

According . . . to the Mood

By SID. GODBER

"For there is no end to wandering when once the voice is heard and the stars call and the trees
call and oh, the call of a bird."

Now what brought that on? Why a beautiful early spring morning in the Okanagan Valley and itchy feet.

Once it was that my mind in spring would turn to thoughts of love — gooey, gushy thoughts — but now, fat and with that Yule Brynner hairless look, without Yule Brynner's looks, and with forty long, long, past it would be foolish to go moaning and groaning like a sick calf, which is quite permissible to youth in spring. So, instead of gooey, gushy thoughts of love in spring
I think longing thoughts of far away places where I long to roam.

Mind you in the matter of love, I have my memories.
There was a day when a forty chest bulged out, believe it or not, above a 28 waist; now it is a 44 corporation that bulges below a 28 inch chest. Maybe you've never noticed me, even today, occasionally, tossing back my head or brushing my hand up over my forehead — habits of a day gone by when I had to toss, or brush my shock of hair out of my eyes.

Yes, although I say it myself, I was no mean figure of a man. Put me on my motorbike, goggles jauntily pushed back on my forehead, knee high, tight laced brown leather boots and gauntlet gloves reaching up to the elbow, I'm telling you the girls gave me more than a second look.

And the thought comes, what a menagerie a man would have if he married and kept all the girls he courted from that first calf love to the day he stopped turning round to take a second look at a pretty girl.

Gee whiz, that's quite a nightmarish thought for a spring morning. My first love was a teacher, Miss Arnold, a juno-esque type, tall, blonde and as I recognize now, very shapely. Then there was a girl whose folks kept a sweet shop (candy store)
she was overly plump and a trifle cock-eyed — but opportunity to break up slabs of toffee and to have the chips and crumbs, was a consideration not to be sneezed at in my candy starved youth.

Then, there was the squire's daughter — this sounds like a travelling salesman story — but she was the squire's daughter and very bored with life and so, when the city slicker — me, age 12 or thereabouts, came along we had a very clandestine affair — very clandestine indeed — I was very scared of her father the Squire, he was the one who larrupped me for stealing his strawberries and he'd have flayed me alive if he'd caught me playing Romeo to his daughter's Juliet.

And there was the Welsh lassie I met on what seemed to be the roof of the world. Up in Blainorfeistinogogo (I know that isn't the correct spelling but that's about the way it sounded. I forget what story sent me up into that gray slate stone village almost always enveloped in clouds, but that little Welsh girl was purty indeed and she sang like a thrush.

Yes, and the Irish girl I met on the boat coming over.
I could hardly understand a word she said and she could hardly understand my Yorkshire English, but there's no denying the language of love is universal.

I could go on, but maybe I'd better wrap these memories up in lavender — mind you I've always had a sneaking notion that the wife never did believe me when I swore she was the only girl I ever kissed.

The foregoing shows what spring can do to a man. The beginning to rain the trees and us old uns get sappy. Anyway every columnist should be allowed one spring column — to be springinist in.

But just imagine fellows: being married to every girl you ever made love to — jeppers!

Killing Frosts Hit Yakima

Killing frost hit the Yakima Valley Monday night for the second consecutive night and even colder weather appeared in prospect for Eastern Washington tonight.

Fruit growers used smudge pots heavily around Yakima, where trees either are in late bloom or in the early fruit formative stage.

The temperature dipped to the mid-20's in outlying areas for the second straight night. Colder weather also gripped the Wenatchee - Okanagan valleys, but there was no early report on whether it caused serious damage.

Forecasters said any prolonged temperatures below 28 are damaging, but Monday night's may have brought about only the necessary thinning of apple blossoms.

Organizations Sponsor Queen Candidates

Service Clubs and other organizations, five in all, with the possibility of a sixth, will sponsor candidates for the honor of being Summerland's 1959 Queen.

Rotary, Kiwanis, Canadian Legion, Teen Town and the Retail Merchants have so far agreed to sponsor candidates.

The candidates will make their first appearance at the annual High School band concert to be held on May 22, and final judging will take place at a Princesses Tea, date to be announced later.

Crowning will take place at the annual Fruit Fair to be held this year on the Labor Day week, September 4-5.

A Gyp All Round

Some weeks ago the Summerland Review carried a classified advertisement under "Help Wanted" which read "Alaska Jobs; Men and Women earn $500 to $1,500. For information send $2.00 to Western Service. The address a post office box in Bellingham, Washington.

We didn't like that advertisement, but on the other hand we had no firm grounds for branding it as a gyp, so we ran it.

There was nothing so crude as just pocketing the two dollars, oh no! that would have left the fly-by-night artists open to the law, but all those who answered the add got for their two dollars, was the information they could have

Volunteers Are Needed

A lot of people moan about juvenile delinquency but few are prepared to do anything about it. A case in point are the efforts of a devoted few and particularly of one man, W. J. Schwab to organize Babe Ruth baseball in Summerland. The raw material is there — some 40 kids, eager to get going — but adults are lacking.

We need a Babe Ruth League in Summerland. The Summerland Kinsmen Club is looking after the Little Leaguers. But when the kids graduate from Little League they are left

Facts About Drinking and Driving

A drinking driver was involved in at least 30% of all fatal U.S. traffic accidents last year.

Twenty-three per cent of the adult pedestrians killed had been drinking.

Special holiday studies showed that 55% of the Christmas season fatal traffic accidents involved a drinking driver.

Forty-eight per cent of the Labor Day fatal traffic accidents involved a drinking driver.

In many accident cases, the fact that a driver has been drinking is not recorded and is never entered in the driver's official record.

In spite of past and present efforts to increase safety education and traffic enforcement, too many drinking drivers are still operating on our streets and highways.

The social drinkers are a greater menace than commonly believed, as their critical judgment is impaired with a fairly low alcohol concentration and they outnumber the obviously intoxicated drivers.

Agriculture Speaks With One Voice Through Council

Mr. Speaker, tonight I wish to speak on our Canadian fruit and vegetable industry. It is always a pleasure to stand up and talk about something with which you have had a close association. Many hon. members in this house represent constituencies in which this industry plays a prominent part, but I am sure all hon. members have a very special interest in the affairs of the growers of this country.

There are three points which I wish to stress tonight. They are, first of all, the recent tariff changes; second, the position of the Canadian Horticultural Council in relation to the industry and the government and finally, fair value for duty. As to my first point, the recent tariff changes, the budget has been received throughout the fruit and vegetable world of Canada with a great deal of satisfaction, and with very good reason. The tariff amendments are twofold. First of all, there are changes in the tariff itself — that is the rates — and, second, changes have been made in the times when the rates will apply. This does not mean that the tariff has been raised on all items. In fact, the rates on you might say, modest in the extreme. Generally speaking, though, they are worthwhile and designed to help combat imports at the critical time when marketing is taking place. I would say at this time our congratulations are due to the government, certainly to the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fleming) and his department, not only for the changes which have been made but also for steering us through the hard times during the negotiations with other countries.

Let us examine a few of these changes. Some of these items have had tariff cuts. Perhaps the most important one has been the cut on apples. Formerly the tariff was 3.8 cents and now it is cut down to 1-4 cent. This has been counteracted by applying the rate for the whole year. It now applies for 52 weeks, whereas formerly it applied only from May 20 to July 31.

Other items have the same tariff but there is an extension of time. For example, on peaches, the time is extended from 9 to 14 weeks, and on potatoes the extension is to 52 weeks, the full year, as against the former period of from June 15 to December 31. Pears also come into this category. Again certain other items have an increase in the rate with no extension of time. In this group an example I can give is apricots. Finally, there are those items which have an increase in the rate and also an increase in the time of application. Here prunes show an increase of 1 cent and a two week extension, and I give that as an example. Altogether there were 31 changes in the tariff structure which apply to fresh produce, nine to packaged products, and sixteen to canned goods and miscellaneous items.

You might say, Mr. Speaker, that these are complicated changes, and you might query who asked for these, and what is behind all the changes. This brings me to my second point. The answer is easily given: The changes have been made by the government as a result of listening to that organization which represents the fruit and vegetable growers throughout practically every province in the dominion. That organization is known as the Canadian Horticultural Council. This is the body which originally made representations to the tariff board during 1957, and they were the representations which led to the present tariff changes made in this budget.

Perhaps at this stage it might be as well to look at the council's membership. We have seven out of the ten provinces represented on the council, excluding Alberta, Saskatchewan and Newfoundland. These three have no grower organizations, with the exception of Alberta which has one local one. However, I am glad to report that all carry on extremely amicable relations in co-operation with the Canadian Horticultural Council. There are also seven ministers of agriculture who are with the Canadian Horticultural Council. Then there are associate members and also contributors. I have a list of the member organizations and it is rather a long one, and I would ask that leave be given for them to be printed so as to appear in the context.

got out of any encyclopedia, plus a letter of enquiry to the Alaska Government employment service. The mimeographed letter is carefully composed to protect its author or authors from legal action, and those who paid out their two dollars can only shrug off the loss and charge it to experience.

For our part, any future ads of such character, unless vouched for by a reputable authority, will be rejected.

Since writing the foregoing we have an ironic footnote to add. The cheque in payment for the advertisement came back from the American bank, marked "account closed."

with no place to go, the Junior club being years beyond them. These are formative years. They are invaluable years in which to teach children to live with the world. Team games are one of the best mediums we have for developing our youngsters. In any event, it just doesn't make sense to bring the kids up through Little League and then drop them. Anyone prepared to give some time and effort to the promotion of Babe Ruth ball is requested to phone HY4-2622.

Drinking to any extent reduces the ability of any driver.

Small amounts of alcohol reduce judgment, self-control and driving ability.

Loss of judgement and the capacity for self-criticism occurs before obvious symptoms of intoxication.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Horticultural Society Planned Library Garden

Sir:

On reading the account of early days of Summerland's Library in your paper recently, I was sorry that credit was given me for making the garden that surrounded it.

It was the Horticultural Society that planned and carried out the pleasant little garden that so improved the building. Many of its members will recall the first "Bee". I can see it yet. E. H. Bennett and Bill Snow with crowbars prying up the large round rocks. Mrs. Magnas Tait raking the pathway and Mrs. Bennett, and the then minister of the United Church loading the stones into barrows and removing them. Many others were there doing hard work.

Dr. Palmer of the Experimental Station gave the junipers to put around the house and Mrs. A. B. Elliott, the president, at that time, donated the trees planted at the front.

A lovely birdbath stood at one end of the lawn, and this was given by Lawrence Ottley, a former Summerland resident, in memory of his wife, Dorothy Ottley, who was for so many years the treasurer of the Society.

It is sad that all of it has been swept away, but it gave pleasure to many for a time.

The Hospital garden was also made and the lawn sown by a "Bee" of the Horticultural Society members, who helped Summerland in the early days to become the pleasant garden-conscious place that it is today.

UNDER THE INFLUENCE

"Under the Influence" means that due to drinking alcohol a person has lost (to any degree) some of the clearness of mind and self-control that he would otherwise possess.

The source of the information, Mr. Speaker, has been given me by the Canadian Horticultural Council. It is a list of the members.

On referring to the list, Mr. Speaker, it is noted that the province of Quebec has its various organizations, as does Ontario, Manitoba, British Columbia, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island. This list is a long one, comprising virtually all growers in Canada. My purpose in placing this list on the record is to show that requests coming from the council are in no wise sectional but rather the unanimous decision of a representative body. You will see that this can mean only one thing, and that is an ideal relationship between the council and the government, particularly with the Department of Agriculture. This has long been recognized by the department.

May I add my own appreciation of the services provided by the council? I may say in passing that they were kind enough to have me at their last three day meeting in Ottawa. I have dealt with this council at length, because I wish hon. members to know more about it. This body — the Canadian Horticultural Council — is a sincere one. There is nothing sectional in its ambitions. The government knows through its long association with the council, that the requests made by it have been thoroughly studied and debated, and it is for this reason that the government respects the council's decision.

You will understand now, Mr. Speaker, that I have no hesitation about raising my final point, which is this: that the government should give effect to the fair value for duty section which applies to fruits and vegetables. You will recall that it was passed last year under the amendment to the Customs Act, namely paragraph (8) section 7 of section 7 of section 40A. However — and this should be underlined — this was only to take effect upon proclamation, and to date the section has yet to be proclaimed. The Canadian Horticultural Council has always recognized the principle of fair value for duty. They feel that it is an absolutely necessary safeguard

Promenade

The Blossom Festival being staged at Penticton this week end will be of interest to square dancers. The Peach City Promenaders are co-operating with the Penticton Board of Trade by arranging for lots and lots of square dancing. If you are in the mood you can square dance on Saturday morning, and in the afternoon downtown on the street. And if you still have some energy left they have engaged Bill Gilmour, of Vancouver, who is considered one of the best western Canadian callers, to emcee a big square dance party in the High School Cafeteria, starting at 8:00 p.m. Just a reminder to local square dancers that the annual general meeting will be held on May 12 at the IOOF Hall. There will be an election of officers and several important items of business. Plan to attend. If you do not have a membership card you may procure one from Mrs. Alice Arkell prior to the meeting, or at the meeting.

Fine examples of this type of craft drew many admiring comments from many who were attracted to the exhibition. Included were large and small pictures, all well framed and large square jardiniere

Several types of planters were also shown. African violets in their blue and mauve colorings seem to be even more lovely in these copper containers. One example of the planter type with wrought iron legs and a design of pine cones and needles,

Do You Run Your Money, Or Does It Run You?

One of the toughest things in the world to do these days is to live within one's income.

A survey made a few years ago among people with incomes ranging all the way from $2,500 to $25,000 a year showed almost everyone wanted one thing more than anything else . . . just ten per cent more money!

"That would solve all my problems," everyone said.

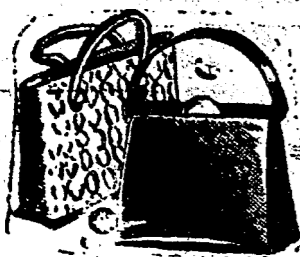

"But they're really wishful thinkers, says Jock Johnston manager of the Bank of Montreal's West Summerland branch. He has found there's only one real way to get on top of the situation. That's to learn to live within your income — and like it.

Mr. Johnston doesn't just talk about it, either. He has some sound suggestions about how to do it, too. Why not ask for a copy of the new B of M booklet "Blue-Print for Successful Personal and Family Planning." It's free on request from the West Summerland B. of M.

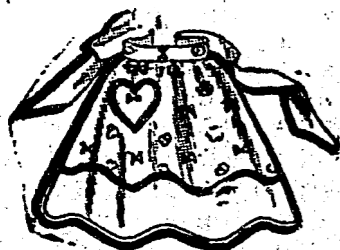

It makes interesting reading. And it may do a lot to help you out of those dollar doldrums.

Ethel Petterson May Day Queen of Peachland

"Queen of the May" for Peachland-Westbank this year will be Ethel Petterson of West side, and Mayday celebrations will be held in Westbank Monday, May 18, with the two communities participating as usual. In order to stimulate interest in the parade, first and second prizes of $10 and $5 are being offered by the committee, and it is expected that competition will be keen. Plans for the variety of attractions are well in hand and the meeting held in Westbank Community Hall, April 20, chose "Woody" Truitt, of Westbank to head the affair, subject to his acceptance. Mrs. A. L. Currie, Westbank, presided at this initial meeting, and Mrs. J. Seltenrich was appointed secretary treasurer for the entire celebration.

Mrs. Currie, with Mrs. B. M. Cousins, Peachland, were in charge of voting for the May Queen and attendants, which took place at George Pringle high school April 17, when 175 pupils cast votes. Results were as follows:

May Queen, Ethel Petterson; Princess Royal, Charlene Cousins, Peachland; Princesses, Janet Gray, Lakeview Heights and Sherrie Miller, Peachland.

Flower girls are Jo-Anne Fulks, Peachland and Marie Formby, Westbank. Page boys are Bobby Dunn, Peachland and Henry Paynter, Jr. Westbank.

BY WALLY SMITH
Frost damage severe
After last week's killing frost all thoughts of chemical thinning apples trees have been put aside for another year so far as this grower is concerned. My thinning job is done — probably badly overdone in the Delicious block — and a great many other growers are in the same fix. Damage is extensive to all fruits in certain parts of the Oliver district but it is too early to name a figure. Past experience would indicate that a tree may appear so badly damaged the crop is almost a total loss, and yet at harvest time that same tree may yield a third of a crop. But when you look high and look low for a good blossom and fail to find even one — that's when it really hurts.

The loss of perhaps half the crop is a good excuse for slipping into a pessimistic mood, and so I find myself wondering about that team of scientists who recently stated we are just entering a cycle of years when temperatures will be generally colder.

If that be so the wise orchardist whose trees are subject to periodic frost damage would do well to prepare for more extensive orchard heating. Orchard heating never has been widely used in this part of the valley although some growers have used firepots from time to time to protect their cherries and apricots and occasionally apples.

I wish I had more information about that team of weather scientists and their gloomy predictions about colder years to come, but I am unable to dig up a single thing more than what has already been told. If they are right an investment in firepots could be money well spent. I prefer the word "firepot" rather than "smudgepot" used by some persons. It is true that oil in an open bucket-like container burns with a lot of smoke, but the more efficient pots burn with little or no smoke.

Heat needed
Cold is merely the absence of heat and the only way to counteract cold is to prevent the loss of heat or supply more heat to replace that which may be lost.

Smoke is just a by-product of orchard heating. D. C. Archibald of the Meteorological Service of Canada said in one of his broadcasts some years ago, "Heater smoke has very little influence and the effect on the temperature of the air with smudge fires of damp straw or manure is practically negligible."

Senior Meteorologist Floyd D. Young of the United States Government in his bulletin in "Frost and the Prevention of Frost Damage," has this to say about smoke screens. "Experiments have shown definitely that chemical smoke screens such as those used in military operations afford practically no protection against frost damage."

He goes on to say "Great quantities of orchard heater smoke in the air following a cold night, which screen crops from strong sunlight through much of the day, have appeared to reduce the amount of low temperature damage materially. Whether this is due to slower thawing of vegetation or directly to shielding from strong sunlight is not known. A bank of clouds forming in the eastern portion of the sky before sunrise after a frosty night appears to have the same effect in reducing the amount of damage."

According . . . to the Mood

By SID. GODBER

This is an anniversary of sorts — in the issue of a year ago today I mildly protested the habit women have of musing up good food, and as a result of that column I learned anew the hard truth of the saying "hell hath no fury like the wrath of a woman scorned."

I still haven't lived it down. The Legion Ladies were waiting in ambush for me at last Friday's VE supper, so I'm told, with a plate of hashed up, mushed up salad at its best, as a special treat for yours truly. Fortunately, as I now see it, I was unable to get to the do and thus escaped a fate worse than death — having to eat cold, clammy potato salad.

Likewise at the Women's Institute Rally on Monday about ten ladies sweetly offered, but with a steely glint in their eyes, cold, clammy potato salad.

So I looked up the column and by golly there's not a word in it that I want to change and here it is again — one lone man's opinion on salads.

Why do they do it — take good food, proud handiwork of nature and muss it around until it looks like anything but what it is, and worse, tastes like nothing that nature put on this earth?

If I were important enough to rate such attention, I would swear that Ladies Auxiliaries lie awake nights planning menus to help me slim down, but which, if they represented sole access to edibles available to this columnist, would spell death from starvation.

The foregoing outburst stems from the Legion's VE Day banquet on Thursday. Ninety some odd sat down to that banquet — eighty-nine of these people enjoyed a whale of a meal the lone and miserable exception — yours truly.

I've moaned and groaned and regretted and protested over this, to my mind, vicious ruination of good food before.

Let us consider the case of the potato — the humble, but very useful spud — often the backbone of a meal.

Well, what the Legion Ladies did to that poor spud was a shameful thing. Eventually the spud appeared as a yellowish looking paste, speckled with green, unrecognizable by sight, or taste, as the national fruit of Old Ireland — and worse, it was served cold and clammy — and what, I ask you, is more revolting to the palate than a cold clammy spud?

Nothing in my book is any more revolting than a cold potato, not even when it is recognizable as such.

What's wrong with creamy, mashed potatoes, hot, with rich, beef gravy, or for that matter with a boiled spud likewise hot, and with a spot of butter if there's no gravy to go along. Then a spud can always be scrubbed and roasted in its jacket, or it can be baked, but with all these respectable ways of doing up a spud, the Legion Ladies Auxiliary and, so it seems, every other ladies auxiliary across the land goes hog wild on turning the spud into something they call potato salad, a horrible concoction which eighty-nine people consumed with gusto and relish at the VE Day banquet while this columnist sneaked an extra bread bun to stave off the pangs of hunger.

Eggs, likewise, are subject to fearsome treatment by ladies auxiliaries, which robs the noble egg of all its dignity and here too, it is served cold — and if anything is worse than cold tater it is, undoubtedly, a cold egg.

There are only three decent things to do with an egg, fry it, boil it, or scramble it. But no, the ladies auxiliaries of the land must under some strange compulsion muck and maul it round, slosh it with vinegar and behold, egg salad which eighty-nine people at the Legion VE Day banquet partook with great gusto, while this columnist stole another bun.

Even the poor radish had to be mutilated to play its part in this mad orgy of food camouflage. Now radish, red and whole, is a pleasant sight and with a modicum of salt makes a tasty morsel. But the Legion Ladies carved the radish into the form of tulip and rooted it in the gooey, green speckled paste to which they had previously reduced the humble spud.

And of course there was the green salad. Here the ladies go really wild, tomatoes, lettuce, radishes, gooey salad, dressing everything it seems but the dishcloth — yum-mmmm, murmurs the wife, as she loads her plate with a second helping and I reach for another bread bun.

One thing I'm happy to report, the Legion Ladies left the ice cream alone, although for the life of me, I don't know why — after all, if it makes sense to make a spud taste like a sour something or other, why don't they try to make ice cream look like a spud and taste like a boiled onion.

Ladies Hospital Auxiliary Seeks Funds Through Thrift Shop

Ladies of the Summerland Hospital Auxiliary turned out in force last Thursday to clean and prepare the old Library Rooms for a new Thrift Shop, which they will open there on Saturday, June 6.

This store will be of mutual benefit to the hospital and to shoppers looking for bargains, and will be open every week Tuesday and Saturday from 2 until 5 p.m.

The Hospital Auxiliary would be very grateful for donations of clean clothing, both children's and adults, shoes, household goods, dishes, home furnishings, etc.

Prior to the opening date the store will be open and some one on hand to receive

31 FEET OF SNOW

The snow has hardly started to move at Thrak dam and at other points on the Summerland watershed. Superintendent Ken Blagborne reported to Municipal Council on Monday. The dam at Thrak is holding 31 feet of water with the north slope still deep in snow.

donations on the three Tuesdays, May 19, May 26 and June 2 from 2 until 5 p.m. Your co-operation will be greatly appreciated. Remember the opening date of Summerland's Thrift Shop on June 6, 2 to 5 p.m.

Plan Outlined For Domestic Water System

FIRST to buy a season's ticket for next season's Overture Concert Association series was Mrs. A. Clifford, Crescent Beach, shown receiving her ticket from Mrs. F. E. Atkinson. The Concert Association ticket selling both is located in Young's Electric Store on Granville Street and will be open through Saturday. The Community Overture Concerts were very well received in their first season here and it is expected that many more people will take out tickets for next season. It is imperative that there be a good sign up in order to be able to book a new season's program.

Trout Creek Play Project Nears Finish

A paving job in Powell Beach Park last week brought close to completion a project that has been occupying Trout Creek Point residents for several years. The paving, which was performed by Storms Contracting Company, will provide a hard surfaced area of suitable size for tennis and outdoor basketball. This and the adjacent ball diamond that was completed several years ago are designed especially to provide a playground area for the younger generation living in Trout Creek Point. The project has involved thousands of hours of volunteer hand labour, and the contribution of most of the required mechanical equipment without charge, or at cost.

Plans are proceeding for erection of nets and backstops, for fencing of the court area, and for completion of the canvassing for funds. It is hoped that the courts will be enjoying full use by the time the school term is over.

Summer Band Concerts Announced

At a recent executive meeting the Summerland Town Band laid plans for outdoor concerts during the summer, to be held either at the Memorial Park or a public beach during week ends.

The band has made a practice of holding a formal concert once a year usually during the winter months to give the public an opportunity to hear them and to give the band an opportunity to earn some money. The concert last winter failed to achieve either of these objects and it is hoped that they may be realized this summer. To further this aim the band has also made an offer to arrange concerts this summer in the Gyro Park Band Shell in Penticton.

The Town Band participated in the Okanagan Music Festival at Vernon recently and will play their two numbers at the Festival. Highlights program this Wednesday. The next public appearance in Summerland will be at a baseball game on Sunday, May 24.

HIGHLIGHT of the Women's Institute district rally held at the Youth Centre Monday was the slide showing and address by C. P. Lyons, well known author and lecturer. The extent of his attention compelling slides and address is illustrated in the above picture showing three of Summerland's WI ladies intent on the speaker and his beautiful color slides. From left to right is Mrs. L. W. Rumball, Mrs. Erio Tait and Mrs. Walter Rothwell.

Summerland Child Injured in Fall

Four year old Lee McLachlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don McLachlan, of West Summerland, lies in Penticton Hospital in serious condition following a fall from a truck last Monday.

The boy fell on his head and fractured his skull. He was rendered unconscious, and was still unconscious on into Wednesday.

Lee was treated at the Summerland general Hospital and later moved to Penticton.

Big Key Club Auction Sale Now on May 23

The Summerland Key Club Auction has been postponed until Saturday, May 23. Originally scheduled for this coming Saturday the date was changed because of the holiday weekend.

Anyone having any articles, from old cars to old shoes, are requested to get in touch with Stan Krause, HY4 4498; Richard Troves, HY4 3441; Bert Northrup, HY4 3466; John Wooliams, HY4 3491.

The Key Club is a service club sponsored here by the Summerland Kiwanis Club, operating within the school, designed to give service to the school and to the community. The auction sale is an effort to raise funds for club work.

Local Legion Observes VE Day Last Friday

Comrade Dave Jack was presented with his 25 year pin at the annual VE banquet held by the Summerland Branch of the Canadian Legion in the Legion Hall last Friday.

Presentation was made by Zone Commander Jim Bolton, of Penticton.

Honored guests were the branch's honorary president Alex Smith and Mrs. Smith and Reeve F. E. Atkinson and Mrs. Atkinson.

An enjoyable social evening followed the banquet.

Controversial Resolution Coming Up at OVMA

A contentious resolution dealing with international trade unions and shelved by the Okanagan Valley Municipal Association's quarterly meeting early this year in Kelowna is on the agenda again when the association meets at Enderby Thursday.

This resolution, proposed by Vernon, calls for a change in legislation that would make it "illegal for any money, dues or assets collected by a political body or trade union to be sent to any foreign country."

An Armstrong resolution urges the provincial government to make its per capita grant to municipalities in the payment in April, yearly. Last year the grant was paid in three equal installments and it is planned to be paid this year in nine equal installments.

Among the many other resolutions is one from Salmon Arm, urging the government to assume payment of teacher's salaries.

Band Concert Thursday Next

The High School Band Concert, the big annual event now in its seventh year, has been postponed from Friday night May 22, to Thursday, May 28.

At this concert contestant for the honor of being Summerland's Queen and Princesses will make their debut.

Student Teachers Back Home For Training

In line with the department of education's policy of placing student teachers on practice work as near to their homes as possible, Miss Kathleen Green-slade, a first year girl in a two year course, and this year's P. T.A. scholarship winner, is with the grade 3 class at MacDonald School, doing practice with Miss Ruth Dale.

Miss Marilyn Washington, a second year student is with Mrs Alfred Johnston in grade 2-3. Other second year student teachers here are Miss Gera Kah-lert, E. F. Weeks, grade 6; Miss Mary-Ann Elliott, Mrs. Paul Roberge, grade 2; Miss Nellie Bing, Mrs. M.S. K. McCrae, grade 4.5. All are in the MacDonald School.

Ross McLachlan, former West Summerland postmaster, now at UBC and Miss Margaret Lot Canadian Legion scholarship winner, also at UBC, are doing practice teaching at Pentiction.

Peachland Mill Rate Unchanged

Peachland's 1959 mill rate will remain as of last year at 40 mills, estimated to bring in a total tax revenue of $31,235. 19.2 mills ($15,195) will go for general purposes, one mill for debentures and 19.02 mills will go for school purposes, representing, $16,200 an increase of $1,913 over 1958. Total budget approved by Council is $47,435.

Municipal Council has agreed to pave the play area for the Recreation Commission at a cost to the commission of $350.

A dumping area has been established to allow for development of the new Skov subdivision at Trepanier Creek. Council has given many hours and many meetings to considering the subdivisions, and in arriving at a fair selling price. There are many variables in arriving at a fair price as in the case of the Highland's subdivision the promoter has agreed to build a road back from the creek to allow for dedication of an area along the creek as a public park, thus ensuring public access for all time.

Council also stipulates that responsibility for supplying water and roads rests with the subdivider.

Council, after trying everything in its power to have the Peachland breakwater constructed in time for use this summer is now resigned to fall construction.

Members of Job's Daughters Bethel Lodge No. 16 of Pentiction paraded to St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Summerland on Sunday evening, May 11th. After the service twenty mothers and daughters enjoyed coffee and refreshments at the home of Miss Barbara Beaven, who is this year's Honored Queen.

Danish Woman Studying Here

Miss Kersten Fenger of Haarby, Denmark, has arrived in Summerland to work for six or seven months at the food processing laboratory at the Experimental Farm studying processing methods.

Her father owns large canneries in Denmark and Miss Fenger is interested in going into her father's business. To get to Summerland Miss Fenger flew via Scandinavian Airways to Los Angeles, then to Vancouver by United Airlines and to the Okanagan by railway.

Miss Fenger is staying with Dr. and Mrs. M. F. Welsh in Trout Creek.

Double Weather Freaks Dim '59 Valley Outlook

While it still is too early to make an estimate with any hopes of coming close, the Okanagan fruit crop is going to be down in varying degrees from what it was last year. Two weather freaks are to blame.

However, the picture is not a black one, with the possible exception of cherries.

Said John Smith, supervising horticulturist for the provincial agriculture department: "Considering what we have gone through, prospects at the moment look fairly good."

He said there will be plenty of irrigation water this year and, if the growers co-operate, the insect nuisance should be well-controlled.

The only factor on which no one can predict is the weather, which has an important bearing on the quality and the quantity of the fruit.

The significance of the weather's part was amply demonstrated early in January and again late in April when frosts seriously damaged fruit trees.

In January, an unusually mild spell set the trees up for a technical knockout when normal cold weather returned. And in April, when trees were in bud, and soft fruit orchards were in various stages of bloom as much as 12 degrees of frost knocked the orchardists for another loop.

Hardest hit were the cherry trees. Mr. Smith said the department estimated a 50 per cent reduction in the Okanagan cherry crop. The Kelowna area, he said, was the worst off.

An earlier preliminary estimate of 80,000 crates of cherries in the Kelowna area now has been reduced to 5,000.

Mr. Smith said that due to location and the vagaries of the weather in the late April cold spell, most cherry trees suffered almost 100 per cent blossom loss, while a few came through quite well.

He explained that making an estimate of the Okanagan or local crop at this time is a dangerous thing, because even with a light bloom, if the set is heavy, we can still have a lot of fruit.

The warm January spell, followed by cold weather, cut in to all production in varying degrees. The late April frost aggravated the situation, Mr. Smith said.

Next to the cherries, apricots and peaches appear to be affected most. Apples and pears may be down from 15 to 20 per cent, according to present indications," Mr. Smith thought.

In an interview, he said plums and prunes were probably the least affected of all. "We will have a nearly full crop," he felt, providing there were no unexpected developments.

This year's situation is somewhat similar to what happened in 1954 when a late April frost occurred.

And after the bitter cold of mid November in 1955, the 1956 crop was way below. For example, the April frost of 1954 cut cherries down to 158,000 crates from the 251,000 of the year before. Cherry production in 1956, due to the November, 1954, catastrophe, dropped to 84,000 crates.

Another example of the toll taken by the November cold in 1955 is shown in the 1956 apple production. Apple harvest produced 3,800,000 in 1956 as compared with over 6,000,000 in 1955.

Summarizing, there have been three untimely frosts in the past six years, bringing moans of dismay and discouragement from the fruit growers and frequent appeals for distress aid.

Thousands of trees affected were young ones, planted since the worst weather upset on record in the Okanagan struck 9 1/2 years ago.

The winter of 1949-50 will always be remembered, not only in the Okanagan and its fruit industry, but all across Canada.

Temperatures tumbled to all-time lows virtually everywhere in Canada in January of 1950.

Over 1,000,000 trees were completely wiped out that winter and had to be cut down. Production has never reached the level that was common before the vicious 1949-50 winter.

Historical Society Meets in Kelowna

Guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Okanagan Historical Society next Wednesday, May 13 in Kelowna, will be C. P. Lyons, author of several books dealing with British Columbia history and legend.

Mr. Lyons, who is with the Parks Board, Dept. of Recreation and Conservation, Victoria, will address the gathering following the dinner meeting at 6 p.m., to which the public is invited. Tickets are available at W. R. Trench Drug Store, Kelowna.

Founded in 1925, the OHC published its 22nd report in B.C.'s centennial year. Included in this report is the essay written by Sandra Bell, of South Okanagan High School, Oliver, which won first prize in the essay contest instituted last year by the OHS. This competition is open to senior high school students throughout the Okanagan, with a first prize of $10 to students in each school district. In addition, a trophy is given for annual competition by the schools concerned.

Winner of the 1956 trophy was South Okanagan High School, Oliver, with Sandra's essay entitled, "One Hundred Years of Okanagan History". Diane Osborn, a student in Vernon, Sr. High School, won second prize with her essay entitled, "The Coldstream Ranch".

Also included in the 1956 report is a tribute to Dr. F. W. Andrew, of Summerland, who died in 1957; an article entitled, "Naramata - Smile of Manitou"; "My Childhood Memories of Westbank", by Mrs. Clara Clark, of Falkland, daughter of Emma and John Bailey, who came to Westbank in 1895. Clara (Bailey) Clark was born in the old Goldie house, where Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Griffin now live, April 1, 1896.

The story of "The Dewdney Trail", by Kathleen Stuart Dewdney, tells the history of that trail from 1846 and is accompanied by a map showing the original Fur Brigade and Dewdney Trails going back to 1812.

The Chinese Apple

We hardly know whether to laugh or cry at the latest news release from B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd., telling of the warnings of a Polish Pomologist to the effect that Red China will become one of the largest fruit exporters in the world.

We are told that in this Chinese Okanagan they are rapidly planting trees which produce the types of apples popular in the Western World.

So, in ten years from now, we can expect this competition, but pause and think a while. What is the basic trouble we face here in the Okanagan in disposing of our fruit?

The answer to that one — the distance to population markets.

Now the Chinese may, thanks to cheap labor, produce apples at much less than we can produce them here, but one has only to look at what the grower gets and what his apples sell for, to realize that it isn't so much cost of production, as the cost of dressing them up and getting them to market which sky-rockets the price. The Chinese apple, if it is going to compete with our Okanagan Valley product, must we presume, be of comparable quality and must be wrapped, bagged, polished, carressed and cartoned, as is our Okanagan apple. Surely the Chinese are not just going to be able to dump bulk apples into store bins and sell them, for if they could, then all this fancy packaging we are told is now required to sell our fruit, would be proved to be so much nonsense. Hence, the Chinese Communist or otherwise, will have to treat their fruit in the same costly manner in order to compete with Western fruit and, at the same time, absorb the terrific cost of freighting the apples from the north of China and onto shipboard for the long, long sea journey to the western markets.

We can reasonably assume that for many years, perhaps centuries, that labor will always be cheaper in Asia than in the western world, but the standard of living is rising in Asia. Perhaps the 600,000,000 Chinese will be consuming a lot of their own apples ten years from now.

As for the Okanagan, we think that in ten years time, particularly if the shrinkage of orchard lands continues, while the population of the western provinces continues to grow that the Okanagan grower will be hard pressed to meet home demand, and will not be so much concerned with foreign markets.

No, if the Chinese had developed an apple that was as different from our Western varieties as is a Japanese orange from the California, Florida varieties — then we might have to concern ourselves with the possible effects of competition, for we are convinced that the western apple, which is mostly eye appeal, would lose out if someone put a smaller apple, hard, crisp and tangy — something like the old Russet which has a tang all its own, on the market. But the Chinese, so we are informed, are not seeking to be different — they are planting varieties to compete with what we are producing and surely an Okanagan grown Mac or Delicious can compete with like varieties grown in Northern China, manhandled across China to seaboard and arriving on the western markets after weeks, running into months at sea.

So, the news that the Chinese are planting 11,000,000 trees to add to the million that they have and that they are developing peach varieties that will stand up to 40 degrees of frost leaves us singularly undisturbed, except that we are given cause to wonder how these miserable Red Chinese can be so far advanced in research and orchard practice as the news of this Red Chinese Okanagan would seem to indicate.

See What You Can Spare Now

The ladies of the Hospital Auxiliary who braved the blustery, wet and chilly weather on Saturday to sell tags on Hospital Tag Day earned the sizable sum of $216.64. We use the term "earned" in the full sense of the word for it is a gruelling task, especially in inclement weather, but the ladies find reward in providing a patient lift for the Summerland Hospital.

It is amazing what a small group of women can do and do so when they set their minds to something. The Hospital Auxiliary, some 30 strong, raised better than $3,000 last year. And it wasn't come by easy. That money provides those extras — that spot of pleasant decoration and equipment and such like, that the hospital budget cannot be stretched to embrace. Now the ladies have started a thrift shop in the old library quarters. They are anxious to receive anything that you have to offer, cast off clothes, etc., that can be sold at a modest profit.

This is spring cleaning time and the thrift shop answers the problem of disposal of unwanted but still usable articles. And in looking for something for the Hospital Auxiliary Thrift Shop, we suggest that you might keep in mind the Key Club's Auction Sale planned for Saturday, May 18. The High School student members of this Service Club within the school want anything you can spare for the big auction on Saturday.

Market problem

Two growers from widely separated points in the valley were discussing cherries. It was just before the morning session of the BCFGA special general meeting in Penticton last April 21, and the subject of the conversation was the new cherry plantings that were going in this spring.

Both growers expressed concern over the very large percentage of the Lambert variety being planted, and they agreed that it could cause a marketing problem when the trees come into heavy production.

Their remarks didn't make much impression on me at the time, perhaps because my thoughts were on the coming business of the special convention and its formidable program of 51 resolutions.

Lamberts popular

When I got around to digging for information I found there actually has been, here in the south end of the valley at any rate, a lot of cherry trees planted this spring, and an unusually high percentage of them are Lamberts.

Why have so many cherry trees been planted this spring? Why so many of the Lambert variety?

No doubt part of the answer to the first question is that many growers have lost cherry trees because of winter kill and these are being replaced by new trees. Another answer may be found in the MacPhee Report in which, on page 767, we read, "Our production (of cherries) in 1957 was 2,614 tons, and the market potential defined in Table 184 is almost four times as great."

It could be that many growers, wondering what to plant, were influenced by Dr. MacPhee's findings on cherries.

A large number of the new plantings are Lamberts because this variety has shown its ability to survive under severe winter weather that killed off so many Bing trees.

Another reason is that Lamberts mature later in the season and usually escape damage from the rains that often split Bing cherries.

The Van variety, maturing in the Bing season, shows considerable resistance to splitting but some growers are shying away from Vans because of its exceptionally heavy bearing characteristic which results in smaller sized fruits.

New Method

To overcome this tendency, heavy pruning and heavy fertilizing have been recommended. An Oliver grower, Paul Eisenhut, has his own method. He thins the fruit with a pair of sharp shears, slashing haphazard along each branch where the young green fruit appears to be too thick. It works, and the cost is only a few dollars a tree.

Coming back to the problem of cherry marketing which was mentioned at the beginning of this column, if the growers switch their production to mostly late season fruit (Lamberts) it will result in a scarcity of supplies for the early market and a flood of supplies for the late market with poor returns to the growers.

Happened Before

That's what happened many years ago in the peach country of the mid-southern United States. The Elberta, a new peach variety at that time, was such a good peach and so popular that it was planted to the exclusion of almost everything else.

The inevitable happened. The whole peach harvest was concentrated within a few short days and the flood of beautiful Elberta peaches was so great the market couldn't possibly absorb them.

Summerland Hosts W.I. District Rally

The annual district conference of the South Okanagan and Similkameen Women's Institutes was held on Monday at the Youth Centre with the Summerland Institute as host in celebration of their 50th anniversary. The hall was beautifully decorated with bouquets of fresh flowers and work of the Art Club added to the display.

Registration began at 9 a.m. with Mrs. Victor Wilson, Naramata, registering the delegates and Mrs. Gordon Dinning, Summerland, the members. One hundred and 25 delegates and members represented the 17 Institutes.

Reeve F. E. Atkinson extended a hearty welcome to the gathering and praised the Women's Institutes for their interest in civic affairs. He also congratulated the Summerland Institute on their 50th anniversary. Reports of the work done since the last conference were given and all showed a busy, profitable year.

Addresses were given by the provincial president, Mrs. J. O. Decker of Pemberton, the publicity convener, Mrs. G. E. Woodward, Brentwood Bay and by Mrs. R. C. Palmer, Kelowna, member of the provincial board.

Morning coffee was served by the Summerland Institute with Mrs. Wm. Brown, convener; A delicious luncheon was served at noon with Mrs. Gordon Ritchie as convener. Afternoon tea was served by the Peachland Institute.

Following the delicious tea Mr. C. P. Lyons, well known writer, showed slides and gave a talk on "Ogopogo Land."

The present board was re-elected for one more year. They are: president, Mrs. J. H. Blackey, Westbank; vice president, Mrs. George Potheary, Oyama; secretary, Mrs. R. C. Palmer, Kelowna; board members, Mrs. H. L. Venables, Okanagan Centre and Mrs. H. C. Whitaker, Summerland.

Next year's conference will be held at Winfield. Continued interest in the "Anti-litter" campaign was shown at the regular meeting of the Summerland Women's Institute on Friday afternoon.

A letter from the Municipal Council reported that more litter boxes had been placed in the Park and more signs pointing the way to the Municipal Refuse Grounds. The need for these had been noted at the panel discussion last month.

The meeting decided to sponsor a slogan and poster contest in the schools to interest the children in helping to keep Summerland clean. Prizes will be given for both contests.

A report was made that the Women's Institute Commemorative stamp would be issued May 13. Covers will be mailed from Stoney Creek, Ont. where the first Institute was organized in 1897. Twenty-five covers were sold to Summerland collectors.

A very interesting film on "Handicrafts in Canada" was presented by the Cultural Activities Committee with Stan Krause as projectionist. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. R. McLarty on June 12.

The International Picnic will be held at the Experimental Farm on June 9, when the Homemakers Clubs of Okanagan county, Washington, will be guests of the Institutes of the South Okanagan and Similkameen.

Barbara Price Honoured

Mrs. Violet Nilson entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Barbara Price prior to her departure for Victoria. Seventeen guests enjoyed a very enjoyable afternoon, taking part in various games. A large decorated basket of gifts was presented to Miss Price by Darlene and Allan Nilson.

Mrs. Langbell made a 'bride's cake,' which was decorated with a vase of fresh flowers in the centre, and on each corner was a wedding and engagement ring joined together.

A dainty tea was served by the hostess.

United Church W.A. Meeting

The United Church Women's Association held its May show, or last Saturday, May 9, and was attended by one hundred guests. The purpose of this event is to give friends of the church an opportunity to donate material to be used at the fall bazaar.

The two oldest mothers, Mrs. Basil Stewart and Mrs. Fry, were presented with corsages in honor of Mother's Day.

not attractive. There is a possibility of water shortage in dry years. Expenditure of some $15,000 would be better spent in a permanent system: Some 2,000 feet of eight inch pipe at a cost of $6,500 goes through an area which will not produce any revenue. The various supply connections, storage tank and additional chlorinator would need more maintenance than would a straight addition to the present domestic water system. To further assure an adequate supply of water in summer by extending the siphon connection from the south main flume to the Giant's Head flume would be an expenditure of several thousand dollars of no lasting benefit.

The third scheme was recommended because the new area would be supplied with the same good uniform quality of water as the rest of the municipality and the supply is adequate. All of the expenditure would be on a permanent work of benefit to the new extension and to the present system. The new connecting line from the present system to the new addition would be through revenue producing areas.

No special additional maintenance or supervision problems will be created. Little alteration will be required to the present plan for the distribution of area.

Additional facts and figures are to come from a more detailed investigation.

Future Nurses Inspect Royal Inland Hospital

On Friday, May 1, ten of the grade 12 members of the "Future nurses" club went on a field trip to the Royal Inland hospital in Kamloops with the club sponsor, Mrs. Fred Smith, public health nurse and Mrs. G. C. Johnston, R.N.

The purpose of the trip was to give the girls an idea of what the life of a student nurse involved and the teaching facilities available at the Royal Inland hospital.

The Royal Inland hospital is beautifully situated on a hill overlooking the city of Kamloops and the junction of the North and South Thompson Rivers.

The original hospital building was erected in 1884. The present structure was built in 1912 with two new wings added in 1947, makes the bed capacity 200. In 1904 a school of nursing was established in connection with the hospital for the purpose of preparing young women for the career of nursing.

The group left the high school at 8:00 a.m. and stopped at a picnic site by Lake Monte for lunch. At 1:30 p.m. they arrived at the hospital where they were welcomed by the director of nurses, Miss Rowles. Two student nurses, Miss Johnston and Miss Caulditt, each took a group and six members and showed them the hospital. They saw the diet kitchen, the mens and womens ward, the emergency ward and they talked to some of the children on the pediatric ward. One little boy who had had an operation on both his eyes and some small Indian babies were especially admired by the group. In the basement of the hospital there were wards, supply rooms, sewing rooms and lecture room. The group visited the nurses' residence and found it very attractive. The residence provided single and double bedroom accommodation for all the students.

In the residence's lecture room, Miss La Pointe, director of education, spoke to the girls on the student nurses three year training program which is divided into four divisions, pre clinical term, first year, intermediate year and senior year. In the lecture room all of the girls were introduced to the student nurses favorite, Billy, the skeleton. Before leaving for home the group was served coffee and cookies in the hospital cafeteria and Miss Rowles spoke to the girls about the plans for the extension of the hospital and the new nurses residence. Anne Iversen, on behalf of the club, thanked the staff for receiving them so kindly and said that the trip had proved to be educational and enjoyed by all.

Promenade

Peach City Promenaders staged a very successful Blossom Festival Dance at the High School Auditorium on Saturday night. About 100 dancers turned out to make this dance a big success. Bill Gilmour of Vancouver did a wonderful job of calling and by the expressions on the faces of the dancers it was easy to see that they were having fun.

Come Saturday, the Summerland Pairs and Squares will hold its party in the Youth Centre Hall, West Summerland. Emcee is not known as yet. Sack lunch. Dancers of all levels are welcome. Guest callers will be featured on the program.

Dance news up and down the valley include: Peachland Teen Town are holding a dance on Friday, May 15. Chuck Inglis will MC. Bring a sack lunch. Entire proceeds to Teen Town. Also, Peachland and Westbank are combining square dance forces to make their combined May Day Celebrations being held in Westbank fun for square dancers. Free dancing in the auditorium during the afternoon.

Next week's column may feature some notes from the annual meeting being held this Tuesday.

Band

A tired but happy group of school bandmen arrived home shortly after noon on Sunday from a three day tour which included concerts at Tonasket, Wenatchee and Grand Forks.

Having left Summerland after school on Thursday, the local musicians were welcomed at 6 o'clock in Tonasket and treated to a hearty smorgasbord by the P.T.A. During the evening concert, played in an acoustic tiled gymnasium, several numbers were performed under the conduction of two American band directors.

At 7 the next morning, the band rolled on in their two Greyhound buses towards Wenatchee, where they played in the afternoon at the High School and again in the evening at the new, ultra-modern Junior high. In the afternoon, Mr. Tiemann, director of the famed 100 piece Wenatchee High Band, had been guest conductor for one of the marches. A short dance after the evening concert gave our students some welcome relaxation from routine, and the opportunity to mix with, and get to know, the members of the Wenatchee Band.

Saturday night at 6 o'clock found the travellers in Grand Forks after the longest single hop of the four. A large audience enjoyed a fine evening performance, sponsored by the Fine Arts Faculty of the High School.

The seventy-seven student band members with their four chaperones once more proved to be the fine good will ambassadors they have always been — and they had fun and learned much in the process.

Track and Field

The 13th annual Kinsmen Track Meet was held in Penticton on Saturday, May 9th, with the following teams participating, Kelowna, Penticton, Vernon, Keremeos, Oliver, and Summerland finishing in that order. George Henly led the SHS track team to an unimpressive total of eight points. The low score is readily accounted for by the shortage of local entries in the meet, only four junior girls and two senior boys represented our school. Individually, however, our athletes gave a good account of themselves, especially Henly. George, in his first ever taste of middle distance running, took it all in the senior half-mile. He contented himself with running in the pack through the first quarter, then opened up to win by fifteen yards over Hale of Penticton. The time of 2:08.1 was only three fifths of a second off the meet record.

Teresa Keys with a second place just missed topping the junior girls high jumpers. Other Summerland performances were Barry Parish, 4th senior boys 100 yards; Linda Rumb. all 4th junior girls broad jump and 5th junior girls 60 yards; Karen Johnansen, 5th junior girls 75 yards and the junior girls relay team of Linda Rumball, Alice Downes, Teresa Keys and Karen Johnansen, which ran fifth.

The Okanagan Valley Meet is at Vernon this year on May 22-23, less than two weeks away. The team will be stronger by then, bolstered by Carol Hackman and Norman Smith, both point winners last year, who were away last weekend with the band. It is hoped that George Northrup, Brian Adams, Keith Skinner, Gordon Smith, Ed Schneider, Frank Carey and several others will be in shape to enter the "big meet".

Softball practices are under way with both the junior and senior boys and girls preparing for the coming inter-school round robin zone tournaments. Although the location of the senior tournament is not yet known, it will take place June 6. Things are more definite for the juniors. Their round-robin will be on May 30 at Summerland. Good luck to all our softballers.

Prime Minister Endorses Clean-up Campaign

I am happy to endorse the 1959 "Clean-up, paint-up" campaign of the Canadian Beautification Association to be held during the entire month of May.

This annual campaign is a yearly reminder to all that it is in their best interest to undertake minor repairs as they become necessary in order to prevent major operations. After a Canadian winter there are plenty of tasks for the ambitious do-it-yourself home owner and many more which must be left to the professional artisan.

I heartily recommend the objectives of "Clean-up, paint-up" campaigns in all communities.

Summerland Macs Loss Streak Continues

Vernon Carlings defeated the Summerland Macs 12-2 Sunday afternoon in an Okanagan Mainline Baseball League game in Vernon before more than 2,000 fans.

Vernon's Ron Miciuk received credit for the victory. He was relieved by Jim Staff in the sixth inning.

Junior Red Sox Win Another

The Junior Red Sox won another game on Sunday when they defeated the Kelowna Juniors, in a hard fought pitchers' battle, by a score of 7-6. Mart Shannon and Jim Eyre shared the honor roll, Shannon with his pitching and Eyre with his hitting. Kelowna only got 3 hits while striking out 14 times. Shannon was wild to start the game but his curve ball started to work and he got stronger as the game went along. He struck out 3 batters in each the 6, 8 and 9 innings.

The Red Sox were down 6-3 going into the 7th inning. They loaded the bases and with one out Jim Eyre hit a long triple to deep right field to score the tying runs. McNabb squeezed him in with the winning run on a beautiful bunt.

The Red Sox are away to Kamloops for a double header next Sunday.

Softball League Back in Action

The senior men's softball league started Monday night at Pentiction.

Mac's Cafe Aces won its first game over Marshall's 12-3 Monday night.

The league consists of five teams, Summerland, three Pentiction teams and Keremeos.

Summerland home games will be every Thursday night at 7:00 p.m. in the playground park. Come out and support the team in good competitive league.

Small Bore Addicts Shoot At Kermeos

A very successful competition was held between the Summerland and Keremeos small bore rifle clubs when Keremeos shooters entertained Summerland marksmen in a return competition. Many possible high scores were made by both teams.

Keremeos is affiliating themselves with the Dominion Marksmen, the same as Summerland has done.

It would be interesting if other towns in the South Okanagan would form clubs under the Dominion Marksmen rules to further inter-town shoots.

"Would you care to turn a disgruntled employee into a satisfied one at the very slight cost of two dollars a week?"

According . . . to the Mood

By SID. GODBER

TV was off at our house Sunday night but I saw more pictures in memory than on a full night of TV watching.

Had a visitor, an old newspaper pal, today one of Canada's top news feature photographers — you see a lot of his work in "Weekend Magazine". Harry Rowed, known of course as "Dusty".

Dusty, just back from the Fijie Island and out of the last five years he has, off and on, spent more than a year in Mexico. So we yarned about Mexico, spoke with the voice of authority on bullfighting — on tequilla — tequilla rosa and tequilla blanca.

I recalled how, being lazy, and hating to pack bags and things I got one of the fighter pilots on the aircraft carrier to fly my bags off, he did and when I got back a certain navy regulation handbag, which had taken off for the wild blue yonder loaded down with tequilla, which I had planned to introduce to the boys at the Vancouver Sun, all I had was a bag of finely powdered glass. The tequilla had gone up — but it didn't come down, the bottles just busted, at least that is what the fighter pilot told me, looking me straight in the eye and I believed him after I'd checked with the science editor to see what happens to bottles that go up too high in the sky.

We talked about the change there has been in the newspaper business and how the newspaper guild has so regulated things and raised wages that reporters now behave just like any other nine to five office worker.

Dusty quoted an old time newspaperman who returned from Vancouver somewhat disgusted. "Why", he told Dusty, "those guys out there own their homes and, worse still, they go home to 'em by the clock."

And I remember how on the morning paper we hung around although the last page proof had been read until the tremor ran through the building as the big presses went into motion. Then down to the steakhouse and talking shop until the early daytime workers began moving, then, reluctantly, we'd go home.

Dusty reminded me of the time I flew with Peter Verigin, titular head of the Doukhobors.

Peter was just out of jail — he had a boil that kept him from sitting down and so his entourage didn't want to sit down in the presence. No newsmen were allowed in the party, but Canadian Press wanted a story of Peter's visit to his north Saskatchewan flock, so I went along disguised in overalls as the mechanic and it was my job to try and get the entourage seated, but they were waiting for Peter to sit and Peter with that boil just wasn't sitting.

Yes, that was quite a trip.

Peter made more of us than he did of his own people and he could certainly do things with fresh fruits and cognac. Pilot Bill Broatch, a World War one fighter pilot, liked his cognac a la Verigin.

We flew the railroad track home so low I'd swear our skis were riding the telegraph wires. Then we went up and flew in tight circles over Prince Albert singing every old army song that could be sung. Around and around we went and we'd still be up there if the gas hadn't run low on us.

Bill Broatch crashed into a northern lake shortly after that. Testing a rebuilt plane, I was to go along but my editor growled that I'd been doing too much junketing lately and it wouldn't hurt if I stuck around the office and did some work for a change — I mumbled and grumbled about how mean can a man get — but I gulped some when we got the flash that Bill Broatch had crashed.

And, of course, Dusty Rowed had to ask about the legend. So I told Dusty the story which is now somewhat of a newspaper legend. It was a big story and I had an exclusive angle. I phoned the switchboard operator and said "Gimme city desk," I barked — the reporter in a hurry with a hot story. "City desk."

"Godber here — get this — yak, yak, yak. Got it?"

"Yeah — great stuff — keep it coming Sid."

I hung up with that inner glow that only a reporter feels who has got a good one — exclusively — a scoop.

Then I suddenly felt weak at the knees — sick at the stomach. "Lloyd Turner," I muttered — oh the miserable, dirty rotten so and so.

Lloyd Turner was, in that day, the City Editor of the Vancouver Province. It was he who had taken my phone call — and my story — none other than the City Editor himself — the only trouble, he was the City Editor of the Province and I was a reporter for the Vancouver Sun, I'd dialled the wrong number.

The explanation for that being that I'd only left the Province to go over to the Sun a couple of days before and the Province number was the one I automatically dialled, but no one listened to the explanation.

Had a man stick his jaw out at me and growl "I like potato salad — I just love potato salad."

Frankly I thought he protested too much, beside his wife was with him and some men will go to almost any length, even to professing to like potato salad, to keep the little woman happy.

Heard about Bill Gillard and the skunk. Bill, the president of the Summerland Board of Trade, returning from a recent meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade at Cawston along with L. L. Trippe, sundry other Board of Trade characters spotted a skunk in the middle of the road. Bill got plenty of advice — go to port! go to starboard! stop! keep going! and so on.

Bill stopped, wheels straddling the wee creature with the white stripe down its back.

Now what do I do, asked Bill.

The skunk meanwhile was doing its own figuring — this big thing above it had all the earmarks of a trap — so let 'em have it.

Bill tried to get out of there fast but the skunk scooted from under the car and while the gang was frantically cranking down windows the skunk got up the bank and let them have it again, broadside on, and the open windows didn't help one little bit.

Come to think of it the statesmen at Geneva might well ponder the skunk.

What happened to Bill Gillard and Co. was all a sad mistake — nobody meant the little skunk any harm but when that skunk fired everybody in the area suffered. Same thing applies with the hydrogen bomb, if somebody triggers it, there's no recall, and no limiting factors.

The following article was brought to my attention by Walter M. Wright, it should cause parents seriously to think.

"Your boy wants a car? Read this: "Toronto, City Planning Board has asked that the University give serious consideration to increasing the amount of space available for parking student's cars, a request which proves no doubt, that today's scholars are not only well-heeled, but well-wheeled."

Before U of T accedes to the City's request, however, it might be wise if it examined the results of a recent survey considering student auto ownership made by school boards in the states of Idaho and Washington.

Findings in Idaho showed that not a single straight A student owned a car, and only 15% of B students owned one. Thereafter as car ownership went up, scholastic marks dipped alarmingly.

For instance, 41% of C students were car owners, and 71% of D students and of the out and out failures, a whopping 83% possessed a jalopy of their own. A similar study made in Washington high school disclosed the same set of statistics.

If these facts be true for Canada, that Toronto (and indeed the nation) would be well advised to ban the auto from the campus entirely. — Saturday Night.

Candidates For Summerland Royalty

SEVEN beautiful girls will compete for the honor of being Summerland's 1959 Miss Fall Fair. Left to right: Lynn Bleasdale, Phyllis Young, Rosalie Young, Joan Young, Emily Bonthoux, Louise Shannon, Eleanor Raincock and Leona McNabb. This year both the Kiwanis Club and the retail merchants are supporting two candidates. The girls will make their first public appearance at a High School band concert on May 21. The queen-elect and her two princesses will be chosen on June 27 and will be crowned during the annual Summerland Fall Fruit Fair on Labor Day weekend.

Summerland Merchants Adopt Saturday Night Store Opening

Summerland stores will be open on Saturday nights to 9 p.m. throughout the summer and on until the end of the year. Saturday night opening starts June 6.

This was decided by the Summerland Retail Merchants at their association last week. The merchants also decided against staying open during July and August for six days a week.

The Summerland businessmen voted to get behind the municipal council in beautification of the community and will participate in the maintenance of street flower boxes.

A new departure of this year is the setting up of flower boxes running down the middle of Granville Street from the IOOF Hall corner down to past the Municipal Hall.

Guiders Meet at Camp Sorec

Sixty four guiders from all over B.C. assembled at Camp Sorec, Trout Creek, over the holiday week end for a training camp.

Mrs. A. Westinghouse, of Victoria and the present provincial camp commissioner, was the camp commandant. Her assistant was Miss Lucy Smith, of West Vancouver who has recently been appointed provincial camp advisor. Mrs. D. T. Blagborne of West Summerland, who is commissioner of the South Okanagan was the quartermaster of the camp. Mrs. G. Ryman, Summerland was the camp nurse, and had a patient who required medical treatment. Cook for the week end camp was Mrs. Ella Chamberlain from Pentleton.

Program included camp training for advance, intermediate, beginners and Guides. Brownie leaders were taught how to take Brownies to camp through a training in pack holiday and handicraft. During this session there was much swamping of ideas and songs for camp use.

Two Local Teachers Resign

At the school board meeting here this week resignation of Mrs. B. A. Tingley, a grade five teacher, was accepted with regret. Mrs. Tingley has taught for the past 30 years in Summerland.

Resignation of B. A. Bigsby, industrial arts teacher, was also accepted.

Miss Muriel Banks, primary teacher, is being superannuated after 40 years of teaching in Summerland and 48 years of teaching service, as announced by the board.

Summerland Rifle Club Elects New Officers at Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Summerland Rifle Club was held at the Fire Hall on Tuesday evening with fourteen prospective members in attendance. There was very little shooting last season, with the annual invitation shoot being cancelled due to the shortage of ammunition and a drop in membership.

With these conditions in mind this meeting opened with an air of uncertainty as to the continuation of the club, however, as the meeting progressed the outlook became more optimistic and it was decided to hold a work party at the range on Sunday to make the necessary repairs to the equipment on roads. Plenty of ammunition is now on hand and it is hoped that there will be little difficulty in securing volunteers to help with the invitation shoot on July 26.

Mr. George Stoll, president of the Summerland Fish and Game Association, attended the meeting and outlined his ideas for amalgamation with that organization, pointing out that at the present time there are several small clubs in the district that are not operating to full advantage, and he believes that if they were formed into one central body, with a representative from each club on the executive, much more progress could be made. Mr. Stoll stated that a meeting will be called in the near future at which he wants representatives of the various clubs to express their opinions on the plan.

Officers elected for the coming season are: president, Harold Richardson replacing George Dunsdon; vice president, Al McCargar; secretary treasurer, Art Dunsdon; executive members, Roy Bertram, Steve Dunsdon, Phil Dunsdon, and Bert Simpson. Other officials are range officer, H. Richardson, assisted by Steve Dunsdon; register keeper, Art Dunsdon; ammunition, George Dunsdon; publicity, Bert Simpson. New members are always welcome, and details may be obtained from any member of the club.

Steve Dunsdon reported some evidence of vandalism on the range so the club wishes to point out that this range is private property and anyone caught doing damage can be prosecuted.

Local University Students to Receive Degrees

More than 1200 students will receive their degrees from University of British Columbia's chancellor, Dr. A. E. Graier, at congregation ceremonies in the University armory on May 18 and 20 at 2:30 p.m.

Students from Summerland and West Summerland who will take part in the colorful ceremonies are as follows: George Michael Drake, B.A. (P) and M.A. (P) in engineering; and Mrs. Francis Christine Beulah, B.M.S.T.

Member Reports

By David Pugh, MP

Well, here it is Friday, the 8th of May, and Parliament as usual has provided an interesting week. To begin with spring has arrived. The weather is hot and the beautiful beds of tulips and daffodils are out all over the city. In the House the estimates of the various departments are being passed.

Two significant announcements were made - first, that the United States oil quota restrictions imposed on Canada have been lifted. The importance of this decision is that in principle the United States agrees with Canada that continental defence applies not only to the military but also to the economic. The United States had placed the restriction on oil exploration. Canada's point of view is that in order to increase its own oil production it would be seriously hampered and that in the event of trouble, oil from Canada would not be readily available. Canada has made her point and the oil quota was in effect a test case.

The second announcement of interest was the appointment of Mr. MacArthur to the Unemployment Insurance Commission. MacArthur is a labor man but not in favor with the Canadian Labour Congress. The powerful Railway Brotherhoods have no quarrel with the Government's choice and have so stated openly - thus there is a split even in labor over the appointment. The Minister of Labour, Michael Starr, made no bones about the appointment. In the House he stated that no single group would have the power of veto over the Cabinet. By this he meant no single labor group would have the right to speak for all labour.

Tribute Paid to Memory Of Mrs. T. B. Reece

In the death of our vice-president, Mrs. T. B. Reece, in the tragic car accident April 5, we lost, not only a member, but a friend. A friend whose sterling worth we shall realize more and more as time goes on. Yet, as we slowly recover from the shock into which her death plunged us, we wonder whether we are equal to the task of carrying on without her.

For Elenor Cheyne Reece was Westbank Women's Institute, just as much as was the late Jane Stevens, under whose inspiration we came into being 31 years ago last month. April 12, to be exact - a date forgotten in our sorrow, for the first time since 1929. But Mrs. Reece, upon whom Mrs. Stevens' mantle fell, would understand.

Not that we always were in agreement with her, and that too, she understood. Indeed, it would have been impossible always to agree - just as it was impossible to keep up with her myriad plans for the betterment of the community as a whole. Few of us had the imagination, let alone the energy to agree with and carry out all she would have had us do.

Mrs. Reece was a doer of good works - not for prestige, but because she loved her fellow man, and for the simple reason that she could help doing - continuously. Away from home, nearby or abroad, not a thing escaped her notice if, perchance it might be of advantage to Institute or community.

For almost 40 years Mrs. Reece was a leading citizen of Westbank and district, taking an active part in promoting every worthwhile social project in the community. She was a life member of the Institute, as well as a charter member, and also was one of ten good citizens honored with a B.C. Centennial scroll last year.

Her home was truly, "a house by the side of the road" open to all who cared to drop in, to anyone in need of advice or of help in trouble. In all her community work Mrs. Reece had the full co-operation of her husband, who was himself severely injured in the accident that took her life.

Wither Mr. Garrish?

There are eight full months before the next annual British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association convention, but as the membership goes on with the daily round of spraying, thinning, irrigating and finally harvesting, it might be well if they gave some thought to the man they are told they must find to succeed A. R. Garrish, who has held the reins of the association since 1951.

Mr. Garrish has announced that this is his last term as president of the BCFGA and surely that question is one to be deeply regretted and deplored, and the question arises should Mr. Garrish be allowed to step down? Yes, we know that this is a free country and that there is no power on earth that can compel Mr. Garrish to stand for another term, unless he changes his mind. But perhaps, Mr. Garrish can be persuaded to change his mind.

To our mind, this annual election of a BCFGA president approaches absurdity. The president of the BCFGA is the head of a multi-million industry - and as such should hold office until such time as he retires, or is found unsatisfactory and fired.

We don't see the big and infinitely more complex industrial empires changing their presidents every year.

The BCFGA presidency is a big job - it requires forward thinking and forward planning, but such forward thinking and planning is considerably hampered by the fact that the BCFGA president holds office on sufferance from year to year.

We agree that no man is indispensable, but that doesn't mean to say that always someone can be found to adequately fill big boots. For example, had Winston Churchill been killed by a bomb or something, someone would have replaced him, but can anyone think of anyone who was around in the dark days of the second World War who could have filled Churchill's shoes?

To our mind, Mr. Garrish is the Churchill of the fruit industry. He has piloted the ship through some stormy weather and the fruit industry is still rolling and pitching to adverse economic winds and it still needs a strong and steady hand at the helm.

This is no time to let Art Garrish go, that is why we have written this editorial, eight months before the next BCFGA convention. We think the members of the BCFGA should give the matter considerable thought, talk it over at their local meetings and devise some means of persuading Mr. Garrish to carry on.

Orchard Run

BY WALLY SMITH

I find myself disagreeing with Dean MacPhee in the matter of a public relations officer for the tree fruit industry.

Editorial comment followed the special general meeting of BCFGA delegates in Penticton on April 21 when a resolution asking for the appointment of a public relations officer was turned down.

An editorial said, in part, "The feeling at the press table, where sat close to a dozen representatives of press, radio, and television, was summed up well by a Vancouver writer who commented, "If ever an industry needed a press relations officer, this one does."

Dean MacPhee realizes the importance of keeping the grower informed about the operations of the sales agency and the processing company; he sees the need of keeping the grower up to date as to policies, trends and developments; the need of giving the grower the facts, even though, at times, it may be bad news. This he discusses on page 788 of his report.

But he goes on to say that he does not believe that a public relations man is required for this work; that it could be best done by industry officials.

This column disagrees with Dean MacPhee on that point. Industry officials are too busy to attend to all the work entailed in doing a good public relations job. They should certainly be in on program planning, but after that turn it over to the publicity man.

We would also point out that Dean MacPhee's observations on the subject are limited to the local field only. He does not mention the wider field of public relations which concerns the industry as a whole and the attitude of the buying public.

This is a field of public relations work of tremendous importance to the grower and should be given a lot of attention by the industry.

It's a job for a good press agent (the old-fashioned name for public relations officer), a man who has first hand knowledge of newspaper and magazine work, who knows the trip of news stories an editor will publish, and who has the skill to write them.

His job would be to keep the daily and weekly press, and the radio, supplied with pithy, interesting bits of information, write news and articles for the farm journals, take moving pictures and press photographs, arrange tours for visitors to the valley, especially visiting news-men, and explain the workings of the industry - in short, to tell the world the fascinating story of the Okanagan fruit industry.

Why should we tell them? Because we have something to sell, something everybody can buy, and when you have that the more you can tell about it in an interesting way the more of it you are going to sell.

Your public relations man would also supply the growers with facts, figures and information to keep them up to date on trends in fruit growing and what's going on in their own marketing and processing companies.

There are a hundred ways in which a good public relations man could give useful and profitable service.

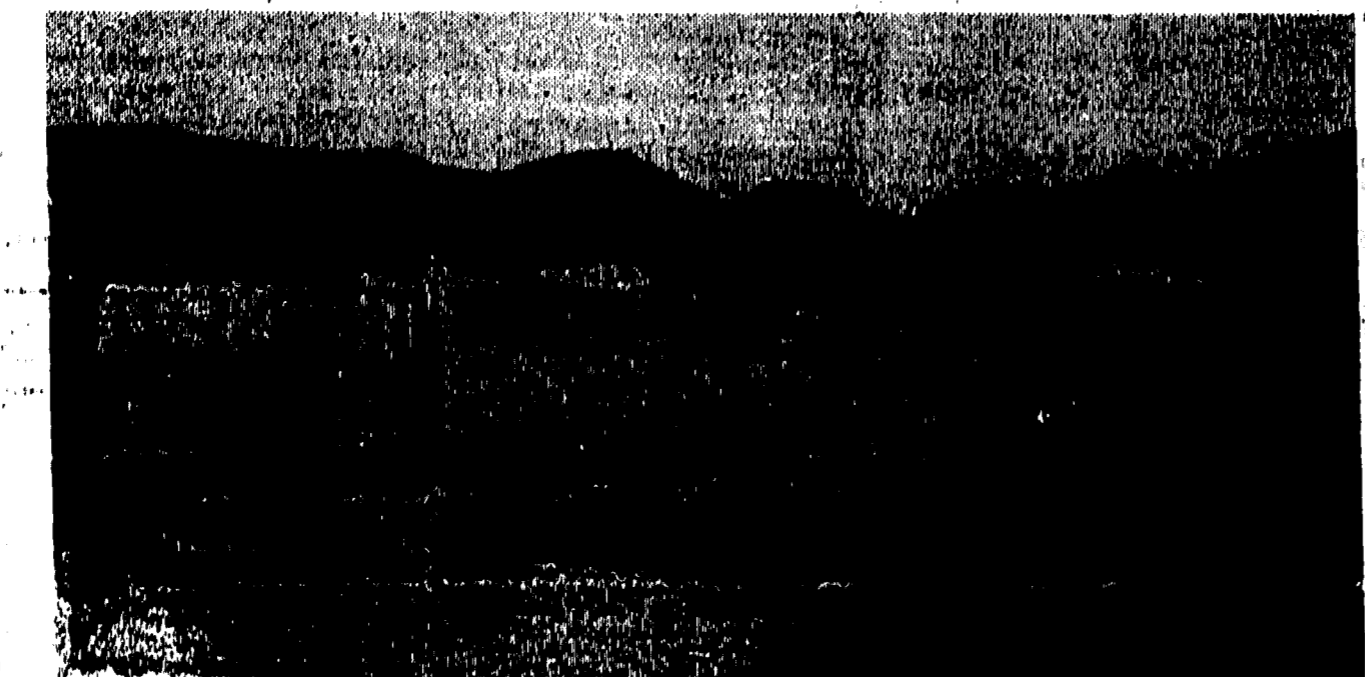

Our fruit industry today is in a period of severe economic stress. As fruit growers we are operating under a high overhead and in an area where the hazards of nature are formidable. Our product is faced with keen competition from other areas. It has to be sold to a discriminating public that has a wide choice of other fruits. There are internal stresses within in the grower body.

That Vancouver newsman had something when he said, "If ever an industry needed a press relations officer, this one does."

Sawdust Mulch Increases Yield

Sawdust mulch has increased yields of a wide variety of crops including vegetables, small and tree fruits and ornamentals.

Records obtained under dry-land conditions show that moisture conserved by the mulch is the main factor responsible for the gains. Soil moisture measurement show that the mulch also reduces evaporation loss to almost zero and that mulched soils store sufficient moisture for tree and bush fruits for the first few years after planting.

PEACHLAND'S NEED for a pile driven break-water is evident from the above picture showing the break in the barrier put up by PeacHLAND residents to protect their small craft. The work of many days' was wiped out in one brisk blow.

Starlings Destructive of Fruit Crops and Disease Carriers

When the fruit farmer looks skywards to see what are the prospects for his crop, he is not always wondering about the weather. Quite often he is bothered by the flock of European starlings in his vicinity.

waiting for the fruit to ripen before descending upon it with their destructive beaks.

This is true in the Maritime provinces, the Niagara Peninsula and the Okanagan fruit lands of British Columbia.

Numerous bird scaring devices have been tried at the Kentville Research Station, in Nova Scotia, including time explosions and swinging mirror glass.

Other areas have also tried noisemakers. The birds have been shot at, fed poisoned bait, attacked with water hoses and shaken off their perches. In Europe and North Africa contact poisons are sprayed on the birds by crews wearing protective suits.

Fortunately the starling menace has not required such drastic measures in this country, but E. L. Eatoin, senior horticulturist at Kentville, has no hesitation in branding it as the most hated bird in his province. Flocks of hundreds and some thousands of starlings were seen last summer and they are expected back soon. While the very young birds are satisfied with insects they soon grow to like cherries and small fruits and took almost a 100 percent toll of some blueberry crops.

Farmers are advised that all scaring devices must be backed up by some gunfire.

The starling seems to like living near humans, but they quarrel among themselves and drive off other feathered species they fly in flocks and travel big distances. In Britain frequent outbreaks of foot and mouth disease were blamed on the starling which was said to be a carrier of the disease. In this country it is thought they may have spread Bangs and other animal diseases.

European Rose Varieties Should Be More Widely Used in Canada

It is only natural that Canadian gardeners should be influenced in selection of rose varieties by the great bulk of advertising in American periodicals. Every garden magazine one picks up sings the praises of roses patented in the United States: White Knight, Pink Lustre, Peace, Perfecta, Golden Mastripiece.

All these are worthy hybrid teas just as Fuseleer Spartan and Gold Cup are worthy foliabundas but a good many of them originated in Europe. The White Night, started in Europe as the Message, Peace originated in France as Mme Meilland, Perfecta was originated by Korles in Germany as was Gail Borden.

These Europeans were patented in the United States because they stood up so well under European conditions. There are other European varieties that have stood up well under Ottawa conditions that should be more widely used in Canadian gardens.

Confidence, originated by F. Meilland, won the Bagatille gold medal in 1951 and is a favorite of Warren Oliver, Horticulturist with the Canada Department of Agriculture, as a large flowered fragrant pink.

Dr. Debat, also bred by F. Meilland, is a large fragrant fully double deep pink to coral that won the National Rose Society gold medal in 1950.

Mme. Dieudonne, another F. Meilland origination is fully double, long pointed bud. The color is vermilion with gold reflex. Growth is vigorous and bloom profuse.

Altesse is a vigorous free flowering rose with double globular strawberry red flowers.

Magali, originated by C. Malieri of France, is a vigorous upright free flowering bush, with medium sized cochineal flowers.

Tzigane has quite a large cupped yellow and red flower in profusion. The plant is upright and bushy with leathery foliage.

All these have been outstanding and better suited to our climate than many of the American introductions.

New Insecticide Highly Toxic to Honey Bees

The new insecticide, Sevin, which is recommended in the 1959 tree fruit spray calendar for the control of leaf roller, bud moth, aphids, pear psylla and DDT resistant codling moth has a long residual effect and is highly toxic to honeybees. Where several growers have put on a pink spray of this material, honey bee colonies within one quarter to one-half mile have suffered severely. It is believed that the material is picked up by the bees from the dandelions in the orchards. Work done at the Summerland Laboratory indicates that the effect of Sevin is from 12 to 14 days.

In addition to the pink spray, some growers will be using Sevin as a summer spray for the control of DDT resistant codling moths. The effect on honey bees of these summer sprays will, of course, depend largely on the bloom in the cover crop.

In any case, it is advisable where bees are being used for pollination that they are not moved into an area using Sevin as a pink spray for approximately twelve days after spray moved out again before the fruit. In addition, they should be moved out again before the cover sprays are applied.

Sandy Soils Use More Water than Clay Soils

A greater flow of water per acre and a greater seasonal total of water is required for sandy soils than for clay soils, reports Dr. J. C. Wilcox of the Summerland Research Station.

Despite the opposite claims by some authorities, tests conducted over many years proved that there is more waste of water on sandy soils and the irrigation season is longer. The Okanagan Valley orchardist followed this theory and growers on heavy soils used only from two-thirds to one-half the water used by growers on sandy soils.

Dollar for Dollar, University Education Pays Off, Survey Shows

Canadian parents often wonder about the value of higher education in relation to their own children's careers. Sometimes it's hard to see that, on top of the strictly personal advantage university training can provide, the more education a youngster has, the more he is going to earn eventually and the better he will be able to provide for his own children in the years ahead.

One study on the subject which came across the desk of Jock Johnston, manager of the Summerland branch of the Bank of Montreal, recently was prepared by government fact-finders, and it brought out the story quite clearly.

Of 1,000 Canadians earning salaries of more than $6,000 selected at random in the survey, five had had four years schooling or less; 14 didn't go beyond public school; 80 completed high school; 291 went to college; and 610 studied beyond a minimum college degree.

If you're thinking about your child's future, you will be interested in a booklet Jock Johnston has on the subject. It's called "Should your youngster go to college?" and it is available on request, without charge, of course.

If you'd like to see a copy, ask Jock Johnston for it at the B of M in Summerland. It makes interesting reading.

The bride was radiant in her beautiful floor length gown of net and lace-over satin. The square-necked lace bodice was fitted, had long sleeves and was daintily embroidered with white sequins. Lace extended into the skirt where it was outlined with ruching in a scalloped effect to join the fullness of the skirt. A full length veil held in place by a bridal crown encrusted with white beads and seed pearls. She carried a nosegay made of rows of frilly tulle and red and white carnations with tulle streamers.

At the reception following, guests were received by the parents of the bride assisted by the groom's parents and the bridal party.

Pink and white streamers and a wedding bell were arranged over the bride's table where a three-tiered decorated cake was centred. A basket of yellow roses and other flowers were arranged tastefully.

Horticultural Letter

Issued by the Department of Agriculture, Horticulture branch

Following a normal winter, spring opened early. Cool weather in April retarded plant growth to the point where the season is now two weeks later than 1958 in coastal areas and one week later than 1958 in the Okanagan. A cold snap in January thinned the peach and apricot crops, and damaged raspberry canes in the North Okanagan. Late April frosts damaged fruit buds in the Okanagan.

Westbank, Peachland

and Summerland

As reported May 12: Apple trees are now in full bloom in all but the later sections. Pears have just passed the peak of a very heavy bloom. Winter kill of fruit buds on apricots and peaches in the colder areas and also damage to spurs on some Bartlett pears occurred. A severe spring frost further damaged the apricot and peach crop and has caused crop reduction in cherries and apples. Pears and Italian prunes, though injured slightly do not appear to be reduced significantly. Growers in favoured locations are now applying chemical thinning sprays to McIntosh and Newton apples. Even where frost injury is not severe there are many light blooming trees particularly in McIntosh and Delicious. Irrigating of the lighter soils has already started although soil moisture supply at depth appears good.

There is little pest activity as yet. Mites have been reported in two orchards. Powdery Mildew is showing up in apples.

In the Westbank area planting of tomatoes has been proceeding for some days. Slight frost damage has occurred on these plants but growers have held back on planting so that not too much loss has occurred. Radishes, peas and potatoes are up in local gardens but progress has been very slow.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE

According . . . to the Mood

By SID. GODBER

Two million bucks or thereabouts of taxpayers' money — yours and mine — to build the new Government House at Victoria.

And what have the taxpayers got for their money? Well, in tangible form they own a house — a lovely house commanding a striking view of the Gulf of Georgia and standing in a 35 acre treed and gardened lot. Yes, it's a lovely house, inside and out, and I write from first hand knowledge, having had a looksee, along with sundry other members of B.C.'s press, radio and television, at the reception given last week.

I notice there have been, and undoubtedly there will be more, squawks about the cost of this luxurious mansion and questions asked as to the need for such a building.

Two million bucks is sure a lot of money, but spread that two million over the years that Government House will serve as the front door of British Columbia, set that two million alongside the dignity, the prestige and the undoubted effect its atmosphere will have on big industrial deals and that two million dollars doesn't loom quite so big.

Prestige, dignity — confidence — yes that's what the people of British Columbia get out of Government House and they're things that must be well worth spending money on, otherwise why do banks go in so heavily for marble and glitter — they could build much, much more cheaply, but even bankers, notorious for being tight-fisted, evidently think the dollars they spend on "front" a good investment.

Then there is a school of thought which bemoans the fact that the people paid for Government House, but they can't see it. That's irritating alright — but a lot of people who have never been to Victoria, and who are not likely to go to Victoria, will just swell with righteous indignation that having contributed a dollar or so in taxes they are denied the right of access.

Of course, follow that line of thinking through to a logical conclusion and that same citizen busting his shoelaces over not being able to traipse in and out of Government House should be waxing equally indignant that he can't wander in and out of the provincial jail, which his tax payments help to build.

Yes, collectively the people of British Columbia own Government House, they paid for it. It could be that it is a more costly set-up than actually called for, but we're inclined to agree with Premier Bennett — B.C. is the best province in Canada and as such deserves the best in the way of a "front door."

As for the house itself I'm not going to try and describe it. Architecturally it is quite splendid, but the outstanding impression I took away was of exquisite good taste. In fact what makes the house worth seeing is not so much the money that went into it, but how that money was used. Credit for the interior decorating job goes to Mrs. Ross, wife of Lieutenant Governor Frank Ross, which brings us to the people of Government House, much, much more interesting to me than the House itself, magnificent though it be.

Me — I'm completely sold on the Lieutenant-Governor and his Lady.

An example of the kind of people they are — I was wondering how I could describe everything to the wife, and I told Mrs. Ross how sorry I was that the wife and daughter couldn't claim to be press, radio or television and so come under the invitation.

Told the wife and daughter were in Vancouver Mrs. Ross extended them an invitation for the following day, so there were two more British Columbians with a part ownership in the House who got to see it.

But what I like most was the obvious affection the staff had for the Lieutenant-Governor and his wife and the way it is reciprocated.

A motherly woman breaking in on the group surrounding the Lieutenant-Governor and insisting that he remember his bad leg and "I'm sure you gentlemen'll excuse him for sitting down, but he won't remember his poor leg."

And the Lieutenant-Governor having one of the press photographers take a picture of a maid they had brought out from Scotland, a bonnie lassie indeed, for her to send back to her old mother in Scotland.

Yes the Ross' have that rare faculty of making everyone feel at home in their presence and, more important, that they are genuinely welcome.

There'll be a lot of snobbery — a lot of conniving and a lot of jealousies swirling around Government House — but it won't touch the Ross'. If it was possible they'd host all of British Columbia. Typical of their consideration, last Sunday they played host to the workmen who built the place, and also to their families — more than a 1,000 men, women and children and I'm betting that the Ross' got as much out of that reception, perhaps more, than when hosting the hot polo. And I understand that the Ross' are trying to arrange to have the gardens open at all times to the public.

I'm glad I had the opportunity of seeing Government House, but happier still that I was able to meet the Lieutenant-Governor and his wife — two very nice people — who have taken a two million dollar combination museum and barracks — Government House — and made it a home.

To Ask Decision On Senior Citizens' Home

Ratepayers of Summerland will shortly be asked to give approval to a money bylaw for the purpose of providing a senior citizens home.

Municipal Council, meeting Tuesday, approved the request of a committee delegation of two, Ernie Bennett and S. A. MacDonald, that a decision be sought from the ratepayers on the matter.

Reeve F. E. Atkinson pointed up the advisability of having a firm plan and a good idea of what local support would be received in the matter of purchasing bonds before the meeting as this would make for a better presentation to the ratepayers.

Councillor Norman Holmes expressed the view that the bylaw would receive overwhelming ratepayer approval.

Decision was then reached to call a ratepayers' meeting immediately a satisfactory plan was available and an estimate of cost arrived at. Council felt that to call a meeting without adequate data would simply create more delay in getting the long delayed project underway.

Councillor Norman Holmes and Superintendent of Works Ken Blagborne were added to the committee which includes, Mr. Bennett and S. A. MacDonald, L. W. Rumball, E. R. Butler, George Perry, Harry Tait, Mrs. F. E. Atkinson, Miss Jean Bennett.

Dr. D. V. Fisher Again Heads Youth Centre

The annual meeting of the Summerland Youth Centre Association was held Monday, May 25.

President D. V. Fisher gave a report of the year's activities, which included: renovating the inside of the hall and reroofing. The hall is used by 1 cub pack, 1 scout troop, 2 guide companies and 3 brownie packs each week. The hall is also rented out to various other groups and organizations.

Executive elected for the coming year: D. V. Fisher, president; W. Toews, vice president; E. R. Butler, treasurer; R. Tait secretary; Mrs. Croll, R. Blouett, Bill Barkwell, Mr. and Mrs. E. Woolliams, Mr. and Mrs. B. Blagborne, Al McIntosh, Bill Evans, Mrs. Paul Charles and Bruce Barrow.

WHEN MEN OF BRAWN were needed to build a railway across the continent they were found — men who could wield a pick and shovel, and when the need arises here in Summerland we have the men of brawn who can wield, albeit with some grunting, groaning and moaning, a shovel. Evidence, see picture above of Lorne Perry, secretary of the Board of Trade labor gang at work Tuesday levelling off Five Corners triangle destined to become a garden spot, beautifying the main entrance to West Summerland. The concrete curbing was provided and installed by the provincial government. The soil was provided and dumped and levelled by the municipality, which also put in a water connection. The Board of Trade provided and will provide more men of brawn to finish the job and the parks board will maintain it — a case of co-operation for community good all round.

Flower Boxes Are An Asset To Community

With Five Corners at the entrance to West Summerland on the way to becoming a garden spot and with flower boxes again in position and planted at strategic corners in the business district and with the addition of a flower box down the centre of Granville from the IOOF corner to down past the Municipal Hall, Municipal Council feels that it is making progress towards beautifying the community.

It was disclosed at Council meeting that some residents object to the new flower box down the centre of Granville, but council is satisfied that it creates no traffic hazard and will add much to the community's main street.

It was pointed out that the planting and maintenance is done by public spirited businessmen, Gallop's Nursery, for example, has planted the centre street box while the corner boxes are cared for by the respective merchants.

Urges More Use of School Facilities Here

Full use of the Summerland High School gym and other school facilities are not being made in the opinion of K. K. Maltman, Okanagan Valley Recreation Director.

This was reported to Council on Tuesday by Councillor Walter Powell who said that Mr. Maltman considered full use of the school facilities as an important factor in community recreational activities.

Councillor Powell, the Municipal Council's representative on the community recreation committee, suggested that to establish closer liaison with the school that a member of the school board and of the High School staff serve on the committee and Council named School Trustee F. E. Brinton and Vice-Principal John Tamblin to the committee.

Key Club Auction Realizes $300

The Key Club, led by committee chairman Stan Krause, and assisted by Kiwanians W. Toews, S. Ritchie and D. Campbell, had a successful auction sale in town last Saturday. Auctioneers Ritchie and Campbell hammered the table from 2 to 5 p.m. and took in over $300.

This should not be the club at least $250, which will be used to support their projects in both school and community.

Club members had spent many days in preparation for the sale, collecting such major items as vacuum cleaners, chest-of-drawers and even a boat, as well as countless minor items of value.

Ask Stop Sign at Darnley Road

Superintendent of Works Ken Blagborne was instructed by Municipal Council to investigate the traffic situation on roads behind the Baptist church. A petition signed by 58 residents in the area requested a stop sign at the west end of Darnley Road (at the T. B. Young corner) which it is claimed is a dangerous corner. Mrs. Bill Laidlaw headed the delegation which presented the petition.

Member Reports

By David Pugh, MP

Due to circumstances beyond my control, no report was made last week. Today, the 22nd of May, closes another period where a good deal of legislation has gone through.

At the present moment the new bill on energy has started on second reading. This will be a most interesting debate and of great significance to the West.

Legislation is still in committee on the $20,000,000 distribution to cover freight insurances and in addition the Royal Commission has been constituted to review railway problems. The Commission has the very wide authority. It was felt at first that because the Crow's Nest rates referring to grain were to remain intact the powers of the Commission would necessarily be curtailed. However, I can assure you that the Crow's Nest freight rates in relation to the rest of Canada will be given the most searching inquiry. I know you will understand the importance of this to British Columbia and particularly to Okanagan Boundary. The present day freight rate structure hits us very hard.

Amendments to the Veterans Land Act are receiving attention based on higher costs of land, construction and equipment. There is no doubt that the increased cost to the veteran applies equally to all types of farmer throughout Canada. It is a general feeling that farm credit will soon be gone into thoroughly and this of course will mean a thorough examination into the particular problems of the fruit grower. One last thing which affects our area is the bringing of farm labour under the Unemployment Insurance Act. I and a number of others have asked

Play Safe

Summer time is polio time — and that fact, until not so long ago, chilled the thought of mothers as they looked at their young offspring, vulnerable to the dread disease.

But thanks to what is the greatest discovery of the century to-date, splitting the atom included, the discovery of Salk Vaccine, the disease has been conquered.

Parents now, thanks to Salk Vaccine, need not fear the coming of polio time, provided they have taken the elementary precaution of having their children inoculated against the child-crippler and child killer.

Few parents are so lacking in their affection and sense of responsibility to their children as to neglect having them immunized and yet strangely enough the young man and young woman and those, on up to 40 years while enthusiastically endorsing Salk Vaccine for the children are seemingly reluctant to take the necessary immunization. Children, it is true, are the most susceptible to the polio virus, but the virus strikes in the higher age brackets too, and seemingly the older the stricken person the more severe the attack.

Consequently we think the Kinsmen in general and the Summerland Kinsmen club in particular, are doing a tremendous service to the people of their respective communities in making Salk Vaccine available at free immunization clinics.

Here in Summerland the Kinsmen are holding an immunization clinic for adults up to 40 years of age. The day, Wednesday, June 3; the times, 1:30 to 4:30 in the afternoon and from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the evening, the place, the Summerland Health Centre.

All adults up to 40 are invited to take advantage of this insurance against the scourge of polio.

And this invitation of the Summerland Kinsmen is extended to the residents of Peachland and Westbank.

The question those adults up to 40 years who have not yet been safeguarded should ask themselves, is can they afford to miss this opportunity. A few minutes of your time for long time protection.

You just can't miss this opportunity extended to you through the Kinsmen Club of Summerland.

Why gamble with your very life when there is no reason to do so.

Comparisons Relating to Debt

In sharp contrast with conditions in British Columbia, many American states are facing bankruptcy and current requirements are suffering because if the large percentages of their revenues required to service their bonded indebtedness. In British Columbia it is now expected that on August 2, Premier Bennett will announce that the provincial debt has been wiped out. True, there are some who disagree with his bookkeeping, but even so, the record in this province would appear to be very favorable when compared with conditions in many states.

The Wall Street Journal recently carried a long article analysing the financial troubles of the states and five in particular. It is interesting to British Columbians because the problems in these states have been essentially the same as in this province, but they have been handled in a different—and, we think, a better—manner here.

While this province will be free from interest payments on provincial indebtedness, it is interesting to note that the American states will be staggering along under the necessity of paying interest on $13.5 billions, a heavy drain on their current year's revenues.

The New York financial paper said, in part:

In Lansing, the capital of Michigan, state employees, eyeing Michigan's financial crisis, are referring to some undetermined day in April as "collapse day" and Gov. C. Mennen Williams is talking about the prospect of "payless paydays."

In Boston, the fiscal adviser to Massachusetts' Gov. Foster Furcolo says, "We're at the end of the line and yet we can't stop the whole process of schools and government services."

In Sacramento, Calif., state officials have been ordered to curtail travel sharply to save dwindling funds. When the state's Department of Fish and Game asked to send four men to a wildlife convention in New York recently, the Department of Finance cut the party to one man, saving an estimated $1,500.

These tales of fiscal woes in state governments are unusual only in the matter of degree. Most states are in financial straits and before the year is out all but two or three of the state legislatures will have wrestled with tax and spending problems that directly affect most Americans. Some states, such as New York, already have enacted several tax increases and new levies this year in efforts to narrow the gap between inadequate revenues and the rising costs of supplying more and improved services; others are sure to follow suit.

Although most states are caught in the same financial pinch, some are being squeezed harder than others. A look at five of the more hard-pressed states — California, Massachusetts, Michigan, Pennsylvania and Washington — sheds some light on how state governments have come to such a serious plight in the postwar years even as the nation as a whole has been enjoying unprecedented prosperity.

Interviews by Wall Street Journal reporters with state government officials, key legislators and spokesmen for private groups interested in state tax and spending matters turned up a wide variety of causes for the precarious financial situation in the five survey states. Some of these "causes"—for example, some charges of graft, extravagance and gross inefficiency in past administrations and alleged procrastination of previous legislatures in enacting realistic but politically unpopular fiscal measures—may indicate, in part, the politicians' habit of blaming their opponents for creating most governmental crises. In addition, each of the states has had some unique fiscal problems and circumstances which have contributed to today's budgetary woes.

Exceptions can be found to nearly any generalizations about the main causes for states' present financial plight. But knowledgeable persons interviewed in the five hard-pressed states frequently mentioned a combination of the following factors as the sources of their states' money troubles:

The sharp postwar rise in population and its concentration in metropolitan areas has spurred demand for expanded public services, especially in education and public welfare.

The public has been demanding improved and new kinds of facilities and services in education, highways, public assistance and health and hospital programs; these categories accounted for 81% of the $21 billion which all states (excluding Alaska and Hawaii) spent in fiscal 1957, the latest year for which such figures are available.

Because most capital construction was deferred during the 1930's depression and World War II, the states in recent years have had to pump huge amounts of money into working off a backlog of capital projects ranging from highways and state-office buildings to mental hospitals.

The rising cost of goods and services purchased by state governments, plus the rising interest rates on state debts, have put increasing pressure on budgets.

The 1957-58 recession slowed the rise in state tax revenue while at the same time increasing spending on welfare programs and projects calculated to ease the impact of high unemployment.

Although state legislatures have enacted a spate of new taxes and steadily have increased rates of existing levies in the postwar period, spending in most cases has been outstripping revenues.

State governments haven't always been in financial straits. Most of them emerged from World War II with lower debts and sizable reserves and surpluses, which had been fattened by high wartime revenues and the states' inability to spend these funds because of shortages of materials and manpower. But pent-up demand for better highways and other facilities quickly began siphoning off states' savings.

Consider, for example, the postwar fiscal history of Washington, a state where a budget battle is raging over a proposal by Gov. Albert D. Rosellini to increase tax revenues by $135 million in the next biennium (the two-year period starting July 1) in an effort to stem the rising tide of red ink.

"In 1945 we had a peak of nearly $72 million surplus in the general fund," recalls Rep. A. E. Edwards, chairman of the state's House appropriations subcommittee and a legislator since 1933. "All during the war the state took in a tremendous tax and hardly a single dollar was spent on schools, highways or other capital needs. The money was plunged up but nothing was spent for Washington state. Then in 1945 the war ended and we went on a spending spree and we have been on it ever since." Result: Washington's general fund has been running deficits since the 1949-51 fiscal period.

These deficits were not incurred merely through the whims of prodigal spenders. Washington's growing population—up nearly 30% from 1946—called for more services. And, like other states, most of Washington's growth has been in school-age and retirement-age groups, which require heavy outlays for more classrooms, teachers and public assistance programs.

There are plenty of people, of course, who blame their state's financial difficulties on "extravagant" programs which, they insist, go beyond providing basic, needed services.

"It's welfare's fault," declares a Washington state legislator when asked about the state's general fund deficit. He adds: "Our law is too lax. Apple pickers come into Washington from neighboring states in January or February and collect welfare checks until picking time in the fall. It's ridiculous. We can't go on okaying deficiency appropriations forever."

State house observers in Washington state insist there's not too much wrong in the fiscal picture that smaller spending or higher taxes wouldn't correct. But, they add, little financial relief can be hoped for if various groups insist on having their cake and eating it too—that is, expanding state services while holding the tax line.

Although state officials in Washington and some other states concede that they face perplexing financial problems, several volunteer the belief that things could be worse. "Washington is not in imminent trouble like Michigan," declares Verne Graham, assistant state treasurer in Washington state.

Despite the general high level of prosperity, the nation has enjoyed in the postwar years, most states have had to greatly expand borrowing to close the gap between spending and revenue. The states' long-term debt outstanding on June 30, 1957, totalled $19.5 billion, up from $8.3 billion at the end of fiscal 1946, according to the Department of Commerce.

Higher interest rates in recent years have put an additional strain on states heavily in debt. And, as long-term debt has mounted in some states, state officials have become increasingly concerned about maintaining their states' credit ratings. Washington's Gov. Rosellini, for example, insists his state must reduce its deficit and achieve a balanced budget if it is to preserve its present good credit rating.

Bomb Ban Urged by United Church Women's Federation Here

Thursday afternoon, May 20, Mrs. M. Cox welcomed the members of the United Church Women's Federation to their monthly meeting. Mrs. J. Dunsdon opened the program with a favorite hymn of Mrs. T. Washington Sr., "All the way My Saviour Leads Me". Mrs. H. Milley and Mrs. J. Lazenby sang "Jesus Our Guide." Mrs. Cox read from 15th chapter of St. John. The theme of the devotion was "Friendship." Mrs. G. Harper gave an excellent paper on the sacredness of friendly relations, quoting the command that we love one another even as Christ loved.

Mrs. Lazenby introduced Mrs. W. Powell who gave a talk on the newer Canadians and our friendship to them. She evaluated their contributions to us in cultural arts, monetary wealth and new industries. She stressed the church's responsibility to the newer Canadians.

Mrs. S. A. McDonald then spoke on health and welfare. She stated that the Christian church has always led in this field. She traced the growth of the Women's Mission Hospitals, from the first one built in 1891 at Fort Simpson, N.W.T., to the present when there are thirteen hospitals under the care of the United Church. The mission board also has redemptive and rescue homes for boys and girls as well as some senior citizens homes. She carried her subject of health through to the grave danger of atom bomb fall out and urged women to express themselves strongly on the banning of all nuclear testing. Mrs. Lazenby thanked Mrs. McDonald and carried the subject of fall out further, displaying many press clippings on this vital question, some expressing disgust at the apathy of the public, others angry reproach.

The routine business followed the usual form. In the absence of Mrs. A. C. Fleming, the minutes and roll call were read by Mrs. M. Scott.

Mrs. R. Chapman read the financial report. Finances being in good standing a sum was granted to the board of stewards.

The supply secretary, Mrs. W. Ward, reported sending a 13 lb. parcel to Korea, containing baby and children's wollen clothing. A request was made for five gifts for girls to be sent to one of the Indian schools.

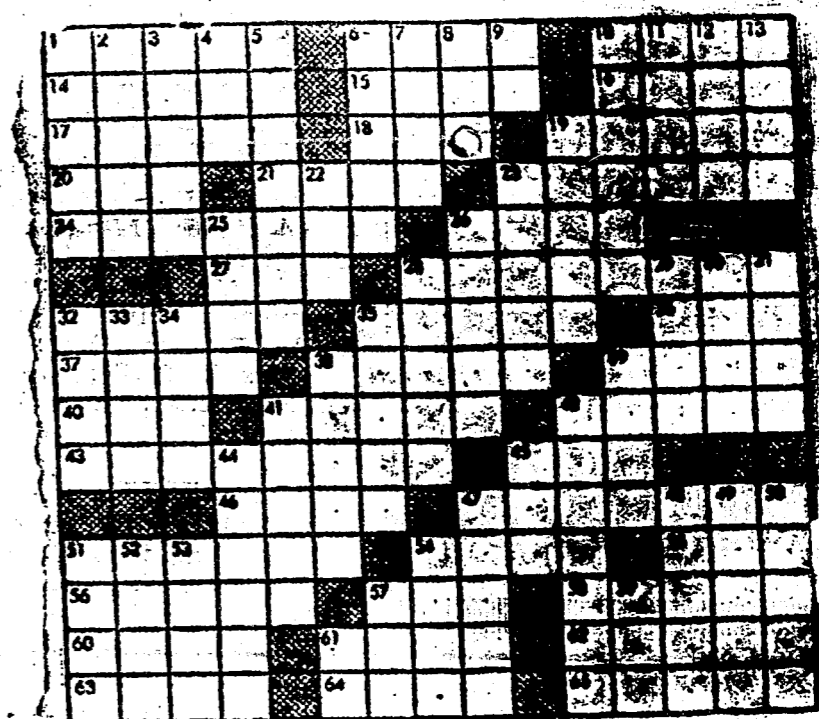

Mrs. Dunsdon briefly reviewed a new book in the library, "The Small Woman" donated by Miss Chambers. She also extended an invitation to attend the school for leaders June 17 to 20, to be held at the United Church Training School at Naramata.

The meeting was adjourned with the benediction. A dainty lunch was served by Mrs. H. Milley, Mrs. Alex Smith and Mrs. W. Ward.

Helen Frances Miller Weds at Calgary

A wedding of interest to West Summerland took place recently in Calgary in the Salem Evangelical United Brethren Church, when Helen Frances Miller, daughter of Mrs. Helen A. Miller, West Summerland, became the bride of Kenneth Henry Rohl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rohl, Calgary. Rev. D. R. Sipe officiated at the ceremony. Organist was Miss Ardyce Blough and soloist Miss Mary Young, cousin of the bride.

Given in marriage by her brother, Lee Miller of Peachland, the bride looked charming in a floor length gown of satin with net and chiffon over skirts with a fitted bodice and ruffled sleeves. Her finger tip veil fell from a double crowned headpiece of rhinestones and flowers. She carried sweetheart roses on a white lace Bible.

Bridal attendants were Miss Hazel Miller, sister of the bride, as maid of honor and Miss Ruth Martin as bridesmaid. Ring bearer was Donald Miller nephew of the bride, of Peachland and flower girl Karen Kraft, cousin of the groom. Miss Miller and Miss Martin wore identical afternoon dresses of yellow taffeta and carried turquoise carnations. The flower girl wore a turquoise dress same style as the soloist attendants and carried yellow carnations.

Mr. Manfred Rohl was best man for his brother, and ushers were Mr. Elroy Frickey, Mr. Ernest Klumpp and Mr. Edward Tetz.

Reception was held in the banquet room of the Empress Hotel.

For her wedding trip to Banff the bride wore a beige sheath dress with empire waist and three quarter length sleeves. Her chocolate brown coat which had a tucked yoke and fur collar was set off by beige and turquoise accessories. She wore a corsage of sweetheart roses.

SPRING CONCERT!
 A capacity audience heard a very outstanding musical performance by the Summerland High School Band when it presented its annual spring concert last Thursday. The varied program included selections by the grade six beginners band, and the junior band. Special feature numbers by the senior band included a Dixieland dance performed by Lynne Boothe, Carol Hackman, Dorothy Watson and Elaine Dunsdon, and a hilarious beat-generation skit, "Little Beat-Riding Hood" starring Elaine Dunsdon and "real crazy" trombonist, Bob Sheeley. Further comedy brought loud and enthusiastic applause when Zorro (alias Victor Uegama) chased Bandmaster Mr. Tamblin from the stage to the band's accompaniment with the theme song of the familiar TV production. Having completed the rout, Zorro took over to conduct the musicians for the remainder of his own piece.

 A public farewell was given the graduating members of the band, and to the surprisingly large number of ex-band members in the audience a salute was given.
 Band president Vic Uegama presented Mr. Tamblin with a golf bag, and Mr. Chalmers, several jazz records, on behalf of the band in appreciation for the efforts of these two in making this year such a successful one.

SOFTBALL
 Summerland was host to the Pentiction senior girls softball team on May 21. Our girls won a close battle by the score of 6-5. The score was close all the way through the game with Pentiction leading at the top of the last inning 5-4. Summerland, having last bat, tied the score with a run made by Lorna Dixon. Margret Walton came home on a hit by Grace Johnson, thus resulting in the score of 6-5. The Summerland girls team is travelling to Pentiction on May 25.

The junior teams are having a tournament on Saturday, May 30. Good luck to our teams.

34 Attend OPA Meeting Here

The Old Age Pensioners held their monthly meeting on May 19 in the Oddfellows Hall.

Thirty-four members were present and two new members joined up. President Glen was in the chair.

Secretary D. Taylor read a letter from the head office about the coming convention at Mission. A motion by Mr Shaw to go to the convention to try and have all old age groups to get into the one association was passed after a long discussion. Two other motions failed to pass. One member had a birthday during the month. Treas. Macdougald gave the financial report. Mrs. Bancroft supplied the music.

Four ladies of the Orange Lodge, Mrs. Johanson, Mrs. Broderick, Mrs. Gibbard and Mrs. Dickinson served a nice lunch.

 WALLWASHING
 — ASK FOR DICK —

BY WALLY SMITH
ABOUT TAXES
 Because my orchard property is adjacent to Main Highway No. 97 the assessment on said property is increased by 5 per cent.
 Its location is supposed to increase the property value, but for the life of me I cannot see it. If anything, the property is of less value because of its location on this main artery of motor traffic.
 In these days of paved side roads and school buses and rural mail delivery for everybody
 I can see many disadvantages in living on a busy main thoroughfare.
HIGHWAY HAZARD
 Perhaps my opinion is prejudiced by the fact that I recently had a dog killed on the highway — one of those neuter fer-males that stays at home and has no appeal for a dog with a roving eye.

 It was my second dog killed
 on the road within the last 16 months. Many of the neighbors'
 dogs have shared a similar fate.
 Some of my neighbors have lost three or four dogs during recent years.
 Cats, too are frequent traffic victims. The modern motor car is no respecter of breed or color and would as soon flatten somebody's pet Siamese as cut down a stray yellow tom.
 Even human life is sacrificed from time to time on this narrow ribbon of pavement inhabited by careening motorized monsters. We pay too high a price for modern transportation.
 Traffic on the highway gets heavier every year and during the summer months the cars go by in strings of 5 to 10. I have to cross the pavement to pick up my mail in the Rural Route
 box. When there is a slight lull in the traffic and the highway seems to be clear both ways I dash for the other side. If I'm lucky I make it. As the years pass I find myself slowing down
 while the traffic speeds up.
 Some people, including Highways Minister Gagliardi, want to speed it up even more. I think it should be slowed down going through the Oliver-Osoy-oos district. This is a thickly populated area with a farm gate way every hundred yards or even less, people coming from home or going home, children
 going to and from school, youngsters on bicycles, motorists stopping to buy fruit. Under these conditions fast moving traffic is too dangerous.
 It so happens that I have no
 cherry trees along the highway
 so I am not bothered by motorized cherry thieves. But they are quite active up and down the road wherever cherry trees are within reach. Some of them think nothing of breaking off branches loaded with fruit. Orchardists probably lose thousands of dollars every year to cherry thieves.
 I wonder why it is that a normally honest, law-abiding citizen turns into a thief when he sees ripe red fruit hanging on a tree? It certainly is not because of lack of opportunity to buy, because numerous fruit stands-up and down the highway offer cherries for sale.

Fire and Bottle Throwers
 Another menace is the bottle tosser. He drinks his pop or beer and tosses the empty bottle out of a moving car. Frequently the bottle rolls into an orchard and there its broken, jagged edges can cut a deep gash in an expensive tractor tire.
 Fire is still another cause for concern on the part of growers who live on a main road. Careless smokers who flip their cigaret butts out a car window have started many a fire along the roadway.
 Every spring when the grass and weeds are dry and before new growth begins I am fearful lest somebody will start a roadside fire that will spread into my orchard. My best insurance is to burn off the roadside before somebody else sets it ablaze.
 Of course all of these various hazards may be present on any roadway but they are greater on a main highway in direct proportion to the amount of traffic on the road.
 And so it is that a fruit grower whose orchard is on a main highway is not only exposed to the increased dangers of heavy traffic, the theft of fruit, the slaughter of animals, property damage by fire, and other hazards, but he is also taxed an extra 5 per cent.
 This extra tax may have made sense in the old days of horse and buggy when the main road was a gravel strip and back roads were full of ruts and mud holes, but it doesn't seem to make sense now.

Horticultural Prize Winners

Mrs. W. F. Ward and Mr.
 W. Snow tied for first prizes

 close of the meeting.
 Judges for the flower show

Promenade

The Summerland Pairs and Squares held their executive meeting to elect new officers for the coming season. Results are as follows: president, Don Hermiston for a second term; vice president, Nettie Shannon; secretary, Alice Arkell, 2nd term; treasurer, David Munn; executive, Phyllis Smith, Fred Smith and Hilda Eden. Plans for the coming summer months include: get togethers the second Friday of each month; party night to continue on the 3rd Saturday throughout the summer. A pre-festival dance to be held on August 4 with Les Boyer as emcee. In future the club will purchase round dance records considered to be popular. Some remuneration will be considered for local callers emceeding party nights. It is also planned to organize a caravan of Summerland dancers who will attend party night dances in the area. It is hoped this will stimulate more interest between clubs.

Dancing this Saturday is at Peachland with the Totem Twirlers as hosts. Ed Stebor of Tonasket will emcee and call the dance. Turkey supper provided by the host club.

George Henly Cops Feature Race at 32nd Valley Track Meet

The largest Summerland contingent in years represented this community last Saturday in the 32nd annual Okanagan Valley Schools Track Meet held this year in Vernon. By the completed our delegates had Saturday morning trials were time the Friday evening and qualified to enter the finals in fifteen events.

Feature race of the day as far as Summerland fans were concerned, was the one mile open, in which George Henly made a determined bid in the final 300 yards to pass pace-maker Lyre Chambers of Penticton. Chambers protected his lead until he reached the final 50 yards of home stretch, where George surged ahead to win by three yards in the time of 4:54.6 This victory brought back to Summerland the Bank of Montreal cup which had been won in 1933 — 26 years ago — by Gordon Beggs, whose children are schoolmates of this year's champion.

Earlier in the day, Henly classed Jerry Jantz in the open 880. Dark horse and late entry, Roger Solly was another bright for the locals as he soared 5' 5 1/2" into the air and over the bar in the intermediate high jump, to win that event, and had run second to Kelowna's later in the day took a third place in the intermediate broad jump.

Carol Hackman ran well in the senior girls 100 yards, to take third in a very fast race. The winner, Sally McCallum of Vernon, smashed the fifteen year old record by a fifth of a second with her time of 11.4.

Carol Hackman commands the respect and praise of her coaches and team mates as a fine competitor and sports woman. Although the only senior girl turning out for the past two seasons, she has trained diligently and has been a keen and willing student of the game. It can only be hoped that her competitive spirit will soon be caught and followed by others.

Other Summerland points were scored as follows: Alice Downes, 5th, junior broad jump; Teresa Keys, 6th, junior High Jump; Linda Rumball, 6th junior 60 yards.

Although the team scored only 20 points in the meet this was a vast improvement when compared with the achievement of Summerland squads over the past few years. Last year only 8 points were scored and two years ago there was so little interest that a team was not even entered. Coaches Miss Flat, Mr. Puddy and Mr. Minchin, have been attempting to revive interest in the sport, and hope that this year's team is the beginning for better years ahead.

In this year's team standings Salmon Arm ran away with the meet championship as they amassed an almost unprecedented 135 1/2 points. Kelowna had 108 1/2, Penticton 95 1/4, Vernon 93 1/2, Kamloops 10 (all won by G. Schell, the only Kamloops entry).

In the B class schools, Rutland had 40 points to place second to Salmon Arm, Summerland and 20, South Okanagan 9 1/2. Lumbly did extremely well in the C class in scoring 73 to win that division and Similkameen had 32 1/2, trailed by Armstrong and Enderby.

Egely Spurs Summerland Macs to 10-8 Victory Over Trail

A big sixth inning launched by Ollie Egely's triple base hit, gave the Summerland Macs their first win of the young season here Sunday, when they defeated the visiting Trail nine, 10-8 in the first half of a double header at Athletic Park.

The Macs couldn't hold the pace in the second game and Trail turned the tables with a vengeance, swamping the Macs 11-3.

Macs were trailing 8-3 until the lucky for them seventh, when including Egely's three sacker the Macs bunched six hits and batted twelve men. In the second game Trail scored four in the first, and were never in trouble, romping home with 11 nicely bunched hits in two big innings which accounted for ten of their eleven runs.
