According To The Mood

By Sid Godber

Whe-e-w! The haggling and the higgling is over, the bankers and the lawyers and the accountants have departed and I am, apart, of course, from sundry mortgages and notes bearing the ominous legend " . . . will pay on demand . . . ", the owner of the Summerland Review Publishing and Printing Co. Ltd. At the moment I'm not quite sure whether I'm having a pipe dream or a nightmare. Nigh on 40 years in the newspaper business and wishing most of the time I was out of it, and here I am really in the glue.

A big splash throughout the paper on this changeover at The Summerland Review, but the big news, insofar as Summerland is concerned, is that Mrs. A. W. Vanderburgh is back with The Review.

Mrs. Vanderburgh requires no introduction to the people of Summerland, and if I've been told once I've been told fifty times that "you can't go wrong having Mrs. Vanderburgh with you".

That's the way I feel about it, and I think Mrs. Vanderburgh is also happy to be back—so here's one deal that everybody is happy about.

Just in case you don't know Mrs. Vanderburgh by sight, there she is on the left.

If you want to meet the new Summerland Review publisher and his family just swivel your eyes to the right. That's us, although not quite all of us, Cleo the patrician member of our cat family is missing.

I don't quite know what goes to make up a publisher, but I've sure got the essentials that make a columnist, a wife, a wee daughter, and a private menagerie.

Wee daughter wasn't and isn't altogether happy about the picture introduction. When told it was going into the paper she asked if that wouldn't be showing off? That had me stopped for a while. I could hardly explain to the innocent child that the picture was an effort on my part to demonstrate that newspaper folk are human and that a man, even a newspaper publisher, can't be all bad if he gets along with cats, dogs and children and sometimes even gets along with his wife.

So there we are, reading from left right, wee Winona and the two Kittens, "Hustle" and "Bustle". In the middle that man himself, nursing momma cat and holding "Pat". The dog, incidentally, is a she. On the right, nursing "Inky" is the power behind the throne . . . the missus . . . Winona Godber.

Reminds me of the time I went back home in 1933 for a visit. Mentioned the woman I love, (we weren't married then) by name to my brother.

Says he, looking worried, "Wi-non-ah! Wi-non-ah! I say, old chap . . . well no offense, but hai love . . . she isn't Indian is she?"

Actually, the girl is a mixture of Swedish and Irish, with no right whatsoever to an Indian name. She claims that Winona translated means "wise one". That of course is a lot of "hokey", actually, in English, it means "firstborn".

Some talk round 'n about that this changeover at the Summerland Review is connected with the Penticton Herald. It just isn't so. The Penticton Herald has no connection whatsoever with the Summerland Review. I served with the Herald for six years and walked out of there the other day with a brief case (gift presentation) and the good wishes of the gang, from the publisher down. But Herald publisher G. J. Rowland has no strings on me, nor on this paper. As a matter of fact he didn't know I was dickering for The Review until I walked in on him with my resignation.

I missed out on this parting of ways. Everybody has been weeping on Vince Duggan's shoulder, pumping his hand and slapping him on the back. Vince left Tuesday for Vancouver to join CBUT but when the same folk turned to me they just laughed, "heek no sense saying goodbye to you, you're just going-up the road piece," was the general tenor of their farewells.

This column is somewhat incoherent but that's the way I feel. Dealing with lawyers and bankers is apt to rattle a man's brain. It also cuts one's ego down to size. "Cautious as a banker," is no meaningless phrase. Wife and I had a talk with bank manager Ivor Solly at the beginning of this, buy a newspaper and be your own boss and go fishing business. Ivor was fortified then with his Jubilee beard. When we got out of the bank and reviewed the conversation we came to the conclusion that if we go broke in three months Mr. Solly could truthfully say that he warned us. On the other hand if we make a pot of money, Mr. Solly can truthfully say that he told us we could. Bankers talk like the Welsh people who say, "it was a fine morning . . . yess . . . no?"

As for the lawyers, I don't know how they live with themselves. My lawyer took an exceedingly dim view of Gordon Crockett and Crockett's lawyer took an equally dim view of me. It seemed that in the opinion of the opposition lawyers Crockett and I have the morals of alley cats and are capable of murder, mayhem, robbery on the high seas, not to mention adultery, bigamy and plain dishonesty.

Met the Summerland Rotarians last Friday. Was feeling a bit cheery when Rotarian Francis Stuart phoned me before the ink was dry on the Review contract to ask me to talk to the Rotarians. But Rotarian Stuart felt it necessary to be honest, painfully so, and he deflated my expanded chest by explaining that I was in the nature of a last resort, all the other likely speakers he could think of having begged off. Anyway, it is over with, I addressed the Penticton Rotarians once . . . they never did ask me again.

And so it is that I've achieved what is supposed to be every newspaperman's ambition . . . to own a newspaper of his own. I've received congratulations by the score, but the congratulations have not been so much on acquiring a newspaper, as on the fact that I have acquired the Summerland newspaper . . . now it seems it is up to me.

More Money for Rotary Beach Project

Following an eloquent plea by Les Rumball, Rotarians, at the regular supper meeting Friday night voted an extra $500 towards completing Rotary Park, Evans Beach.

Mr. Rumball has been convening the project with Charlie Denjke assisting, and all the members forming volunteer parties to help with the work.

Many improvements have been made, and a rock wall is in process of construction. Three rooms for changing have been built and the building painted. A new wharf has been put in place, and two floats are in the water for the use of swimmers.

Sid Godber, owner and publisher of The Summerland Review, was the guest speaker, taking as his subject, "The Unexpected in The Newspaper Business". It was suggested that the installation ceremonies be held in August this year, possibly on the 88th Anniversary at Penticton.

Summerland's July 1 Celebrations Success

NEWSPAPERMEN, according to the movies and some literature, are depicted as anything but home bodies. If they're not shown as crime busters they're bums, but no where are they given credit for being just normal human beings. The above picture gives the lie to the canard, showing The Summerland Review's new publisher very much in the centre of his family and the family menagerie.

Flags and summer flowers decorated the platforms in the lovely natural setting of Memorial Athletic Park for the 2nd Annual Summerland Day sponsored by the Board of Trade featuring the annual Queen Crowning. Darlene Bonthoux was chosen to be Queen and the two Princesses are Anne Solly and Donna Eden.

Reeve F. E. Atkinson opened the event, speaking briefly of Canada's birthday.

Prior to the actual crowning the eight young contestants were interrogated by J. E. O'Mahony, master of ceremonies, and each spoke.

Darlene chose as her subject, "Okanagan Lake Park"; Joyce Dunsdon's topic was "Rotary Swim Classes". Others and the subjects which they talked about were Connie Gibbard, "Why Tourists Come to Summerland"; Nella Huva, "Summerland's Golden Jubilee"; Margaret Marshall, "What July Means to Canadians"; Virki Rumpf, "The Golden Jubilee Friendly Centre"; Anne Solly, "What the Bridge Will Mean to the Okanagan".

Judges Mrs. Walter Setter, a comparative newcomer to Summerland, Mrs. J. Crosato and Wm. Turpin of Vancouver had a difficult time reaching their decision which was finally announced by Mr. O'Mahony.

Mrs. George Washington was in charge of the Crowning Ceremony. Continued on Page 3

Little Bee Causes Big Accident Here

Bees in their proper place, flitting from bloom to bloom are to be admired, but shunned. Bees at close quarters in a travelling car are not to be admired nor shunned. Mrs. Alan Walker of Trout Creek found this out last Saturday when driving south on Highway 97 a bee became trapped in the car.

Waving off the bee, Mrs. Walker lost control and the car rolled over twice. The accident occurred near the pump-house, south of Trout Creek bridge.

Mrs. Walker was rushed to the Summerland General Hospital. Stitches were required to close the cut on her forehead. Damage to the car is estimated to be between $600 and $700.

Last Rites Held Today For Canon F. V. Harrison

Funeral services were held in St. Stephen's Anglican Church at two o'clock this afternoon for the late Canon F. V. Harrison, news of whose sudden passing on Monday, was heard with deep regret by Summerland and Okanagan Valley residents.

Canon and Mrs. Harrison came to Summerland 12 years ago and until his retirement two years ago he was the rector of St. Stephen's Anglican Church. He served also as rector in the parishes of Peachland and Westbank.

Born on November 19, 1882, at Urmston near Manchester, England, he was educated at Manchester Grammar School, St. Paul's College, Burgh and St. Augustine's College, Canterbury.

He was ordained Deacon at Southwark Cathedral, England, in September, 1906, and made Priest at Rochester Cathedral in 1907.

Following an appeal made at the Pnn Anglican Congress in 1908 he came to Canada after being curate at Luton Rochester, England.

In Canada he served at New Denver, then at Kaslo for nine years, where three sons were born. He was at Cranbrook for 28 years prior to coming to Summerland.

Canon Harrison was a keen cricketer and played for Kent County at one time and was an ardent chess player.

Surviving are his wife and one daughter, Mrs. W. F. Evans, of Summerland; two sons, Cyril Vivian of Ottawa, and Patrick Brian of Duncan.

Interment was in the Anglican Cemetery, Giant's Head Road.

Review Will Publish on Wednesday

Starting next week The Summerland Review will publish on Wednesday of each week instead of on Thursdays. The change in publication date is being made by the new management in the belief that a Wednesday publication will best serve the advertisers and the readers.

Earlier publication means added problems for the staff of The Summerland Review and advertisers and correspondents are asked to cooperate by having their copy in early.

The Review is also anxious to be again listed under ABC Audit (Bureau of Circulation) and to this end must start immediately to bring subscription lists up-to-date. Again The Review asks the help of its subscribers in achieving this circulation objective.

Red Cross Work Is Shown: Members Have Recess

The Red Cross workroom in the Anglican parish hall has closed for the summer recess and last Tuesday afternoon held "Open House". Seventy guests were present to admire the beautiful display of quilts, big and little, a quantity of knitted articles, and exhibition of sewing.

Lovely delphinium from Mrs. T. J. Garnett's garden decorated the parish hall for the occasion. Guests were welcomed by the president of the Summerland branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, Mrs. A. K. Elliott, and by the workroom convener, Mrs. T. W. Booths.

Red Cross - Rotary Swim Classes Open Record Enrolment

Red Cross - Rotary swim classes started at Rotary Park, Evans Beach, this afternoon with a record enrolment of 300, 100 more than last year. It is thought that the convenient site to which many children can walk, is a factor in the increased numbers of swim pupils.

J. R. Butler headed the committee in charge of the class with Gordon Beggs, former chairman assisting.

Speedsters and Unlicensed Fined

Joseph Swanson was fined $30 and costs in Summerland Police Court by Deputy Magistrate J. Y. Towgood, on June 29 for driving without a license.

On Tuesday, June 30, Beverley John Trautman, of Peachland was fined $25 and costs for speeding in the Westbank area, and Lawrence Kelly of Kelowna was fined $25 and costs for speeding on the Peachland highway.

Also on June 30, Deputy Magistrate Towgood levied a fine of $25 and costs to be paid by Russell Johnston of Penticton whose driving license had expired.

Reeve Will Attend Mayor's Convention

Reeve F. E. Atkinson will attend the 19th annual Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities to be held at Hamilton, Ontario, August 19-23.

There he will represent not only Summerland but will act as OKVMA delegate as well.

Conference theme is to be "Municipal Canada Looking Ahead" and discussions will be based on the Royal Commission's brief on Canada's economic prospects appraising urban growth problems.

Some of the subjects to be talked over are housing, streets and highways, public transportation, urban water supply.

By O. L. JONES

Mr. Drew moved a non-confidence vote in the government calling for an immediate election as he claimed the government was no longer representative of the Canadian people. Coupled with this complaint was a demand for the reform of the senate.

The CCF members joined with the Conservatives in demanding an immediate election condemning the government for its attitude during the recent pipeline debate, claiming our democratic system had been violated to such an extent that it no longer functioned and the only way to clear the air was to appeal to the country and start afresh.

Mr. Coldwell supported the motion on behalf of the CCF and went further than Mr. Drew, who sought a reform of the senate, by asking the abolition of the senate as being nothing more or less than a rubber stamp to the government.

When the senate was originally formed it had a high purpose of passing and checking government bills and expenditures from a non-political point of view acting as a safety valve in the interest of the Canadian people. But the opposition claimed that the rule was discarded entirely when they passed the pipeline bill through all its stages in one day.

Mr. Drew claimed the upper house was made subservient to the government's will during the pipeline debate. It also broke all the rules of the senate by passing through all the stages of the bill in one day. Actually their rules were suspended for that day to allow this condition to come about.

The debate following the motion ranged over a wide field ending up with two violent speeches by Mr. Van Horne and Mr. Wesley Stuart. Mr. Van Horne started the rumpus by attacking the federal government and individual members thereof, particularly Agriculture Minister Gardiner. He claimed Mr. Gardiner had no more regard for the truth than a tom-cat has for a marriage license. The speaker made him withdraw this phrase.

In spite of the withdrawal it probably received more publicity as it still appears in Hansard and the press of the country repeated it the next day. His attack on the senate was a bitter one claiming that many are in their dotage before they reach that august place.

He attacked the members for Charlotte in very bitter words, terms that would ordinarily have the speaker compel a retraction but after what happened in the pipeline debate the speaker and his deputies seem to hesitate before taking any action. This adds to the contention of which adds to the contention of the opposition that the speaker over parliament he had formerly has lost a great deal of control exercised.

Mr. Stuart replied vigorously to Mr. Van Horne who had charged him of being a smuggler and a saboteur. Nearly all opposition members vigorously attacked the senate with its overwhelming Liberal membership excepting seven Progressive Conservatives whose average age is well over 75.

After a bitter debate a vote was called and one saw the alliance that took place in the now famous pipeline debate that is, the Social Credit supporting the government and the CCF and Conservatives opposing it.

Some members questioned the sincerity of the opposition in demanding an election, pointing out the results in the four western provinces showed the Conservatives had lost their popular support.

Other members retorted that this also applied to the Liberal party. In any case, it would appear now that the election will be held sometimes about a year from now, although there could be a surprise election called this fall.

The estimates of the defence department are before the house and have come in for considerable criticism. Demands have been made that they be transferred to a committee of the house where they could be discussed in detail. This committee would be similar to the one in operation in the United Kingdom, the United States and several European countries. They would have the power to call witnesses from the defence department personally, as well as

His Work Continueth . . . a tribute

NO MAN is indispensable, if it were so then the world would indeed be in a sorry shape, but while no man is indispensable there are some whose retirement from the workaday world creates a gap which can never be wholly filled. Such a man is S. A. MacDonald who, after 37 years of teaching in Summerland, last week, brushed the chalk dust from his shoes to enter well earned retirement.

Many honors have been showered upon Mr. MacDonald during his lengthy teaching career but we doubt if any of his many honors meant more to him than the ovation given him last Thursday by the students of the MacDonald Elementary School, as for the last time in his official capacity as principal, he stood upon the rostrum.

Mr. MacDonald is a fortunate man, on every hand in this community of Summerland he can witness the fruits of his labors in the men and women of good character and integrity who years ago learned their three R's and much more from him.

Mr. MacDonald has left his mark on two generations of Summerlanders. His name has been perpetuated in the naming of the MacDonald Elementary School, but withal, we think that Mr. MacDonald has, in the moulding of two generations of Summerlanders, built his own monument, one of which he can be justly proud.

The Summerland Review extends to Mr. MacDonald on behalf of the community a heartfelt thank you for the long years of devoted service, and sincerest wishes for a long and happy retirement.

No man, as we said in the beginning, is indispensable, but coming close to indispensability is a good teacher . . . a good teacher is beyond price.

It was teachers of the calibre of Mr. MacDonald for whom Rudyard Kipling wrote his famous "School Song":

"Let us now praise famous men --
Men of little showing --
For their work continueth,
And their work continueth,
Broad and deep continueth,
Greater than their knowing!
"And we all praise famous men --
Ancients of the college;
For they taught us common sense --
Tried to teach us common sense --
Truth and God's Own Common Sense
Which is more than knowledge."

A Great Loss . . . summerland mourns

(BY M. VANDERBURGH)

SUMMERLAND mourns the passing of Canon F. V. Harrison, retired rector of St. Stephen's Anglican Church, whose sudden death on Monday of this week has saddened the community regardless of religious denomination or creed.

In his 12 years of service as rector of the Anglican Church here the late Canon Harrison taught the principles of Christianity as much by example as by precept.

He gave generously of himself, and was unstinting in his giving, particularly in time of stress.

In turn this was returned many times in the affection of the people he served.

He was a gentle man, beloved by all who knew him, and he was a man's man, who learned the weaknesses and strength of his fellows in the testing time of war. A veteran of World War One, Canon Harrison served for many years as chaplain of the Summerland branch of the Canadian Legion.

Canon Harrison has left his mark on the valley in which he has served three parishes, but here in Summerland he has left behind his most fitting memorial in the beautiful "Garden of Remembrance" he created adjacent to St. Stephen's Church, and his rectory garden made a new beauty spot in Summerland.

He was a gardener—and "half a proper gardener's work is done upon his knees."

In death, as in life, he will remain an inspiration to all who knew him and he will live long in memory as a scholar and a Christian gentleman.

A Chapter Opens . . . new broom

THERE is a somewhat barbed saying that a "new broom sweeps clean," and, in consequence, it is, perhaps, the better part of wisdom for a newcomer to the community to mark his time for a period before introducing changes in a community business, particularly one that is much the community's business as is its weekly newspaper.

There are, however, exceptions to every rule and when there are changes to be made that have been crying out for years to be made then, so it seems to us, newcomer though we be, that the changes should be made as soon as possible.

And so, we take considerable pride in announcing that starting next week The Summerland Review will publish on Wednesday of each week.

We have been told that The Review has been sometimes jocularly referred to as "the Thursday, maybe Friday, sometimes Saturday Review", a biting commentary on the fact that quite often it did not hit the streets until a day, and sometime more than a day late.

It is not, of course, in our power to guarantee that The Review will never again be late. We are not immune to mechanical breakdowns and there are bound to be occasions when the run of news will make it advisable, or at least worthwhile, to delay publication, but other than what insurance people term "acts of God," or a late news break of tremendous importance, the Summerland Review will, starting next week, publish on Wednesdays.

We feel that the Wednesday publication will be of value to our advertisers and also to our readers. It is no small task that we at The Review have set ourselves and it would not be possible but for the spirit of loyalty to the paper and the desire to serve the community which exists among the staff. For our part, we ask our advertisers and our readers to co-operate in meeting the new deadlines necessitated by the Wednesday publication.

It is our aim to restore The Review to the position it once held as the top weekly paper in Canada within its classification. Whether or not we succeed depends in large measure upon the support we receive from the community . . . in fact, without that support, the objectives we have set ourselves cannot be achieved.

Mid-Week Message

What is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? (Matthew 16:26) Read Matthew 16:21-26.

In the depression, I discovered I had become too much preoccupied with business, worldly success, and the power of money. I lost my fortune. In the midst of the critical experiences, my text and the sixteenth chapter of Matthew took on a new meaning.

I then began to discover how inadequate in His eyes I must be. I had drifted far from the simple meanings of life through growing big in my own mind. Now I began to see that I had been given both talents and experience as a part of a plan. Then I knew I must learn to give myself over to God's plan for me.

But knowing God's will is not easy. One must seek it through prayer with humility. The temptation is to pray in the light of our own selfish desires, to color our prayers with the hues of our own wills. Humility, the core of prayer, became the core of my problem. It was necessary for me to learn true humility, and, with God's help, to try to practice it.

PRAYER

Our Father, help me to see myself as I really am. Grant to me the strength of will and the courage of heart necessary to shape my life after Thy divine plan. Teach me to pray according to true needs, not according to selfish desires. Through Christ our Lord, Amen.

From Early Files of The Review

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
JULY 8, 1921

An interesting and valuable report on the subject of the water level of Okanagan Lake was submitted a few days ago by Major J. C. MacDonald to Mayor D. W. Sutherland of Kelowna. In this he points out the level of the lake at the approach of the freshet season must be two feet lower than it has been of late to avoid a recurrence of this year's flood condition.

Sunday saw the close of the most successful camp yet held by local Scouts. The camp was at Miller's Point with Mrs. Miller as cook. Thirty-two Scouts attended with Mr. Teas as acting Scoutmaster, ASM Harris and Troop Leader Blewett in charge.

The home of Mrs. Basil Stewart was the scene of a very pretty reception on Thursday afternoon when she and her mother, Mrs. Van Tassel of Vancouver were at home to nearly 50 ladies. Miss Dorothy Chew opened the door for the guests.

Wm. J. Mack, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Mack has resigned his position with the Union Bank at Vancouver. He has taken a position with Walter's Ltd.

Before the week-end Summerland Fruit Union expects to have shipped its fourth carload of cherries this season. The Mutual Fruit Company shipped a carload last Wednesday. The fruit was assembled here by the Summerland Band, was held in the Kelowna and shipped from there.

The first open air band concert was in the bandstand opposite the Hotel Summerland.

CGIT Club consisting of Ok-we-su and Pollyanna girls, have returned from a week's camp at Crescent Beach. There were 10 enrolled. Roy and Mrs. W. Alexander and Miss Munn were in charge.

E. E. Steers has taken over the Victoria Cafe. He has had a number of years in the hotel and restaurant business.

MORE ABOUT CELEBRATIONS

A symphony concert in world-famous Butchart's Gardens is only one adjunct of enjoyment when the family decides to spend a vacation on Vancouver Island. The much photographed spot is close to Victoria, city of gardens, artique shops and unique hospitality. Vancouver Island's beaches, camping sites and excellent fishing resorts are popular with British Columbians and their many annual guests.

Mr. Bowler Wins Bowling Shoes

Mr. Bowler, alias George Williams, and Bob MacDonald both rolled a 204 last week which was only one number away from the Hidden Score of 203.

The prize last week in the Hidden Score Contest was a pair of bowling shoes donated by the Family Shoe Store. In a play-off game George out-bowled Bob with a score of 230 over 188 thus winning the bowling shoes.

Bowling . . . KIT-KAT LEAGUE

In the second week of play-offs there were some upsets which made league play more interesting. Team names and team captains were chosen and prizes for the league will be announced next week.

The Kits' team names are the "Pin Busters" and the "Devils" with Mac Butler and Ron Derosier respectively as captains.

The Kats' team names are the "Alley Kats" and the "Hep Kats" with Allan Pearson and Bruce Lemke respectively as captains.

A particularly fine concert was sponsored by the Summerland P-TA on Wednesday evening, June 27, to introduce the new Chickering grand piano which has been purchased through the efforts of the junior-senior high school students' council the Rotary Club and the Parent-Teachers' Association.

It is kept at the high school and is to be used as a community piano.

During the evening Reeve F. E. Atkinson told of the steps in the purchase and of the contribution of high school graduates towards the fund as obtained by members of the student council.

Wilma Stevenson Dohler of Kelowna was invited as guest pianist. Mrs. Dohler holds the degrees of Associate of the Royal College of Music, London; Licentiate and Associate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, and is the only holder of Gold Medals for the two Toronto degrees. She has appeared as soloist with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and with the Hart House String Quartette. Mrs. Dohler played the piano part in Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" with Stravinsky himself conducting.

Under her competent and skillful hands the piano was heard to advantage and to the delight of the audience.

Assisting were guest artists, Elsie Newick and Bob Renaud, soloists and Festival winners from Kelowna; Mrs. Flora Bergstrom, Summerland soloist, and Bud

Hoover, Pentiction baritone.

Young Summerland dancers gave variety to the interesting program which follows:

Wilma Stevenson Dohler was introduced by Mrs. A. K. Macleod. Mrs. Dohler's program included: Jesus Christ, the Son of God; Sheep May Safely Graze by Bach; Little Song, Night on the River, A Sad Story, Waltz, Carefree, by Kabalevsky; a Chopin medley including Barcarolle, Nocturne in E Minor, Prelude in B Major, Prelude in G Minor; Marcel, Godard; Prelude in G Minor, Rachmaninoff; Clair de Lune, Debussy; and Mary Had a Little Lamb.

Other numbers were: Baritone solo by Bud Hoover, Pentiction, "Song of Songs", excerpts from "Carousel"; Hawaiian Dance, Beverley, Linda and Janet Bullock, Breen Bergstrom, Summerland; Riding Dance, Dianna Haggmann, Elaine Dunsdon, Audrey Beggs, Darlene Shannon, Penny Piers, Cheryl Ann McCargar; Solo, "Evening Song", Franz Schubert; Duet, "Wanting You", Romber's New Moon, Flora Bergstrom and Bud Hoover.

Ballet, "Tales of the Vienna Woods", Anne Macleod, Lynne Boothe, Barbara Fudge, Carole Hackmann, Louise Shannon, Hallie Smith, Pentiction; Soprano Solo, Miss Elsie Newick, Kelowna, "Thou Art Troubled", Handel, "If Ever I Marry at All", Dunhill; Novelty Tap Dance, Breen Bergstrom and Beverley Bullock; Baritone Solo, Robert Renaud, Kel-

BIRDS' EGGS ARE NOT UNIFORM

Birds' eggs are not uniform in shape. Most of the 8,600 or more species lay eggs shaped about like our familiar "hen fruit" but most of the owls, and the Old World bee-eaters are nearly round, and many birds have eggs much longer than they are wide. The auk of sea cliffs and lays an extremely pointed egg which, if accidentally kicked, will roll in a circle instead of over the edge. Plovers and sandpipers also lay pointed eggs. Arranged on the ground, with the points inward, they occupy less space and, easily covered by the brooding mother.

The new Queen was crowned by retiring Queen Frances Atkinson who thanked the Board of Trade for the year in which she enjoyed her reign and wished every happiness to the new "Royalty". Retiring Queen Frances also thanked Mrs. F. M. Steuart, her chaperone for the year. Rosemary Munn, bearing the crown on a satin cushion, and Jane Perry carrying the mace, were charming attendants.

The procession was preceded by the dais by three little flower girls, Sheila McLachlan, Janice Beggs, and Judith Miles strewing petals in the pathway. Audrey Beggs, Darlene Shannon, Penny Piers, Elaine Dunsdon, Jennifer Penney, Frances Bentley, Diane Haggman, and Gillian Miles carrying garlands of flowers and greenery outlined the pathway for the Queen in their pastel-colored ballet costumes making pleasing color accents against the green grass of the park.

K. L. Boothe, chairman of the Board of Trade, gave a short address. Cecil Wade was chairman for the event.

In the morning there were children's sports, and the Summerland School Band gave an hour's concert prior to the ceremony of Queen Crowning.

The portable radio was won by Bruce Lemke.

The day ended with a Teen Town sponsored Queen Ball in the Youth Centre. Pretty decorations added to the gaiety of the evening which was well planned throughout. Music was supplied by "The Okanagans" of Pentiction.

Arena Managers' Meeting Fails To Come up With Solution To Senior 'A' Hockey Problems

BY GEORGE STOLL

Arena managers, parks boards and hockey club executives held a meeting last Saturday in the Hotel Prince Charles, Penticton, to discuss ways and means to make hockey clubs and arenas self sustaining. The attendance at the meeting gave a fair indication of how interested all those concerned really are, to bring their house in order before the complete collapse of senior "A" hockey.

Red Sox Lose To Coast Club In Holiday Tilt

Summerland's Red Sox battled to the final of the Dominion Day holiday weekend junior ball tournament at Summerland on Sunday by defeating Grand Forks 3-2, but they went down in the finals before the Vancouver Junior Murphy Excavating club which took top money with a 7-3 win over the local nine.

The Sox came from behind against Grand Forks tying the score at 2-2 in the sixth and then batted in two more to the visitors one to advance to the finals. Balloon went up in the third of the final game when the coast lads bunched three hits to punch three runs across the plate.

Only two clubs were represented out of the eight that were asked to be there. After two hours of discussion, a motion was passed recommending to the clubs that a maximum salary of $350 be strictly adhered to and a gentleman's agreement amongst Okanagan Clubs be instituted. The only worthwhile suggestion came from Alderman E. A. Titchmarsh of Penticton, to the effect, that hockey clubs must be forced to operate on a businesslike basis, have a realistic budget and stick to it.

As most of those present can in some degree be blamed for the poor state of affairs that both hockey clubs and arenas find themselves in, it is the opinion of this writer that they were lukewarm to Alderman Titchmarsh's idea.

In other words things are not going to change and it may be a good idea to organize intermediate hockey and be ready, when the final collapse of the bankrupt senior A hockey comes around.

Editor's Note—George Stoll attended the meeting, representing the arena and hockey club.

Macs Nose Out Kelowna Orioles In 11 Inning Holiday Thriller

Summerland Macs bunched three hits in the top of the eleventh to break up the ball game and cop top money in the Dominion Day holiday weekend ball tournament at Kelowna, defeating the Kelowna Orioles 4-3.

The Macs advanced into the finals by outslugging Oliver in a free-wheeling Sunday game to win 9-6 with the Macs out hitting Oliver 15-11.

It was tight ball on Monday with only three errors, one charged to the Macs. The Summerlanders took the lead in the first inning Taylor driving Jomori across home plate with a two bagger.

The Orioles big inning came in the fifth when they bunched three hits to put three runs on the score board.

Parker stole the Orioles blind to keep the Macs in the game and Taylor romped home in the sixth to tie the score.

The big run came at the top of the eleventh, Hayes, singled, advanced to second on a base on balls, Egely's single jumped him to third and Robert clouted the third single of the inning to drive home the winning run.

Eyre, Cristant and Fitchel shared the pitching chore for Summerland with Eyre credited with the win.

Power went the distance for Kelowna.

Suspension Now Official

The Summerland Mac's Baseball Club was officially notified that the Summerland Umpire in Chief Joe Sheeley has been suspended for four games. Jack Durston, Red Sox manager got a two game suspension. No meeting of the league executive was called or deemed necessary by the league president Leo McKinnon of Oliver.

It is believed that the epecutive of the Penticton Red Sox brought heavy pressure, as well as a threat to pull out of the league into play and the result is considered to have a complete failure of justice.

At the baseball tournament in Kelowna on Monday, July 2, the Kelowna umpire in chief was looking for Joe Sheeley, when he asked him what was on his mind he said, "I want to express my sympathy and condolence to Joe and I would also like to get the facts of the whole affair". We told him the facts as we saw them and asked him what he would do if a player spit in his face. His answer was, "No matter what a player says or does to an umpire, the umpire should never strike a player."

Curling Club Approves Arena Seating Plan

At a well attended meeting of the Curling Club, held in the High School Library, George Stoll, representing the Rink Association, explained the proposed plans and blueprints of the seats to be built over one sheet of curling ice.

After some discussion of the seating, Don Turnbull presented a motion, which was accepted and endorsed. The motion gives the owners of the arena permission to build arena seats over one sheet of ice, with the stipulation, that the seats must be properly built, dust and vapor proof and the curlers reserve the right to cancel their lease at any time during the next 16 years, if they so choose.

A meeting of the Municipal Council, Curling Club and Rink Association is to take place shortly to discuss the seating in the arena in an effort to arrive at a final solution.

Penticton After Junior Ball Team

PENTICTON—Some 30 youths turned out last week for the newly revived Penticton junior baseball teams first workout.

"With all those on hand," said manager Wally Moore, "we should certainly be able to get two good teams, if we get enough backing." Friday the team will have another practice at 6:30 in King's Park and players from the senior Red Sox will come out to help coach. So far Moore has been doing the coaching himself and keeping 30 teenagers in line is running him ragged.

"What we need now is coaching and support", Moore said. "Summerland has a successful junior team because the team is sponsored. All its expenses are paid. Our team collapsed last year because we weren't sponsored."

The junior team will complete the link from Little League and Babe Ruth play to senior.

Mutch-Inglis Wedding In St. Andrew's Church

A quiet wedding in St. Andrew's United Church on Saturday evening, June 30, at seven o'clock united in marriage, a granddaughter of a pioneer Summerland family and a son of a family that has been in Penticton a long time. Gertrude Loretta Inglis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Inglis, Hospital Hill granddaughter of Mrs. George Inglis and the late George Inglis was united in marriage with Murray McGinnis Mutch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Mutch, Penticton, in the presence of about 20 guests.

Blue and white delphiniums added their lovely graciousness to the ceremony performed by Rev. C. O. Richmond in which the bride was given in marriage by her father.

For her wedding the young bride wore a knitted suit with a white hat with touches of blue and blue accessories. Roses and stephanotis fashioned the bridal bouquet.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Georgina Inglis as bridesmaid in a summery blue flowered taffeta gown, worn with a white picture hat and white accessories. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

John Duncan of Penticton was the best man.

Miss Ruth Dale was organist for the occasion and while the register was being signed, the bride's cousin, Mrs. Bud Green of Nelson, sang, "I'll Walk Beside You".

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents in Penticton which was tastefully decorated with snapdragons, roses, and quantities of June flowers.

Parents of the bride and groom were assisted in receiving by the bridal party.

A two-tiered wedding cake was the centre of interest on the bride's table which was covered with a hand-crocheted cloth. Tall pink tapers and arrangements of sweet peas and snapdragons were lovely accents.

R. Duncan of Penticton, the groom's father, proposed a toast to the bride, to which the groom responded.

For motoring to Coulee Dam on a honeymoon trip the bride added a light blue topcoat to her wedding ensemble.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Fraser of Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. Bud Green of Nelson.

The groom is an assistant engineer with the department of highways and for a short time the couple will make their home in Peach Orchard, later going to Spence's Bridge.

Oldtimer G.M. Ross of White Rock Writes His Appreciation of the Jubilee Spirit

The following letter, received by Alex Steven, from his old friend G. M. Ross, of White Rock, formerly CPR agent at Summerland, who with his wife, also an oldtimer, (Miss Nellie Bartholomew) expresses appreciation of Summerland and more particularly of the recent Jubilee which they attended:

"It was indeed thoughtful of you to send the paper with your guest editorial and your typical letter to me; one more thing in the older days of our years to encourage and sustain our appreciation of our fellow-man.

"We liked your article and, of course, you caught the spirit of the Jubilee. I only wish it were possible for me to do the subject justice from the standpoint of one of those who came home.

"The divine service in the open village green with such a notable heart-warming congregation was an experience to be enjoyed only once in a lifetime. The nearest approach to this situation was many years ago at the Scottish Festival at Banff, Alberta, when we sat on the banks of a tar at the foot of a mighty peak for Sunday morning service. Rev. C. W. Gordon, (Ralph Connor), spoke to us from a raft moored out from the shore of 'The Devil's Cauldron', and his pulpit was a card table. Plaid and kilt lent color to the scene. It was a poignant moment when the little portable organ started us off singing, 'Unto The Hills'. The whole thing was so utterly appropriate one felt a bit bewildered.

"To go back to Summerland — after the service the priceless experience of mingling with old friends! In a way it seemed as if the Almighty had reached out and blessed us that day. To us that was Summerland's 'finest hour'."

"The next best was 'The Friendly Centre' and whoever proposed it was a real genius. That was the epitome of hospitality, the spirit and the doing. The dinner, the parade, the Variety Show, all had their place in our enjoyment, but over the whole Jubilee the spirit of hospitality was borne out to us time and time again, and our souls were delighted and refreshed with your reception of the folk, 'coming home'."

"What a fine, clean community you have made, and what a lot of progress since the horseback, democrat wagon, dusty road, wooden flume, tri-weekly boat, confused horticultural, bug lantern days. 'Though most of our ilk were not born in Summerland, we have an affection sufficient to remind us of the sacred words of 'Home Sweet, Home'."

"Yes, you folk, and particularly the younger generation whose vision, vitality, and loyalty did such an outstanding feat of affectionate, and efficient organization. 'You all did a really fine thing to be so nice to me who went elsewhere to tread the battlements of our Castles in Spain. Through it all, especially to we wanderers, ran the recurring thread of memory and sadness for the faces we could only remember, 'which we have loved long since and lost awhile'."

"And so, my good old friend, my trusty friend, we will hold our heads high, always, and say proudly, 'I was an honored guest at the Summerland Jubilee in 1956'. Surely that will discount some of our black marks when the balance is set to try us. "P.S. — Do you know we did not observe a single instance of drinking or other public impropriety. This is no small thing in itself and yet perfectly characteristic of our former days."

Mark Smith Assumes Post at Municipal Hall

Art Clubs Third Annual Show Featured More Than 80 Exhibits

A variety of pictures in oil, water color, and pastels, were displayed in the third annual show held by the Summerland Art Club on Saturday in the IOOF Hall, West Summerland, which was open from two in the afternoon until nine in the evening.

Some 80 paintings were exhibited covering the field of local scenes, abstracts, portraits, pictures executed by local artists in other places and flower pictures. They were the work of 23 members and with the exception of one had been done since the previous show in 1955.

Interest was added by copper work lent for the occasion by Mrs. D. V. Fisher, Mrs. W. B. Powell, and Mrs. R. H. Barkwill.

Pottery made from local clay by Mrs. A. Doney Wilson and her daughter, Miss Bonnie Wilson, contributed another focus to the well-attended show, showing ingenuity.

Silhouettes in photography made by Mrs. R. G. Russel created interest, also, in a charming way.

A feature of the show was a draw. The person holding the number on the ticket drawn could choose any painting in the show in Group A. Mrs. W. H. Durick held the lucky ticket. The door prize, donated by Mrs. M. E. Colias, was won by Mrs. Margaret Babcock.

Tea was served continuously. H. Wouters is president of the club and Mrs. Desmond Loan, secretary-treasurer.

Guests were present from Peniticon, Peachland, Victoria, Chilliwack, and Woodstock, Ontario.

Observe Rules For Safe Driving

Rest before starting out on a long trip, don't try to drive too far in a day, stop for regular coffee breaks on the highway, make sure you are psychologically fit to drive, and you stand a pretty good chance of spending an accident free summer.

The driver's state of mind and fatigue after many hours spent at the wheel are contributing factors to most highway accidents.

Mental impulses and fatigue are behind a great many current violations of traffic rules and errors which cause accidents.

Do not drive when you feel sleepy, worried, upset or preoccupied.

Driving on today's congested highways is North America's favorite outdoor sport, so you must keep in good shape at all times. Long drives slow up your reflexes overtax your nervous system, reduce your seeing ability unless you stop now and then for some exercise and a cup of coffee or some other non-alcoholic beverage.

It is good to engage in conversation, but always keep your eyes on the highway, and avoid arguing. Allow fresh air to circulate through the car.

Violet Tindall is the pilot and Leith Nance the crew at this point in their motorcycle journey from Calgary to Toronto. The trip to Toronto — 2,340 miles cost them $101. They are both student nurses at the Calgary General Hospital.

TREMENDOUS TRIFLES!

It's the unbeatable array of extra luxuries that puts Chevrolet so far, far ahead—

Look 'em over, count 'em up — they're all yours in Chevrolet's spectacular Bel Air series and at no extra cost! Look for them in competing top-of-the-line makes, and you'll find many of these luxury items are Chevrolet exclusives — or else extra cost options. Only Chevrolet in its class offers them all — only with Chevrolet do you pay nothing extra! Loaded with luxuries? You bet. Chevrolet is without a doubt Canada's top car buy!

Choose from the high-styled Bel Air series, or from Chevrolet's "middle"-priced "210" series, or from Chevrolet's low, low priced "150" series — any model you pick will prove the point. Chevrolet is lavish with its extra luxuries!

Unbeatable money's worth — that's Chevrolet, in every way! In power, performance, style . . . or in the "tremendous trifles" that make you so much prouder of your new car . . . Chevrolet is the biggest, most beautiful buy you can make! See your nearest Chevrolet dealer without delay.

HANDSOME ELECTRIC CLOCK

Easy-to-read, accurate electric clock, framed in a sweep of bright metal. Set elegantly below the fan-shaped radio grille, it's a typical Bel Air luxury — you pay nothing extra!

DIRECTIONAL SIGNALS

Every Chevrolet comes to you already equipped with self-cancelling directional signals. You pay nothing extra for this safe-driving essential.

GLOVE BOX LOCK

A useful safeguard, and its key is the ignition key — the only one you need, which also fits the doors and trunk. Chevrolet's special ignition switch permits the car to be started while the key, which locks your valuables, is safely in your pocket.

GLEAMING WHEEL COVERS

Full-width chrome-plated wheel discs — a new touch of smartness that adds glittering distinction to every wheel. Typical Bel Air luxury — you pay nothing extra!

FULLY ADJUSTABLE SUN VISORS

Whatever direction the sun shines from — you're protected. The adjustable visors swing to the side, tilt up and down — even slide toward each other! A typical Bel Air luxury — you pay nothing extra.

CRANK-OPERATED VENTIPANES

No pushing, no pulling, no slipping, front window ventipanes crank open and shut like every other window. But a convenience, it's standard now on every Chevrolet — you pay nothing extra!

GLOVE BOX LIGHT

Just open the glove compartment and the light snaps on. No more fumbling in dark corners — everything's handy and brightly lit. A typical Bel Air luxury — you pay nothing extra!

NYLON-AND-VINYL UPHOLSTERY

The most modern, most beautiful, most serviceable material — luxurious as it is practical. Chevrolet made this miracle fabric standard on all models — and you pay nothing extra!

"BABY-GUARD" REAR DOOR LOCKS

With the pushbutton down, the door can't be opened even from the inside! An important protection for small children, so every 4-door Chevrolet has them — you pay nothing extra!

DOMELIGHT SWITCHES ON ALL 4 DOORS

Automatic domelight snaps on not only when you open front doors, but when any door is opened. A very sensible courtesy, and a typical Bel Air luxury — you pay nothing extra!

TRUNK LIGHTS IN BUMPER GUARDS

Two lights, set safely and strategically in the bumper guards, brighten every corner of the spacious trunk. All Chevrolets have this luxury — but you pay nothing extra!

West Summerland

Bi-Monthly Report Given Of B.C. Tree Fruits' Board

Summerland
Westbank and Peachland

During the past two weeks the weather has remained cool and cloudy with occasional showery periods. Generally speaking, this has been good growing weather but it has interfered with growers spray schedules and interrupted haying operations.

The small cherry crop, consisting mainly of Lamberts, has so far escaped serious cracking losses. Cherries are not sizing too well. What apricots there are have been sizing well and the fruit should be of good quality. However, the crop is very light, being estimated at around 20 per cent of a normal year. The peach crop is centered mainly in the Summerland area. Here again individual fruits are sizing well but the overall crop in the district will only be around 50 per cent of a full crop. Italian prunes have set a medium crop and if this develops properly could have as many as last year. Right now Rust Mites are very prevalent on prunes and are causing the foliage to roll and lose its natural gloss. Apples have finished their June drop and are making good size. The McIntosh crop should be down from last year. Newtons are badly off and most of the Newton trees under 20 years are wholly or partially winter killed. Young Delicious up to 10 years old are now beginning to show effects of trunk and crotch injury. Rust Mites have been developing on Delicious and are causing some bronzing and rolling of foliage. Red Mites are also building up mainly in orchards where Ovotran was not used in the pink.

Vegetable crops are showing good development in the Westbank area, most patches being well ahead of last year at this time.

Penticton - Naramata
Kaleden - Okanagan Falls
Keremeos - Cawston

As reported on June 26: A prolonged rain fell on June 19. Otherwise there has been variable cloudiness with occasional showers and daytime temperatures usually in the 70's.

A few early cherries are coming in and Bings are expected to start later this week. Splitting has been serious in a few lots, while it is almost negligible in others. Lamberts continue to show the best cherry crop prospects, but they are not sizing any too well in some orchards. Other tree fruits are sizing satisfactorily and so far no appreciable drop has been noticed in apples.

Tomatoes have developed very well in the Keremeos - Cawston area. First matures are expected in a couple of weeks' time.

No signs of apple scab have been detected and powdery mildew appears to be negligible. Some fire-blight has started up but the situation is well in hand. More codling moth activity has been noticed than in the past couple of years. Some green apple aphid is showing up, and European red mite infestations are heavy in a few orchards where no Ovotran was used in pre-blossom sprays. The rust mite is causing the most concern and is very general this year.

Kelowna

As reported June 28: The weather since the last report has been cool with several showers. The last few days have been warm.

The small cherry crop is now turning color. A few of the early varieties will be picked this week but the main crop of Lamberts is a full week to 10 days away. Very little splitting has occurred to date. Local strawberries are available in small quantities. A fairly heavy drop has occurred in McIntosh apples, however, additional hand thinning required in most blocks is well under way. Bartlett pear thinning is nearing completion. Leaf roller did considerable damage to this crop. Young Delicious and later varieties of apple trees injured by the frost last fall are deteriorating rapidly.

Disease problems are negligible but insects, particularly rust mite, are very troublesome.

Cool weather has checked the growth of vegetable crops during the past two weeks, but development of most crops is still well ahead of last year. Field tomatoes are showing a fairly heavy set of fruit, and some fields are exhibiting fruits over two inches in diameter. Fall-planted onions are starting to bulb up and spring sown onions are growing well. Onion crops in general are a good two weeks ahead of last year. Silverskin crops are heavy while other onion crops are moderate. Asparagus shipments will terminate this week and tonnages have been lower than usual. Quality has been off owing to frost damage in the crowns. Cabbage and lettuce are moving in small volume. Spinach is cleaned up. Small shipments of bunch beets and bunch onions have been made. Hothouse tomatoes and cucumbers have been moving in volume. Aphid and mite activity on vegetable crops is at a minimum.

Supper Party Honors Miss Persis Sherwood

Miss Persis Sherwood, who has been the commercial teacher at Summerland junior-senior high school, was honored prior to her departure for the coast where she is retiring from teaching.

A supper party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Macleod when guests were members of the teaching staff.

A. D. Gatley presented Miss Sherwood with a blue travelling case, a gift from the teachers with whom she has been associated during the past several years in Summerland.

Rhizoctonia has caused some loss in bean fields and has delayed growth in others. Pink Root has caused some reduction in fall-planted onion stands. Mildew is showing on onions in some fields and sprays are being applied. Several cases of Leaf Roll in potatoes have been reported.

Oliver and Osoyoos

As reported June 26: The weather remains cool with considerable rain.

More trees are showing the effects of the past winter every day. On the healthy trees the fruit is sizing well. Other trees which had been sizing to the same degree in recent weeks have now stopped and in many cases the fruit has fallen off. Thinning is now nearly finished and the growers are not into cherries. Much of the Bing crop has been badly split. As yet the other varieties have not been seriously hurt by the rain. Harvest of early apples will probably commence during the first week in July.

Red mites, rust mites, green apple aphid, mealy plum aphid and pear psylla are causing the most concern at the moment. Diseases are still of no apparent importance.

Ground crops look vigorous and healthy. Potato aphid has caused some concern in the past few days and some tomatoes should be ready in early July.

Cover Design Competition Starts

Cover design for the 208 page Centennial Book, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the province in 1958, will be selected in open competition for which all B.C. artists are eligible, according to L. J. Wallace, provincial chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

A prize of $200 has been donated by Sunprinting, the company which will produce the book, in order that the cover will be truly representative of the wealth of artistic talent and historical richness of the province. Judges will be Fred W. Amess, principal of the Vancouver School of Art; William E. Ellis, president of the Community Arts' Council, and L. J. Wallace.

Members of artists' organizations who are resident in British Columbia have been individually advised of the competition, but all artists in the province may enter, whether or not they are affiliated with any organized group. Unknowns will have the same opportunity as artists of established reputation, and every entry will receive the same consideration. Rules governing the competition may be had from The Sales Manager, Sunprinting, 1200 West Pender Street, Vancouver 1, B.C.

More than 100,000 copies of the book will be distributed throughout the world by the Sunprinting organization, according to manager Dennis Davis. It will be full book size, 7 1/2" x 10", containing 208 pages profusely illustrated in full color. The contents will trace the transition from 1858 to 1958 in all phases of British Columbia's history, industrial development, and daily living. The cover design which most effectively illustrates this theme, in the opinion of the judges, will be the winner of the Sunprinting cash award. It will be reproduced in full color and may conceivably launch a comparatively unknown B.C. artist into world-wide recognition.

Mr. Sid Godber,

The Summerland Review.

Dear Sid:

At this time that you are taking over the Summerland Review, I want to emphasize my wholehearted congratulations and good wishes to you.

The entire staff here, with whom you have worked for the past six years, join me in the same thought and feeling.

Summerland will soon come to realize that, in you, they will have a doughty and faithful champion; an editor who will give his first loyalty and support to its citizens' affairs and fortunes; an experienced and time-proven newspaperman who has also a youthful high heart, and a sensitiveness to the values only too often lost to sight in public and private life.

Not easily summed up is my own appreciation for the devoted loyalty and purpose you gave to Penticton in the past six years, as well as to the Herald and to myself. Our loss becomes The Review's and Summerland's gain.

Yours sincerely

School Honors S. A. MacDonald

MacDonald School closing on Thursday afternoon, June 28, was a day to be remembered by many. F. E. Weeks of the teaching staff said that a record was being broken as he presented an honor roll for proficiency, citizenship and attendance to one person.

That person was S. A. MacDonald, the honored principal retired in June after 37 years of teaching in the elementary school. Mr. Weeks declared all three were merited and this was echoed in the burst of applause from the audience of pupils, parents, and others interested.

Mr. Weeks gave Mr. MacDonald an illuminated scroll from the teaching staff and a wrist watch.

Each student in the MacDonald School contributed towards an aluminum deck chair which was their gift to Mr. MacDonald as related by Donald Henker.

Previously that day pupils of grade six had presented another lawn chair, a gift to their teacher. R. S. McLachlan, chairman of the school board spoke briefly in appreciation of the retiring principal and assisted in giving out the honor rolls.

Honor rolls were given out for proficiency, citizenship and attendance. In each division the first name given in the list is the proficiency award winner, the second won in citizenship, others are for attendance.

To Visit Here

Miss Florence H. Howden, of Trout Creek, president of the Canadian Home Economics Association has left to attend the association's ninth biannual convention in the Hotel Vancouver from July 9-12.

This gathering of home economists from coast to coast will include teachers in home economics, extension workers, nutritionists, dietitians and home economists in business agencies.

Many outstanding speakers are scheduled to speak on various aspects of the topic "Home Economics Serves the Home". The convention combines business and pleasure. Between a round of teas, luncheons, receptions and the closing banquet in Brock Hall, the directors will meet to discuss past and future business and to elect the new officers at the annual meeting.

The convention marks the conclusion of Miss Howden's term of office as president and the installation of the new president, Miss M. Kennish, from Mount Allison University, New Brunswick.

One of the side trips planned for the entertainment of pre-convention visitors will be a drive over the Hope-Princeton and Fraser Canyon highways, with a visit at the Summerland Experimental Farm on July 7, where, arranged by Miss Dorothy Britton, a member of CHEEA, the Rebekahs will serve supper.

GM of Canada Sales Increasing, Wecker Reports

Oshawa.—Automobile sales in Canada are continuing at their predicted rate, and General Motors of Canada is still working overtime to produce sufficient cars to meet current demand, W. A. Wecker, president of GM, said yesterday.

"Retail sales of automobiles in Canada during 1956 to the beginning of May were more than 8 per cent higher than during the same period in 1955," Mr. Wecker said.

"As for GM, we have been working overtime ever since we reached full production and will be working overtime for some weeks to come to fill present orders.

"The Canadian market for passenger cars seems at this time to be a little stronger than in the United States," Mr. Wecker said. "However, we base GM production in Canada on the outlook for the Canadian economy as a whole. Our economy is strong today and should continue strengthening under present conditions."

Merritt's Hospitality Enjoyed By Summerland Band, on July 1-2

The Summerland Town Band were visitors in Merritt to take part in the big July 1 celebrations in the capital of the Nicola country.

Band members travelled in private cars leaving about one o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

The ceremony of crowning the new Queen of Merritt was held in the park Sunday evening and the band played a concert before and after the ceremony.

For a brief interval at dusk when the band could no longer see music, the capacity grandstand audience was entertained by an impromptu concert. Marcel Bonthoux played his piano accordion. He was joined after the first number by Jack Brown and his Sousaphone and Dave Cruickshanks with his drums. This was very popular with the big crowd.

A film shown was a big feature length, 16 mm movie, made by the Merritt Kinsmen Club. It was entitled "Billy, the Nicola Kid", and showed the coming of white settlers to Merritt, their adventurous life fighting the Indians from wagon trains, finding placer gold, and showing many of the colorful fights that took place between Billy, the Kid, and the local people. The film took six months to make and utilize a large number of Merritt amateur actors and the local Indian tribe. It was all filmed in the Merritt area in Kodachrome.

On July 1 the band led the huge parade through the town and down to the park for the day's festivities and played throughout the day.

The Merritt Kinsmen Club arranged the entire Dominion Day celebration and acted as most pleasant hosts to the Summerland Band, meeting them at the city limits and escorting them to billets, generally looking after their needs.

Opinion of band members is that Merritt Kin is a hard-working group.

Accompanying the band was their majorette, Miss Carol Barwick, and her mother, Mrs. L. Barwiuk, Carol made a great hit with the Merritt people.

High Scores At Weekend Rifle Shoot

The highest score at the shoot on the Garnett Valley rifle range on Sunday morning was 99 out of a possible 105. This aggregate was shot by Art Dunsdon with a 33 points out of 35 at the 200, 500 and 600 yard ranges.

This is the second successive week that Art has captured first place. A score of 97 points placed Len Shannon in second position, followed by George Dunsdon with 96.

Other scores were as follows: Steve Dunsdon, 94; Phil Richardson, 92; Ray Blagborne, 92; Ted Piers, 86; Cliff Shannon, 81; Ron Dunsdon, 71; Dick Dunsdon, 48.

The Kelowna Rifle Association is holding its annual shoot on Sunday, July 15, and it is hoped that the local club will be well represented at the meet.

Clever Cooking . . .

Sweet and Blue

Whether the sun shines or not, summer is officially here. It's time to think of having the neighbors in for afternoon tea or a morning cup of coffee before everyone gets too pre-occupied with vacation activities. It isn't necessary to postpone inviting them until you can plan something fancy. Cups of tea and coffee and the Blueberry Tea Cake can be as attractively served as the most elaborate menu. This recipe offers an appetizing way of serving blueberries which will soon be at their most luscious.

Blueberry Tea Cake

1 egg
2/3 cup granulated sugar
1 1/2 cups sifted pastry flour
2 tps. baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup milk
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted.
1 teaspoon almond extract
1 cup blueberries
1/2 cup granulated sugar
Grease one 9 x 5 x 2-inch loaf pan. Preheat oven to 400 deg. F. Beat egg until light and lemon colored. Gradually add 1/2 cup granulated sugar and continue beating until light and foamy. Sift together pastry flour, baking powder and salt. Blend into egg mixture alternately with milk. Add melted butter or margarine and almond extract. Beat together lightly and fold in blue berries. Spoon batter into greased loaf pan. Sprinkle top with 1/2 cup granulated sugar. Bake in preheated hot oven for 40 minutes. Serve with butter.

Trout Creek Future Plans

Plans for the float to be entered in the Penticton Peach Festival parade were made by the Trout Creek Community Association at the executive meeting held Tuesday evening at the home of the secretary, Mrs. Nelson Chalton.

Street lighting in Trout Creek which is being planned by the municipal council is anticipated with pleasure by members of the Association and residents in the district, it was said.

Drainage problems are still under discussion and it is hoped to find a solution to them.

It is understood that the tennis court will be surfaced sometime this summer by Storms' Contracting Co.

The Association is concentrating on having road signs installed, and these are thought to be urgent due to the erection of the new elementary school.

Mosquitoes are invading Trout Creek this season, especially troublesome in some parts. Relief from this nuisance is being sought. The chairman, W. Ross, presided at the meeting.

Baptist Church WMS Holds Supper Meeting

Summerland Baptist Mission Circle were hostesses to members of the Penticton and Kaleden Circles on Thursday evening in the Baptist Church Hall at a supper meeting.

Guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs. Howard Milne assisted by Mrs. James Ritchie.

Following the daintily served buffet supper Mrs. Armour of Oliver and Mrs. S. E. E. Beech of Penticton gave interesting reports of phases of the B.C. WMS Baptist Convention.

the army, navy and air force.

The government remained adamant in refusing to allow such a committee. In the meantime, we are forced to try to extract by question method information from the government.

These questions are usually met with the stock phrase: "It is a matter of secrecy and not in the public interest to give this information." The opposition claim that the people of Canada are entitled to know how nearly two billion dollars is being spent and whether charges of waste are substantiated or not.

Claims were made that our armament equipment especially for the reserve forces is obsolete, also the Central Canadian Radar Line is already useless before it is actually completed. However, these charges prove nothing as we have not the correct information before us and that is why the opposition has been insistent on the setting up of a committee to go into the details.

Our defence department is closely integrated with the United States defence policy. A great deal of interchange of information has taken place but it is generally felt that Canada lags behind in the matter of atomic weapons and guided missiles, which are the modern form of defence. This debate is continuing and I will report further next week.

Serious charges have been made public by Lieut-General Guy Simmonds former army chief of staff who claims that bureaucrats in Ottawa have been working at cross purposes with army officers. He also claims the army is not in condition to defend Canada.

Mr. Drew claimed such statements should be made before a committee that could investigate the truth of the assertions. Several other high ranking officers have, from time to time, made similar charges and the proposed committee would be established to allow these men to come and give their technical evidence at the same time being subjected to questions by members of the committee. I personally think the proposal is a sound one and in the interest of the taxpayer it should be set up.

It was pointed out to the house by Mr. Campney that the navy and especially the powers of the air force will be increased. Their strength following the modern pattern of air power which is becoming predominate in the general pattern of world defence and in keeping with the policy of all allied countries, as well as the potential enemies, Russia and her satellites.

Comings and Goings

Mrs. F. C. McNeill, formerly of Summerland junior-senior high school teaching staff is leaving Saturday to fly to England where she will visit in Essex for several months. Accompanying her will be her three children, Frances, Christopher and Robin.

Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Elliott motored to New Westminster during the weekend to visit at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pollock.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Verrier for the Dominion Day holiday were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Keller of Vancouver. They were accompanied to Summerland by Mr. and Mrs. Donesky of New Westminster who were married here some few months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bridger of Vancouver and their children are vacationing at Crescent Beach while visiting Mrs. Bridger's father, Alex Steven, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Wood.

Word has been received in Summerland that Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Young and Mrs. Isabel Nelson, currently on a trip to Europe were recent visitors in Rome.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barg and their little daughter of Mission are guests at the home of Mrs. Barg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Arndt. Mr. Barg, who has been teaching in Mission, will join the Penticton teaching staff in September.

Rev. and Mrs. Lyle Kennedy and Chris, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Milne and their three children, and Mrs. D. L. Milne are in Edmonton attending the Baptist Union of Western Canada Convention.

Dr. J. C. Wilcox and Dr. M. F. Welsh have been in Toronto attending the annual meeting of the Agriculture Institute of Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Hookham and their children came in from Vancouver to spend the holiday weekend at the home of Mrs. E. M. Hookham, Parkdale.

Good food, open air and cowboy music go with every menu at a Cariboo dude ranch. There's informality and plenty of bonhomie in the big land where it is almost impossible not to make friends. Playing real cowboys on real horses goes down well with the youngsters, perhaps one reason why dude ranches are popular with families looking for a vacation that is different.

On Writing Briefly

One important step toward clear and courteous writing is described by Polonius in Shakespeare's Hamlet: "since brevity is the soul of wit, and tediousness the limbs and outward flourishes, I will be brief." But what is brevity?

If a piece of writing tells the whole story, and only that, it is not too long. Being brief means that you will not use ten pages to tell a one-page story; but neither will you try to tell a ten-page story on one side of a sheet of paper.

A report of three thousand words may be brief, and a 100word memo may be long: the first, if it comprehends many facts, several points of view, and some choices; the latter if it is devoid of necessary facts, woolly in its thinking, and indeterminate in its conclusion.

To use too many words to communicate one's thoughts is a sign of mediocrity, while to gather the thought into a few words, clearly and accurately, stamps the person of executive genius.

Men in management positions have a special obligation. Sour notes are not sweetened because the writer dictated them from an executive's chair to an exquisite secretary.

What you have written may not be bad writing, but the chances are it is not the most effective plain talk either.

Have you written it too hastily? When you spend an hour seeking the answer to a correspondent's question or complaint, isn't it good economy to spend ten minutes expressing your answer so that it will be understood and appreciated?

When Churchill was directing Britain's war effort he wrote a memo containing this dictum: It is sheer laziness not compressing thought into a reasonable space.

According To The Mood

By Sid Godber

THIS IS A STRANGE NEW WORLD.

A lifetime in the newspaper business but last week was the first time I ever had to fold and stuff a paper. I did think being a publisher meant being the boss . . . but it just isn't so.

"You'd better get hustling and get those ads in," I'm told by backshopper Eric Williams, who is the man who really runs the business.

Then Dot Schultz, who combines the duties of circulation manager with linotype operating, chases me off with deliveries. "Now don't stop and chew the rag, just put the papers down and get back here . . . there's no time to waste," and so it goes.

Even young Dennis Martin, our substitute for the printer's devil, just listens politely and then goes serenely on his way doing what has to be done.

In the front end there's Mrs. Vanderburgh. She is back home. Seems to spend her time just having a pleasant reunion with old friends via the telephone, but she produces an amazing amount of copy all the same. Mrs. Vanderburgh sort of tolerates having me around; even lets me use the phone once in a while. Then there's Betty Hurd, a family friend, who came for a holiday and volunteered to help me get started in this new business. As a WWOP (worker without pay) I can't very well put across the "I am the publisher" routine with her.

All in all it seems that I've got a good staff. They're willing, able and loyal . . . only thing left for me to worry about is to make sure the checks I have to sign, don't bounce.

I know now though why Pentiction Herald publisher G. J. Rowland has his dog around the office. The dog, at least jumps, when he says jump, well . . . it does sometimes. So, expect to see my mongrel around the office. I've got to have some creature that'll look up to me.

EMBARRASSING MOMENT

This dieting business sometimes gets a man down. I figure I've done well to reduce from a massive 210 pounds to around the 170 mark in a matter of three months, so once in a while, unbeknown to the wife who is something of a tyrant on sticking to the diet, I sneak off to the show, buy myself a bag (the big bag) of licorice all sorts and have a real fuddle.

Saturday night I took wee daughter to the show, bought my licorice all sorts and followed her into the gloom of the theatre. Ensnared in our seats, I opened the bag of candy and extended the bag. There was a murmur of refusal. "Aw don't be silly," I whispered harshly, thinking that the youngster was being coy. "Go on, take some," I commanded.

"I prefer not," said a very icy voice. I did a double take . . . it wasn't wee daughter I'd been offering candy to, it was a very adult female of the species.

I babbled my excuses, then crowded as far away in my seat as I could. I was envisioning headlines, "New, Publisher of Summerland Review arrested for annoying woman in theatre." "Newspaperman Gets His Face Slapped, Charged With Molesting Woman." I breathed a sigh of relief when, finally, the woman left but my cheeks were still burning when I left the show . . . even the licorice all sorts didn't taste as good as they normally do.

ON POLITICS AND THINGS

Ran into the Hon. Eric Martin, B.C.'s minister of health and welfare, and his family during the weekend. He's holidaying. First met his nips at Vernon when he breezed into the army camp with three stripes and was given command of my platoon, me being a lowly one stripe. There was a lot of disgruntlement about this batch of new sergeants, which Mr. Martin was one, coming into camp, the disgruntlement became anger when we found that the sergeants didn't know noon from midnight about the army. I turned over the platoon to Martin after getting the boys out for afternoon parade. He didn't even know how to move them off and when I got them moving and up to the parade ground he made an awful mess of getting the platoon in position and to add insult to injury, the CSM bawled me out for it.

After reminiscing of Vernon days I tried to quizz ex-Sergeant Martin on the Secreds election plans, but the Honorable Eric gave a good imitation of an oyster.

Running into the Minister of Health and Welfare did, however, start me thinking politics. Generally speaking a man's politics are his own business, but when a man presumes to foist his opinions on the public through the medium of a newspaper I figure folks have a right to know where he stands politically.

I'd like to be able to come out and say I am a dyed-in-the-wool something or other, but I honestly can't. I am, in fact, that rather pathetic creature, a man without a party.

Some people find it easy to vote one way provincially and another way federally. I might learn to do that one of these days.

To make a political choice these days is difficult. The Liberal Party isn't what it used to be. The Federal Liberals haven't been able to stand prosperly, although I would like to see them go back, but with only a bare working majority. In B.C. the Liberal Party is a long way from being dead, despite Premier Bennett's wishful thinking, but they've got to show a lot more dynamite before they can blast the Secreds out.

CCF . . . well they've got able men, able leadership and a program.

So there they are . . . you pay your money and takes your choice. But I haven't made mine yet. So for the time being The Review will have to carry that namby, pamby label "Independent."

Quite a furore down Pentiction way over privies, the Chic Sales variety. There are, we are shockingly informed, 119 of them within Pentiction's boundaries. I can't see why all the fuss. The human race has lived longer with outdoor privies than it has with indoor plumbing. Could be that Pentiction's 119 privies will prove a tourist attraction. There is a new generation that has never had to brave frigid weather and deep snow covered paths to the bottom of gardens, not to mention Eaton's catalogue. This new generation should be awed at the sight of such edifices, mute testimony to the hardships suffered by their forebears.

And, as Shakespeare said of the rose . . . a privy by any other name . . .

Building for the first six months of this year in Summerland has risen about $35,000. For the same period in 1955 estimates for construction were 62 in the amount of $150,535.00. This year 56 permits were given out from January until the end of June amounting to $185,120.00.

Broken down for the past month there were four permits for new dwellings estimated to cost $41,500.00 and 10 for alterations and additions at a figure of $6,010.00.

Asks Rezoning Cherry Orchard To Residential

Summerland Town Planning Commission has recommended that the property of John Dunn at West Street, now a cherry orchard, be rezoned to residential classification.

A hearing will be held on the matter at 1:15 p.m. prior to the council meeting on July 24.

If approved the zoning bylaw will be amended to allow this action.

Mr. Dunn plans to build small homes for older people.

Garden Party

Summerland Band will play and there will be pony rides for children, other games and entertainment, with the added attraction of strawberry shortcake, hamburgers cooked at the barbecue, tea and coffee.

Building Estimates To be Based On $10 A Square Foot

Summerland council meeting yesterday instructed building inspector, R. F. Angus to use $10 per square foot as a figure for building estimates within the municipality.

Council Statement On Milk Bylaw

Hip Waders Prove Good Armour

Hip waders can keep a man dry and they have other uses too as Jerry Polesello found out last week. Jerry along with Tommy Milne, went fishing in the creek below Garnet Valley dam. Concentrating on the fishing Jerry didn't heed a slight noise, then felt rather than heard something strike his waders. Looking down he saw a rattle snake making ready for a second strike.

Jerry reached for a rock and stunned the reptile and Tommy administered the coup-de-grace with a stick. They returned in triumph with their story and, in proof with eight rattles. "It might well have been another story though," says Jerry, "if I hadn't been wearing waders."

Colorful Rose Display Admired

"Sutler's Gold", the lovely yellow rose which through the years has topped many rose shows won again for E. H. Bennett at Saturday's Rose Show sponsored annually by Summerland Horticultural Society. It was judged as the best rose in the show.

Though the weather was rainy in the earlier part of the week the show produced a fine display supported by a handsome grouping of delphinium, worthy of note for size and color, and seeming especially good this year.

Dr. D. C. Boyd of Pentiction won the Summerland Rose Cup for four varieties, one bloom each, named, K. McKay, Naramata, a member of Summerland Horticultural Society, won first place for three blooms, three named varieties.

In the novice class H. R. Hodgson of West Summerland, took first place.

Wm. Snow used Regal lilies and delphiniums in his basket of border flowers which was awarded the blue ticket indicating first. Other winners in this class were Mr. McKay and Mrs. E. C. Bingham.

The dainty miniature arrangements not over four inches in diameter with their delicate proportions gave prize awards to Mrs. E. C. Bingham, Mrs. Wm. Tullott, and Wm. Snow, as first, second, and third respectively.

Ask Meat Inspection

Summerland Municipal Council has received a letter from the South Okanagan Health Unit asking that meat inspection laws be put into effect within the municipality.

The council is in agreement in principle with meat inspection and will ask the health unit for a sample meat inspection bylaw, which they will consider.

Anonymous Gift To Rotary Park

An anonymous gift of $25 towards Rotary Park, Evans' Point, has been received by Summerland Rotarians, who were encouraged by this generosity.

The Park improvements are costing in the neighborhood of $1,000.

Caretaker For Municipal Hall

Mrs. Harry Charlton was appointed caretaker of the municipal hall following opening of bids at yesterday's council meeting. Salary is $40 per month. Mrs. Charlton filled the position satisfactorily during the absence of John Graham, former caretaker who resigned.

Other bids were received from Ted Wilson, Max Lancaster, I. P. Phillips, and Edmund Brennan.

CONGRATULATIONS Summerland Council has received congratulations from the provincial department of trade and industry on the Golden Jubilee booklet.

D. M. Wright left on Sunday to assume the duties of engineer surveyor with the gas pipeline company. Mr. Wright expects to be in the southern Okanagan.

It has been suggested that the Municipal Council should make a statement regarding the recent bylaw which allows for the sale of raw milk within the Municipality. The council's stand is briefly as follows: As a group the reeve and council unanimously endorse pasteurization as a safeguard to public health. However, the new Milk Act requires that after July 2, all milk be pasteurized before it is sold, or as an alternative municipalities could pass a bylaw to permit the sale of raw milk. The bylaw had to be passed before July 2. If a municipality passed a raw milk bylaw then the dairy selling raw milk would be required to comply with the specifications laid down in the regulations to the Milk Act. These regulations were not made available to the dairymen.

However, it was stated that the new regulation would be somewhat similar to the former requirements of a Grade A dairy.

These regulations are enforced by both the department of agriculture and the sanitarians of the health unit under the Department of Public Health. If these regulations are as rigid as anticipated and are enforced by the representatives of these two departments there should be little danger to health from raw milk handled under the conditions required.

It is not considered fair to the dairymen concerned for them to be told that they either had to sell their milk to some outside pasteurizing plant, or else comply with some regulations, copies of which they could not obtain. By passing the raw milk bylaw the council has given these dairymen a chance to comply with these regulations. If the dairymen find that the regulations are too difficult and decide to sell their milk to pasteurizing plants then the council will repeal the raw milk bylaw. In the meantime the council feels that it has followed a fair policy.

By O. L. JONES

WEDNESDAY, JULY ELEVENTH, NINETEEN HUNDRED FIFTY SIX

The conduct of Mr. Speaker Beaudoin has been the subject of bitter attack by the opposition for the past six weeks. While he personally bore the brunt of the debate, the barbs were intended for the government itself. Members who criticized his conduct made it quite clear that in their opinion Mr. Speaker was acting on instructions and under the direction of certain members of the cabinet. Not only was the conduct of Mr. Speaker questioned but also his two deputies as well. The whole storm was subsiding nicely when suddenly an article appeared in a Montreal newspaper quoting from a private and confidential letter sent by the Speaker to the author of the article. Mr. Beaudoin was quoted as charging the opposition with misleading and incorrect statements made for political purposes. This immediately aroused the ire of the Opposition who renewed their attack this time on a more personal basis against the Speaker.

Codin Cameron demanded that the Speaker make specific charges by naming those who had misled the house for political purposes. The appearance of the article not only embarrassed Mr. Beaudoin but also the whole Liberal party. It ended up by the Speaker placing his resignation to take effect after the Prime Minister returns from London. Mr. Beaudoin had been a well-liked and able Speaker until the closure proceedings in connection with the pipeline debate. It was his conduct during this debate that produced the charges of partisanship and undemocratic procedure. Now that the matter has reached its climax there is speculation as to who will be appointed in his stead if anyone. I say if, because many feel that he will be persuaded to stay to the end of the session. Speculation as to his success has produced several French Canadian members who may be appointed for the rest of this term. The logical successor would be one of the two deputies but they too received some of the blame for the fiasco that took place last month.

The suggestion made that our Speaker should be appointed in the same way as the Speaker in Great Britain has received strong and general support and it may at some future date be acceptable to a majority in the house. Under the British custom a Speaker is usually appointed for his active life, on his retirement he is rewarded with a substantial pension. This pension is promised on his appointment, making him completely independent of any financial worries. Whereas in Canada our Speaker is appointed for the life of one parliament and usually is appointed by the party in power at that time, but at all times is subject to an election like all other members and it has been the habit in the past to appoint retiring speakers either to the senate or one of the federal courts or even the diplomatic service. One difficulty in appointing a Canadian Speaker for life would be the breaking-up of an old Canadian custom of alternating French and English speaking Speakers.

Barring the fiasco that is surrounding the present occupant of the chair, many felt that Mr. Beaudoin met the requirements of a permanent speaker being acceptable to both French and English groups. This is now no longer the case.

The government sought to change the Post Office Act and been carried on since Confederation. It dealt with the expiry of contracts by mail carriers in the event of the contractor for some reason or other being unable to complete the term of his contract through death or some other cause. Under this bill, the Postmaster General could appoint his successor without calling for tenders. At first the debate dealt with rural mail deliveries and the reasons why authority should be given to appoint a successor without calling for tenders. Suddenly one member asked quite innocently what is the highest mail carrying contract that could be effected by this bill and the Minister replied that it was approximately one million dollars. This contract is awarded in Montreal and it turned out that several other contracts running into hun-

The Growers' Friend . . . best wishes

ALMOST every year at the annual British Columbia Fruit Growers Association Convention some grower stands up and sounds off against the BCFG grant to the Summerland Experimental Farm. Fortunately it is a minority voice and the annual grant devoted to specialized research is regularly improved.

That grant is only a drop in the bucket in relation to extent of the costly and painstaking experiments which are carried on year after year for the benefit of the fruit industry.

Value of this work is being spotlighted these days by what is, to the Okanagan, sad news, the retirement of Dr. H. R. McLarty as head of the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology at the Experimental Farm here.

Dr. McLarty has made many valuable contributions to the valley fruit and vegetable industries but he will be remembered most for his discovery of the efficacy of boron in eliminating many diseases, which up to Dr. McLarty's discovery of boron deficiency, were an effectual barrier to increased and higher quality fruit production. This one piece of research alone has given him lasting fame, but there has been more . . . much more.

Dr. McLarty, as he enters well earned retirement carries with him the well wishes and the sincere thanks of fruit growers from coast to coast, particularly the Okanagan valley growers, and although we regret his going, it is comforting to know that the work he pioneered in 1921 is continuing under a staff trained over the years by a man who is rated one of Canada's top scientists.

It would be unselfish indeed for us to begrudge Dr. McLarty his right to rest from labors and so we join with Summerland and the whole Okanagan in extending our best wishes for a long and happy retirement.

And, in paying tribute to Dr. McLarty we pay tribute to all the men at the station on the hill who, although opportunity of greater material rewards are available to them in private industry, continue their work, ever probing, ever searching for the answer to the multitude of problems which harrass the fruit growers of the valley.

A College Town? . . . worth going after

THERE appears to be a growing sentiment in favor of the establishment of junior colleges in British Columbia.

The idea has taken such root that the B.C. School Trustees Association has established a special committee to study the question.

It is our belief that despite opposition from those who would see higher education centralized at the University of B.C., that the Trustees Association committee will find many in favor of the junior college idea and that from this finding will eventually come the building.

Obviously the interior is the logical site for one junior college, particularly if, as is suggested, these colleges are specialized, agriculture, forestry, mining and so on, and we would suggest that there are few, if any, better locations for a junior college in the interior than Summerland.

Apart from its geographic location and other natural advantages, Summerland has the Dominion Experimental Farm which, given the cooperation of federal authorities, would be a tremendous asset to any college, and particularly one emphasizing agriculture.

A junior college would of course be an economic asset to the community and a very desirable one to boot. But such plums do not fall into ones lap without effort.

We suggest that although the idea of junior colleges for B.C. is still very much in the nebular that the Summerland Board of Trade should set up, in association with the council, a committee to prepare a brief setting out the advantages of Summerland as location of a junior college. Perhaps also some consideration should be given to the possibility of making a land grant as an inducement.

It may be next year, it may be five years, it could even be ten years before the idea of decentralization of higher education becomes a matter of practical policy. On the other hand, the idea would become policy before the year is out and it would be the better part of wisdom for Summerland to be prepared. We can think of nothing more desirable than for Summerland to become the college town of the interior . . . and what is desirable is worth going after.

Something To Be Proud Of . . . our parks

SUMMERLAND has been wisely served by the men who, despite the fact that great outdoors of mountain, lake and stream press close upon the community, planned for and created parks within the municipal boundaries.

Today Summerland's parks stand as a tribute to those men of vision and also to the parks' commissioners of the day, who, on a small budget, each year expand and develop the community's parks.

Summerland's Memorial Athletic Park is, without doubt, one of the finest parks of its kind in any community of comparable size, although we suggest that it could be much improved by the oiling and, perhaps at some future date, surfacing of the road which circles the playing field.

Then there is the Memorial Park Playground a block off West Summerland's Main Street.

The foresight of the visionaries who planned the Memorial Park playground in that location will be more fully appreciated by future generations as, inevitably, it becomes an island of green in the centre of a built up area.

Mid-Week Message

Humble yourself in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up. (James 4:10.) Read Luke 14:7-11.

Once I heard a great minister say, "One of the greatest sins of our generation is that we defy men, humanize God, and minimize sin." By our thoughts, attitudes, and acts many of us prove the statement has much truth in it. We are so lacking in humility that instead of reaching up to God we are trying to bring Him to our level. We put such faith in man that we believe he can accomplish anything. If we stop to reason, however, we soon conclude that man is nothing without God. If we humble ourselves before God, He has promised to lift us up.

Being humble means being willing to submit our lives to God. It means willingness to be used of Him to serve others in Christ's name and for His sake. We prove our true humility when we are willing to serve our fellow men.

PRAYER

Show us, O God, how Thou wouldst have us use our lives. We would humble ourselves before Thee. Use us in Thy service, in the spreading of the saving knowledge of Christ, our Saviour and Lord. Amen.

Twelve Herbs and Their Uses

So you don't know a thing about herbs. You know violets, don't you? — and nasturtiums and hollyhocks? And you certainly don't need any introduction to onions and celery. There are all herbs. An herb is any plant whose stem dies entirely down to the ground each year, as contrasted with shrubs and trees. In fact, the distinction we commonly make today between herbs and vegetables, or between herbs and flowers, is a development of only the past 200 years or so.

To most of us, however, herbs mean that relatively small group of fragrant plants which, fresh or dried, add delicious flavors to food.

The first rule in the use of herbs is a light touch; in general, put in less than you think you will need until you become experienced. In the chart below, "generously" means roughly 1/2 to 1 teaspoon to a pound or a pint. Where it says "also with" use herb cautiously, a pinch or an eighth teaspoon at the most. Also, there are many uses beyond those given here; do your own experimenting, using this as a guide.

Basil — Generously with tomato, egg, ham. Also with goose, beef, veal, lamb, peas, potatoes, stews and salads.

Chervil — Generously with egg, fish, salads. Also with lamb, potato salad, French dressing.

Marjoram — Generously with beef, veal, venison stews. Also goose, fish, beans, peas, eggs and lamb.

Chives — Generously with any dish requiring mild onion flavor, such as green salads, omelettes, meat loaf.

Mint — Generously with lamb, venison, peas, carrots, cabbage. Also with beef, salads, fish sauces and jellies.

Oregano — Generously with beef, veal, venison, pork, chile con carne, spaghetti sauce. Also with eggs, beans.

Parsley — Generously with all meats, fish, fowl, eggs. Also with peas, tomatoes, beans, cabbage, soups, salads.

Rosemary — Generously with venison. Also with pork, veal, fish, beef, lamb, fowl, potatoes and goose.

Sage — Generously with turkey, fowl, pork, sausage. Also with veal, cheese, salad greens, baked fish.

PAUL BIRCH WINS MUSICAL HONORS

Paul R. Birch, 21 year old son of Rev. and Mrs. R. H. Birch, former residents of Summerland, was one of four Vancouver and Burnaby students who became Associates of Royal College of Toronto in the recent Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto written piano examinations.

beans, fowl. Also with eggs, cabbage and soups.

Tarragon — generously with fish, fowl, veal, eggs, salads. Also with beef, lamb, pork, cabbage, peas.

Thyme — At home with nearly everything, but use sparingly. Fowl, fish, chipped beef, croquettes, tomatoes.

New potatoes don't need embellishment, but they can stand variety. Try this herb, butter sometime.

Herb Butter
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 teaspoon crumbled basil leaves
1/4 teaspoon caraway seed
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard or onion powder

Melt butter and add seasonings. Pour over cooked new potatoes.

Recent visitors at the home of Mrs. W. S. Nield were her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. Haar, of Vancouver and their children, John, Louise, and Frances. Miss Louise Haar stayed on for a longer visit.

You don't have to be an expert to fish the Vedder River near Chilliwack. In fact, the families who holiday in the Fraser Valley are to be forgiven if they use fishing as an excuse to enjoy the scenery of the lower mainland. British Columbians are becoming increasingly aware of their great natural heritage that makes for an ideal family vacation.

Proke - Bonthoux Wedding

The Church of The Holy Child was beautifully decorated with delphiniums on Saturday afternoon at 4:30 for the wedding of Solly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Bonthoux, Trout Creek and Ernie Proke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Proke of Sifton, Manitoba, formerly with the Summerland detachment of the RCMP.

The ceremony was performed by Fr. A. M. Meulenbergh in the presence of about 50 guests.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, made a pretty picture in her lovely wedding gown of white lace over satin. Styled in ballerina length, the bodice had a scalloped neckline with the long sleeves in lily points. The very full skirt was scalloped at the hemline. A filmy lace bridal veil was caught into place with an heirloom headress, and the bride wore the groom's gift of a double strand of pearls with matching earrings.

She carried a white prayer book overlaid with red roses and orange blossoms.

Miss Eva Selby as bridesmaid was charming in her gown of pink net over taffeta, with a tiered skirt, and picture hat. She carried pink carnations in a nose-gay.

Neil Pollock was best man and ushers were Harry Burgart and Bob Bonthoux.

Miss Linda Betuzzi played the organ for the service and Miss Jeannie Bonthoux sang an "Ave Maria" while the register was

The Muffin Tin School of Art under the direction of Gwen Penney started in Trout Creek on Saturday with 20 children attending, 10 of them small, and 10 older, who will be in two classes.

Mrs. Penney, a graduate of Faulkner Smith School of Art, Vancouver, hopes to be able to hold outdoor classes, possibly at Powell Beach for some of the time.

Intriguing name of the school came because the budding artists are mixing their paints in muffin tins.

Classes will be every Saturday from 9 until 11:30 a.m. until the end of August, and may be extended to two days a week.

signed.

At the reception following at the home of the bride's parents in Trout Creek, Mrs. Bonthoux received, assisted by the bridal party. For her daughter's wedding she chose an afternoon gown in beige with white accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

Pretty blue and white streamers decorated the rooms and a three-tiered wedding cake, centred the lace covered bride's table, with tall blue tapers on either side. Flowers were arrangements of white carnations and blue delphiniums.

Harry Burgart proposed a toast to the bride to which the groom responded. Neil Pollock gave the toast to the bride's attendant.

Summerland Macs Trounce Princeton, Go Up As Pentiction Red Sox Go Down

Sports Pourri

By Sid Godber

I guess I must like to live dangerously or, as some uncharitable folk might remark, "fools rush in where angels fear tread." Anyway Sports Pourri so often laid to rest and so often resurrected is in the saddle again with one difference and what a difference, now I'm riding for Summerland.

I'd resolved to stave off this evil day, but what with this wet stuff they call rain at the coast practically washing out the valley's sports pages it seemed the only thing to do was chatter about sports and what not.

I was asked bluntly the other day, "how do you stand Mister on this Sheeley affair?"

I thought my quizzer was going to have kittens when I said that I thought Joe had got what was coming to him. The four game suspension was not one bit too stiff for the offence. Provocation regardless, an umpire cannot be justified in taking a poke at a player. Mind you, if I thought I was spit on I'd take a swing at the spitter regardless of age, weight, glasses or no glasses . . . but then I'm not an umpire and although I've done a lot of foolish things in my life umpiring is one I've avoided.

But where the league president went wrong in my opinion was not in clipping Joe for four games, but in the mild suspension imposed on Jack Durston.

Durston was wrong all the way. When he appealed to Sheeley he was completely off base. The decision wasn't up to Sheeley. The base umpire, right or wrong had made the call. It wasn't even a question of rule book it was a matter of viewpoint.

Personally this ranting and raving at umpires and referees gives me a pain. It always has, no matter what the game. Sure it seems that only blind men qualify as arbiters but they are in charge of the game. It is a poor official who changes his mind so why natter? Some people tell me that all this hassling is what makes a ball game and some people think the same about hockey, but if I never witness another rhubarb I'd be happy . . . it's the game I like to see . . . it's easy to go berserk and make an ass of one's self, it takes a good man to swallow a raw decision and carry on. To rant at the umpire was plumb foolish and I think Durston knew it.

Support for this point of view appeared in last week's issue of Weenkend Magazine. Andy O'Brien writing of old sport history recalled the incident which embittered Fred Merkle's life because of what happened back on September 3, 1908, when baseball's most celebrated goat play was recorded as "Merkle's Boner." Most ball fans have read or heard of the boner, of which O'Brien writes as follows:

"The incident: Giants versus Cubs, 17 days before the World Series and running neck to neck for the pennant. Score tied in the last half of the ninth with two away. Giants have runners on third and first—Merkle the one on first. The batter singles to deep centre. As the runner from third crosses the plate with what Merkle thinks the winning run, Merkle turns for the dugout without going all the way to second. The Cub second-sacker calls for the ball and appeals to the base umpire to call Merkle out and disallow the run. The base umpire refuses. An appeal to plate umpire O'Day is made in the midst of a jubilantly celebrating crowd from the stands. O'Day rules the game a tie and later the league orders a replay if the game affected the final standing. It did. Cubs won the replay.

"Forty-two years later the late Bill Klem, top all-time umpire, classed the punishment Merkle had taken as a shame. Said Klem:

"The decision was one for the base umpire to make and he had rejected the Cub appeal. O'Day made a ruling it wasn't his to make and he was wrong. There was no real force on the play. It was a clean hit to the outfield. The winning run was across the plate before the ball was returned to the infield. That should have ended it. The game was over when the winning run came home."

That is an example of a plate umpire overruling a base umpire. Umpire O'Day was wrong and Summerland's Joe Sheeley would have been equally as wrong as was O'Day had he reversed the base umpire's decision even though his stand led to a brawl. Sheeley was wrong not to control his temper, regardless of the provocation, but he would have been far more in error if he had overruled the base umpire.

Red Sox Clobber Vernon Monarchs

Summerland Red Sox clobbered Vernon Monarchs here Sunday 13-2 hammering two Vernon pitchers all over the lot for a total of 14 hits for Summerland, while Bob Bonthoux went the distance and held the visitors to four widely scattered hits.

The Red Sox got five runs in the fourth inning, three in the fifth, none in the sixth, two in the seventh and three in the ninth to make up their 13 run total.

Vernon brought in one run in the second inning and one in the sixth.

Mioluk and Chiba shared the pitching chore for Vernon.

Summerland outslugged Vernon 14-4 while both teams had two errors.

Delmar Siegrist Wins Hidden Score

Two bowlers rolled a score of 113 to tie for the prize, donated by the Cake Box. In the hidden score contest last week, Delmar Siegrist won the cash award after a play-off game with Russell Bleasdale on Monday evening. Scores in the tie-breaker were 165 to 89.

Pentiction	12	6	6	.500
Oliver	12	6	6	.500
Kelowna	11	4	7	.363
Princeton	12	4	8	.333

Summerland's Macs smashed their way into second place in the OMBL standing on Sunday whipping the Princeton Royals on the latter's own sand lot by the lopsided score of 19-2. As the Macs went up, they passed the skidding Pentiction Red Sox going down to slump in third place as a result of dropping a Sunday doubleheader 7-5 and 3-2 to the league leading Kamloops Okonots.

Macs opened with a two run spurge in the first inning and they practically collected the points in the second with a six run outburst that took the heart out of the home team.

Morley Fichel went the distance for the Macs and but for some loose fielding of a couple of fly balls would have chalked up a shutout.

The Macs hustled all the way hammering Eyre off the mound but Bruno Cecon had no better luck against the visitors' booming bats and when the smoke cleared the Macs had totalled 17 hits, they also stole Princeton blind for 12 stolen bases which helped by six Princeton errors saw 19 Summerlanders jog the circuit.

Only one official error was tallied against the Summerland nine. Don Cristante had a big day garnering four hits out of five times at bat and six of the Red Sox' 19 runs were batted in by Don.

Ollie Egely also had his eye in the groove and boomed two doubles and a single off his bat to drive four runs across the plate.

It was an unlucky day for Daryl Weitzel. Daryl was beamed by a wild fast ball and had to be taken to the hospital.

A thorough checkup, including x-ray, revealed nothing of a serious nature, but Daryl along with manager George Stoll did miss out on the famous Princeton brew refreshments provided by the hospitable losers, although it is reported that manager Stoll did make a fast trip down from the hospital to hoist a quick one.

Says manager Stoll, "those Royals are real good sports."

New Records Set In Kit-Kat League

A record high — three games for the Kit-Kat league were bowled this week by Carlton Sheeley. Carlton rolled each of his three games well into the 200's with a total of 700 pins, his high game being a 258 which captured the high single game for the Kats. With nice bowling line this Carl-sparked to win over the "Alleyton's team, the "Hep Kats", were Kats" by 235 pins. This gives the "Hep Kats" a lead of 387 pins total for league standing.

The "Fm-Busters" in the Kit division are now ahead of the "Devils" by 439 pins. They beat out the "Devils" Friday by 115 pins to push up their lead. A substitute, Russell Bleasdale, bowled the high single game with a 130. Ron Derosier rolled the high three for a total of 365 pins.

Steve Dunsdon Tops Marksmen

Attendance was very small at the rifle shoot on Sunday morning so it was decided to eliminate the 600 yard distance for that day. Ten-shot matches were fired at 200 and 600 yards, with Steve Dunsdon finishing in top place with a score of 91 points out of a possible 100. Al McCargar placed second with 89 points, followed by Ted Piers with 88.

Other scores were as follows: H. Simpson, 85; W. McCargar, 83; C. Walt Cousins, 47 (one range only); Shannon, 68; D. Dunsdon, 56; Les Gould, 46 (one range).

Historically Speaking

This is the first in a series of top-ranking essays written by pupils of the Summerland junior-senior high school prior to the Golden Jubilee celebrations.

It was written by Bruce Brown, grandson of James Ritchie through whose efforts the townsite of West Summerland was obtained, and because of whose foresight the CPR re-routed the Kettle Valley railroad to the east side of Trout Creek Canyon giving direct rail service to the Municipality of Summerland.

Because of the general excellence of the essays and community interest in the subject matter, The Review takes pleasure in publishing one each week until the end of the Jubilee Year. The essays will be mailed to the writer after each publication.

WEST SUMMERLAND

An Indian Reserve, a little over 50 years ago, West Summerland is now a complete community centre.

We are to celebrate its Golden Jubilee on June 3-6. Twenty-three committees are working strenuously to make this a never-to-be-forgotten occasion. Men are growing beards and ladies plan to dress in fashions of 50 years ago. The time has arrived to pay tribute to the pioneers; it is time to learn the history of the early beginnings of our town!

Records show that although the district was incorporated in December of 1906, years before that pioneers had been laying foundations. There were pre-emptions up Prairie Valley, the Gartrell family had settled at Trout Creek as early as 1890, and Mr. H. Dunsdon, who arrived in 1891, had pre-empted in Garnett Valley in 1892. There was the Barclay ranch at the foot of Giant's Head where Mr. Barclay taught "young Englishmen the business of ranching". Some of these students had attended Harrow. These ranches together with other sub-divided lots were situated "in a ring" around the present townsite, which was then an Indian Reserve.

SIWASH FLAT

This was the setting when my grandfather, Mr. James Ritchie arrived in November of 1902, from Manitoba. He had been visiting his brother Rev. T. N. Ritchie in Peachland, and had ridden on horseback along a mountain trail to Garnett Valley, down the valley, and on over the sagebrush flat. Arriving at Barclay ranch, he spent his first evening in front of the large fireplace listening to wonderful stories of the Okanagan, as told by Mr. J. M. Robinson. Mr. Ritchie was greatly impressed with the country, and before returning to Manitoba, he purchased the Barclay home (now owned by Reeve Atkinson) from Mr. Robinson, and also pre-emptions up Garnett Valley.

PAEKDALE

The following spring in March, Mr. Ritchie returned to the district, bringing his aged parents to live with him at the ranch, which was later called "Parkdale". So named because of the first neighbours, "the Dales", who camped temporarily in a poplar grove nearby. The ranch was adjacent to the Indian Reserve of three hundred and twenty acres where Antoine Pierre, "a fine old Indian" and his wife Julia and family lived. On the Reserve were two Indian huts, one stood behind the present Badminton Hall, and the other on Gordon Ritchie's property, was the home of the Pierre's. A few cattle roamed over the area, breaking the silence with their tinkling bells. Mr. Ritchie realized the importance of this location, and he wondered if it would be possible to obtain this for a town centre.

SUMMERLAND DEVELOPMENT COMPANY

By this time the Summerland Development Company, which had been organized by Mr. Robinson to promote the district, was very busy with settlers from the Prairies, was the home of the Pierre's. Fruit lots in the bench were selling fast. The steamer "Aberdeen" came down the lake three times a week, and when it docked at Summerland it was met by Mr. A. Stevens, Secretary, and usually there were prospective buyers. The need of a centre on the bench land was realized. It was a long distance by horse and buggy to Summerland. (also called "The Front").

And so the Indians were approached, and when an exchange of land was suggested, they were agreeable. Through the Indian Agent at Vernon, negotiations with the Provincial and Dominion Governments proceeded. Finally a pre-emption beyond Prairie Valley, and across Trout Creek, owned by Mr. Ritchie was accepted, and this proved satisfactory to the Indians. Mr. Ritchie obtained the title to Siwash Flat in 1904.

TOWN PLANNED

It was time to plan a town. Mr. Latimer, District Engineer, was engaged to sub-divide a portion for town lots. A committee decided the new town, which was situated west of Summerland should be called "West Summerland", though for years it was still commonly known as "The Flat". Lots were soon available, and when the Summerland Supply Company opened the first store in 1907, it was an important occasion. (now owned by Laidlaw and Co.) The next building to appear was used by John Ritchie as a harness and leather repair shop. (occupied by District Horticulturist at present).

CHURCHES ORGANIZED

The organized churches, Anglican, Baptist and Presbyterian were given building sites. The Anglicans had already built a small church in 1898, where the Anglican cemetery is now located. There the "first wedding" of the Municipality was solemnized in 1904—the H. Dunsdon's. A church was built by the Baptists in 1908; by the Anglicans in 1909, for the congregation was now too large for their little church. Rev. H. A. Solly was the first vicar of the new church, St. Stephen's. In 1910 the Presbyterians had built their church, St. Andrew's.

SCHOOL BUILT

The first school on "The Flat" which is now torn down, was built in 1905. The Municipal Hall was erected in 1910. Mr. J. M. Robinson had been elected first Reeve in January 1907, and Mr. J. L. Logie was the first Municipal Engineer in January 1907, and Mr.

Latimer, District Engineer, was engaged to sub-divide a portion for town lots. A committee decided the new town, which was situated west of Summerland should be called "West Summerland", though for years it was still commonly known as "The Flat". Lots were soon available, and when the Summerland Supply Company opened the first store in 1907, it was an important occasion. (now owned by Laidlaw and Co.) The next building to appear was used by John Ritchie as a harness and leather repair shop. (occupied by District Horticulturist at present).

In 1912 the K.V.R. began construction and when the train passed through West Summerland in 1915, it was a day of celebration. It had been a disappointment when the first blueprint showed that the line would pass miles from the town. For this reason Mr. Latimer was engaged to make a survey of another route, which Mr. Ritchie believed was shorter, less expensive and would touch West Summerland. Construction had already begun at points east and west, which made the problem an urgent one. When the lengthy survey was completed the "findings" were immediately wired to Ottawa. The reply came, and it stated the K.V.R. was to be re-routed to pass through West Summerland.

RAILWAY COMES

There was great excitement when the first engine nosed its way around the mountain. A flag pole had been erected at Parkdale in readiness, and on this special day a flag was raised. West Summerland now had railway connections with outside points. As the years have passed along many citizens have added in many ways to those early beginnings. One who contributed service in a very special way is Dr. Andrew, who attended to as many as four generations before retiring. In the early days, accompanied by his little bull dog "Klinker," he travelled miles and miles of the district by horse and buggy, very often at night, as well as day.

SUMMERLAND TODAY

Today the town which has increased greatly in size and population includes many new buildings, latest of which is, a skating rink and curling arena. This a community project was built largely by volunteer labor. It was officially opened in 1956 by Reeve Atkinson and fittingly named "Jubilee Arena". There are new schools, MacDonald Elementary School, and a Junior-Senior High School. There is a new modern Municipal Hall, with offices for the RCMP.

Very close to the town centre is a Memorial Park, where, inscribed on the Cenotaph are the names of "Summerland's Sons", who paid the price of freedom. Soon, gay decorations will declare the fiftieth birthday. We shall celebrate and recall by-gone days, for we feel we have every reason to do so. We are proud of "our hometown"!

I. P. Phillips Gives Talk On Arnprior Course In CD

I. P. Phillips, Summerland's Civil Defence Officer, has returned from Arnprior, Ontario, where he took a course at the Canadian Civil Defence College.

On Wednesday evening he gave an interesting account in brief of the two weeks' intensive instruction. Present were Reeve F. E. Atkinson and heads of the different departments of local Civil Defence organization.

A tribute to the efficiency and organization of the Canada CD College was given by Mr. Phillips, who said complete coverage was given at Arnprior of all CD subjects by the staff of the college.

Importance of keeping the general public posted with up-to-date information on CD was stressed, and CD officers urged to talk on all needed matters to the local organizations, Mr. Phillips mentioned, as well the great need of many more volunteer workers.

Plans for this fall and winter include CDO undertaking talks to stir up action. It is hoped all Summerland organizations will co-operate and extend an invitation to the local officer in charge of Civil Defence to speak at at least one of their meetings. Mr. Phillips promised that talks would be short and of general interest.

Already the board of trade has booked Summerland's CDO for a September meeting, and the Kiwanis Club has asked for a July 17 date.

Mr. Phillips stated that all CD personnel will be asked to meet in the fall and will be so advised by letter and the press.

A training session is being organized to take place early in November until March.

Classes are to be arranged in radio, first aid, welfare, fire-fighting and fire prevention as they apply to CD.

Atomic warfare, and related subjects, survival planning, evacuation organization, and work in case of natural disaster will be studied.

Mr. Phillips in concluding his timely talk spoke in praise of the support and general interest he had received in Summerland as CDO officer.

ers to Mrs. McLarty. Dr. M. F. Welsh, member of Dr. McLarty's staff cited the valuable assistance given by the officer-in-charge in advice and encouragement to young staff members. Dr. Welsh mentioned those who had profited by this: Dr. T. M. C. Taylor, head of UBC botany department; Irving C. Smith, controller of Monsanto Chemical Co.; St. Louis, Missouri; Dr. R. E. Fitzpatrick, officer-in-charge, plant pathology lab, Vancouver; Dr. C. G. Woodbridge, professor of horticulture, Washington State College, Pullman; Dr. J. M. Bickerton, regional representative for Dow Chemical Co., Fort Worth, Texas; Dr. J. C. Wilcox, Experimental Farm, Summerland; W. D. Touzeau, assistant district inspector, plant protection, Vancouver.

Dr. Welsh said that Dr. McLarty is a Fellow of the Agricultural Institute of Canada and a past president, a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a past president of the Canadian Phytopathological Society and a member of Gamma Alpha and Sigma Xi.

It was mentioned that the honored officer is well-known throughout the Okanagan, and internationally for his research work. He has been an active member of the GWVA and the Canadian Legion serving several terms as president of the Summerland Branch. He has headed the local and the south Okanagan Boy Scout committees, is an active Rotarian, and was charter president of the Summerland Club. Summerland's Parks A Tribute To Parks Board

Summerland's parks are in wonderful condition and are inviting green spots for the enjoyment of local residents, visitors and tourists.

The parks are under the direct control of parks' board, chairman, H. W. Brown and commissioners' Lionel Fudge, Wm. Snow, and secretary E. H. Bennett, and are administered by this group for the municipal council, which gives a yearly grant for park maintenance of just over $5,000.

That they are good stewards is indicated in the trim beauty of all six park areas.

These are Powell Beach, Peach Orchard Park, the Peach Orchard Cemetery, Memorial Athletic Park, and Memorial Park Playground at West Summerland.

The parks are constantly being improved as by degrees a long-range program, requiring considerable financial figuring is implemented.

Most people in the south Okanagan have visited Powell Beach at one time or another and appreciated its fine facilities for swimming, shady beach for picnicking and the ample parking space.

Peach Orchard Beach is popular right now and has an almost capacity number of tourists with tents at the weekends. With increased interest in boating on the Okanagan several boats have been launched here, and moored in the bay.

This year in Peach Orchard Park, following out plans made last January, the parks' board has built a new washroom with toilet and wash basin facilities. Unwanted trees were cut and roots bulldozed out. The next project is to make a fill and level the west side. Three or four acres are being developed and there will be room for 30 or 40 campers when finished. A part-time caretaker is to be appointed.

The cemetery lots have been numbered and curbs built. Shrubs have been planted and the cemetery now presents an orderly appearance.

Visiting teams say that there is no finer park in the South Okanagan than the Memorial Athletic Park. Grass is luxuriant and parking space for 500 cars has been made. The stands are painted and clean and it is with some pride that Summerland people take their guests to events there.

Oasis at West Summerland is the Memorial Park Playground many people taking a few minutes to cool off in its shade or to eat lunch in such lovely surroundings.

Those who have not taken a drive to look at the local facilities offered by the untiring volunteer efforts of the parks' board have a seasonal opportunity to do so now, and may be surprised at the improvements made.

With the house in receipt of this information, speakers immediately took exception to the passing of such powers to the Postmaster General. After a hectic debate the bill was held up pending answers to questions promised by the Postmaster General. The opposition claimed that this power could be used for patronage purposes and safeguards against this should be included in the bill. So far the Postmaster General has not agreed with this point of view.

STRAWBERRIES, I love 'em.
Planted a new planting this year and following instructions nipped off the first blossoms and now waiting impatiently for the second fruiting. Meanwhile I scoured the patch for the odd blossom that escaped being nipped, which might bear juicy berries.

I never do pick a strawberry without thinking back to the day I discovered a field of strawberries.

There are stories about children living in wildernesses of bricks and mortar who have never seen a cow. I was a city lad who had never seen a strawberry growing.

Came the day when I went off to visit an aunt and uncle who lived on a small farm in a quiet English village.

In those days kids even on vacation were expected to be useful and so I was sent out cow tending. Tending was a cheap way of feeding the cows by letting them graze along the country roads. Being a smart city slicker I figured out a way to make cow tending an easy business by locating a dead end lane, running between steep banks and high hedges with a luxuriant growth of grass. All I had to do was herd the herd into the lane and then make camp until time to take the cattle home for the evening milking.

The cows couldn't stray without coming back down the lane and so I was able to spend my days dreaming and sometimes reading from a weird assortment of juvenile literature, KOMIC KUTS, NICK CARTER, BOYS' FRIEND, and MAGNET MAGAZINE, just to name a few.

It was on the third day out that thumbing a page I happened to glance up and through a gap in the hedge I saw a cluster of something red. I inched my head through the gap and stared awestricken at a plant loaded down with strawberries. They were just coming to ripeness, but several were ready for the picking, I picked. Then I realized that this was only one plant in row upon row of strawberry plants.

It was a big assignment for a small boy, pitted against acres of strawberries. The odds were against me, but I was going to save that strawberry crop from rotting on the ground. Question of ownership never entered my head as I crawled from plant to plant, stuffing myself with the luscious berries.

My sojourn in this small boys' paradise was short-lived. Reaching for a big red berry I froze motionless and stared fascinated at a pair of square-toed boots, planted wide apart. My eyes travelled slowly upward and took in a pair of yellow gaiters, then riding britches, a cutaway check sport jacket and a red waistcoat and then a mahogany brown face, bulbous nose threaded with purplish veins, iron grey sideburns, bushy eyebrows, piercing angry eyes and the whole topped by a hard Derby hat.

It was the village squire. Squire Otter, and this little bit of England was his kingdom. This was back in the days when the men knuckled their hats and their womenfolk courtseyed to the squire and to a small boy the squire was at all times an awe inspiring individual and to be caught out by the squire was a terrifying thing indeed.

So, like a bird hypnotized by a snake, I stared up at the squire. My position was ludicrous, on my knees with my posterior up in the air, but it suited the squire.

"You're the town boy staying at the Hartleys... you're their nephew and fine rascal you are, stealing my strawberries... this will teach you."

Up whistled the squire's knobby stick, whack! whack! six in all.

"I'll speak to your uncle about this," said the squire and re-member, I expect to see you at Sunday School on Sunday."

My grief wasn't ended for that day. During my foray into the strawberry field the cows came down the lane and wandered off and it was a four lane junction, so I didn't know which way to go looking for them. Finally going on dark I tramped home without the cows, a fearful, fearful little boy.

The cows had beaten me home, so had the squire and I got another larrupping from my uncle with his razor strap and was sent to bed without supper.

Uncle made sure I was at Sunday School the following Sunday and the squire, who ran the show, made sure I had a front seat. Then he gave a real hellfire and brimstone address, spoke of the wickedness of big cities, of the sacredness of property and of course his text, "Thou Shalt Not Steal." I quirmed more, sitting under the Squire's eye in Sunday School than I did during two liddings.

The pain of two liddings in one day didn't leave any lasting impression but the memory of my discovery of a whole field of strawberries and the gorgeous feed I enjoyed before being copped by the squire is still vivid.

Strawberries... I love 'em.

Thank-you Extended To Retiring "Akela"

Mrs. H. A. McCargar announced her retirement as Cubmaster of the 1st Summerland Cub Pack at "Parents' Night", the final night of the Cub camp held at Kelley's Mine, July 9-13. Mrs. McCargar has been "Akela" for five years.

This, however, doesn't mean that she is leaving Cub work, for a job in itself. It just means that she may have a night at home once in awhile.

She is still the District Cubmaster. The group committee had heard about the announcement before it was made and on behalf of appreciative parents, Harvey L. Wilson presented her with a travelling case.

The Cub camp was a good one, with 17 boys attending, and five leaders, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. McArthur, W. C. Baker and A. W. Moyle.

Drainage In Trout Creek

In the matter of Trout Creek drainage, Summerland council is writing the water comptroller telling him of the problems involved.

The present plan is to effect organization under the water act, and the comptroller will be asked if engineers can be sent in to Trout Creek to give advice, and to help in the first steps.

Residents decide if they are to come under the water or the municipal act. Under both acts benefiting owners are responsible for the cost.

BICYCLES IMPOUNDED
RCMP have impounded five bicycles until the owners have produced headlights for them. This is a measure to protect not only the cyclists themselves but motorists and pedestrians.

Presentation to Miss Louise Atkinson

Miss Louise Atkinson who acted as secretary for the Golden Jubilee Committee was presented with half-a-dozen souvenir spoons at Tuesday's council meeting by Councillor H. J. Barkwill who took over as head of the Jubilee Committee following H. R. J. Richard's resignation.

Miss Atkinson was thanked for all the many hours of work she spent keeping records and writing letters and generally adding to the success of the Jubilee organization.

OVER TWO INCHES OF RAIN IN JUNE

Lowest figure in last month was June 4 when low and high temperatures were 55 and 50. Precipitation was 2.37 inches.

EXPENSES of a delegate to the Firemen's Convention in Vancouver in September were approved at Tuesday's council meeting.

Summerland Council last week passed accounts in the amount of $85,976.01.

Few Bright Spots In Fruit Crop Report For Summerland Area

MEMENTO OF FIRST OFFICIAL POUR of concrete on the new 16 million dollar Second Narrows Bridge is presented to Health Minister Eric Martin by Wesley Pletz, president of Kiewit-Raymond Construction Co. Ltd., contractors for the new span. Labor Minister Lyle Wicks (centre) attended the function together with the Premier and eight Cabinet Ministers. When completed, the bridge will be the largest of its type in Canada, and form a part of the Trans-Canada Highway system, together with the new Oak Street Bridge, Deas Tunnel, Aggasiz-Rosedale Bridge, and Okanagan Lake Bridge.

Scientists, Fruit Men Honor Dr. McLarty

An impressive tribute to Dr. H. T. Gussow, officer-in-charge of the Plant Pathology Laboratory, was rendered this summer after 24 years in office, representatives of the fruit industry, and scientists from all branches of the Research Centre, present and retired, arranged a dinner at the Prince Charles Hotel, Penticton, on Friday evening.

Among those attending were A. R. Garrish, Oliver, president of the BCFGA; Eric Tait, Summerland; D. J. Sutherland, Kaleden; Nigel C. Taylor, Kelowna, BCFGA directors; A. G. DesBrisay, Penticton, past president BCFGA; Albert Millar, Oliver, former governor of B.C. Tree Fruits.

Dr. G. Howell Harris, professor of horticulture at UBC represented the horticultural branch of the department of agriculture and the university, J. W. Lee, Kelowna was present for the fruit inspection branch, and Howard Morgan, Oliver, for the VLA.

Dr. H. T. Gussow of Victoria, retired former dominion botanist and plant pathologist at Ottawa came for the occasion. Dr. R. E. Fitzpatrick, officer-in-charge of the plant pathology laboratory, science service, Vancouver, who was on Dr. McLarty's staff at one time was present, and Dr. Wm. Newton, officer-in-charge, plant pathology lab, science service, San-lichton.

Following introductions, Dr. Fitzpatrick acted as master of ceremonies reading a telegram from R. P. Murray, provincial horticulturist, Victoria, who regretted being unable to attend.

J. Smith in speaking for the close co-operation between their extension services and the federal research group, told of the part Dr. McLarty had played in developing these relations.

Mr. Garrish described the value of the retiring scientist's work to the fruit industry and his friendly terms with individual growers.

Speaking for the Experimental Farm, Dr. J. C. Wilcox, a member of Dr. McLarty's research

Summer Band School Has Big Attendance

The Summer Band School is having a large turnout. There are three groups, beginners, starting at 8:15; juniors practicing from 7 p.m. until eight o'clock; and the senior band from eight until 9:30.

Beginners have the largest number in years. The seniors are planning many activities during the summer.

Classes will continue each Tuesday and Thursday evening at the high school ending August 23 with a band concert and picnic in the park at which the different groups will give a performance.

There are more McIntosh apples in the Summerland area than there were last year while the pear crop is expected to be fair. Another bright spot in the outlook for the 1956 fruit season, according to Alex Watt, district horticulturist, is that the season is one of the earliest in the past five years and, although it is not an exceptionally early season in comparison to some past years, it is at least average and is ahead of the fruit producing areas in the east.

Reviewing the crop year to date, Mr. Watt reports that the cherry crop is just about in. Splitting was severe in Bings but Lamberts were not severely damaged. This year's crop is, however, considerably below normal and is only 12 percent of the last big cherry crop year of 1949.

Apricots — This year's crop estimated at around 75 per cent of last year but only 20 per cent of a full crop. Fruit has sized well and is showing color now.

Prunes — A fairly good set — could have as many as last year. However, many trees are infested with rust mite. Considerable tree damage in prunes and many trees of early strains are going out.

Pears — Could have as many as last year. Sizing is good so far. Considerable trouble with pear decline in some orchards.

Apples — More Macs than last year — sizing good. Delicious — some orchards have as many as last year, others are away down. Where there is a crop sizing has been good so far. Newtowns — only a small fraction of a normal crop — this variety has been hard hit with many trees killed outright and production reduced for years to come. Winesaps — this variety has proved its hardiness and has little tree damage and a heavy set of fruit. Stayman — set is light except in a few orchards — some tree loss in younger trees. Total apple crop currently estimated at 75 per cent of last year but only about 67 per cent of the average crop for the years 1952-55.

Worst feature of the year — the high mortality of Bing Royal and other cherries and the heavy loss of DeBelans and Newtown trees up to 20 years of age, to say nothing of the reduction in current year's crop as a result of last November freeze. Best feature of the year — the season is one of the earliest in the past five years.

Department of Agriculture has given out some figures comparing last year's crop which includes shipments, bulk and manufactured by-products, and the estimated crop for this year. It is as follows:

Apples	403,359	318,000
Crabapples	5,443	7,000
Pears	119,584	120,000

Bob Alstead Continues As Magistrate Here

Justice in Summerland will continue to be dispensed by Magistrate Robert Alstead.

Last week Mr. Alstead announced his resignation from the post to have taken effect on July 31, but at the request of the municipal council, Mr. Alstead has reconsidered his decision and will remain in office.

The Alsteads came to Summerland from New Westminster five years ago and since that time have taken an active part in community affairs.

In his duties as magistrate Mr. Alstead this week imposed a fine of $75 and costs on a local resident who failed to file income tax returns, and $25 and costs on another person under the restricted driving license clause.

MUNICIPAL EMPLOYEES TO ATTEND CONVENTION

The Municipal Engineers' Convention is to be held in Penticton September 20-21-22. Summerland Council has approved the attendance of Superintendent of Works, K. M. Blagborne, and will ask Mr. Blagborne to arrange for other foremen to attend.

NO NOMINATIONS

At press time, today no nominations were received by A. F. Calder, returning officer, for the position of municipal councillor. The seat was left vacant by the resignation of former Councillor D. M. Wright.

Nominations close, at noon Thursday.

Penticton By-Pass

In response to a letter from Reeve F. E. Atkinson to the Minister of Highways regarding the bypass Penticton, a letter was read at last week's council meeting stating that no definite plans had been made for a bypass, although some reconnaissance work was done in the matter.

Reeve Atkinson and council members think that it is unreasonable to expect through travelers, such as Summerland people or those from northern points in the valley bound for Vancouver, to have to travel three sides of a square, stopping at various inter-sections, when one side, without a stop would get them on to the main highway.

Mr. Atkinson thought there was some merit to the suggestion that the bypass be opened, which would be known locally, and road signs remain as they are, which would direct tourists into the city of Penticton.

Nailing Our Flag

When flood, hurricane, or earthquake bring destruction upon sections of the earth, mankind, generally speaking, accepts such disasters as being what the insurance companies term, "Acts of God," although, in zones where such visitations are to be expected attempts are made to minimize the effects of the disasters by the building of dykes, digging of hurricane cellars and the construction of earthquake proof buildings.

Here in the Okanagan Valley, however, many fruit growers seek to lay the blame for what can equally be termed "Acts of God" along with flood and hurricane, upon the central selling agency, in particular, and the growers' organization in general.

Only last week the Glenmore local of the BCFGA took a whack at the central selling agency, apparently blaming that organization for an overproduction of apples, with the inevitable low selling price and deplorably low returns for the growers.

But what is overproduction, but an act of God?

A bumper crop in the Okanagan is hailed with delight, provided such bumper crops are not widespread. But last year bumper crops of high quality apples were the rule everywhere and Okanagan apples were in competition with eastern apples which appeared for the first time as far west as Alberta.

It was only natural that, in such a year, cost of marketing the apples should be increased. Markets, won over the years had to be retained and it is significant and, indeed, a source of congratulation that the B.C. apple crop was disposed of.

It is, of course, easy to understand the disgruntlement, and outright anger of growers who receive less for their product than what it costs to produce, but surely it is not reasonable to take that anger out on the central selling agency for disposing of the crop, even though at low prices.

Had the central selling agency thrown up its hands saying, in effect, there are too many apples everywhere, we can't get the prices to make it worthwhile, then indeed would the growers of the valley have had something to storm about, for such an action would have been tantamount to throwing away the dollars and the efforts made over the years to capture and retain markets many of them within other apple producing areas.

Destructive criticism of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd. and of the growers' organization is as senseless as the action of a child who, having built its tower of bricks, contemplates it with grave satisfaction for a while and then with one fell swoop crashes the edifice to the floor.

It is said that nothing is perfect in this imperfect world and it be taken for granted that the selling agency is not perfect, but one doesn't run out of the bomb shelter during an air raid, because, perhaps, one girder is weak.

Most growers, we believe, stand firm behind the organization they have themselves built up over the years, but there is a group, which appears to be hell bent on the organization's destruction.

There are growers who chafe under the regulations imposed under the one desk plan. They cry "monopoly," an absurd accusation, if ever there was one, for what can be monopolistic about an industry which must compete in every market with the fruit produce of other areas in Canada and of other nations.

And then these short sighted growers rant about their individual rights and claim they should have the right to sell when and to whom they please.

Such thinking is in effect advocating anarchy. Experience has shown that controlled, over the one desk selling is the best policy and, it is in fact certain, that the valley fruit industry would not exist as we know it today, but for those far sighted men who created the BCFGA and subsequently the central selling agency.

Growers who are irked by restrictive selling might well ask themselves why they observe any of the multitude of regulations and laws which govern all of us in our daily lives. We do so, by and large, because we recognize that such regulations, irksome as they might be to the individual, are necessary in the interests of the majority.

These are testing times for the industry and this industry is not helped to survive them by such carping resolutions as that passed by the Glenmore local.

We do, however, believe that the Glenmore resolution was very definitely a minority viewpoint. Nevertheless we're pleased at the swift rebuke handed the Glenmore local by the action of the Oyama local of the BCFGA which group, at a well attended meeting last week passed a motion of confidence in the growers' central sales agency, B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., and also expressed confidence in the Board of Governors of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd. The Oyama growers made it clear that the low prices received for the 1955 crop, although disappointing, have not in any way altered their faith in their own organization.

As for The Summerland Review, we stand 100 percent behind the principle of central selling and the growers' organization, for it is our conviction that the growers and all of us who, directly or indirectly, depend upon fruit growing for our livelihood will bitterly rue the day if we remain supine while malcontents gnaw at the foundations of the grower built structure which has so well served the growers in the past, and which will serve them well in the future.

Notes From Parliament Hill

By O. L. JONES

The controversy started a few months ago over the qualifications of the Speaker to remain in office reached a final conclusion on Monday of last week when the Prime Minister on his return from London announced to the House that the Speaker had been persuaded to subordinate his personal wishes to resign and would continue. The Prime Minister said that he could not think of any other man as qualified as Mr. Beaudoin to hold the office and he minimized the events leading up to his tentative resignation. While the Liberals and Social Credit group approved this decision the Conservatives and CCF continued to feel strong resentment.

On the following day Stanley Knowles charged the Prime Minister with taking it upon himself to decide that the Speaker Rene Beaudoin should continue in office for the rest of the session. He claimed that was the substance of the Prime Minister's statement. He went on to say that parliament's right to say who will be continued on page 8

Mid-Week Message Pioneer Days

Every one who exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted. (Luke 14:11 R.S.V.) Read Luke 19:1-10.

The well-known Bible story of Zacchaeus, the publican, pictures faithfully the truth which our text points up.

Zacchaeus was a prominent figure. He was rich, and he was chief among the publicans. But there came a day when, in order to see the Master, to glimpse the blessed face of the Son of God, to enjoy His friendship, Zacchaeus found it necessary to humble himself. In the presence of Jesus he humbled himself that he might possess the riches of salvation. Jesus sought him and saved him.

This was Zacchaeus' experience in that day long ago. It is the experience of many in our day.

It is required of us that we repent of our sins and humble ourselves before God. Otherwise we cannot experience the joy of Christ's love nor find fellowship with those of Christlike heart and mind. We need to live humbly so that we may be sensitive and obedient to God's leading.

Gracious God, give us strength to master our pride. May we be as was Jesus, humble in every sense of the word. As we humble ourselves before Thee, give us the desire to seek Thy will for us this day and courage to be obedient to Thee. In Jesus' name. Amen.

ODDS and ENDS

M. VANDERBURGH

The new publisher says I'm talking on the phone most of the time, so we thought we might as well let you all in on it. If you hear of anything unusual or commentarial (what a word!) let us know, and we'll do the same for you, phone The Review at 5406, or come in to tell us.

Only quarrel I have with this newspaper business is that it's been started at the same time as the heat. Down at Crescent Beach the cool north breezes keep the shady spots altogether too attractive, and I wonder why they ever moved most of the place up the hill.

There have never been so many boats on the lake as there are this year. While everyone isn't catching fish, Steve Stockal hardly ever comes in without one or two, and a pretty good size, too.

Up at the Boltons' new camp at Wjilson's Landing, called "Lake Okanagan Resort", I think, they say the fishing is wonderful. C. E. Bolton and his brother Walter, who operate the cabins sent in some snaps to prove they caught a sizeable number during last weekend, mostly around two and a half pounds. It's a spot to remember up on the west side of the lake with the chance of encountering a bear or two. Admittedly the road isn't a speedway but it unfolds some beautiful scenery.

Up above Bear Creek on the lakeshore the Schochs have their new French-Swiss chalet type house. It's adobe, made from the local clay, with real thick walls. Everyone who has been in it tells about such well-proportioned rooms, satisfying colors, period furniture, authentic details. Mr. Schoch is a Swiss interior decorator of note, and has planned it all with Mrs. Schoch approving. He's a perfectionist.

And have you ever seen anything so lush and green as the new grass at the high school? Mr. Murphy must have two green thumbs.

SUMMERLAND PAINTINGS GO TO WILLIAMS' LAKE
Members of Summerland Art Club have been invited by Williams' Lake Art Club to send pictures for an exhibition there, and are forwarding some this week.

The H. R. J. Richards Travel 14,000 Miles

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. J. Richards are home again after a motor trip in which they were away over six weeks and drove 14,000 miles.

Mr. and Mrs. Richards went down to California, over to Texas, and up through West Virginia where they visited Mrs. Richards' relatives. Then they drove to Montreal, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island. They toured the Gaspé Peninsula, and were in Quebec City.

At the Citadel in Quebec City they saw a B.C. car for the first time. It was from Kelowna.

The return west was through Northern Ontario, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Jasper, Calgary, and Banff.

Coming by way of the Kootenays, the couple stopped off to see their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. J. Henniger at Grand Forks, arriving in Summerland Saturday.

Summertime Is Dance Time, Too

The hot weather isn't discouraging Summerland square dancers. Last Wednesday night a party from Summerland Pairs and Squares Club drove up to Kelowna for the first night of Kelowna's new club, the "Aqua Squares."

They held a party in the Aquatic Club.

Those who went up to the Orchard City were R. A. Fredrickson, Mr. and Mrs. Don Hermiston, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. Channon Snow, Miss Enid Maynard, and Harry Williams.

Les Boyer of Omak was MC. The evening was reported to be a great success, with Summerland callers taking part in the program.

Saturday night the local club enjoyed dancing in the Memorial Park Playground with R. A. Fredrickson master of ceremonies.

There were seven squares participating, including one square from Penticton and two couples from Alberta.

Local callers kept everything moving quickly and there was a group of interested spectators.

Can She Make A Cherry Pie? . . . Here's How

B.C. sweet cherries are ripe. The season is so short you'll want to make the most of these luscious, juicy cherries. Wash them, chill them and eat them out-of-the-hand for the most delightful simple dessert. Or make a cherry pie topped with cream or ice cream. Don't let the season slip by without preserving jars or freezing containers filled with sun-ripened vitamin-rich cherries for winter use.

Silver Wedding Held At Celista

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Garnett were in Celista last weekend to attend the silver wedding anniversary of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Riley. Mrs. Riley is the former Miss Dorothy Garnett who was married July 14, 1931.

Other Summerland guests were Mrs. R. C. Cuthbert and Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Stuart.

Mrs. Riley's two sisters and their husbands were present from the coast, Mrs. Floyd Simpson and Mr. Simpson and Mrs. S. Burton and Mr. Burton.

There are three children in the Riley family, Tommy, Bobby, and Jean.

- B.C. Cherry Pie
Pastry for double crust 9-inch pie
3 cups pitted cherries (use sterilized hairpin for pitting)
1 to 1½ cups granulated sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon butter

Combine sugar and flour. Sprinkle a little over bottom crust. Mix rest with cherries. Add to pie crust. Dot with butter. Place top crust in position. Make steam slits. Bake in hot oven, 425 deg. F., for 15 minutes; then 350 deg. F., until done, about 35 to 45 minutes long or.

Note: To help prevent "fruit boil overs" in oven, after putting on top crust, press edges together tightly. Trim top crust until ¼ inch larger than lower. Lift the edge of lower crust and fold the extra ¼-inch upper crust under it. Press edges together with fork or flute with fingers.

Freeze Sweet Cherries
Choose firm, B.C. sweet ripe cherries. Wash. Remove stems. Pit or not — as you wish. Pack in freezer cartons covering with 40 per cent syrup; leaving ½-inch headspace. Syrup: Dissolve 1½ parts sugar in 1½ parts cold water. Add 1 teaspoon ascorbic acid powder to each cup of cold syrup to prevent cherries from discoloring. Place piece of crumpled freezer paper over cherries before sealing to keep them in the syrup. Freeze immediately.

In a recent survey, it was found that the housewife's most helpful time-saving devices are the washing machine and the vacuum cleaner — husbands were not even mentioned.

"Where Your Dollar has More Cents"

By Sid Godber

If ifs and buts were apples and nuts we'd all have a good time and, if Summerland Macs had their just rewards they'd be crowding the Kamloops Okonots for the OMBL leadership. Everybody is agreed, of course, that the Joe Sheeley fracas game should have been awarded to Summerland rather than ordered replayed and everybody who was at the ball games Sunday is pretty well satisfied that the way the Macs were playing they'd have taken both games from the Okonots, BUT it rained. Those ifs and buts do spoil things, don't they?

Anyway we can't kick at splitting honors with the league's top dogs.

They're in the home stretch now - should make for some exciting ball. Olyver is here on Sunday - and what weather this is for ball.

Seems I made an editorial faux pas when I suggested that the "road" around the playing field at the Memorial Park should be oiled and possibly surfaced.

Says Joe Sheeley. "That isn't road, that's a track, a cinder track."

Joe did, however, agree with me that it looks more like a road than a track and that any resemblance to a cinder track is purely in the imagination. Even cinders would be preferable to the dirt road pardon me - track - at least there wouldn't be the dust.

It's difficult to think of ice hockey in this 90 degree weather, but George Stoll seems to be burning up about it, see George's comments elsewhere on this page. I don't go along with George in a lot of his reasoning. But George isn't alone in making players salaries the villain of the piece and in wanting to give the arenas the lion's share of hockey earnings.

One of the troubles with the arenas is that the arena managers want to make them a year round operation. Summer operations of community arenas don't seem to pay off in the Okanagan. It would perhaps, be better to close them down and do a little salary saving on that end.

As for player rewards - they're entitled to the big chunk. The poorest paid bunch of players in history are, in my opinion, the players who won for Penticton the Allan Cup and the World Hockey Championship.

The arenas throughout the valley made big money on the 1955 Allan Cup winners and the Vees have drawn the crowds right through their history, except last season-at-home. Even so, over the long pull, they earned a lot of money over and above the normal rent for the arena and it seems to me the club deserves a better deal than it is going to get.

Maybe I'm being a Cassandra but I can't see that this squeezing of senior hockey to make thicker gravy for the arenas is going to pay off at the turnstiles. Fans in the Okanagan have been educated to a brand of hockey comparable to almost any there is. Those same fans are not going to take kindly to a much inferior brand and so the saving will be offset by poorer crowds. About only one thing is needed now to administer the kayo to senior hockey in the valley and that is television.

Who is going to leave the fireside and TV, to watch inferior hockey?

Local Marksmen Attend Annual Invitation Shoot At Kelowna

Six members of the Summerland Rifle Club attended the annual shoot at Kelowna on Sunday. Competitors from the local club were Ted Piers, George Dunsdon, Art Dunsdon, Ron Taylor, Yvonne Cousins and Walt Cousins.

The trophy for the Grand Aggregate was won by Army Cadet Eddie Walker of Victoria with an outstanding score of 104 out of a possible 105. Yvonne Cousins placed second with a score of 102. She also placed second in the match for the Legion cup for the combined scores at 500 and 600 yards. With identical scores of 89 Yvonne and Cadet Walker fired 10 extra rounds to determine the winner. In the 15-shot match for the H. and H. trophy at 600 yards, Miss Cousins again took second place, money with a score of 73 when George Farquharson of Kamloops finished with 74 out of a possible 75 points. Matches at the 600 yard range were delayed by a very heavy rain, so it was almost dark when the shoot was concluded.

Bleacher Seats In The Arena

Erection of bleacher seats over one rink of the curling ice has been left to the Rink Association and the Curling Club for final agreement.

Summerland Council had a letter from the Rink Association asking that no action be taken regarding installation of seats claiming that in a former agreement the Curling Club agreed to put in the footings and to make provisions for elimination of noise, and it was understood that building bleachers would be done.

A letter received from the Curling Club said that the club was in favor of the seats, providing the curling ice was adequately protected.

The council decided to leave the matter to the two clubs involved.

BL GEORGE STOLL
Senior "A" hockey right across Canada is not in a healthy financial position. The various reasons for this state of affairs will be discussed in a series of articles. Not only hockey fans, but the taxpayers of the Okanagan are very much interested, these days, in arena management and particularly rentals paid by senior hockey clubs for the use of the arenas. Three of our valley clubs paid, or were supposed to pay $175 per game, Kelowna Packers paid a little less, $150. In the Kootenays the teams pay the arena 20 percent of the gross take. Ontario arenas get far more money out of senior hockey. Kit-chener, the home of the Dutchmen, pay the rink 30 percent of the first $2,000. The gross above this is split 50-50. Stratford and Owen Sound pay 30 percent of the first $1,000 and split everything over this 50-50. Chatham arena, the home of the last season's eastern champions gets a straight 40 percent of the take.

Senior "B" or intermediate hockey clubs, such as the Nanaimo Clippers have paid the rink last year nearly $6,000. The Powell River arena collected over $9,000. The Kerrisdale intermediate club paid a straight 40 percent of gate receipts.

Seating capacity and attendance figures are higher in eastern Canada, yet our senior "A" clubs here in B.C. pay the same or even higher salaries to hockey players. Oddie Lowe, while playing coach of the Winnipeg Maroons, in the play-offs 1954 said: "The Okanagan is a hockey players paradise."

Fishing News

BERT BERRY
Fish Lake Camp - Not many fishing Fish Lake but all upper lakes have had fair reports. No large fish but 12 to 14 inches. Trolling and fly on upper lakes and mostly still fishing for Easterns on Fish Lake with minnows or worms.

Headwaters' Fishing Camp - Three or four reports from here last week shows lots of fish but not many of the 12 to 14 inch class.

Silver Lake - Conflicting reports from here, some very good, others poor. The lake still is keeping its reputation of an "on and off" lake.

Brenda Lake - Reports very good from here. The best reports on trolling deep.

Two Pee Lakes - Nice reports from here with fish up to 18 inches being caught on the fly and troll.

Paradise Lake Camp - Several nice reports from here especially on Boot Lake with fish up to four pounds.

Espran Lake - This is quite a lake from all accounts. Best on troll and fish up to 4 1/2 pounds being caught but fishermen are being skunked here on the off days.

Okanagan Lake - Has been pretty good all year and fishermen have had good luck up till now. Biggest fish caught in local waters 4 1/2 lbs. this last week.

Bear Lake - Fishing good last weekend.

It is hoped, by local fishermen that natural spawning will be improved to keep the fish population up, or if possible, to increase it. The Game Department is no stocking the Okanagan anymore but with their limited facilities are concentrating on the mountain lakes where they have proof of much better survival rates and fisherman success.

Rain doused the Summerland Macs chances of taking undisputed possession of second place in the OMBL when they split Sunday's doubleheader with the league leading Kamloops Okonots.

Macs took the first game of the twin bill handily by a score of 9-2 and, although trailing 2-1 in the second game, the Macs had the potential tying run on base, with none away, when the spattering of rain became a downpour and game was called.

At Kelowna, the Penticton Red Sox climbed back to share second spot in the league standings with Summerland by defeating the Kelowna Orioles 4-2 in a come from behind rally. The Red Sox were helped by two around the circuits hits poled out by Raptis and Russell.

Morley Fliche held the visitors to seven widely spaced hits, one to an innings while his team mates played a lively ten hit tune, one a timely two-run circuit clout off Ollie Egeley's big bat, which put the game on ice for the home crew.

Al Hooker set the pace for the Macs. Summerland's lead off man on his first trip to the plate clouted Pete Duck's offering for a three bagger, but went out on a double play.

The Macs were in a hitting mood and Duck went to the showers in favor of Bill McDonald, after yielding five hits in two innings, but the relief hurler fared no better and was pounded for five hits which, aided by a fantastic Kamloops blow up in the sixth, in which the Macs romped five runs home, added up to the final count of 9-1.

Kamloops tightened up in the second game and both teams played airtight ball.

The break came for the Okonots in the top of the fourth when they bunched three singles and a two bagger, by Buchanan to score two big runs.

Macs came back strong to push one run across the plate and with one man on base it was still anybody's game in the last of the sixth when rain stopped play.

team for six years, told of the leader's ability to inspire young men and train them in proper research methods.

Interstaff loyalty was related by Dr. James Marshall, officer-in-charge of the entomology laboratory, who spoke for his branch of the Summerland Research Centre. International recognition accorded the work on boron deficiency done by Dr. McLarty was related by Dr. Newton.

Highlight of the dinner was a talk by Dr. Gussow in which he described his first impressions of Dr. McLarty when he recruited him for his Ottawa staff and decided he was the man to establish a laboratory for the Okanagan Valley. The decision was justified in Dr. McLarty's persistence and efficiency in his work for the British Columbia fruit and vegetable industries, he said.

A quartette was sung entitled, "Hall McLarty", composed by Dr. J. C. Wilcox.

Dr. J. M. Wilks of the plant pathology laboratory staff presented a congratulatory scroll to Dr. McLarty, sent by Hon. James G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture. Dr. D. L. McIntosh, who made all arrangements for the dinner, presented the honored guest with a folio of letters

When Mrs. Wilson planned to go shopping, her husband Tom said: "Meet you at the bank." It was a natural thing to say, for going to the bank is just a part of everyday life.

In the bank, Mrs. Wilson noticed Miss Ellis the schoolteacher... Mr. Cooper the storekeeper... and her neighbour's son Bobby, adding to his savings account.

When Tom arrived, he grinned: "Seems like everybody goes to the bank." It's true. Canadians find the chartered banks such a safe and handy place to keep money that practically everybody has a bank account. There are now more than 10 million deposit accounts in the chartered banks—more accounts than there are adults in the country.

Fruit Situation Given In Bi-Monthly Bulletin

Westbank
Peachland - Summerland

As reported July 10: Since the issue of our last news letter the weather has been unsettled with several very heavy showers. Rain-fall for the month of June was 2.37 inches, almost double the 35 year average. So far in July 4.8 have fallen. The past two days have been warm with a high yesterday of 90, degrees F.

Cherry picking is in progress. Most of the Bings are off but the Lambert harvest is just starting. The cherry picking season is about 14 days earlier than last year, being near the average date. Summerland crop is only about 30 percent of last year and only 12 percent of the last big year in 1949. Considerable thinning is still being done on apples. Very little chemical thinning was done this year and this has necessitated more hand thinning in nearly all varieties. There is a good set of fruit on McIntosh and Winesap. Delicious are more patchy but many lots still need thinning-out of clustered fruit. Most apple varieties have sized well to date but there may be a tendency for Winesap to slow down on account of the heavy set coupled with small rather weak foliage.

The full impact of winter injury of Newtons, younger Delicious and Staymans is only just beginning to take effect. Many of these trees are still carrying weak yellow foliage and have had several inches of new shoot growth. However, trunk examination reveals that many of these trees will gradually die out over an extended period of time. This means a serious loss to the future production of the district. Pear trees in the district look good. Fruit is sizing well and the feeling is that we could exceed last year's pear tonnage in the Summerland area. The heavy shower activity of the past two weeks has aggravated the disease situation. Apple scab is now showing up on the foliage in the occasional orchard. So far very little fruit infection has been seen. Fire blight is quite prevalent in the Peachland area. Rust mites are very prevalent on prunes and apples. They are also becoming noticeable on cherries. There has been little Codling Moth activity so far.

Penticton - Naramata
Keremeos - Cawston

As reported July 10: The period from July 1 to 6 was marked with intermittent heavy showers of rain, but the last few days were very warm with a high temperature of 91 degrees on July 9. At the time of writing, however, a violent thunder storm with heavy rain is occurring.

Bing cherries are just about over and Lamberts are now moving. Extensive splitting of the already light Bing crop occurred from rains on July 5 and 6, while splitting of Lamberts has been quite variable. The apricot crop continues to size well. A few early apricots are coming in, but Wentchee Moorparkes are not expected until the latter part of next week. Other fruits are continuing to size satisfactorily, and Yellow Transparent apples are being picked in the Cawston area this week.

The rust mite continues to be the most troublesome pest in the orchards. Codling moth damage, while not serious, is more evident at this time than in the past two or three years, while green apple aphid infestations remain unusually light. Fire-blight developed fairly rapidly during the past ten days.

Kelowna

As reported July 11: Since the last report the weather has been fine and warm with an occasional thunder shower.

All tree fruits on sound trees are sizing well. The Delicious, Winesap and Rome Beauty estimates have been revised upwards. The first picking of Yellow Transparent has started. Lambert cherry harvest is nearing completion. Only a small percentage of the cherries have been split by rain so far.

Tree fruit insects have been troublesome. Most orchards have required a spray for rust mite. Green apple aphid, pear psylla, and Two Spot and Pacific mites are increasing. Apple scab infections are rare. Fire blight of pears has been noted in the odd orchard.

Vegetable crops are well advanced, being a full two weeks ahead of last year's crops. Early cabbage and lettuce are almost cleaned up. Small volume of beets, carrots and early potatoes are moving to market. Pole beans are well up the strings and harvest will be in full swing before the end of the month. Bush beans are already being harvested. Tomatoes are showing four trusses of fruit with the early trusses showing a few mature green tomatoes. Peppers are recovering from the cool June weather and are blossoming heavily. Fall planted onions are bulbed, out and harvesting of this crop will be general during the next two weeks. Sprays have been applied for mildew and mites on some onion fields. Beans are recovering from an early attack of Rhizoctonia. In general, pests and diseases are at a minimum on vegetable crops.

Oliver and Osoyoos

As reported July 9: 1.45 inches of rain has fallen in Oliver since the last report. A little hail fell in one storm last week but no commercial damage has been reported. Temperatures during the past few days have been quite warm but clouds have already begun to move in so that the temperature will probably moderate.

The majority of trees in the district are looking quite healthy and vigorous, but others are steadily declining from the winter injury. The cherry harvest is about completed. The drop was a great disappointment due to splits. Picking of early apples and apricots commenced last week. Generally the size on all fruits is good for this time of the year. Rust mite is the most worrisome pest in the orchard, on apple, cherry and prune trees at present. Green apple aphid is building up rapidly in most locations. Red mite, mostly plum aphid and pear psylla are the three other most prevalent insects.

To date woolly apple aphid has been of no consequence. On peaches, a few peach silver mites have been noted but this pest has not developed into the problem it was in 1955.

Historically Speaking

Sigrun Meierhofer, Grade 7B pupil, wrote this week's essay. Sigrun is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Meierhofer. Mr. Meierhofer is an accountant in the office of Summerland Credit Union.

The family came to Summerland five years ago from Salzburg, Austria. At that time Sigrun could neither speak nor write English and was in grade 2.

SUMMERLAND
NOW AND THEN

About 1894 the first settlers came to Summerland in chuck-wagons bringing cattle, horses and other stock with them. Where now stands our town there were ranches. The mail of these early settlers was dropped off in Meadow Valley. A man would have to ride out there and pick it up to take to the ranches. These people got their household needs from pedlars who would come around once in a while. The children went to school in what we call a shack in Meadow Valley. This school house still stands.

EARLY CUSTOMS

The ladies in those days wore long dresses with bustles because they thought that it was unpolite to have their ankles show. The men wore nearly the same clothes as the men wear today. The ladies also wore high buttoned boots. In 1906 a Baptist church was opened. In this year also the first general store was opened. This made matters better because now if they ran out of supplies they would simply go to the store and buy their needs.

GOOD SOIL

In the nineteen hundreds the people who lived in this small community found that the soil here was rich and fertile so they decided that they would plant trees thus getting more money.

THE PLACE PROGRESSES

Later the railway opened. Still later a packinghouse was opened because now the people had to have their fruit sorted so they could sell it. All this time our little town was slowly growing. Now houses were built, stores, cafes and other projects. In 1949 there was a great frost which destroyed many trees. Also in 1950 our new Summerland junior-senior high school was built. In 1952 the Super-Valu was built. Also the new Penticton highway was built. In 1953 the jewellery and shoe store were built. In 1955 a packinghouse burned so Summerland has started to build a new one. Also this year we got artificial ice in the ice arena. At this time people were busy building a hotel which is now called Bell Hotel. Now Summerland has a population of about 4,000 people.

CELEBRATION

This year we are celebrating our 50th anniversary or Golden Jubilee. This is going to be a great celebration in Summerland's history. The men are growing beards so as to look like old timers. If they do not grow one they will be put in a stock. The ladies are also doing their share by wearing long, old fashioned gowns. The children are painting posters, writing paragraphs and doing other things in order to win money. There will be square dancing, parades, prizes for the beards. There will be fun for everybody.

INVITATION

Fifty years have come and gone. Come all to this joyous celebration:

But still the human race goes on,
This Summerland that we adore
Shall live for ever, ever more.

When Is A Residential Lot Not Residential?

Donald Orr found himself in the queer position of being able to build four houses on four 25-foot lots which he owns running east and west facing on a lane at the lower town, but unable to build one house on the same area.

He could build four houses because the lots were surveyed before the new zoning bylaw went into effect in which residential lots are required to be much larger than formerly, requiring 70 foot frontage and 8,750 square feet of land is necessary.

Mr. Orr would like to make two lots facing on the Gulch Road from his present holdings.

As soon as he subdivides he comes under the new regulations.

At Tuesday's council meeting, Mr. Orr presented his problem, and also asked permission to divert the creek which comes from the Rowley spring.

The creek gives trouble. In diverting it control could be obtained which would save cost to the corporation.

Because it is undesirable to allow four houses to be built on the present four small lots, and because Mr. Orr is willing to co-operate in better handling of the creek, the council agreed to sell sufficient municipal land to make up the footage necessary, and to amend the zoning bylaw to permit consolidation of small lots into larger blocks. So, in this case, two much better lots will be obtained, although slightly under frontage stipulations.

U.S. Steel Strike Will Not Delay Construction Of Natural Gas Pipeline

Some public concern has been voiced that the steel strike in the United States would have a slowing effect on completion of the Inland gas distribution grid, but an official of the company has assured that as supplies were ordered early this year, no delay is expected from that source, and that all phases of the multi-million project will be completed on schedule.

Financing of the project will be completed before the end of September, company officials have announced.

Aerial surveys have now been completed over the major portion of the $28,000,000 Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. natural gas distribution system for interior British Columbia.

Company officials state that the projected route for the line has been photographed from Savona, where the line connects with the Westcoast Transmission Company pipeline, to Osoyoos. Section from Osoyoos to Trail awaits favorable tying conditions.

Helicopters have covered the Inland route from Savona to Osoyoos, and 25 miles of the surveyed section has been staked in the Kamloops area. Right-of-way acquisition will be well advanced this year, with clearing underway this fall. All survey work will be completed by the end of the summer.

Procedure in this type of aerial mapping is for aircraft to fly about 15,000 feet over the projected route. A series of pictures is combined into a mosaic, which is used to guide engineers and detail map makers in their final plans. In order to get the fine detail in the pictures, weather conditions must be perfect.

Ford, Bacon & Davis Canada Limited are engineers and construction supervisors for the Inland pipeline. This company will have charge of all pipe laying, and is at present completing plans of distribution systems in the communities. Inland will serve from the Cariboo to the Kootenays.

Many of the pipe laying jobs done in these centres will be handled by local firms, supervised by Ford, Bacon & Davis.

Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. promised fast action in getting natural gas to interior B.C. following authorization for the pipeline by the British Columbia Public Utilities Commission, made public May 28. The day following the P.U.C. decision, Inland's President, John A. McMahon, announced that his company would complete its project by 1957.

He said 600 men would be employed in construction of Inland's major and local distribution pipelines, and that 150 permanent employees would eventually be on company staff.

First plans were open to local offices in interior communities, and this has already been done in Kamloops and Penticton.

Inland plans to build lateral lines from Westcoast main pipeline at Quesnel, Williams Lake and Merritt. Lines have already been surveyed in the Cariboo and communities served by these spurs can expect early spring supplies of natural gas.

Other communities to be served by Inland are Savona, North Kamloops, Salmon Arm and district, Enderby, Armstrong, Spallumcheen, Vernon, Glenmore, Kelowna, Westbank, Peachland, Summerland, Penticton, Oliver, Grand Forks, Trail, Warfield, Rossland, Kinnaird, Castlegar and Nelson.

Ratepayers in Kamloops will vote on a distribution franchise with Inland July 23. City council has approved the agreement, and the by-law has been approved by the Public Utilities Commission and the provincial government. Council considered Inland's proposal's proposal best after studying other distribution plans.

W. C. Waters Sells Prairie Valley Home

Large Fruit Canning Project Undertaken

There are many who do not always hear of the missionary work being done in Summerland churches. A fruit canning project which has assumed large proportions is one of the many things done by the Women's Missionary Council of the local Pentecostal Church.

Mrs. Ralph Ward is the president of this industrious group and Mrs. J. J. Embree, secretary. Last year members canned and shipped 1,286 tins of local fruit and are prepared to do the same and probably more this year if they can get the fruit.

It started when Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Shannon, the present pastor and his wife, formerly of Penticton, were on one of the five Pentecostal Gospel Ships which ply the coast. They enjoyed the fruit sent to them and presently it was being sent to mission stations along the coast, the north country, and the Yukon.

It is even forwarded to Rev. Bernard Embree, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Embree, in Hongkong, and his wife, who teach in the Pentecostal Bible College there.

good-will was established which may result through closer ties in increasing trade within the Commonwealth. Questions regarding the diplomatic relations with China were not decided, but he spoke highly of the contributions made by the Prime Ministers of Asian countries. He also announced that the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh are favorably considering Canada's invitation to open the St. Lawrence seaway on its completion in about three years.

Summerland Town Band Gets A New Leader

Summerland Town Band regrets losing the services of Herb Pohlman as band leader. However, the Band has been successful in securing the leadership of W. A. (Bud) Stewart, a person well-known for his musical ability.

Mr. Pohlman organized the present band about eight years ago and has been conductor until this spring when pressure of business forced him to relinquish his duties.

"Bud" Stewart has been waving the baton in front of the band at rehearsals for the past month. His enthusiasm for band music has been well-received by the players.

Band members are saying, "Good work, Bud. We hope you'll stay with us."

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Last week in this space I wrote of my passion for strawberries. Day after the paper came out some luscious berries were brought to the office as a gift to this column. They were as welcome as the flowers in May. But it seems I'm not the only one to like strawberries around The Review office and despite my protests that the berries were for this column, everybody had a hand, maybe I should say mouth, in helping dispose of them.

News from the fruit and vegetable laboratory people this week seems to promise that Okanagan Apple Cider, long a dream, is near to becoming a reality.

Cider! Apple Cider! the very name has a tangy, pleasant refreshing sound, put "Okanagan" in front and there is a name that should sell the product. "OKANAGAN APPLE CIDER."

Last time I drank cider was in the "Cat and Fiddle" an English pub in Derbyshire, said to be the highest pub in England, by elevation. One of our hiking club's weekend moorland hikes brought us out at the "Cat and the Fiddle" and always we quenched our thirst with cider.

So, if the cider experimenting people up at the Experimental Farm need a guinea pig to sample their product, I'm their man.

Lawrence Rumball, was down Penticton way last week. On his return he commented on the number of visitors thronging the streets. "We should have something to bring them here," commented Mr. Rumball, "but what?"

Penticton is, of course, fortunate in its lovely setting between two of the loveliest lake beaches to be found anywhere but Summerland has some beaches of its own that are not to be derided, but what Summerland does lack is auto court and hotel accommodation.

If this accommodation were provided Summerland could also cater to a different class of tourist than those who are content to lie on beaches every day of their vacation. Summerland has a hinterland of lakes, mountains and forests which, if properly developed and advertised would attract visitors from far and near.

Tourist dollars are good dollars. It does seem reasonable thinking on the part of Mr. Rumball that Summerland should attract a few of the dollars left in the Okanagan each year by tourists.

Of course Summerland would have to advertise. Maybe we should bring the Warwick brothers here, produce an Allan Cup team and then go on to win the world championship.

Actually, although the parks board and city council of Penticton and a lot of the people down there have more or less turned their backs on the club that brought glory to Penticton, the fact still remains that the big influx of tourists to Penticton during the last three summers is due in large measure to the tremendous publicity given the Peach City by the Vees.

But what I think Summerland should try for a share of the tourist business I don't think we should envy Penticton's growing importance as a tourist centre. In a tourist centre there is, inevitably, the tendency to run to high prices. A lot of people find such places altogether too expensive to live in and Summerland is ideally located to take care of such people. As I see it, as Penticton grows so, in proportion, will Summerland grow.

Last Rites Today For Lake Drowning Victim

Funeral services were held this afternoon for six-year-old Suzanne Aoki whose untimely death by drowning in Okanagan Lake on Sunday evening deeply shocked this community.

Suzanne, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. Aoki, was playing with her older brother, Allan, in the bay fronting on the home of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Aoki of Trout Creek when she got into difficulties in a deep spot and disappeared. It was some minutes before she was recovered from the water.

Inhalator squads from both Summerland and Penticton rushed to the scene, but all efforts to revive the victim proved unavailing.

An enquiry was held Monday afternoon under coroner Dr. W. H. White, and a verdict of death by drowning returned.

Funeral services were held this afternoon from the Summerland United Church, the Rev. C. O. Richmond officiating.

Interment was in Peach Orchard Cemetery with Roselawn Funeral Home in charge of arrangements.

Okanagan Apple Cider Awaits Government Okay

Summerland Council Seeks Low Interest Loans

When the Okanagan Valley Municipal Association meets here tomorrow Summerland council will present a resolution regarding the cost of municipal services in rapidly growing areas of British Columbia.

The resolution will state that since it has not been possible to obtain assistance from the federal Municipal Improvement Assistance Act, that the Okanagan Valley Association ask the Union of B.C. Municipalities to approach the provincial government to request low interest loans.

Such money would be of great help in developing districts such as Trout Creek, where residential increases are bringing many problems.

Eric Tait Back On Municipal Council

Eric Tait was nominated by acclamation as Councillor last Thursday to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Councillor D. M. Wright.

ERIC TAIT

He is well-qualified to fill the position having served several terms previously on the council. He has been active in fruit circles having served as president of the Summerland Co-operative Growers' for a number of years, and still is a board member.

Mr. Tait is a governor of the BCFA and an important sub-committee. He heads the growers' committee which has been working on publishing a maturity bulletin to assist fruit growers in knowing when to harvest their crops.

Since his home has always been in Trout Creek, the newly elected councillor is conversant with all problems which are besetting this rapidly growing part of Summerland. His knowledge of this area should be of more than ordinary assistance to the council.

It did seem a little hard when Mr. Tait was willing to assume these civic duties that under the Municipal Act he was required to pay his taxes in full which ordinarily would not fall due until October.

In the usual run of events taxes are paid in October and municipal elections take place in December.

LIBRARY MEETING AT ARMSTRONG

Those present at the regular meeting of the Okanagan Regional Library Board, held at Armstrong on Wednesday, July 18, were Mrs. C. W. Aitkins, Peachland; Mrs. Charlott Jones, Enderby; Mrs. Muriel Froulkes, Librarian, G. C. Hume, Capt. C. R. Bull, all of Kelowna; John Fowler and Mr. McNeill of Armstrong.

Preceding the meeting a delightful luncheon was served prepared by the Armstrong WA and provided by the councils of Armstrong and Spallumcheen.

It was thought that July was not the best time for a meeting and perhaps October would suit both fruit growers and farmers better.

Coquihalla Pass Opened

VANCOUVER — Canadian Pacific Railways service between here and Medicine Hat through the Coquihalla pass and the Kootenays will revert to normal today when trains will be rerouted through the Coquihalla pass for the first time since March 4 this year. At that time a snow slide severely damaged a bridge in the pass at Iago, 115 miles east of Vancouver forcing rerouting of trains via Spences Bridge.

Resumption of service through the Coquihalla pass will eliminate the three hour detour and put passenger and freight service back to normal schedules.

To place the destroyed bridge some 35,000 cubic yards of rock and other excavation was blasted and removed from the cliffside at Iago to provide a 400 foot diversion to carry the CPR line.

The diversion eliminated the necessity of a beldge at this point.

Okanagan Apple Cider may soon be on sale in British Columbia. A fermented sparkling cider, approximating the same strength as beer has been developed by the Dominion Government's Fruit and Vegetable Processing Laboratory at the Summerland Experimental Farm. Its importance to the fruit industry in the valley is that "C" grade apples are used in the manufacture of cider and, if the drink becomes popular, the new industry will provide an outlet for "C" grades, and at a worthwhile return to the grower.

A test pack of Okanagan Apple Cider is in the process of manufacture and, subject to approval of the B.C. Liquor Control Board will be placed on sale in about three weeks to determine consumer acceptance.

The cider is made from the juice of Delicious apples in an effort to find a commercial outlet for the C grade of this variety.

A box of apples should yield 36 cans and the price of the cider is to be competitive with beer.

The experiment is being conducted with the aim of paying the grower a worthwhile amount for his fruit.

A preliminary glance at costs and taxes still leaves cider appearing to be an attractive product from a grower standpoint.

These economics are very much dependent upon negotiations between the Liquor Control Board and the B.C. Fruit Processors' Ltd. The present provincial Liquor Act allows only the sale of malt beverages in licensed outlets. A brief on this matter has been presented.

Garden Social At The Duricks' Thursday Night

Thursday evening, July 26, at 7:30 p.m., members of Summerland United Church WA are holding an Ice Cream and Garden Social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Durick, the former Sinclair home just north of Parkdale.

There will be cones and lemonade for the children and everyone is invited to attend.

Map of Summerland Presented to Council

A map of Summerland given by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Whitaker was presented to the municipal council at Tuesday's meeting by Councillor F. M. Stewart. The map was received gratefully and will be used by the municipal clerk, G. D. Smith and council members.

Dr. Welsh New Head Plant Pathology Lab

Dr. M. F. Welsh, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. P. Welsh, who grew up on an orchard in Summerland has been appointed as officer-in-charge of the Summerland Plant Pathology Laboratory succeeding Dr. H. R. McElroy who retires this summer.

ALFRED BIAGONI ON TRIP TO ITALY

Alfred Biagoni left last night for Vancouver, the first step in a trip to Italy where he will visit relatives and other friends for three months.

Mr. Biagoni is taking the Polar Flight touching Greenland, Iceland, and Amsterdam, and will be in Rome about 11 a.m. on Friday.

He is accompanied by his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Biagoni of Trail.

Dr. Welsh's appointment takes effect August 1.

After early schooling in Summerland, the scientist obtained his B.S.A. degree from UBC in 1938. In 1942 he took a Ph.D. degree at the University of Toronto.

During these years he won five scholarships: The David Thom Bursary from UBC in 1938; the Reuben Wells Leonard Scholarship in 1939; Canadian National Research Council Studentship in 1940; Canadian National Research Council Fellowship in 1941; and the Elizabeth Ann Wintercoyn award in 1942, these four being given from Toronto University.

Dr. Welsh served with the Canadian Army from July 1942 until November 1945. While overseas he took two British Army Intelligence school courses in 1943, and a two months' course in Plant Pathology at East Malling Research Station in Kent in 1945.

He entered the Plant Pathology Lab as a student laborer in 1935, working there through the summers until 1941, joining the staff

Committees Are Shuffled

Councillor E. M. Tait was welcomed back to the council table by Reeve F. E. Atkinson at the first meeting since Mr. Tait's election.

Changes were made in committees by the Reeve who made the new councillor chairman of the finance committee, and also asked him to be a member of the roads committee of which Councillor H. J. Barkwill is chairman. He will act in the real estate department, too.

Councillor F. M. Stewart will take over as head of domestic water and irrigation, with Mr. Tait a member of this section of municipal affairs. Councillor Stewart was formerly a member of the water committee.

Runaway Truck On Rampage Smashes Swing, Fruit Trees

The unexpected can certainly create havoc, and yesterday afternoon about 3:45 when Lanes Mann was unloading groceries from the Groceria truck at the home of Ralph Blewett on the upper side of Giant's Head Road he didn't expect the emergency brake to disengage. It did. Down the hillside went the truck, across the road, crashed through the picket fence enclosing the lawn at the home of Frank Pelle, demolished the children's swing, broke a peach tree, and stopped by another peach tree which it bent almost to the ground.

Fortunately, no one was on the Pelle lawn at the time, but it was a startling experience for all concerned.

Sour Cherries May Prove Profitable Crop

Increased interest in the possibilities of sour cherries as a commercial crop is being shown.

In Summerland sour cherries may have a particular place in areas that suffer from winter injury such as in Prairie Valley and Garnett Valley.

Last year about 80 tons were used by H.C. Fruit Processors' Ltd., in the preparation of cherry pie filling.

This proved to be a very popular product and an increased tonnage would be used if available this year.

Other firms are interested in cherry pie filling and still others would use this fruit.

Barkwill's Ltd., of Summerland, is making a trial pack right now on a small scale, of frozen pitted cherries for the bakery trade on the coast.

Most of the output this year has been sold to a Burnaby firm for jam.

These are the commercial possibilities.

From the grower standpoint the sour is a harder tree than the sweet cherry, and does not grow so large. It requires little pruning and is not bothered by aphid. The sour cherry is not split by rain. It comes into fruit quickly and is heavy bearing.

Among the disadvantages is the fact that it should be picked stem-less for the processor, consequently is disliked by pickers. Picking is slower, too. Sour cherries are subject to virus diseases but nursery stock is now available that is free from rosette and yellows. Growers should be careful to purchase nursery stock as virus-free as possible. Although there may be a crop every year, the price is usually around two-thirds that paid for sweet cherries.

Ontario produces around 8,000 tons of sour cherries. If there is an overproduction in that province, it can affect local prices.

Although there is an outlet for a considerable quantity of this fruit to local processing plants, nobody can foretell just how many acres of sour cherries would cause an overproduction.

Between Westbank and Summerland there are approximately 22 acres of red cherries in bearing, with the largest planting the 12-acre block belonging to R. Willis of Westbank. There are a few plantings in Kelowna.

Production of these cherries in the United States is increasing rapidly. In the period from 1940-1955 the average annual production increased from 70,000 tons to 140,000 tons. The average rate of increase for this 15-year period was 4,000 tons a year.

Ninety percent of the production in the United States is canned or frozen.

One point that should be borne in mind by anyone planting this fruit, cautions F. E. Atkinson, officer-in-charge of the Fruit and Vegetable Processing Laboratory here, is that the block planted should not be less than one acre. That is because the fruit should be delivered to the processing plant every half-day. Blocks less than one-half acre would cause uneconomic delivery charges.

Montmerancy is the preferred variety of sour cherry. Nursery stock should be obtained from a nursery located in a commercial canning area, Mr. Atkinson says.

Finance Minister Harris claims the government has gone as far as it can possibly go in making tax concessions to the provinces as it has heavy commitments for defence and other purposes and is compelled to boost spending in provincial fields of responsibility. Mr. Coldwell criticized the government for departing from the principle of the past tax rental agreement which he said shared the national tax income so that all Canadians could receive the same social benefits. The formula proposed by the government would:

1. Provide unconditional equalization payments to the less wealthy provinces based on direct tax yields — personal and corporation income taxes and succession duties. The payments would make up the difference in the per capita yield of those taxes between the less wealthy provinces and the average of the two wealthiest — Ontario and British Columbia.
2. Provide for provincial rental of the tax fields to the central government as an alternative to their present power to levy the taxes themselves. If they choose not to rent, they could collect their own taxes or have Ottawa do it for a fee.
3. Reduce the federal levy — in provinces assessing their own taxes — by 10 percent of the personal income tax (nine percent of taxable corporation income and 50 percent of succession duties. If provincial collections did not exceed the reduction, there would be no double taxation. If provinces rented the tax fields, the rental payments would equal the 10-9-50 percent reduction.
4. Guarantee stability of payments to provinces, providing that in no year would they be less than 95 percent of the average of the two previous years.

This formula is the best that can be offered on the basis of the federal government's present revenue source. The decision of the municipalities remains the same as the federal government recognizes their position in which constitution having been created by the provinces they are subject to provincial control through the Municipal Act and of course municipalities may directly or indirectly profit by the new tax agreement depending entirely on the disposal of revenues given to the provincial government.

Mr. Harris claims that this new scheme would give the provinces $115,000,000 more during the first year than if the old schemes had been merely extended. British Columbia would receive under the new scheme $55,430,000 against $53,330,000 under the old scheme. British Columbia of course is being regarded as one of the wealthy provinces of Canada. This formula now proposed has been offered to the provinces on a take-it-or-leave-it basis which the opposition members claim is the wrong way to approach the problem. They demand that another provincial-federal conference should be held to deal with this matter on a different basis where the needs of the provinces and the ability of the federal government to meet them could be discussed openly. There was general agreement that the real problem in Canada today is the cost of education which is taking a heavy share of provincial and particularly municipal income. The formula some members claim should contain some clauses that would see relief granted directly to this situation. The recent suggestion made by Russia that testing of nuclear weapons should cease was brought up in the Commons and the Honourable Paul Martin made a statement that Canada is sympathetic to the idea and would go along with the proposal providing certain safeguards were established so the position of the democratic nations of the world would not be jeopardized.

A delegation of East Indians from Vancouver visited the capital last week and met with members of all parties from British Columbia. The delegates met the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, Mr. Pickersgill, and were sympathetically received. This time they had the written support of the British Columbia members, the Liberals, Progressive Conservatives, CCF and the Social Credit. Their main grievance is that India is allowed only 150 immigrants a year, Pakistan

Congratulations In Order ... welcome back

IT IS generally accepted that if something is to be done the surest way of getting it done is to find a busy man.

Summerland had to look for a busy man last week when the vacancy on the municipal council was going begging.

The busy man, Trout Creek orchardist, Eric Tait, a Governor of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., is a man who needs no introduction to municipal government, having served on the Summerland council on several previous occasions.

There are few civic duties which are more onerous than those of a councillor. There are few duties which are less rewarding, for brickbats far exceed the bouquets. Still selfless men continue to give of their time and of their experience to guiding the community, their only reward that comes from service.

The Review joins with the people of Summerland in welcoming Mr. Tait back to the municipal council table, we are sure that he has much to contribute to the community's welfare.

Welcome back Mr. Tait.

Your Home Town Newspaper . . . is you

DID you ever stop to think that in all the world there is only one newspaper that is really concerned with YOU? And that is your hometown paper.

Big city dailies are only interested in YOU when you commit a crime, break your neck or do something equally spectacular or foolish.

But your hometown paper is interested in YOU all through your life. Over the years it tells the story of YOU.

The story begins, as good stories should, at the beginning. YOU are born and in the "birth notices" there is an announcement that your father and mother have been blessed with YOU.

Then Dad and Mom go away on a trip and take YOU with them. So your name appears in the social and personal column. The years pass and YOU go to school. Every so often your name appears in school results, sometimes at the top of your class, sometimes at the bottom, but always there.

You are on the hockey team or the ball team as YOU grow older and your name is mentioned many times. YOU golf, curl, go to summer camp with the reserves, take part in the musical festival, act in a play — your name is in the paper.

Then comes the moment of the early part of your life — high school graduation and your picture is published. YOU cut it out for your grandchildren to see. Then perhaps college and home for holidays your name appears often. YOU graduate and your home-

Mid-Week Message

Be clothed with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble. (I Peter 5:5) Read John 13:12-17.

In this verse from one of Peter's letters we think that he received the inspiration from Jesus' act of washing feet at the last supper. Jesus "aproned" himself, the record says, with the "badge of a slave," a towel, and did what was someone else's duty. Peter resisted. Jesus rebuked him. Peter then submitted to the Lord's will.

In later years, Peter refers to this incident, the occasion when Jesus humbled Himself and put on the "apron of humility." With many years of service behind him, Peter could then say, "Be sober, be vigilant; . . . the God of all grace, . . . after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, establish, strengthen, settle you." Peter advises, "Be clothed, with humility: for God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble. Humble yourself therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time."

PRAYER

Dear Father, help us to serve one another, clothed with the apron of humility and the badge of a slave. Humble our hearts, that in true humility we may serve Thee, as Jesus did, with full willingness and with all our talents. In the name of the Master who teaches us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . Amen."

A SHAME

What a shame that a lovely beach such as Powell Beach, used and enjoyed by hundreds of people every day, should be misused and abused on occasion, by thoughtless youths!

Usually these noisy creatures arrive very late, their rancous shouts filling the night as they bang car doors, shriek when they hit the water, etc.

I'm sure those who had the foresight to set aside such a fine park site would feel we should value it sufficiently to see that it is treated with respect. Surely no cars should be allowed to enter after midnight!

Shippers throughout the Okanagan will be presented with the new agreements as prepared by the B.C. Tree Fruits, Ltd. within the next few days. Growers will be urged to authorize their shippers to deduct the one cent levy per box on apples, pears, and crab apples to pay for the continuation of control by that organization.

Historically Speaking

This is Lorna Charles' essay. Lorna is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Charles, Peach Orchard, and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Munn of whose early experiences she writes amusingly. Lorna was in Grade 8A when she wrote this story.

SUMMERLAND 50 YEARS AGO
It was a cold dismal evening on October tenth in the year 1910, as the S.S. "Okanagan" docked at the CPR wharf in Summerland. Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Munn and four of their children had just arrived from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

The Summerland Hotel was then directly across from the present-day fish hatchery. Beside it was the Empire Block. One of the buildings located there was the Summerland Supply Company. On the top storey of this building was the local municipal hall, or Empire Hall where plays and concerts were held. Near the site of the fish hatchery was the old bandshell, where each Saturday night the band would play.

PIONEER STORES
Most of the stores were located on the west side of the street. Adam Stark had a dusty old store where he would hand out free candy to the local children. Several other original stores were Eagle's Grocery, R. H. English's livery stables, and Hogg's Drug Store with Dr. F. W. Andrew's office above it.

The original hospital was the Don Orr house which is now still standing. The sole church then was the Baptist-Methodist church. One congregation had their service in the morning, the other in the evening. This was located on the site of the old Gowan house on the hill above the lake.

NEW SETTLER WONDERS
Mrs. Munn viewed all this with mixed feelings and was determined that she and her husband would make a happy home for her children. On the first Sunday that they were here, Mr. and Mrs. Munn walked down to church from their home, which was the old Washington house. Heads turned as the two made their way to a seat. Not so much because they were strangers, but because he wore city falls, a beaver hat, and carried a walking cane! You can be sure he never wore them again!

The S.S. "Okanagan" was built in 1907 and a few years later the "Sicamous" which is now the main tourist attraction in Penticton, was built. These stern-wheelers operated from Okanagan Landing to Penticton. They boasted top service, and many people enjoyed the scenic and leisurely trip up and down the lake. Another method of transportation was the motor boat, "Skookum" which ferried back and forth from Naramata to Summerland, carrying passengers, mail and freight. This operated between 1906 and 1914.

In 1907 West Summerland, or "Parkdale" as it was called then, was sub-divided. A branch of the Summerland Supply Company was moved up from Lower Summerland and built where Laidlaw's store now is.

FOUR SCHOOLS
Originally the local schools were located in Hospital Hill, Garnett Valley, and Trout Creek. The Hospital Hill school, built directly across from the "Misseg Banks" house, was the first - erected in 1903 with Miss Minnie Smith as teacher, of 43 pupils. I'm afraid the Summerland teachers of 1956 would not appreciate her salary: fifty-five dollars per month!

In 1911 the Garnett Valley and Trout Creek schools were closed and a central school in West Summerland was built. This building was the old highschool's gym. This was the beginning of "school-rigs" pulled by horses and first driven by W. A. Caldwell. The school-boys' mothers, especially Mrs. Munn became very disgusted because their sons persisted in trying to outrun the horses to school every morning. This wasted energy was hard on the shoe-leather!
Ellison Hall, still standing in Peach Orchard, but used for storage, was built in 1910 by the Nelson Brothers with plans made by H. C. Mellor, costing $5,000. The hall was named after Price Ellison, MLA, who brought this construction about. The building was used for agricultural shows every fall, and dances; the basement being used to store apples.

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS
The very first road in Summerland went up Fenner's Gulch, now called the Gulch Road. In those days, around fifty years ago, people walked, rode horseback, or, if they could afford it, had a horse and buggy. The first Model-T's made such unholly noises that any car meeting a horse and buggy had to stop so the noises would not frighten the horses!

By 1908, a baseball team, and other sports were organized. One season in baseball Summerland played from Vernon to Penticton, not losing one game. Apparently they were as good then as they are now!
So, three fires, one which destroyed the big Summerland Hotel; much progress and an increasing population of a few hundred to several thousand gradually has moved the business section up to what is now West Summerland, and our town today.

ODDS and ENDS

BY M. VANDERBURGH

One of the more comfortable sights these days is the merganser and her little balls of fluff that sit on a raft in the bay by Sheldrakes in the early morning and evening. Think someone has anchored it for them. Every year the merganser's nest in the 'bull-rushes' there, and sometimes when the little ducks are older they come sailing along past Crescent Beach — proud mother leading, family following, nicely spaced like a flotilla. If anything alarms, some of them climb on mamma's back and feel secure.

The big rock, known as Grandpa's Nose where they might sit is inundated just now with the high water. Presently its tip will be seen, and by the time the mergansers are big diving ducks it will be almost completely out of the water. The family must disperse as they grow older for we have never seen more than a couple of them nesting there.

Getting down to essentials we have been trying to see how long a Giant size package of soap will last, a small family. Putting the date when it was opened on the box, and our guess is that it may do for a month. We are using a liquid detergent for dishwashing thinking it is economical. It's nice and sudsy. Probably an old-fashioned idea but we still like lots of suds.

You know the Irish linen bonus dish towels that come with some soap flakes. Always seemed a handy way to keep a drawer full of tea towels, and didn't pay much attention to them. Not long ago on shaking the soap dust off the little envelope and opening it we came on an address tucked into the towel: Ellen Walsh, 3 Slieve-more Ave., Newtownards, County Down, North Ireland. Being friendly we answered saying, "We are afraid that romance is not to be found by way of a carton of soap, young men so inclined would not be interested (that is, a later development) . . . Back came an answer, "I am a young woman with five children. My husband is away all day. I hem tea towels for a large factory in Ireland. Thought it would be nice to have an interest farther afield." So we have sent the Associated Board of Trade folder extolling the beauties of the Okanagan; the Golden Jubilee booklet, and the first issue of the Summerland Review under the new publisher. Maybe we'll have a new Irish family in Summerland.

Here's an idea: If sticky ice trays are one of your daily irritations try rubbing a little clean-up wax on the bottom of the tray when you fill it. The white creamy liquid will form a coating on the tray bottom and keep it from sticking to the freezing compartment.

During the week of August 1-30 witnesses of Jehovah from Summerland, with thousands of other delegates from all over British Columbia will flock to Victoria to attend a district convention in the Memorial Arena, according to J. R. Prior, presiding minister of the local congregation here.

Nat May Conducts Tour of Gardens

A tour of the lovely gardens of the Experimental Farm was a treat for members of Summerland Horticultural Society on Friday evening. Nat May of the farm staff accompanied them and pointed out many plants of interest including the new day lilies, some of them a deep red, and others maroon color. There were some beautiful new coleus; the two-level begonia bed was admired; and the pink mallow in

Miss Mable Henderson Is Home on Furlough

Miss Mable Henderson who has been serving as a missionary in the city of Nuevitas, on the north coast of Cuba since the fall of 1954 is here on furlough at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Henderson, Jubilee Road.

Miss Henderson is well-known in Summerland having started and operated with success, the Maywood Photo Art Studio, now owned by L. Schindel.

Miss Henderson left Summerland to attend the Bible School in Springfield, Missouri, graduating in May 1956. That summer she assisted the Rev. Cornelius, a Pentecostal pastor at Wallaceburg, Ontario.

Leaving from Toronto that fall she flew to Cuba where she worked as co-pastor in Nuevitas until May of this year.

She has been visiting relatives and friends in Eastern Canada, returning on Saturday with her parents who have been in Ontario for the past three months.

Miss Henderson expects to return to Cuba later this year when she will be stationed on the eastern part of the island at Palma Soriano.

The heat seemed to be more trying in Eastern Canada, she says, than in Cuba.

Legion LA Holds Potluck Supper

The hot weather last week was occasion for a number of pleasant outdoor affairs. One of these was a potluck supper and social evening given by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion on the Legion Bowling Green.

A buffet meal with a variety of delicious dishes was served. Small tables set on the lawn accommodated over 50 guests.

Proceeds from the event will be used for the Auxiliary project of providing silver crosses locally for veterans' graves.

Mrs. H. A. McCargar is president of the Summerland LA to the Legion.

Jack Beech Made School Inspector

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Beech were luncheon visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. MacDonald last week on their way through Summerland.

Macs Knuckle Under To Oliver OBC's

SPORTS

Sports Pourri

By Sid Godber

So the Summerland Macs lost a ball game — so what? It's just too hot to care. Can't get excited much about anything these days. Even when Joe Sheeley or George Stoll come marching in with chips on their shoulders to set me right in my thinking I can't raise a bristle. One thing sure, this column isn't going to be able to get away with anything, not with Messrs Stoll and Sheeley keeping severe and critical eyes on it.

Stoll took me to task for praising Memorial Park. George agrees it is a lovely park, but he's unhappy about the layout which allows dogs, children and adults to wander at will back of home plate. "Someday," says George, "someone is going to get hurt."

I can go along with George on that one without backtracking on the Review's editorial praise of the park. Summerland's Memorial Park is second to none in these parts but that doesn't necessarily mean that it cannot be improved.

It wouldn't cost such a lot to put in a couple of dugouts and advance the wire fence so that people can pass behind the home plate in safety and without in anyway interfering with the game. Concession stand could be located where the team dugouts are now.

See where the hockey moguls are beginning to wonder if Canada will be represented in the world hockey playoffs slated for Moscow next year. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association had the idea that some commercial firm would pick up the estimated $75,000 expense tag, but so far there's nary an angel in sight.

Mind you, I don't know why Canada should bother. After all the world trophy is still in Canada. Sitting on display only 12 miles from here in Warwick's Commodore Cafe, Penticton, is the world trophy. That cup is the real McCoy, the one which the Russians handed over when the Vees took them 5-0 at Krefeld, West Germany, last year. All the Russians have today is a duplicate.

A letter elsewhere in this issue complaining of the conduct of people at Powell Beach. I also hear that there has been some rowdiness at Rotary Beach. The young people responsible for that kind of stuff should stop and ponder their actions. It is a poor way of showing appreciation of the facilities provided for their enjoyment.

Fishing News

Hot weather and mosquitoes have slowed fishing down this last week. Hot weather has slowed the fish and mosquitoes have slowed the fishermen. Mosquito repellent is a must on all the mountain lakes.

Okanagan Lake — Trolling just fair with no large fish being landed. Quite a few Kokanee biting now. Best reports are from Wilson's Landing area with some nice catches off the rocks and from boats close in. Any of the rocky spots used should be getting better now especially with grasshopper.

Fish Lake Camp — Fish Lake

pretty slow but quite good on upper lakes.

Headwaters Fishing Camp — Lots of fish but I haven't heard of any catches over 14-inches this last week but there are some big ones. Peachland Dam — Only one report from here but it was pretty good.

Brenda Lake — Deep trolling with brass has given good results. Silver Lake — Same as last week, if on is good but if off, terrible. Up to 14-inches last week.

Bear Lake — No reports this week on this lake but it should be O.K. especially if it cools off.

George Stoll Not Surprised

BY GEORGE STOLL

It was no surprise to me to read Sid Godber's comment about my last week's remarks on senior hockey and arenas. I would not call 20 or 30 percent of gate receipts, the lion's share. After all the taxpayers put up better than a quarter of a million dollars for an arena, plus roughly $12,000 for debenture debt charges, plus a grant of 10 to 12 thousand to run an arena. Those taxpayers are entitled to 20 or 30 percent of hockey gates.

However, Sid and I both want to see the best hockey possible, here in the valley, run in a sound business-like way. To call the hockey we now have amateur hockey is of course false and ridiculous. Players on their own initiative come to the valley in the fall, or they are invited to come here and try out, their expenses being paid by a club. They go out on the ice and play the very best, at least until they are signed to a contract at a salary of from $35 to $150 a week. If a player comes in that is really good, one who has proven himself in the past, then chances are he will get three phone calls from different towns offering him at least $25 more a week than anybody else is prepared to pay. Some of these fellows once signed, go through the motions, they have landed a well paid job and no mistake about it. Last winter we had a typical example of this in Penticton. On the other hand, there are young, eager players who play their hearts out every time they step out on the ice, and who have proven their worth as players and good citizens over a period of years at say $35 to $50 a week. They get their release, because a club can only sign so many, or perhaps the bank refuses any more credit. Then we have the older players, say over 30 that have given their best during the past four or five years, these players we know as neighbors and good sports, fellows that are still prepared to go out there and do the best they can, not good enough. We've got to have the best that money can buy. Where the money comes from the fans, banks, local merchants, or executives, who put their names to a note, it does not matter. Instead of living within our means, we are fast approaching the collapse of senior hockey, because those in charge act like ostriches, they hate to face the facts, or they have not the ability to run a roadside fruit stand, much less a big business like senior hockey with the millions invested in arenas.

Summerland Macs took a tumble here, Sunday, losing to the Oliver OBC's, 4-3. While the OBC's were leapfrogging over the Macs to take third spot in the OMBL standing, the league leading Kamloops Okonots rocketed off into the stratosphere by virtue of a double win over the Princeton Royals, 7-5 and 23-4. Meanwhile, at Penticton, the brawling Penticton Red Sox whipped Kelowna Orioles 6-4 to strengthen their hold on second place.

The Penticton game was marked by three homers, one booming off the big bat of Sambo Drossos, making a late debut into OMBL play.

At Summerland under a frizzling the heads-up ball they played in the heads-up ball they played against Kamloops a week earlier. OBC's got to Morley Fichel for seven hits and a pair of bad bogles didn't help the Mac's cause.

OBC's led all the way, opening up with a run in the first scoring another in the fourth and aided by errors and only one singleton, put two more runs across the plate in the eighth. Macs got to winning pitcher Corky Taber for five hits. An Oliver error in the seventh paved the way for the Macs first run of the game, but it wasn't until the last of the ninth that the homesters rallied and made a determined bid to cop the game. In that inning the Macs bunched three of their five hits and brought in two runs, but the rally was too little and too late.

6 Team Summer Bowling League Opens Play Here

A six-team summer league has been organized at the Bowliadrome and play commenced last Wednesday evening. Two teams from the Forestry camp, one from Penticton and three from Summerland are registered for the five-week schedule. Results of the first week of play are as follows: Red Sox, 3 points; Chain Gang, 1 point; Earthmovers, 3; Dusteaters, 1; Blackhawks, 2; Penbowlers, 2. High single and high three games were bowled by Ron Litzen, Penticton, with scores of 250 and 655. The Kit-Kat league played the final games on their schedule on Friday evening. Play-offs will take place on July 27, with the Hep Katz and Pinbusters going into the finals.

The prize for hidden score for last week was won by Ashley Austin with a score of 212 in a play-off game with George Williams and Al Hooker on Monday evening. The hidden score of 178 was bowled by these three men during regular contest play. The prize for the competition was donated by Durnin Motors.

Curling Club Delegation Meets Council

Curling Club members Ryan Lawley, A. Doney Wilson and R. A. Fredrickson were a delegation to Summerland municipal council meeting yesterday.

They affirmed 100 per cent co-operation of Curling Club members in ironing out what may have been a misunderstanding regarding erection of bleacher seats in the Arena over one sheet of curling ice.

It was pointed out by the council that any capital work done at the arena has to meet with approval of the council, owners of the building.

R. A. Fredrickson mentioned that 75% of the Curling Club members are interested in the rink as much as in curling.

The poster of James J. Parker looks menacing, but Archie Moore is confident he can handle the Barrie bomber when the two tangle in a 15 round heavyweight bout at Maple Leaf Stadium in Toronto tonight, July 25. Sporting a natty goatee, Moore is pictured at a reception in Toronto on his arrival from San Diego.

KRAFT—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Kraft who passed away in Regina, Sask., July 30, 1955.

A loving mother, so gentle and kind,
What a wonderful memory she left behind;
Long days, long nights, she bore her pain,
To wait for cure, but all in vain;
Till God Himself knew what was best,
He took her home and gave her rest.

Ever remembered by her son and family, Steve, Hilda, and Lawrence.

VACATION TIME: Golf, swimming, tennis and canoeing, these are just a few of the outdoor attractions to be found this summer at Canadian Pacific hotels across the nation. Upper left, a silk approach shot is made to the green at St. Andrews. N.E. Upper right, a young miss tries her hand at some tennis at Banff Springs Hotel, Banff, Alta. Yeast-Riz Pie

(Makes — three 9-inch crusts OR a quantity of appetizers or canapés)

¼ cup shortening
6 tablespoons granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon granulated sugar
1 envelope active dry yeast
1 whole egg, beaten
2½ cups sifted enriched all purpose flour
1 egg white, slightly beaten

Scald milk. Stir in shortening, 6 tablespoons granulated sugar and salt. Let cool to lukewarm. Meanwhile, dissolve 1 teaspoon granulated sugar in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Sprinkle yeast on top of water. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir well. Stir in lukewarm mixture. Add beaten egg and half the flour. Beat until smooth. Stir in remaining flour. Turn on lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in well-greased bowl; brush top with shortening. Cover with clean towel. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about one hour and 30 minutes. Punch down the dough into three equal pieces. Roll out each piece into a 10-inch circle. Fit into a 9-inch pie pan. Pat all over surface. Trim pastry even with edge of pan. Press pastry onto edge with tines of fork. Brush entire surface of crusts with egg white. Let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 20 minutes. Meanwhile, preheat oven to 350 deg. F. (moderate). With fork, thoroughly prick entire surface of crusts. Bake in preheated oven eight minutes. Crusts should only be very light in color — Do Not Brown.

To Store: Cool crusts, stack and wrap in aluminum foil. Hold in refrigerator one to ten days, as needed. When ready to use, fill and bake as directed.

It has been realized that persuading young people to become teachers is rather difficult and cannot be instituted as a recruitment program restricted to the junior and senior years of secondary schools. . . . it is found that choice of teaching as a vocation is often made when the pupil is in the seventh or eighth grade. — Eugene G. Wilkins.

Obedience alone gives the right to command. — Emerson.

The Pentecostal Church was full Sunday evening in spite of the warm weather to hear Rev. John Choy from China give his personal testimony and call to the ministry.

Mr. Choy is a graduate from the Pentecostal Bible College in Hong Kong, China, and has been in Canada on a scholarship attending the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College in Peterborough, Ontario. He worked with Rev. B. L. Embree, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Embree, Trout Creek, in China, acting as his interpreter for awhile and sails from San Francisco the end of this month for China where he will resume his work in the Bible College.

While in Summerland, the visitor has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Embree at Trout Creek.

Johan Bergstrom Takes Music Course

Johan Bergstrom, winner of one of the Music Scholarships in last spring's Kiwanis Festival, has gone to Colorado to take piano lessons in a summer course.

Mrs. Flora Bergstrom and her three children motored to Vancouver and then on to Colorado to stay until Johan finishes the course.

Mrs. Wm. Baldwin, Mrs. Bergstrom's mother, who accompanied them as far as Vancouver, has returned to Summerland.

KEEPS FRESH

To keep cupcakes, loaf, or layer cakes fresh longer, place a slice of fresh bread inside the containers and the cake will draw the moisture from the bread and thus stay fresh days longer.

Drop cookies, leftover rolls, muffins, and baking powder biscuits, all retain their freshness longer with this method.

When the bread slice becomes hard, it can be used for crumbs in scalloped dishes, for bird food, or any other use calling for dried bread crumbs.

Comings and Goings

Linda and Judy Betuzzi and Joanne Ongaro spent a week visiting in Vernon.

Mrs. M. Wells and her two children of Prince Rupert are visiting for the summer months at the home of Mrs. Wells' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Wilson, Trout Creek. How Much Wash?

The Home Laundry Manufacturers' Association has prepared a chart to help solve the perennial washday problem: What articles add up to the recommended wash load for an automatic washer?

The average washer will wash an eight-pound dry load of clothes, if articles are selected properly. When washing large articles such as sheets, and tablecloths, it is best to wash only two at a time, filling up the rest of the load with smaller articles. Above all, do not overload your automatic washer.

Here is a list of common items and their average dry weights:

- 3 pillowcases, 1 lb.
- 2 or 3 bath towels, 1 lb.
- 6 linen towels, 1 lb.
- 4 hand towels, 1 lb.
- 3 diapers, 1 lb.
- 16 face clothes, 1 lb.
- 2 men's shirts, 1 lb.
- 4 boys' shirts, 1 lb.
- 2 or 3 women's dresses, 1 lb.
- 2 or 4 children's dresses, 1 lb.
- 1 twin or ¾ sheet, 1 lb.
- 1 double sheet, 2 lbs.

When washing only a few nylon garments at one time, it is advisable to place them in a pillow slip or mesh bag. Add other items to complete the load limit that will act as buffers. This will insure a balanced load and better washing results.

One of the most popular spectator events of the Calgary Stampede is the chuck wagon races with teams of horses galloping around the track and the drivers then scrambling to get their chow prepared in record time. The Stampede, greatest Canadian western show, is probably the most famous in the world.

New Maturity Bulletin Compiled to Aid Grower

A Maturity Bulletin has been compiled as a guide for harvesting apricots, cherries, peaches and prunes for fresh and processing outlets. The book has been published by the Cannery Committee of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., and the Inspection Service with three main committees representing the canners, growers and shippers.

F. E. Atkinson, Summerland, is general chairman; H. J. Barkwill, Summerland, is chairman of the canners' sub-committee; and Eric Tait, Summerland, heads the growers' sub-committee. Charlie Morgan, manager of the Oliver Co-operative Growers leads the sub-committee for the shippers.

Color is usually an indication of maturity, and has been used in pictures to show practical separation into maturity grades. This information is for use on the grower level, and not in any way as a basis for inspection.

The maturity recommendations in the book are endorsed by the Production Department of B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., Stone Fruit Maturity Committee of 1955, and the Pomology and Processing Sections of the Canada Experimental Farm, Summerland. It was compiled by F. E. Atkinson. It was the growers' sub-committee that held the panel discussions on peach growing and harvesting in Summerland and in several other districts last March.

The bulletin is considered to be a starting point. Errors in reproduction can be corrected in the pocket size separate cards which are to be distributed to growers as an aid to harvesting.

They claim that they should be treated equally with all the other parts of the Commonwealth such as Australia, New Zealand and Africa. As they are full members of the same Commonwealth they fail to understand why the discrimination especially in view of the fact that Canadian authorities disclaim any racial prejudice in their immigration policy. The total number of East Indians in British Columbia is about half of what it was 20 years ago.

External Affairs Department has been criticized in Committee for its new embassy residence in Rio de Janeiro. The purchase was made in March, 1955, at a cost of $341,776. But the department considers this a reasonable price for the property although it needs another $25,000 in miscellaneous improvements this year. They have bought a mirror for the hall for about $1,000 and four five-light wall sconces of English crystal for which they paid $1,188; a pair of console tables $747; two 10' x 14' rugs at $1,474. The bill includes miscellaneous articles such as silver, china, linens, blankets, etc., for the total sum of $77,807. Additional purchases are still to be made.

Control of Scale Insects
Many inquiries have been received about the wart-like objects which are covering the twigs of some apricots and peaches this year. These are actually scale insects. There are two general types of these insects prevalent on fruit trees in this district. They are Cottony Maple Scale and Lecanium Scale.

These Scale insects are now in the "crawler" stage. That is the stage at which the young have hatched out from the eggs beneath the old mother scale and are settling down to feed on the leaves of the tree. The crawlers are very small and grow rather slowly from now to the end of the summer. They have little scaley protection at this stage and are much easier to kill with sprays now than when they are more fully developed.

A spray of malathion as recommended on the British Columbia Spray Calendar should be applied to control these insects. For apricots the correct time to apply this spray is immediately after harvest. Where peaches are concerned a malathion spray may safely be applied around the end of July or very early August. Allow two weeks to elapse between applying the spray and picking the fruit. If it is not possible to allow this interval the spray should be put on soon after the peaches are picked. For pre-harvest spraying malathion in the emulsion liquid form is preferable to the wettable powder since there is less residue left on the fruit.

MORE ABOUT APPLE CIDER

ed to the provincial cabinet by the B.C. Fruit Processors' Ltd. and it is hoped that this obstacle will be overcome by the time the test pack is completed.

At the present time a test pack is being canned in 20-ounce cans, with 20 lbs. carbonation pressure. An attractive label and a handy case has been developed by B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., making it attractive to consumers.

The present plan is to pack out about 1,000 cases for the B.C. Fruit Processors for sale through three outlets, Kelowna, Vancouver, and Nanaimo to get consumer reaction to the product.

In the taste panels that have been sampled around 76 percent of tasters have been enthusiastic about the product.

When the Hotelmen's Association Convention met in Penticton earlier this summer 77 percent voted the cider a good recommendation. They thought it would be a very acceptable product for numerous people who visit beer parlors to be sociable, but who do not like beer. These people at present drink tomato juice and various carbonated beverages.

Dr. Wm. Newton, technical advisor to the Liquor Control Board, was here recently and passed the cider as a saleable product. He liked the clean taste, bouquet flavor and after-taste.

To make the cider, the apple juice is sweetened with apple concentrate to 16 percent sugar, and slightly acidified with citric acid as Delicious variety is low in acid.

Will Try Swim Again

PENTICTON—Mrs. Laura Ouillette, the former Summerland housewife who outlasted Okanagan lake swim last year, is going to try it again this year, it was announced today.

Mrs. Ouillette now lives in Penticton. She said Monday she'll try the 38 mile swim August 20, probably the same way she tried it last year.

It is then fermented back to eight percent solids, (mainly sugar). Then the juice is filtered, chilled to 29 degrees Fahrenheit and carbonated. The cold carbonated cider is run in 12-ounce cans, cooked one and three-quarters minutes in boiling water and cooled.

Work on the cider project at the Fruit and Vegetable Processing Laboratory at Summerland did not get under way until shortly before the BCFGA Convention in January. By the time the process was giving promising results it was too late to attest other varieties of apples.

During his visit here Dr. Newton emphasized that once the product is established it should be closely standardized so that all batches are similar. That is, the cider made from the use of Newtown, Winesaps, etc., will have to be "tailored" to conform to the standard established with Delicious juice.

This product is intended to be manufactured when needed. The concentrate used is permanently preserved, but the raw juice may be held frozen or flash pasteurized, cooled and run into large stainless steel storage vats.
