prairies, not because of any real reasons, but because they have been able to get away with it." If general rates are from 15 to 20 per cent higher on the prairies than in the east, they are very much worse for the people of British Columbia with the mountain scale added. Quite apparently the situation is one that cannot be indefinitely continued. The argument that the railways must have the revenues does not meet the case insofar as the western Canadian farmer is concerned. It will serve to emphasize the great difference in the present levels, is a scaling up of the eastern and down of the western rates until they are nearer a parity. The abnormally low rates the people of the Maritime Provinces will enjoy, partially at the expense of the people of Canada generally, will help to hurry the settlement of the railway rates issue on a basis more satisfactory to Western Canada, and more especially to British Columbia.

UNCLE SAM AND WAR DEBTS

A citizen of Great Britain who recently made an extended tour of the United States, in the course of which he discussed foreign politics with many well informed Americans, including the heads of several leading universities, writing to the Manchester Guardian, expresses the opinion that the time is approaching when Uncle Sam will take a more reasonable view of the question of the allied war debt. This observer also makes the interesting declaration that the United States offer to Great Britain was in reality a basis for bargaining, but that Britain, being too proud to haggle over the matter, got a bad bargain when a better one might have been made. Summing up the writer says that the American government is now nearly all those whom I met is that a much fairer and more reasonable attitude towards the whole war debt problem will be taken by the American government if and when the French government ratified the debt treaty. Moreover, every intelligent American who has investigated the war debts and the German indemnity realizes the absurdity of demanding repayment of war loans and at the same time, by a prohibitive tariff, refusing payment in goods. The American war loans were made in the shape of guns, ammunition, cotton, food and other manufactured products of the United States. To force the unfortunate debtors to pay back in gold, instead of in their industrial surplus of manufactures, is obviously against reason and equity. And the result is that the United States is accumulating vast quantities of gold bullion, which it cannot use without causing a dangerous inflation of prices and credit. The Federal Reserve board has, therefore, been exhausting its ingenuity in devising methods of sterilizing its accumulated hoards of gold, while the American bankers are finding a temporary remedy for the situation by directing American money to Germany and other countries from which war tributes were being collected. The foregoing is very illuminating indeed of the trouble Uncle Sam is getting into, largely on account of having erected the highest tariff wall that ever surrounded a civilized nation. The United States is beginning to learn that it is possible to have too much gold and that it is not wholly beneficial to practically exclude imports from other countries. When this lesson thoroughly sinks in there is liable to be a readjustment that will be beneficial to the world at large, but it is hard to see how such a readjustment can be brought about in the short of a period of business depression. Leading British economists say that this slump in the U. S. is due in about two years. It will be interesting to see if they are right.

SENATE STILL LOOKS FOR TROUBLE

The action of the Senate in again amending the Soldier Settlement Revaluation Bill in a way that will make it necessary for appeals from the rulings of the board to be taken to the Exchequer Court of Canada instead of to a local committee of arbitration, makes it pretty clear that the members of the Upper Chamber are still determined to flout public opinion in Canada. For some years now the Senators have consistently pursued a policy of antagonizing as many of the common run of citizens as possible, while ever ready to stand by corporation and financial interests. In turn they have antagonized the farming and laboring interests and now they have repeated their action of last session in making it difficult for a soldier land owner to get justice by naming a court of appeal that would be for the applicant, both difficult of access and costly. Fortunately the time is approaching when the Upper House may be shorn of its arbitrary powers which enable it to stand indefinitely in the way of progress. The "old hands" are dropping off slowly but surely and new appointees are men who have expressed a willingness to have the Senate reformed.

IMMIGRATION CHANGE NOT TO AFFECT CANADA

Proposed limitation of United States immigration from western hemisphere countries is not necessarily aimed at Canada, but rather is a means of checking the increasing number of illegal entries being made from these countries by citizens of other nations, it is suggested by United States consul to officials.

Victoria is likely to have a terminal elevator, owing to its growing importance as a grain shipping port, according to Mayor J. C. Penderay. Several years ago the Dominion government spent $5,000,000 on Victoria Harbor, and the facilities then given could be used to better advantage, it is claimed, if supplemented by a grain elevator.

ORCHARD HINTS

TWENTY HINTS FOR THE ORCHARDIST

(By J. Tait, District Field Inspector)

Plan to have your garden soil worked up, and sweet pea seed can be put in now; also radish, lettuce, garden peas, etc.

Pruning in the orchard should be about over, pick up and burn all prunings at once. The old prunings are a menace near any orchard; they harbor mice and other orchard pests. Destroy all ant hills in or near the orchard. Ants help to spread aphids. Cynogas is very effective—a small quantity will destroy a large nest.

Get disk going and take advantage of the moisture present, and seed vetch or whatever orchard cover crop is planned on.

An announcement of the intention of the Government Telegraph to open an office here, was being talked of.

The shooting of Constable Ashton on the steamer Okanagan, and the breakfasting on board the boat by the prisoners who did the deed and were being taken up the lake in custody, had created quite a stir. The murderers had been arrested for holding up a store in Kelowna and were being taken to Kelowna from Pentiction for trial.

EVERY WOMAN SHOULD HELP

Summerland Has an Institution Every Woman Here Should Work for.

There are many ladies in Summerland who are too much occupied in their homes to be able to attend meetings.

When they or their children are ill they are thankful not to be obliged to go to the coast or Pentiction should they need a hospital, and are glad to make use of the splendidly equipped Summerland hospital. If these ladies would allow their names to be put on as members of the Hospital Auxiliary it would be a great help to those members who are already trying to carry on the work. This would make them feel the strength of members behind them; also those small annual subscriptions of one dollar would mount

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor Summerland Review:

Dear Sir, — Your proof-reader evidently did not read my notes just right, or thought my milk was not rich enough. Allow me to make corrections in the composition as given in the Review last week.

I consider milk testing 4 per cent fat a good quality for all purposes. The other solids are in the following ratio, with a 4 per cent fat content, viz: 2.6 per cent casein, 7 per cent albumen, 5 per cent sugar and .17 ash; making a total of 13 per cent solids and 87 per cent water.

Also, I am quoted as saying that butter-milk is being used more now than ever before. Milk is used more now, but I am sorry to say that the present generation seems to like sweet things too well to take much butter-milk.

Yours truly A. A. DERRICK.

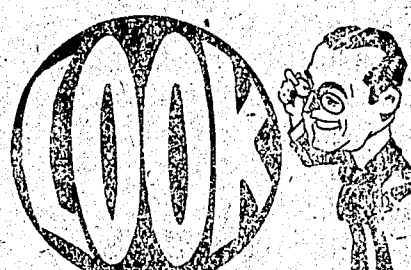

MOTOR VEHICLE AMENDMENTS

Fifteen Years Set as Minimum Age Required For Driver's License.

Little people in big automobiles will not just happen any more; they must be arranged for; automobile salesmen must contribute five dollars annually to the provincial coffers as evidences of faith in their occupation; and used cars may no longer be run about for months in a private owner's service, under the protecting auspices of a dealer's license. These are some of the provisions included in the 1927 amendments to the Motor Vehicles Act, of which the Automobile Club of British Columbia has just been notified. Here is how the club interprets the major changes.

Fifteen years has been set out in the act as the minimum age required for a driver's license, and any minor under seventeen must first secure a certificate of proficiency through examination by an officer. Even then the parent or guardian must make application before the minor is granted the coveted privilege, and is held civilly liable for loss or damage caused by the minor in driving if the latter is a member of his household.

All permits previously issued to minors, it is further provided, are null and void on June 1 of this year, which means that all minors now holding permits must secure a certificate of proficiency before being allowed a new permit.
