

Centennial Report

1867 || 1967

by JOHN W. FISHER
CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

I have written before about the great 4,000-mile water route to be travelled by our Centennial Canoe Pageant next summer. Ten canoes manned by teams from the provinces will traverse the historic waterway from the Rocky Mountains to Montreal. The fact that Canada stretches from sea to sea is due partly to the existence of this and other waterways.

The "north west passage" by water across Canada was established long before the time of Confederation. In fact, one might say, it had its beginnings when Columbus and many other explorers unsuccessfully sought a seaway to the far east through the west.

The explorers discovered the first part of the waterway west of Montreal in their hunt for a route to China. Then, once found, it became the highway of the fur traders who had learned that there was local wealth to be exploited — much closer than China or India.

While the fur traders were producing considerable commercial canoe traffic between Montreal and the Rocky Mountains, other people were still intent on finding a north west passage for big ships. Twenty-two years before Confederation Sir John Franklin, the great Arctic explorer almost forgotten by Canadians today, set out to find a northern shipping route through the Arctic with two Royal Navy ships, the Erebus and the Terror.

There were 129 officers and men on Franklin's two ships when they entered the Arctic area in 1845. They were seen last in July of that year by another passing ship in Baffin's Bay. Then the Erebus and the Terror vanished and none of the 129 ever returned from the Arctic.

Numerous expeditions sent from England, from the United States and by groups from the Hudson's Bay Company searched for the lost explorers without success.

Evidence uncovered in later years proved that the Erebus and the Terror, trapped in Arctic ice, had not been abandoned until three years after they had been sighted by that passing ship in Baffin's Bay. As late as 1850 Eskimos saw a large party of white men travelling south near the mainland, dragging a small boat and sleds. There are many conflicting stories about what actually happened to the 129 men.

In 1859 an expedition sent out by Lady Franklin found a written record by a captain of one of the ships. It gave an account of their terrible trials up to the spring of 1848.

Franklin was lost but the search expeditions provided information for the mapping of a vast area of the Arctic with its complicated islands, inlets and straits.

Although much knowledge was gained through Arctic expeditions in the mid-nineteenth century the canoe route across Canada remained, for a long time, the backbone of the east-west transportation system and the one we will "rediscover" with our Centennial canoes. Even today, with all our technology, the north west passage via the Arctic waterway is not for use by commerce.

During Centennial year Canadians will be looking at history with renewed interest. Like the story of the search for the north west passage, which I have barely touched in this short column, there are many more which make fascinating reading for young and old.

235,000 crates of cherries harvested in 1966 crop

The 1966 cherry crop totalled 235,000 crates with 225,000 crates already shipped to the fresh market in Canada, United States, United Kingdom and Sweden.

Cannery deliveries will total 85,000 crates and deliveries to Sun-Rype for processing is expected to amount to 12,000 crates.

The report states that despite the many problems arising from weather this is a substantial cherry crop and a strong basic selling price was maintained throughout the season.

Oliver and district cherry growers lost only about 5 per cent of their crop but reports from the central part of the valley indicate that from 40 to 60 per cent of their crop was ruined by heavy rains.

The 1966 estimate of the apricot crop as reported in the newsletter is 831,000 Vu-Packs as compared to 1,150,000 pack crop in 1964. There were no apricots in 1965 due to the 1964 December freeze.

Harvesting of peaches is now underway in the Oliver district and the 1966 estimate calls for 923,396 cell packs as compared with the record crop of 1,707,858 packs in 1964. There were no peaches in 1965.

Other figures shown in the newsletter are: plums are estimated at 8,114 Vu-Packs; Bartlett pears, 571,604; Flemish, 31,432; Anjou, 218,326; apples, 5,090,998 boxes.

Processing of apricot nectar is now underway and cherry pie filling will be packed next week. Approximately 100 tons of sweet cherries were brined for use in glace fruit and sour cherries are now being pitted and processed into cherry pie filling and frozen cherries.

Keen competition at Rifle Shoot

The Summerland Rifle Club held its Annual Invitational Shoot on Sunday, July 31st. Shooters came from North Vancouver, Chilliwack, Kamloops, Vernon, Kelowna and Penticton to make a successful event for the local club.

Winner of the high aggregate was J. Rundelsheim of North Vancouver who took first place after a shoot-off with W. Alarie of Kamloops.

Aggregate winners in the Sr. Group were: 1. John Rasmussen, Penticton, with 138 points; 2. Jack Vecqueray, Vernon, with 138 points; 3. Doug Smithson, Penticton, with 136 points.

To determine the winner of this event, the number of bulls' eyes were counted, giving Rasmussen first place.

Tyro Group winners were: 1. Jake Rudelsheim, North Vancouver, with 139 points; 2. Wilfred Alarie, Kamloops, with 139 points; 3. Harold Richardson, Summerland with 129 points.

OKANAGAN INDIAN
Leonard S. Marchand, a member of the Okanagan Indian Band, is the first Indian to be appointed to the personal staff of a Federal Cabinet Minister. Mr. Marchand is a graduate in Agriculture (BSc) from the University of British Columbia and of Forestry (MSc) from the University of Idaho.

Shuffleboard courts finished

Two shuffle board courts, installed by the Municipality, have now been completed, with the exception of signs, seats and arrangement for management.

An organizational meeting will be held tonight, Thursday at 7:30 at the court site in the park, to plan how best to operate the courts with the most benefit to the most people. Anyone with a knowledge of operating such courts will be especially welcome. A large turnout is hoped for of all interested people.

The idea has been very well received and a number of donations have already been offered.

A special request is being made to everyone, including youngsters, to please not use the courts for any purpose but shuffle board play with the proper equipment. It is necessary to keep a fine finish on the courts and even walking on the courts can interfere with this.

The official opening date of the Courts will be announced at a later date. Congratulations are extended to the Municipality for the wonderful job done, giving us one of the finest courts ever seen.

GAS MILEAGE FACTS

Effects of speed on gas mileage are reported by the B.C. Automobile Association on the basis of extensive tests of a 4,175-pound, eight-cylinder sedan with automatic transmission. Gas mileage by speeds are as follows: 40.9 miles a gallon at 3 m.p.h., 20.7 miles a gallon at 35 m.p.h., and 13.4 miles a gallon at 80 m.p.h.

Diefenbaker is to blame

Opposition leader John Diefenbaker will find little comfort in the report of M. Justice Dalton Wells concerning the activities of George Victor Spencer and of the government's treatment of Mr. Spencer. In fact, Prime Minister Pearson and Justice Minister Lucien Cardin appeared to have done everything reasonably within their power to handle a sensitive matter with exceptional care and with commendable consideration for the health of a sick human being... even though he may not have deserved it. Mr. Diefenbaker's prime criticism was that the "Bill of Rights has been shockingly violated", and that his treatment had "all the earmarks of a police state". He further wailed that a "labyrinth of deception" had been built around the case. Justice Wells' report illustrates that Diefenbaker could hardly be further from the truth. Even Davie Fulton, a former Conservative Justice Minister, concedes that the judge's report appeared to substantiate the government's position. Diefenbaker's insistence that the government had "swept too much under the rug" and that Spencer had been denied human rights, and his constant and unreasonable efforts to use the matter to embarrass the government, finally inflamed Cardin to the point where he sought to do a little embarrassing of his own... which he most certainly did when dropped a name similar to Munsinger in the House. Canadians are now all too familiar with the names of Spencer and Munsinger, and Parliament has as a result lost prestige which it may never recover. The blame belongs almost solely to Mr. Diefenbaker, whose primary purpose in Parliament appears to be the embarrassment of the government regardless of the result. Surely his usefulness to his country is in question, as is his leadership of the Conservative party. Parliament would be a better place without him.

Accident deaths rose in '65

Canada experienced a 3.9 per cent increase in accident deaths in 1965 compared with 1964. The total 1965 deaths by accident was 10,979. Traffic led the causes with 45.2 per cent of the total, 2.2 per cent rise over 1964. These figures are contained in "Accident Facts 1965", compiled by the National Safety League of Canada in co-operation with the Bureau of Statistics. Canada's accident fatality rate per 100,000 population rose from 54.9 to 56.1 per cent. Males led females by a ratio of about 5 to 2. Accounting for 93.5 per cent of all accident deaths were (in this order): motor vehicles, falls, drowning, fire and explosion, suffocation, poisoning, machinery, blows from objects, aircrafts and firearms. N.S.L. believes it is significant that, in the 15-24 age group, 40.5 per cent of the road fatalities involved collision between two vehicles. The home rated next to the motor vehicle as the most fatal location. Of 1965's 5,612 non-transport fatalities, 39.4 per cent occurred in the home where falls, fire and explosion, suffocation and poisoning accounted for 88.2 per cent of the deaths. Drownings totalled 1,119 with 35.1 per cent children under 15 and 22.8 per cent youths (15-24). Males outnumbered females about six to one. Watercraft, almost exclusively a male hazard, were involved in 28.1 per cent.

FROM OUR FILES...

50 YEARS AGO

Why some towns stand still The citizens of a town make or ruin its prosperity. A town is not like Topsey, "just growned," says a contemporary. It's people must talk its advantages, push its good points, and set forth its location and adaptiveness for whatever it is best suited. Weeds spring up unsworn and flourish unattended, but a field of corn must be cultivated. So it is with villages, towns, and cities. Some one must work to pull the community out of the slough of lifelessness. The live town is alive because its citizens are alive. The more pep they put into the job, the better for the place. Three or four good workers can raise a town from the dead. In the last fifteen years cross roads settlements have become flourishing villages, moribund villages have grown into the city class. Regardless of natural advantages, somebody hustled to bring about the growth in each place. And did these hustlers have the cheerful assistance of their neighbors? Not a bit! The neighbors stood around and kidded and knocked. There was never a leader from the time of Noah down to the present, who did not have to queer the scoffs and scorns and taunts of the ingrates he was trying to help. The town-hustlers who are up and doing get no encouragement from the members of the hot stove cabinet. That is why some towns stand still.

Take a bow, Summerland (Editor's note - Following is a reprint of a letter to the editor of the Vancouver Sun, which leaves little doubt how the Vintage Car drivers felt about their reception in Summerland) GREETING TERRIFIC Editor, The Sun, Sir - In reading your articles covering the Centennial Vintage Car Tour, I was annoyed at the one entitled Kelowna Greets Cavalade.

At Kelowna there were many people looking at the cars but no actual welcome was extended to us. On the other hand the welcome at Summerland was terrific and there was no mention of this in any article. Summerland had a huge barbecue in the churchyard and had a steak with all the trimmings for each of us. The people were warm and friendly. I'm sure that those people were as disappointed in the write-ups as were the participants. P. GLADWON Vancouver

Power Squadron plans family cruise

The Summerland Power Squadron can be seen on the Okanagan-Lake this summer, flying the Squadron flag as members take off and return from the Yacht Club on the many cruises they have been able to enjoy due to a very co-operative weatherman. A reminder to boaters - wherever you see this flag being flown there is a helping hand ready in any kind of boating emergency. This is a pledge all members take to join the squadron. And they have the knowledge with which to help. The Power Squadron will again have a float in the Penticton Peach Festival parade taking place this evening. The Summerland Power Squadron is having a family cruise and barbecue supper on August 21. All Yacht Club members are invited to join in this excursion. Meeting time is 1:00 p.m. at the Yacht Club and there is also room for quite a few members who do not have boats.

Garden tour successful

The Summerland Horticultural Society sponsored a garden tour Sunday, July 31, inviting members and guests to attend. The group gathered at the Municipal Hall at 2 p.m. and firstly visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Snow's garden. Following this they travelled to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Marshall, where they viewed the many rare plants and native trees, and found the Clematis in full bloom.

There were about 30 members and guests on the tour which then took them to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Bennett, where they found a lovely spot to rest under the many big trees which gave nice cool shade. Ernie has about 150 different types of begonias which were at their very best and made a very worthy showing. Methods of handling, staking and disbudding chrysanthemums were demonstrated and everyone expressed a good time. The tour was termed very successful. The Fall Fair is September 10th and you are reminded to have your flowers ready for the Flower Show in connection with the fair. There will be more details when the prize lists are available.

Suppression crew control fire

A three-acre grass fire in Summerland on Sunday afternoon provided the only action of the weekend for Penticton's Forestry Branch. A nine-man suppression crew, aided by five men from Summerland's municipal fire force, were able to confine the fire to a small area near Faulder Road, after it was reported at 5 p.m. The blaze, expected to smoulder for a few days yet, was the 24th reported to the local branch since the May 1 fire season opening. Fires have been fewer and smaller this year than in previous seasons. The forest fire hazard rating remains "High".

CANADA'S CENTURY

A news background special on the Centennial of Confederation

The Need Was Compelling

(Third Of A Series)
By WALT McDAYTER

Canada was created a nation in 1867 more of necessity than of desire.

It was neither patriotic zeal nor nationalistic aspirations that chiefly drew the Fathers of Confederation to the conference table at Charlottetown and Quebec in 1864. Their motivation was far more practical, based on the realization that only through union could the British North American colonies solve their economic, political and defense problems.

The 33 delegates who met for 17 days at the Confederation Conference in Quebec knew only too well that many opposed the proposed federation. Politicians, being a cautious breed, decided to carry on their discussions behind closed doors. Once their 72 resolutions had been drawn up, outlining the terms of union, the delegates thought it would be expedient to keep the document a secret until an opportune time.

They never had the chance to decide on an "opportune" time. An enterprising newspaper in Prince Edward Island somehow acquired a copy of the document, and published it... and across the colonies came an outcry of alarm!

The people of New Brunswick demonstrated their disapproval of Confederation with embarrassing clarity! In the March, 1865 elections they voted every single delegate who had attended the Quebec Conference, including Premier Samuel L. Tilley, out of office.

The wrath of the voters of Nova Scotia was equally devastating. In the first national election, Nova Scotians voted against all but one of the pro-Confederation candidates.

But contrary to some appearances, not everyone in 1867 was opposed to the idea of federation. Businessmen and farmers, for example, saw union of the colonies as an economic necessity. Such a union would offset the loss of trade with Britain due to her lowering of timber preferences in 1842 and the repeal of the Corn Laws in 1846. It was necessary also to establish an alternative trade area to compensate for the anticipated loss of U.S. trade as a result of the abrogation of the Reciprocity Treaty in 1866.

It was hoped the loss of this trade could be alleviated by knitting the BNA colonies into an economic unit, allowing goods to cross interprovincial borders tariff-free.

The colonies, new railways would have to be built, and it was this promise which was likely the strongest of all incentives to unite.

In addition, some saw nationhood as mandatory for defense. During the U.S. Civil War, Canada and Britain had almost become embroiled into a war with the Northern Army over the Alabama Incident and the Trent Affair, and it was feared the Yanks might yet march into Canada.

As well, the Fenians, members of an Irish-American militant society intent on conquering Canada to spite Britain, were increasing hostilities on our borders.

Only by combining forces could the colonies hope to defend themselves against any major U.S. assault.

There were other reasons urging federation as well: to protect the Canadian west from being annexed by Americans; to prevent U.S. infringement of the Maritimes' fishing rights; and to end a political deadlock.

It was all these reasons combined that convinced four colonies of British North America to throw away the crutches of colonialism, and to stand on their own feet as a nation.

Market active on all classes at Okanagan Falls cattle auction

The market was active on all classes of cattle sold at the auction sale held by the B.C. Livestock Producers Co-operative Association at the Okanagan Falls stockyards on Monday, August 1.

There were three hundred and twenty-five head of cattle and calves sold with about 50 percent of these going to the United States. The bulk of the cattle were feeder cattle and there was a strong run of heifers. There were a few good small packages of feeder steers with those from the Thompson Ranches bringing the top price of $25.30.

Following are the prices for the day — few medium 800 to 900 pound dry fed steers, $22.40 to $24.10; common to medium steers, $20.85 to $22.00; good quality 500 to 600 pound feeder steers, $24.50 to $25.30; common to medium feeder steers, $20.00 to $24.00; a few steer calves, $24.00 to $25.00; good cows, $18.60 to $17.80; common to medium cows, $15.50 to $16.00; canners and cutters, $13.20 to $15.40; good butcher heifers, $19.75 to $21.10; common to medium heifers, 18.00 to $19.50; good feeder heifers, $21.00 to $22.00; common to medium feeder heifers, $18.00 to $20.50; bulls, $17.50 to 22.30.

The next sale at Okanagan Falls will be held on Monday August 29.

Employment office reports labor shortage in most fields

With completion of the cherry harvest the demand is increasing for apricot pickers, reports Irvine Moss, Manager of the Penticton National Employment Service office. Experienced apple thinners are still in demand. There is still a shortage of experienced workers in the service industry; opportunities for motel maids and waitresses still exist.

A shortage of female help to work in the local canneries is developing. Anyone wishing to take employment in this line of work is urgently requested to contact the National Employment office.

Moss advises there are vacancies in the following occupations: Sawmill, Electrician, Plumber, Auto mechanics, Industrial First Aid attendants, Bricklayer, Housekeepers, Experienced waitresses and qualified hairdressers.

For the convenience of the public the Penticton National Employment office is open during the summer months from 6:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Farm Labour Service is available six days per week. Phone 492-3648.

Selecting building lot important consideration

Choosing a building lot, like the selection of a neighbourhood, means making a decision requiring more than just casual attention. There is more to it than simply acquiring so many square feet of land. As in choosing a neighbourhood there are certain things to look for and certain things avoid.

Your choice will of course be limited by the price you can afford to pay. You also want to make sure you can afford the kind of house you are allowed to build on a particular lot. On the average a lot should not cost much more than 20 percent of the property as a whole.

The land should be well drained and should have good bearing properties. Unstable soil calls for stronger footings, usually with reinforcements. Rocky terrain, on the other hand can mean a costly excavation job if blasting is needed. A sloping lot might be suitable for a split-level home while not as practical if planning a ranch type bungalow.

Can the lot be landscaped at reasonable cost? Does the house you are planning to build fit the lot you have in mind; does the lot offer any natural advantages; a view; access from the side or the rear as well as the front; are there any trees that can be preserved; does it have valuable top soil that can be saved? These are some of the questions you will have to ask yourself when choosing a lot.

Money Belts Excess

Baggage These Days

Once upon a time — and even today in some parts of the world — travellers had to hide their money pretty carefully if they didn't want to lose it. Money belts were as common as Gladstone bags in the old days.

Nowadays it's different. Today's traveller doesn't need to worry about his bankroll. Mostly because he doesn't carry a bankroll at all. Instead, he uses Bank of Montreal travellers cheques. They're the perfectly safe and convenient means of carrying funds while travelling.

A visit to the Summerland branch of the Bank of Montreal before starting off on your next business or vacation trip can give you complete peace of mind. There the accountant, Bob Evans, can sell you the B of M travellers cheques you need, in whatever denominations you think will be most practical for your purposes.

Then you'll be able to travel with the knowledge that if your travellers cheques are lost, stolen, or destroyed, you won't be the loser because the Bank of Montreal will arrange to replace them for you.

If you're going abroad, the B of M can provide you special travellers cheques, or travellers letters of credit for large sums. Travellers cheques are much more comfortable than a money belt, we promise.

PEACHLAND SOCIAL NEWS

Mrs. N. Bradbury and John are home again after a few weeks holiday at Byemore, Alberta. While there they took part in a family reunion. The whole family was together again for the first good visit in more than thirty years.

Recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Todd were Mr. and Mrs. Hadfield and family from Victoria.

Spending their vacation at Todd's Tent Town visiting old friends in the district are Rev. and Mrs. C. Warren and family. Rev. Warren is a former Peachland United Church minister, and his present charge is at Turner Valley.

Guest at the MacNeill's this week is Miss Lois Haker from Keremos.

Staying at the Peachland Motel while visiting friends in the community are Mr. and Mrs. L. Caul with daughters Judy and Carol, from Burnaby.

Mrs. W. Selwyn is home again after a few day's holiday in Vancouver. Guests at present at the Selwyn home are Donna and Linda Dale of Mabel Lake, B.C.

Members of the Peachland recreation commission gathered last week to present a going away gift to Mr. and Mrs. A. Lowrey. Mr. Lowrey who has taken an active part in community affairs is being transferred to Vanderhoof.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Swartz this week are Mrs. Bernice Kachuk and son, Jeff, from Vancouver.

Visitors at the Giesler's are Mrs. Giesler's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Bachner and their daughter Margaret from Edmonton.

By BRENDA DAVIES

PEACHLAND — Two Peachland graduates, Margaret MacNeill and Jennifer Sanderson left Sunday on the first lap of their trip to Europe. In company with a group of Grade 12 and 11 students of George Pringle Secondary School, Westbank, they will board a plane in Vancouver Monday for five weeks of fun and sight-seeing. This trip, "Adventure in to History", is sponsored by the Youth Hostels of the World, and it is to be hoped that it will become an annual trip for students of the district.

Home for the weekend was Miss Lora Enns visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. Enns. This is Lora's first trip home since leaving to work in Vancouver. Other visitors at the Enns home are Mr Enns' nephew and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fishier from Cold Lake, Alberta.

Residential construction up in Summerland during '66

Residential construction in Summerland is up $42,300 over the 1965 figure for the first seven months of this year. However, construction values in general are down $21,845 for the same period.

Permits issued during the month of July totalled $69,905 as compared to $63,200 in July 1965. Permits issued during the first seven months of 1966 total $444,850 as compared to $465,000 during the same period in 1965.

These figures which were released by the municipal office include residential buildings, institutional, commercial and alterations.

Centennial Feature ROBERT BURNABY

The man who gave his name to the flourishing lower mainland municipality of Burnaby was born in Woodthorpe, Leicestershire, England on Nov. 30, 1828, the son of an English church vicar. Robert Burnaby's family was influential and was able to send him to London to study and launch a career with Her Majesty's Custom Service.

But he left that career at age 30 to come to British Columbia to make his fortune in the new colonies which then were in the throes of the 1858 Fraser River gold rush. He had a letter of introduction to the colonial Governor, James Douglas, who, in turn, introduced him to Col. R. C. Moody of the Royal Engineers, the Land Commissioner who then was planning the city that was to be New Westminster. Burnaby in 1859 became Moody's private secretary and eventually took over as head of Moody's civilian staff.

In August, 1859, however, Moody was required to dismiss his civilian employees, reserving their posts for the Military. Burnaby and Walter Moberly, a pioneer civil engineer set out in a canoe with four men in hopes of building an empire of their own. They paddled down the Fraser and around to Point Grey and Burrard Inlet to examine coal deposits where they left their men while they explored the north arm of the inlet. They were taken hostage by Indians briefly and added to their adventures by examining the Cheakamus River for gold, before returning to Victoria. There in 1860, Burnaby was elected to a seat in the Legislative Assembly of Vancouver Island and he represented Esquimalt until his return in 1865 to England to care for business interests. He was soon back in Victoria as Commissioner of the Savings Bank of Victoria.

Not all of his ventures were successful. A Queen Charlotte

Subdivision plans approved by Peachland councillors

By BRENDA DAVIES
PEACHLAND — Councillors Elstone and Sidebotham reported on their viewing of the N. Lingor property and revised plans for this subdivision brought to council were approved in principle.

Survey plans of the property on which the Peachland Irrigation district's storage shed sits were submitted for council approval. The clerk, as signing officer, was authorized to sign these plans.

Plans submitted by W. Smith for permission to subdivide lot 18 on Lippsett Ave. were discussed. The plan calls for the splitting of this 1 1/2 acres into three half-acre lots. Approval in principle was given by council.

C. O. Whinton attended council with his surveyed plans for subdivision. The council authorized the clerk to sign plans as presented.

By-law 414 authorizing the sale of land on Clarence Road to Phillip Yendaell was read and passed by council.

A letter was read from the Department of Public Works, Ottawa, in reply to council's request for a dredge to improve the municipal beaches. This request was refused as the policy is that beach improvement is not undertaken unless the need for dumping materials from navigable water makes it feasible.

Clerk reported that the exchange of letters requested by the water branch has been completed with and the transfer of mining venture failed after five years. A Cariboo mining venture ended in insolvency and so did a mining scheme on Moresby Island, and a three-year venture in marine transportation.

Burnaby was very active in Freemasonry, organizing the first lodge in British Columbia at Victoria in 1860 and assisting in creation of a New Westminster Lodge in 1862. In 1863 he was elected Provincial Grand Master. His health failed in 1869 and he returned to England where he died at 49 in 1878.

His name had been given to a lake in his early days in the mainland colony. It was 33 years later when it was adopted for the municipality which was incorporated in 1892.

—B.C. Centennial Committee

water rights to the Trepanier water users should be in effect soon.

Referred to council was an application from N Witt and H. Coldman for rights on an unnamed spring on Block 1174 Trepanier. Council had no objection to this application.

A letter from H. Lyon drew council's attention to the problems of loose sand on the road shoulder in front of his home on Beach Ave. Tourists are pulling off the road to get swimming and getting stuck daily and this doesn't leave them with friendly feelings towards the community. Signs will be posted at this point and council hope to do some work on it as soon as more money and labour are available.

Councillor Elstone reported that the spraying of poison ivy has now been completed and that his allotment for beach and hall maintenance is depleted.

Councillor Clements reported on the paving now started on Princeton Ave. stating that if all goes as planned, the prime coat will be spread on Friday.

A special meeting of council was called for Aug. 3 to discuss revision of municipal and zoning by-laws.

A letter of resignation was read from Mrs. E Turner, Municipal clerk's assistant, to be effective Aug. 31. Council accepted his resignation with regret and the clerk was instructed to advertise for a replacement in the near future.

Carelessness cause of weekend fires

Two grass fires here during the weekend were caused by carelessness says Fire Chief J. McLachlan.

He said there is no proof of how either fire started, but he suspects careless disposal of cigarettes or matches.

Saturday night about 11 p.m. the volunteer firemen were called to a grass blaze on Giant's Head Rd., just east of the Youth Centre. No real damage resulted and the fire was brought under control quickly.

Sunday afternoon about 5:00 p.m. a column of smoke rose west of Prairie Valley and firemen with the assistance of forestry crews doused a fire on the flats on the road to Faulder.

SUMMERLAND REVIEW

Among the eminent Canadian scientists attending the ceremonies Thursday marking the completion of the road to the site of the Queen Elizabeth Observatory were, left to right, Dr. K. O. Wright, Director of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory; Dr. W. E. Van Steenburgh, Scientific Advisor to the Privy Council; Dr. Graham Odgers, Victoria, who selected the Observatory site; and Dr. John Dodgson, Director, Observatories Branch, Department of Mines and Technical Surveys.

New Regional College president and family arrive in Okanagan

Planning a college is nothing new for the new principal of Okanagan Regional College.

Norman Walker, who arrived in Kelowna Monday night to take up his post, played a large part in developing the Staffordshire College of Technology in England — an institution similar to the proposed Okanagan college in that it provided two years of post-secondary education.

"I am looking forward very much to living and working in the Okanagan Valley," said Mr. Walker, 43, who was accompanied on his arrival by his wife and four sons whose ages range from five to 14.

"I hope that the Okanagan Regional College will be a unique institution that will have some of the characteristics of the junior colleges in the U.S. and the post-secondary institutions in Britain, but be more comprehensive in its scope than both."

Mr. Walker said the first thing he wants to do is acquaint himself with the Canadian educational picture; late in August he plans a trip coast-to-coast, visiting different institutions.

"I want to look at as many different kinds of post-secondary institutions as possible," he said.

"The federal government will be spending a lot of money as its share of the cost of the Okanagan Regional College, and government officials want to make sure that the best possible programs are being established at the college."

A graduate in engineering from the University of London, Mr. Walker took a year's post-graduate course in education to equip him for an administrative career in education.

For the past five years he has been principal of the 4500-student Stretford Technical College, near Manchester, a post-secondary college that offers courses in arts, commerce, science, and technical and general education. The college catered to part-time as well as full-time students.

SHARP GROWTH

The fastest-growing provinces have been Alberta and Newfoundland, whose populations have risen over 7 p.c. since 1961. Since 1961 British Columbia has experienced the largest estimated net gain in population due to migration at close to 41,000 followed by Ontario at 39,000. Quebec and Alberta also showed gains.

Yacht Club meeting reviews improvements, future activities

A regular open meeting of the Summerland Yacht Club was held Monday evening, Aug. 1st. There was a disappointing turnout of members, but the meeting covered much ground and it is felt that the club is holding its own this year with many of the problems facing the club at the beginning of the season having been ironed out.

It is hoped that more members will become more active in helping the club towards its goal, with ideas, criticisms and greater attendance at these meetings.

An organization without the ladies to help has a real problem. Fortunately the Yacht club Ladies Auxiliary are exceptional in their achievements and support, but they would also like to see more members turn out.

Kiwanis Lieut.-Gov. on visit

Lieutenant-Governor Herb Hermanson, of Division Five, along with three fellow members of the Okanagan, Wash. Club were up on a visit to the local club. The other members were Dave Morgan, public relations chairman and Otto Yusi. A guest from Calgary was also present.

Following the regular meeting, a work bee held to construct the benches and tables for the Kiwanis Street Carnival.

As the usual Municipal grant was not forthcoming this year to assist in financing the Yacht Club, considerable work was approved by Council, and carried out under the direction of Ken Blagborne, on the boat ramp. This has proved quite successful and the club expresses its appreciation to Council for this consideration.

Harry Dracas, as usual, has been doing a wonderful job of taking care of the breakwater for the convenience of the boat owners. The gas pump has been moved closer to the moorage area and it is hoped before too long the old kayak shed will be converted into locker space for the members.

The Club House is now open Saturday and Sunday afternoons and evenings, and at other times during the week for the use of the members.

After last year's experience it was tentatively decided against Saturday night dances. However, these may be continued at a later date. There is talk of a potluck supper and social evening with dancing, plus further major get-togethers such as box socials, steak dinners, and of course, a harvest ball.

Teen Town has been very helpful this year in the way of maintaining the club house and other responsibilities for which they receive space consideration.

Corporation of the District of Summerland DOMESTIC WATER Sprinkling Regulations

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY
Sprinkling Regulations are lifted

A Good Advertisement?

"Is this a Good Advertisement? If your advertising could be printed in a special kind of invisible ink that became visible only between 5:00 and 5:01 Thursday, and then disappeared, the chances are you wouldn't think such an ad was worth much. You'd only reach a small fraction of the total newspaper's audience — those who happen to be reading the newspaper Thursday afternoon at precisely the time your ad appeared, and who in fact happened to be turned to the page your ad was on at the precise moment.

"And yet this is what happens to advertising in media other than newspapers. A survey showed that 75 percent of all shoppers check the newspaper ads before making their main shopping trip.

"Newspaper messages are available at the convenience of the customer. He doesn't have to be at a certain place at a particular time of day or night to hear or see the message.

"Perhaps equally important — he looks at newspaper advertising because he wants to. It is never an unwanted interruption."

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have always felt equal to whatever came along — until yesterday.

While cleaning our son's closet shelf I came across a lump caused by something under the shelf paper. The lump turned out to be a saving pass book. To my astonishment I have discovered that our son and his steady girl friend have a joint savings account. Jimmie is 17. His girl is 16. These kids have over $210 in the bank.

My husband had a private talk with Jimmie. He showed him the pass book and explained that I had come across it accidentally. Jimmie's reaction was one of anger and resentment. He said, "It's our own business if we want to save part of our allowance, or her baby-sitting money, or my odd-job money."

When my husband asked what they were saving FOR, Jimmie replied, "For furniture when we get married, or maybe a down payment on a house." He added, "After college, of course."

How should parents react to this sort of thing? Can it be that the boy is right. What you say will settle it. —ON THE FENCE.

Dear On The Fence: The boy is NOT right, and I urge you to get off the fence and on the side of reason and authority.

Gently but firmly explain that a joint savings account for teen-age sweethearts is entirely too cozy. Suggest that your son draw his share of the money out of the bank and start a separate account under his own name. The girl should, of course, have her own account.

In five years, if these two are still going together, they can pool their savings and buy furniture — after they've set a wedding date.

Dear Ann Landers: Last weekend I took my sons (aged 10 and 12) to the hardware store. The neighbor boy (he's 13) asked if he could ride along.

I noticed the boys handling some combination locks which were out on the counter but I didn't pay much attention. Last night I saw my younger son playing with one of the locks. I asked him where he got it. He answered, "Jimmie (the neighbor boy) took some locks and gave one to Bob and one to me."

I asked if Jimmie had paid for the locks and he replied,

"No." I then asked if he knew that was stealing. He said, "Bob and I didn't steal them, Jimmie did."

I called Bob in and announced that I was taking them both to the hardware store so they could give the locks to the manager—or pay for them—the choice was theirs.

I telephoned Jimmie's mother and asked if she'd like to bring her son along. She said, "No. It would damage him psychologically." She then gave me a lecture on "Traumas in children" and added, "Apparently you are not up on the latest."

May I hear from you? —BEHIND THE TIMES?

Dear B.T.T.: A child caught stealing is in for a far more serious trauma than if he is made to take the merchandise back to the store and pay for it.

A mother who allows her son to keep stolen goods is not protecting him. She is inviting a long list of undesirable characteristics. The decline of morals in today's society is due to the failure of parents to teach their children respect for truth, integrity, decency, and other so-called "old-fashioned" virtues.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Several months ago my wife's sister and her husband started plans for their 25th wedding anniversary celebration. All the relatives were notified — including us. The date slipped my mind and I made other plans for my wife and me to take a spectacular camping trip with some long-time friends.

My wife says if we don't show up at the anniversary party there will be hurt feelings. I've always enjoyed good relationship with my in-laws and I'd hate to have anything spoil it after all these years.

My friends have purchased their camping equipment and scheduled their vacations already. They are all set to go. How can I get out of this fix—smelling like a rose? —WRETCHEDLY PERPLEXED.

Dear Wretchedly: You are going to wind up smelling a little like a polecat no matter what you do. Since the silver wedding celebration happens only once in a lifetime, and since you were notified "several months in advance" you'd better be in the family lineup.

Notify the campers you'll catch up with them a day or so later, then do it.

Keith MacInnes is awarded Molson's hockey scholarship

Keith MacInnes, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. MacInnes, has been awarded the Molson's Hockey Scholarship. This scholarship pays full tuition for the coming year at the University of his choice.

Keith, born in Halifax, N.S., March 11, 1946, started his education in Kamloops, moved to Summerland in 1960 and graduated at Summerland Secondary in 1964. He was president of the Students Council during his grade twelve.

Keith spent 10 months working at the Bank of Montreal in Summerland and Westbank, returning to school to complete his grade 13 in Penticton this year.

Always a sports enthusiast, Keith started playing hockey at the age of eight years. He was a member of the Summerland Juvenile Hockey Team which won the Provincial Finals in 1963-64, receiving a trophy for high scorer in the Okanagan League. He played for two years with the Penticton Junior Hockey team. Keith was also a member of the Summerland Junior Baseball team. Keith plans on entering the University of B.C. in September in the field of economics.

PARCHMENT SNOBBERY

In 1228, the Holy Roman Emperor Frederick II issued a charter to the nuns of Goess in Syria on a new writing material—paper. The secret of its manufacture had been brought by the Arabs from China and spread rapidly to all parts of the mighty Arab empire, in Europe, first to Spain and then in the twelfth century to Italy. Three years after his first experiment with this new substance, however, Frederick II reconsidered, forbade the further use of paper for public documents, and decreed that henceforth they must be inscribed only on parchment. This kind of snobbery still exists. Even when the durability of paper was no longer suspect, parchment remained the proper material for precious books, for legal documents and valuable records.

Bank opens 1000th branch

The Bank of Montreal's 1000th office has opened in Sussex, N.B., G. Arnold Hart, chairman and president, has announced.

Mr. Hart said that the opening of the 1000th office is an important milestone in the development of the bank, which will complete its 150th year in 1967.

The Bank of Montreal initiated Canada's branch-banking system — now considered to be one of the finest in the world — when it opened its second office at Quebec City two weeks after its founding in 1817. Other branches soon followed at York (now Toronto) and at other trading centres and outposts across the young country.

The bank placed its resources behind the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the first transcontinental railroad, and opened branches in new communities as they developed in the West, often arriving with the first settlers and sharing in their hardships.

At Confederation in 1867, the Bank of Montreal has 27 offices and by 1900 this figure had grown to 52. By 1910, there were 151, by 1920, the number had more than doubled to 312; and by 1945, there were 475. Since the end of the Second World War, 525 offices have been opened at an average annual rate of 28.

Today, the Bank of Montreal has assets of more than $5 billion. Its organizations in this country reaches into communities of all types and sizes in every province.

Abroad, the bank has its own offices in New York, Chicago, Houston, San Francisco and

Los Angeles; in London, Paris, Dusseldorf, Mexico City and Tokyo; and at Canadian Army and R.C.A.F. bases in France and Germany, where it serves Canadian servicemen and their families on NATO duty.

"Is this a Good Advertisement? If your advertising could be printed in a special kind of invisible ink that became visible only between 5:00 and 5:01 Thursday, and then disappeared, the chances are you wouldn't think such an ad was worth much. You'd only reach a small fraction of the total newspaper's audience — those who happen to be reading the newspaper Thursday afternoon at precisely the time your ad appeared, and who in fact happened to be turned to the page your ad was on at the precise moment.

"And yet this is what happens to advertising in media other than newspapers. A survey showed that 75 percent of all shoppers check the newspaper ads before making their main shopping trip.

"Newspaper messages are available at the convenience of the customer. He doesn't have to be at a certain place at a particular time of day or night to hear or see the message.

"Perhaps equally important — he looks at newspaper advertising because he wants to. It is never an unwanted interruption."

Medicare

It is a relief that the federal government was not permitted to shove the national medicare bill through Parliament before the summer recess.

Hon. Allan MacEachen, Minister of Health has rejected requests for another meeting between federal and provincial health ministers for the purpose of further discussing the federal proposals. He is bent on pushing the legislation through by July 1, 1967 and new ideas, be they good or bad, may delay this target date.

Legislation effecting every man, woman and child for many years to come should come only after much thought and consideration.

On July 12, Conservative MP, Mr. Davie Fulton told the house of Commons, in essence that adequate medical services should be made available to all Canadians on a prepaid basis. Ottawa should not try to force any national, universal or compulsory schemes on existing provincial schemes. Ottawa's role should be to extend financial assistance to provinces needing such aid in order to establish prepaid provincial medicare programs, but it should not seek to force the participation of citizens who are now covered adequately or who prefer to provide for their own medical care.

Many Canadians will echo such sentiments. They are reasonable and just ones. Yet, the federal government refuses to consider them instead insisting on a scheme which attempts to impose bureaucratic compulsion and paternalism on a free citizenry.

NOW A REALITY

In the early days it was hard to believe that talk of the time when Summerland would be on a transcontinental railway line was anything more than just talk. The men who saw the new line coming and said so were looked upon as visionaries. Even when the surveyors came, took grades and levels, and laid out two or three tentative routes through the district, one could not help but think of the many railway routes on the Prairies and elsewhere that have been surveyed out for years, but where track laying is just as far off as ever. Then the construction men came along and soon scares began to show on the face of the hills. As the line was built, then the railway that a few people believed mythical looked like a certainty. Even when trains commenced running months ago there those who said Summerland would still be without a daily train service for a long time yet. Fortunately these pessimistic views have been dispelled, and now with the reduced transportation rates in force both for passenger and freight service, much has been done to remove the drawback that the district has been laboring under the somewhat indirect communication with outside points.

If the Canadian Northern comes into the Okanagan as expeditiously as the Kettle Valley line, then it will not be very long before the Valley has its third railway line.

Nevertheless it must not be forgotten that to the Canadian Pacific the Okanagan owes a great deal, for without its service but little could have been accomplished in the development of the fruit industry.

FIJI BOUND

First exports of B.C. apricots for the 1966 season left Vancouver, July 27 aboard the P. & O. liner Orsova, bound for the port of Suva, on the Island of Fiji. The apricots were packed in special panta trays, providing individual "pockets" for each apricot. Simultaneously another shipment left the Okanagan, bound for Montreal, where it will be loaded for export to Britain. The shipments, totalling in excess of 100,000 lbs. are the first export orders of a crop which is expected to exceed six-thousand tons. The Okanagan Valley is the only area in Canada which grows apricots in commercial quantities.

Applications to Victoria University deadline Aug. 15

Applications for admission to the University of Victoria this fall must be submitted by Aug. 15, the Registrar's office reminded students this week.

Students wishing to register for the first time must obtain an application from the Registrar's office to be returned with documents showing their academic record. Those who have previously attended the University are required to apply formally for re-registration.

Eligible students will receive notice in the mail, with details on the time and place for registration in person.

Undergraduate registration begins September 12, and continues until September 15 at 4:00 p.m. Students admitted to the new school of graduate studies register September 17.

Lectures in the new term begin at 8:30 a.m. Monday, September 19.

CANADA'S CENTURY

A news background special on the Centennial of Confederation

From Britain And France Came Creation And Crisis

(First Of A Series)

By WALT McDAYTER

The birth of Canada as a nation was unique in that it was a child born with two umbilical cords. To this day the cords have not been severed, but still stretch taut across the Atlantic to our two motherlands, Britain and France.

Canada owes much to other countries as well, but it is these two who provided us with most of our population, and gave us our language, laws, institutions and culture.

Yet, if it is the French and English who did most to create Canada, it is also the growing friction between them that is now the biggest threat to our continued existence as a nation.

The split between French and English Canada has never been wider, and never has the cry in Quebec for separatism been louder. Many no longer speak of Canada as a nation, but as two nations-in-one.

The two-nation principle dates back to 1774, and is in many ways a consequence of the American revolution. After defeating the French on the Plains of Abraham in 1759, the British later feared the French colonists might join the 13 English colonies threatening revolution to the south.

To ensure French-Canadian loyalty, the British were extraliberal to the French, guaranteeing them rights to their separate religion, language, custom and even French civil law by the Quebec Act of 1774.

The Constitutional Act of 1791 divided Canada not only geographically into Upper and Lower Canada, but into race and religion. In Lower Canada were the French Catholics, in Upper Canada were the English Protestants, primarily recently-arrived United Empire Loyalists.

There was an attempt in 1841 to re-unite these two groups into the single Province of Canada,

According to the 1961 census, about 75 per cent. of Canada's population can be traced to either British or French descent.

but the line of separatism between English and French had been there too long, and could not then be erased.

In 1867, French-Canadians agreed to Confederation on condition that their French heritage would be preserved, and their separate identity protected. And so, even in union, the seeds of separatism were planted.

But despite the ever-present controversy over separatism, 100 years have passed and Canada will soon celebrate the centennial of Confederation.

Many didn't think we'd make it. The New York Tribune predicted in 1867, "When the experiment of the 'Dominion' shall have failed... as fail it must... a process of peaceful absorption will give Canada her proper place in the great North American Republic."

But Canada has not failed! It has survived as a nation, and there are few Canadians who wouldn't bet a beaver pelt that it will continue to do so.

Sprinkler Irrigation Workshop to be held in Osoyoos Oct. 13

Sprinkler irrigation is old hat to most people living in the area. However, to understand the principles of design and use of a sprinkler system requires considerable know-how of both soils and water.

What is the effective rooting zone of the crop to be irrigated, How much water must be applied on a specific soil to meet this requirement and what is the maximum safe time between applications. What size pipe and sprinklers must be used to do the job, How does wind affect application rates and spacing. How large must a pump and motor be?

These and other questions will be answered at a sprinkler irrigation workshop to be held in Osoyoos on Thursday, Oct. 13.

The workshops are designed for those who wish to design a new system or for anyone interested in re-doing their own present system.

Workshops consist of two sessions approximately one month apart. At the first session instruction is given on the basic principles of system design, the use of irrigation charts and tables and how to apply these in designing a simple irrigation system. Between sessions each person attending will make a field plan and obtain the necessary information required to complete his irrigation system design.

At the second session each individual will design an irrigation system for his farm with assistance from instructors as required.

Instructors for the course will be Reg Miller and Ken May of the Agricultural Engineering Division of the B. C. Department of Agriculture.

Interested persons are invited to contact the District Agriculturist or the District Horticulturist at Oliver, to enroll for the workshops, according to E. M. Soder, P. Ag., District Agriculturist.

Fence painting honours come to two Summerland artists

The second and third prizes for "fence painting" in Pentiction came to Summerland. The winners were announced last week during the Peach Festival.

A talented young artist, Miss Breen Bergstrom took the second spot with a painting of an old historical building and Bruce Crawford took third with a piece of driftwood being his subject.

First place and a $1.00 prize went to Mrs. N. Ferley of Pentiction who reproduced a Peach Festival Parade. Second and third prizes were $75.00 and $50.00.

The first place winner brought $102.00 by auction and the second and third $45.00 each. The two Summerland artists worked side by side on this project.

The common crow has a bad reputation among farmers, but he's not really as black as he's been painted. The chief charges levied against him are that he pulls sprouting corn, injures cultivated fruit and feeds on the eggs and young poultry and wild birds. These undesirable habits, however, are offset by his dedicated war on noxious insects, mice and destructive rodents. Totalling up the debits and credits, it is generally conceded that the crow is a friend rather than an enemy of the farmer.

George Taylor wins Sumac champ'ship

George Taylor is the big man up at Sumac Ridge Golf Club these days. He won the match play championship on Sunday in a thriller with Bernie Hume-Smith.

Taylor was never more than one down at any time over the 18-hole distance but the contest was in balance right to the last putt.

The champ was 1 up on the tenth but Hume-Smith caught up to him on the 16th hole. They halved the 17th.

Taylor smacked his drive 270 yards right down the middle of the fairway going home and turned to his opponent, and jokingly said, "Match that Hume-Smith".

Bernie did — he drove one the same distance and direction — no more than ten feet from Taylor's ball.

Both executed fine second shots with a five iron. Taylor's chip was a dandy — six inches from the cup, tapping it in for a par.

Smith left himself with a 20-footer on the green which he needed for the tie. He was short on his putt three inches.

It was a popular win for George Taylor, a fellow who has worked very hard organizing tourneys this year. He is the Club Captain.

The Sumac Ridge Trophy will be presented to him at an appropriate get-together.

In the first flight it was Ken Williams over Bill Laidlaw. A close game all the way with Laidlaw two up after the first nine. Williams tied it up on the 18th and went on to win the next two holes which was enough.

In the second flight it was Ken Nistor over Bill Croft who was two up and one to go.

Ernie Harrison took the third flight by defeating Jack Dunsdon who was two strokes ahead after the first nine holes. Bud Harrison tied it up on the 16th, went one up on the 17th and they had even scores on the last hole.

It was Don Hormiston over

MR. AND MRS. RONALD FREDERICK MANNING

Vancouver wedding of interest to Summerland residents

Elaine Gail Brandt of Vancouver was married recently to Ronald Frederick Manning of Summerland in the Alliance Church, Vancouver. The afternoon ceremony was performed by Rev. W. H. Brooks. The wedding music was provided by Mr. Glenville Hoskyn at the organ and Mrs. Cecil Leng sang "The Greatest of These is Love".

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. David E. Brandt, the bride wore a formal fitted gown with a cathedral train and lace bodice. Her bouquet was fashioned from hot pink roses and stephanotis.

Matron of honour was the bride's sister, Mrs. Earle Davies of Louisville, Kentucky, and the bridesmaids were Miss Adele Keith of Williams Lake and Miss Patricia Balfour of Vancouver. All three attendants wore similar formal gowns of loral chiffon underlined with green taffeta. The headdresses were single bands of fresh stephanotis.

Attending the groom as best man was his brother, Dr. Glenville Manning of Vancouver. Ushers were David Brandt of Ashcroft, brother of the bride, and Mr. Bjorn Hilstad of North Vancouver.

The reception was held at the Peretz School where the guests were received by the bride's mother and father, assisted by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Manning from Summerland. The toast to the bride was proposed by the bride's uncle, Mr. Daniel E. Johnson of Ocean Park, B. C.

For a honeymoon to Banff, Edmonton, Jasper, and Shuswap Lake the bride changed to a green wool suit with white accessories. Her corsage was of white roses. Before returning to the coast where the couple will reside in Coquitlam, they will be holidaying for three weeks at the Crescent Beach cottage of the groom's parents.

Out of town guests were friends and relatives from Louisville, Kentucky; Winnipeg, Kamloops, and the Okanagan Calgary, Red Deer, Ashcroft, Valley.

Luncheon held following christening

PEACHLAND — A family baptism took place Sunday in the United Church, Peachland. Rev. Dr. Robert Dawson Mitchell bestowed the names Heather Yvonne to the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F.W. Martin of Prince George.

Standing as god-parents to the child were Mr. Martin's brother and wife Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Martin of Kelowna.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lucier of Burns Lake was given the names Philip Allan and his god-parents were Mr. Lucier's brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. P. Lucier of Peachland.

After the baptism a family luncheon was held at the home of the children's maternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Cousins on Beach Ave. Also attending was the children's great-grandmother, Mrs. F. Topham sr. of Peachland.

Multiple Listings sales at all-time high during July

The greatest volume and value of property sales for a single month was recorded during July by the Multiple Listing Service of the Okanagan-Mainline Real Estate Board.

Sales for July totalled a record $2,828,983 for 198 properties. Previous high for a single month in both dollar value and number of properties sold was $2,494,228 for 170 properties in July 1965.

So far this year sales activity is 23 per cent over 1965, according to the Board. Sales totalled $13,216,419 during the first seven months. This eclipsed the previous record use of M.L.S. achieved in 1965 when volume during the first seven months reached $10,769,676. The number of sales during the period was 951 this year compared with 879 for the same period in 1965.

28,750 at Jehovah's Witness convention held in Vancouver

N. H. Knorr, president of the Watch Tower Society, told 28,750 attentive listeners, including several local delegates, of "better things to come under a heavenly kingdom established in 1914", at the packed-to-capacity Empire Stadium, in Vancouver, Sunday afternoon.

The unusual title of Mr. Knorr's public address, "What Has God's Kingdom Been Doing Since 1914?" has captured the attention of Vancouverites. It is based on the Witnesses' belief that Bible chronology indicates the world-wide rule of the Gentile nations began in 607 B.C. and ended 1914 A.D., ushering in God's heavenly kingdom as promised by Christ.

Mr. Knorr stressed that fixing the date of 1914 as the end of complete world rule by the nations is not a new thought, but, "more than 35 years in advance of that significant year, by the help of God's holy spirit, dedicated Bible students calculated the Gentile times as due to expire in the early autumn of 1914, even as religious leaders ridiculed them for publishing such a Bible time schedule."

Quoting liberally from the Bible and using historians' comments, Mr. Knorr indicated that 1913 was the last normal year in human history and "1914 was indeed the turning point, bringing in an age of violence, disturbance and unsettledness that is without parallel in all human history."

Provincial Agriculturist now settled in office in Oliver

The new Provincial Agriculturist has now established his office in Oliver.

He is Murray Soder, formerly of Kamloops where he was District Agriculturist for seven years.

Soder takes over from Fraser Carmichael, whose office was located at Grand Forks and who is now working out of Abbotsford.

The new local office serves the area bounded by Grand Forks, the International Boundary, Hedley and Summerland, and according to Soder was moved here because of the more central location. The office assists ranchers and farmers with problems concerning cattle and ground crops.

Soder and his wife Leonie have two young children who will attend school in Oliver.

No carpenters at hospital site

There have been no carpenters on duty at the construction site of the new Summerland hospital since Friday, when they were locked out by the contractor, Narod Ltd.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners are asking for a 37½-hour week, with no loss of pay, province wide. Vincent Senger, Summerland, president of Local 1696 (Penticton), in a prepared statement Tuesday had this to say.

"All the carpenters in the South Okanagan have been locked out from their jobs, even before the government supervised strike vote has been tabulated. Some carpenters were locked out on August 3, and most of us didn't even receive strike voting ballots until August 5.

"At this point, we don't know if the result will be yes or no to go out on strike.

"We were willing to continue working until some sort of agreement was reached. The contractors blame the carpenters for holding up construction but I don't see how we can be held responsible when we are not on strike as yet, nor are we picketing any jobs.

"We have an office in Penticton and are prepared to meet with local contractors any time they want to talk. The contractors want the support of the public, but at the same time are blaming the carpenters for refusing to work. How can we when we are locked out?"

According to Hospital Society chairman Les Rumball, labor is at work on the new plant as well as other trades and will as

Founders of British Columbia

(A Centennial Feature)

When the Catholic Archbishop of Oregon called to France for missionaries for the Pacific Northwest and New Caledonia, a student priest named Charles Pandosy was one of the first to answer.

He sailed from Le Harve in February 1847 with three other students, a lay brother and a priest. It was the first step in a career that was to be important to British Columbia.

Charles John Felix Adolph Marie Pandosy was born in 1824 near Marseilles. He became a member of the Oblate Juniorat of Notre Dame de Lumineres. Oblate means one who offers himself.

The trip across the wintery Atlantic was a horror. Then came 1,300 miles by train to St. Louis and thousands of miles on horseback through a country of hostile Indians to Walla Walla on the Pacific side of the Rockies.

They were welcomed there at a Hudson's Bay Company post where Pandosy was assigned to build a mission on the Columbia River, and he was raised to full priesthood. Indian wars and unsettled conditions led to the closure of the mission and a decision to send Pandosy northward into New Caledonia. He made exploratory trips to Esquimalt and Kamloops and finally settled in 1839 on the Okanagan Lake where Kelowna now stands. With a small force of other priests he built a church and a school, working often barefoot and, in rags.

Both white and native children learned to read and write at his mission. The priests administered to all who needed them ranging as far as the present sites of Vernon and Keremos. The mission's holdings prospered and became known as Priest's Ranch and the first Okanagan settlement grew around it.

Pandosy was a large, powerfully built man with a booming voice, but overwork weakened him and he died in 1891 in the arms of an Indian chief. His grave has been lost to sight.

But his reputation as a doctor, teacher, farmer and community leader lives on in the Okanagan and the Similkameen. (B.C. Centennial Committee)

44-year resident of P'land passes away

By B. Davies

A long-time resident of Peachland Annie Isabel West passed away Sunday, August 7th in Kelowna General Hospital at age of 69. Mrs. West arrived in Canada from England in 1912 and has lived in Peachland for the last 44 years.

Mrs. West was a charter member and Life member of the Ladies Auxiliary to Branch 69 Royal Canadian Legion, an active member of the W. A. to St. Margaret's Anglican Church, and a long-time member of the Peachland Womens Institute. She will be greatly missed in the community.

She leaves to mourn, her loving husband Albert; two sons, William Follett of Portland, Oregon, and Robert West of North Vancouver; and six grandsons.

She was predeceased in 1948 by another son, Ronald Follett.

Funeral services were held from St. Margaret's Anglican Church on August 9th, with Rev. Norman Tanner of Summerland officiating. Interment in the Peachland Cemetery. Clark and Dixon Funeral Directors of Kelowna were in charge of arrangements.

Thirty members in shuffleboard club

Information received regarding the obtaining of the shuffleboard equipment for the new courts in Summerland was incorrect.

It was reported they were supplied by the Summerland Recreation Commission.

One set was donated by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Parsons, and the other was purchased by the club from donations and membership fees.

The recreation commission did offer to purchase the second set according to Mrs. Mary Lopatecki, commission member, but the Summerland Shuffleboard Club wished that they go it alone.

On Monday, Secretary Stan Shenton said they had 30 paid up members to date.

To keep the record straight,

CANADA'S CENTURY

A news background special on the Centennial of Confederation

A Nation Of Many Origins

(Second Of A Series)
By WALT McDAYTER

Although Britain and France are recognized as Canada's two founding nations, neither country can claim credit for being first to set foot on our shores.

The Norsemen of Scandinavia were the first Europeans to step upon our soil, about 1,000 A.D. It took another 500 years for Britain to plant its flag in Canada, but even then it was done not by a Briton, but by an Italian. He was Giovanni Caboto (John Cabot), who sailed for Henry VII in 1497, landing at New Found Land and claiming it for the English king.

Jacques Cartier is often called the first man to explore New France, although the credit here too must go to an Italian. Giovanni da Verrazano led the expedition to Cape Breton in 1524, with Cartier merely accompanying him, and Verrazano wrote "Gallia Nova" (New France) on the map of the world for the first time. Not until 10 years later did Cartier lead his own ship into the St. Lawrence.

But if Britain and France were not the first to arrive here, they were the two who did most to build our country, to give us our laws and customs. For this reason they alone are considered Canada's two motherlands, though we recognize the contribution made by many other countries to our cultural mosaic.

In 1867, of Canada's 3 1/3 million population, only about 8 per cent. was of other than British (61 per cent.) or French (31 per cent.) origin. In our last national census, 1961, the British ratio had shrunk to 43.8 per cent., the Costumes of Canada . . . these pretty girls wear the national costumes of three of Canada's language groups. From left, the traditional dress of Latvia, Ukraine (with traditional Ukrainian instrument, the bandura), and Hungary.

French hovered at 30.4 per cent., while people of foreign origin now represented an impressive 25 per cent.

Of this figure, Germans comprise the largest group, totalling 5.8 per cent., and could date their presence in Canada back to 1753, when a group of 1500 settled at Lunenburg, N.S.

Ukrainians make up the next largest racial group, and have added almost 1/2 million people to our population since the first two Ukrainian pioneers, Vasyly Eleniak and Ivan Pylypin, arrived here in 1891.

Icelanders were even earlier immigrants, with 150 settling in Ontario as far back as 1873, and soon after established a thriving community at Lake Winnipeg. Mennonites settled in Manitoba in 1874, and after 1880 came a welcome flood of Hungarians, Norwegians and Swedes into the Canadian West.

From Italy, Netherlands, Poland, Russia, Austria . . . from every corner of the world they came.

(Granted, our Asiatic population is slight. In 1900, British Columbia excluded Asiatics from the province by law, but this was revoked by Ottawa. Ottawa, in turn, discouraged Orientals by imposing a head tax of $500 for each Chinese immigrant. Fortunately, our immigration laws were revised in 1962, placing stress for entry on education and skills, rather than race or color.)

Canadians are proud of their origins, and unlike the United States, do not boil away the traditions and customs of their ancestors in a massive melting pot. Canada is one of the few countries in the world, if not the only one, which still tabulates racial origin in its national census.

Yet Canadians are equally proud of their distinct Canadian identity and heritage. And since Jan. 1, 1947, they have had a common tie that binds them together. From that date on, for the first time in our history we could proudly call ourselves . . . "Canadian Citizens."

Many guests at Rotary meeting

The regular meeting of the Summerland Rotary Club took on an international flavor Friday night with guests from many points signing the register.

Rotarians vacationing or on business in the area were from Edmonton, Penticton, Shelton, Washington, Nelson, Oliver, Victoria, Vancouver, Haney, Selkirk, Ontario, Grand Forks, Medicine Hat and Calgary.

Wives will be guests next meeting at Ted Atkinson's home on the Lake.

Gordon Beggs told the group the Red Cross Swimming tests will take place on August 24 and invited any of the membership to go down at that time to watch.

The past few meetings have been held at Sumac Ridge Golf Club dining room on a trail basis and it was decided unanimously that this be a permanent arrangement.

A letter from the Penticton club announced the annual Rotary picnic will be held at the government camp north of Summerland on September 11.

Guest speaker was Ken Downs, who explained his experiences during flying training with the Penticton Cadets.

SUMMERLAND REVIEW

THE STAGE IS SET

Premier W. A. C. Bennett relaxes with a cup of coffee following his election as a candidate for the South Okanagan constituency in Summerland Monday night. On his right is Tom Manning, Summerland and Chuck Emory, Osoyoos who carried the Sacred banner in the last federal election.

Regional hospital financing approved by district directors

Directors of the Okanagan Similkameen Regional District at Thursday's meeting in Osoyoos approved the umbrella type of financing for hospital capital costs.

Only five of the thirteen directors present at the meeting voted in favour of the umbrella type financing. In voting strength this represented 18 votes in favour with 8 against.

Directors at the meeting expressed strong opposition to the motion. Osoyoos rural director

Jack Hulton strongly opposed the motion. "Speed has been the by-word on this hospital question and this is one of the things I don't like. I don't agree with this type of financing, for example, Pentiction has a debt of $189,202, why should we be forced to help pay for this. I think everyone should pay for their own hospitals."

Hulton questioned the voting power on the subject of hospital financing. The distribution of directors gives two to Pentiction and one each to all other municipal and rural areas. However in voting strength Pentiction has ten votes; Summerland 4; Princeton, Oliver, Osoyoos rural, Oliver rural and Hedley have two votes each and Osoyoos, Keremeos and Princeton rural, Okanagan Falls, Naramata, Okanagan Lake West and Cawston have one vote each.

Regional Planning Director John Northey assured him that the voting strength of the directors applied on this question.

"This was our fear," Hulton said. "We were assured that this would not happen, that we would not be overpowered by larger areas."

"I don't think anyone of us is competent at the present time to vote on this question," A. Affleck, Keremeos said. There are still too many questions left unanswered at this time. "Suppose," he said, "a district votes against this type of financing, will they be excluded from hospital services?"

A. Jacobson, Princeton, felt that a decision should be deferred until all directors had more time to study the question of financing.

Regional Planning director John Northey then pointed out to the directors that the government had made it quite clear that the only method of financing for hospitals that they would approve under the regional district would be the umbrella type financing.

"I can't believe that this is true," Hulton said. Northey again assured him that the Minister of Municipal Affairs had made this quite plain.

"I cannot accept this," Hulton said. "It seems that the Board of Directors of the Regional District have autonomy as long as we do what we are told to do by the government," Affleck commented.

Several directors expressed the belief that if the umbrella-type financing is approved some areas might never get a hospital.

"Couldn't an area petition the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service?" G. Alington asked.

"I don't think so," the Summerland representative answered. "We had a tough time convincing the government we

Tests may indicate copper ore body

Developers of a group of mining claims immediately west of Osoyoos are crossing their fingers this week as they await assay reports from drill cores.

And they're hoping the reports will bear up their aspirations that a copper ore body is present in quantity and quality comparable or even better than the much-talked-about Brenda properties.

Induced Polarization tests, according to one of the principals holding the claims, have so far indicated 4 huge anomalies, and ten small ones... each of which indicates substantial mineralization. One anomaly, according to the spokesman, could contain as much as 30 or 40 million tons of ore. Anomalies are not definite proof of an ore body, but are a good indication.

One engineer has said that if surface showings are present, and if IP surveys indicate one or more anomalies, and if drilling shows proof of ore... there is good indication of a substantial mine.

Drilling has been in progress near the site of the old Dividend Mine about a mile west of the Canadian Customs building for several weeks, and two 2" holes completed to a depth of 350 feet and 50 feet. Cores are now being assayed in Vancouver. Drilling is continuing on a 24-hour basis, and it is claimed that mineralization is present throughout the entire cores.

The drilling is being carried out by Torbrit, a former subsidiary of Noranda, which holds options on claims held by Ken Butler and D. P. Simpson of Osoyoos. Other claims on both sides of the border are held by Darrel Simpson of Osoyoos, who has optioned them to Kelsey International. Additional claims in the area are held by various groups and individuals in the South Okanagan, including an investment group in Osoyoos and Utica Mines.

Surface grades are reported to run between 1/2% and 5% copper, plus silver and molybdenum, but are not considered an adequate indication of any substantial body of ore of commercial quality.

Drilling is also in progress on the U. S. side of the border.

Kelsey International is headed by Alan Ainsworth, a Canadian mining lawyer, president; and Senator Hallauber, Washington State Senator, as vice-president.

Representatives from a number of large mining companies, including G. S. Koehler, senior exploration geologist of COMINCO American Incorporated, and from Kennecott Copper, and others, have visited and inspected the property in recent weeks.

Much exploration on the property must be carried out before definite proof of a substantial mine property is established, but findings to date have been encouraging, reports one informant.

LETTER TO EDITOR Visitor appreciates care son received in Summerland

The Editor, Summerland Review, Summerland, B.C.
Dear Sir:
My family and myself recently vacationed in Summerland and enjoyed your good weather and hospitality.

Our visit was marred, however, by a fairly serious accident to our nine-year-old son.

Friends called one of your local doctors, Dr. Williston, who responded promptly. In turn, Dr. B. Moss was called as consultant. The concern shown by these two doctors, plus their conscientious and efficient treatment over almost a fortnight period, was outstanding.

Also, the courtesy of the X-ray Department of the Summerland Hospital could not be improved. Amongst the many as-sets, Summerland can be justly proud of their medical coverage.

Regional directors call for government action on pollution

H. Stevenson, Oliver rural representative on the Okanagan Similkameen board of directors at Thursday's meeting expressed strong approval of the provincial government's press release regarding air pollution.

"I am very dissatisfied with their attitude. This is a provincial responsibility and is not within the scope and means of the Regional District," he said.

His expression of disapproval was backed by most of the directors at the meeting and the secretary was instructed to write to the Minister of Municipal Affairs asking that the province should show more leadership in both the field of air and water pollution.

Here is the press release issued by the Minister of Municipal Affairs:

As a policy statement the Government of British Columbia believes that the safeguarding of clean, pure air is a matter of prime importance affecting all citizens in the Province and to maintain or gain this objective the following principles should apply:

1. Administrative legislation for control should be centered on the regional district concept.

Local conditions, both atmospheric and industrial, will determine to a marked degree, the level of control which best serves need and is attainable on some acceptable cost/benefit basis. The regional control approach was endorsed by the recent convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors in Vancouver.

2. Provincial legislation should give general direction and provide the regional districts with powers to determine procedures and enforce the installation of control equipment.

3. Rigid definitions of pollution standards should be avoided. The provision of the cleanest air possible should be the one prime objective.

4. Effective provincial assistance could be given through supporting the constant testing of equipment which would lead to recommendations concerning suitability.

5. Provincial legislation should arrange for the establishment of a provincial co-ordinating and cataloguing section which would be involved with the study of air pollution. This organization would provide direction and technological data to the administrative boards established under the regional district legislation.

6. The provincial government, through activities at the Dominion - Provincial Conference level, should strongly urge that the federal government become involved in air pollution in a similar manner to national action being taken by the government of the United States.

7. The provincial government should support a continuing inter-provincial approach to the study of air pollution as one of the anticipated results of the Pollution Conference being sponsored this fall in Montreal by the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers.

THE STAGE IS SET

Premier W. A. C. Bennett relaxes with a cup of coffee following his election as candidate for the South Okanagan constituency in Summerland Monday night. On his right is Tom Manning, Summerland and Chuck Emory, Osoyoos who carried the Sacred banner in the last federal election.

Regional hospital financing approved by district directors

Directors of the Okanagan Similkameen Regional District at Thursday's meeting in Osoyoos approved the umbrella type of financing for hospital capital costs.

Only five of the thirteen directors present at the meeting voted in favour of the umbrella type financing. In voting strength this represented 18 votes in favour with 8 against.

Directors at the meeting expressed strong opposition to the motion. Osoyoos rural director

Jack Hulton strongly opposed the motion. "Speed has been the by-word on this hospital question and this is one of the things I don't like. I don't agree with this type of financing, for example, Pentiction has a debt of $189,202, why should we be forced to help pay for this. I think everyone should pay for their own hospitals."

Hulton questioned the voting power on the subject of hospital financing. The distribution of directors gives two to Pentiction and one each to all other municipal and rural areas. However in voting strength Pentiction has ten votes; Summerland 4; Princeton, Oliver, Osoyoos rural, Oliver rural and Hedley have two votes each and Osoyoos, Keremeos and Princeton rural, Okanagan Falls, Naramata, Okanagan Lake West and Cawston have one vote each.

Regional Planning Director John Northey assured him that the voting strength of the directors applied on this question.

"This was our fear," Hulton said. "We were assured that this would not happen, that we would not be overpowered by larger areas."

"I don't think anyone of us is competent at the present time to vote on this question," A. Affleck, Keremeos said. There are still too many questions left unanswered at this time. "Suppose," he said, "a district votes against this type of financing, will they be excluded from hospital services?"

A. Jacobson, Princeton, felt that a decision should be deferred until all directors had more time to study the question of financing.

Regional Planning director John Northey then pointed out to the directors that the government had made it quite clear that the only method of financing for hospitals that they would approve under the regional district would be the umbrella type financing.

"I can't believe that this is true," Hulton said.

Northey again assured him that the Minister of Municipal Affairs had made this quite plain.

"I cannot accept this," Hulton said.

"It seems that the Board of Directors of the Regional District have autonomy as long as we do what we are told to do by the government," Affleck commented.

Several directors expressed the belief that if the umbrella-type financing is approved some areas might never get a hospital.

"Couldn't an area petition the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service?" G. Allington asked.

"I don't think so," the Summerland representative answered. "We had a tough time convincing the government we

Tests may indicate copper ore body

Developers of a group of mining claims immediately west of Osoyoos are crossing their fingers this week as they await assay reports from drill cores.

And they're hoping the reports will bear up their aspirations that a copper ore body is present in quantity and quality comparable or even better than the much-talked-about Brenda properties.

Induced Polarization tests, according to one of the principals holding the claims, have so far indicated 4 huge anomalies, and ten small ones . . . each of which indicates substantial mineralization. One anomaly, according to the spokesman, could contain as much as 30 or 40 million tons of ore. Anomalies are not definite proof of an ore body, but are a good indication.

One engineer has said that if surface showings are present, and if IP surveys indicate one or more anomalies, and if drilling shows proof of ore . . . there is good indication of a substantial mine.

Drilling has been in progress near the site of the old Dividend Mine about a mile west of the Canadian Customs building for several weeks, and two 2" holes completed to a depth of 350 feet and 50 feet. Cores are now being assayed in Vancouver. Drilling is continuing on a 24-hour basis, and it is claimed that mineralization is present throughout the entire cores.

The drilling is being carried out by Torbrint, a former subsidiary of Noranda, which holds options on claims held by Ken Butler and D. P. Simpson of Osoyoos. Other claims on both sides of the border are held by Darrel Simpson of Osoyoos, who has optioned them to Kelsey International. Additional claims in the area are held by various groups and individuals in the South Okanagan, including an investment group in Osoyoos and Utica Mines.

Surface grades are reported to run between 1/2% and 5% copper, plus silver and molybdenum, but are not considered an adequate indication of any substantial body of ore of commercial quality.

Drilling is also in progress on the U. S. side of the border.

Kelsey International is headed by Alan Ainsworth, a Canadian mining lawyer, president; and Senator Hallauer, Washington State Senator, as vice-president.

Representatives from a number of large mining companies, including G. S. Koehler, senior exploration geologist of COMINCO American Incorporated, and from Kennecott Copper, and others, have visited and inspected the property in recent weeks.

Much exploration on the property must be carried out before definite proof of a substantial mine property is established, but findings to date have been encouraging, reports one informant.

needed a hospital." G. Allington said he supported the motion in principal "but I must ask myself if this is the proper method of financing. Will a land tax be used for hospital financing?" he asked.

He said he felt that the method of land tax was archaic and inequitable. "We as rural representatives must speak for the farmer and rancher and I feel that many of them are opposed to this type of financing."

Andall, Mrs. Charlotte Khalemback, Mrs. Kitty Denike, Mrs. Willena Senger, Mrs. Louise Lemke, Mrs. Donna Eraut, Mrs. Nellie Lemke, Mrs. Margaret Wilson, Mrs. Irene Hankins, Mrs. Daisy Burnell and Mrs. M. Kita.

Richard Johnston awarded the MacKenzie Alumni Scholarship

Richard Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jock Johnson, Summerland, has received word he has been awarded another scholarship for his university education at U.B.C. for the coming term.

This time it is the Norman MacKenzie Alumni Scholarship worth $350.

Judging was done on the basis of leadership ability, participation in school, extra curricular and community activities for this award.

Previous to this, Richard has earned the $250 Summerland Scholarship for the highest scholastic standing and a provincial award for his honor standing in grade 12 which will pay half his tuition for the coming year.

Mr. Norman MacKenzie is the past president of U.B.C.

Centennial Report

1867 | 1967

by JOHN W. FISHER
CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

I mentioned the old French Fortress of Louisbourg, in my last report, among places to visit during Centennial Year.

Built by the French, at a cost of ten million dollars during the reign of Louis XV, the fortress of Louisbourg on Cape Breton Island passed back and forth between French and British hands under two sieges and finally underwent two sieges and finally was blown up by British demolition troops in 1760.

Developments in the 18th century which, in the long run, resulted in Canada eventually becoming one country, have connections with Louisbourg. The federal government, therefore, through the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources, is restoring a large part of the fortress, now a national historic park.

At the Centennial Commission we think of the restoration as a Centennial project although perhaps we can't argue it is such on the basis of technicalities because it was started in 1961 and will continue until the early 70's at a cost of at least $12,000,000.

The old city and a large part of the battle ground outside the ruined walls were set aside by the government as a national historic site in 1928. During 1925 to 1936 a museum was built facing the site of the citadel and it contains mementoes presented by citizens and relics which have been unearthed in the ruins of the fortress. The site was made a national historic park in 1940 and thousands of visitors see it every year.

The new project for restoration of the main features of fortification of the fortress will reconstructions, the Chateau St-Louis, a representative selection of smaller buildings homes and harbour works. Some outlying features such as siege works also are to be restored.

As well as Canada, the New England states of Massachusetts New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Maine have strong historical connections with Louisbourg. Four thousand New Englanders were involved in the first siege and conquest of the fortress in 1744. (Britain handed Louisbourg back to the French in a 1748 treaty but again conducted a siege and captured it in 1758. British demolition troops blew up the fortifications in 1760.)

Louisbourg was a key factor in North American defence and trade for almost half a century. The study of that era can be a fascinating pastime for laymen and the restoration of the old fortress and buildings will give us new insight into the history of our country and an understanding of life in those times. For professional historians and archaeologists the activities on Cape Breton island provide more and more information.

The Louisbourg project is just one of the many which, during Centennial Year, will draw the attention of Canadians, and of friends abroad, to our interesting heritage.

Congratulations Valley carpenters

The Okanagan carpenters must be regarded as good judgement. They considered union demands, probably applicable to their fellow tradesmen at the coast, not necessary or desirable in the Okanagan. They did not feel the 37½ hour week and the hiring hall was in the interests of the community, the contractors or themselves, so they acted accordingly by negotiating with contractors on their own. This resulted in the signing of a contract, with pay increases agreeable to both parties. Their actions, although repudiated by the union heads in Vancouver, will be noted with interest across the country. They did not consider the demands of the parent union were applicable to the Okanagan, and had the intestinal fortitude to act according to their conscience. They did not wish to be lead down the garden path, contrary to their good judgement. They settled in their own interests and the interests of the communities they represented. The contractors who came to the agreement with the Valley carpenters did likewise. Both sides are to be commended for their actions. The Summerland Hospital construction is now going at full swing. Schools and other Valley construction projects are progressing. The public should recognize and appreciate the actions of Valley carpenters.

FROM OUR FILES . . .

41 YEARS AGO

Lake Okanagan's "sea surpent" is causing province-wide discussion and is being made the butt of many humorous "digs". Meanwhile the number of witnesses grows day by day. Capt. Creese, who should know something concerning the waters in this district, is inclined to be skeptical in regard to whether anything was seen at all, other than a log. His observations are rather a damper upon the enthusiasm of those who believe they caught a glimpse of the terrible monster. On the other hand, a man who also ought to know, by virtue of his profession, is John P. Babcock, deputy commissioner of fisheries who declares it's a sturgeon. Others, say it is the original "sea serpent", while another theory is that it is a prehistoric monster. It is up to the next person who sees the creature to obtain a complete description — such as is possible — and to summon a few witnesses. Mr. Ed Gould left on Tuesday morning for Saskatoon. The appointment of a new principal for the Summerland High School was announced today. The position is given to Mr. B. Milne, of New Westminster, and it is understood that he has had wide experience and is a very able man for the post here. The Rev. H. A. Solly of Summerland motored up to Peachland on Sunday last to conduct the regular service in St. Margaret's Church there.

Peachland Fall Fair Sept. 16

By BRENDA DAVIES

Many arrangements were finalized at last week's meeting of the Peachland Fall Fair Committee, chairman J. Hinter reported that all but one of this year's judges have been appointed. The Fall Fair will be held Friday, Sept. 16 in the Athletic Hall and fair lists are available at all local stores, also in Westbank and Summerland.

Seventy new chairs for the Athletic Hall have been ordered and are expected to arrive in two or three weeks. Mr. Hinter reported that four new tables are now ready and that heavy duty tressels have been made. It was decided that black plastic table covers would be bought for all display tables.

Mrs. J. Hinter in charge of entertainment gave her report, Mr. E. Burnett of Kelowna has again agreed to sing in the evening show and other attractions that are being sought include having Mr. Lyon, a local artist, sketch, and Mr. A. M. Moore, demonstrate rock cutting and polishing. A concession booth will also be operating on the grounds, to provide the youngsters with pop and candy.

V. Cousins offered to donate paint for the hall stage ceiling and Mr. and Mrs. Hinter offered to do the painting. The decorating of the hall in a harvest theme was also on the agenda and a committee to take charge of this was formed — consisting of Mrs. G. Smith, Mrs. V. Cousins and Mrs. M.

Goetz.

A committee to help the secretary with entry forms on the 15th of Sept. was organized; Mrs. I. Jackson, Mrs. H. C. McNeill, Mrs. J. Hinter and Mrs. J. R. Davies. Appointment of members to serve on the prize committee was left till the final meeting. Treasurers assistants on Fair Day will be Mr. J. R. Davies and Mrs. V. Cousins.

A special meeting of this group will be held Wednesday, Sept. 8 at 8 p.m. in the Municipal Hall to make all last minute arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis of Coldwater Lake, Alta. and Mr. Robin Mose of Vancouver are holidaying in Summerland. Miss Jane Miltimore has returned from Quebec where she attended a Ranger Camp.

BCFGA exhibit again takes first prize at Exhibition

The British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association has sponsored an Okanagan Valley entry in the class of District Agricultural Exhibits at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver.

The exhibit this year has once again won first prize and has been awarded the Dewar Shield. The shield was offered by Sir Thomas R. Dewar of the House of Dewar in 1905, for perpetual annual competition. The distillers Company of Canada Limited donates a replica of the shield annually to the winners for permanent possession. The shield is at present held by the Okanagan Valley. In addition to the shield the first prize includes a substantial cash award.

The Okanagan Valley District Agricultural Exhibit at the P.N.E. provides an excellent opportunity for showing the thousands of visitors to the Exhibition the great variety and fine quality of fruit, vegetables and other products.

The P.N.E. Committee is under the chairmanship of Mr. W. T. Baverstock of Vernon and ably assisted by Mr. J. M. Kosty of Vernon and Mr. E. J. Hack of Oliver. Also working

Summerland researchers attend conference in Baltimore

Doctors Maurice Welsh and Jack Mason, staff members at the Summerland Research Station arrived home over the weekend after attending a conference in Baltimore.

It was an international Horticultural Congress, a gathering that only takes place every four years. The next one will be in Israel.

Almost every country, other than those behind the iron curtain, was represented. There were about 5,000 registered, Dr Welsh estimated.

Dr. Welsh gave a paper on fruit plants at the Congress.

They both had baggage trouble, Dr. Mason was fortunate in only losing his once, but his travelling partner was less fortunate. It happened to him going and coming. After a day or two in each case they were found.

The service at U.S. airports was not the best during the strike, and Dr. Welsh got the first United Airlines allowed to fly to the west coast—but he flew alone—without baggage. Going east, they travelled Canadian airlines and changed planes at New York.

John Tamblyn explains new concept of school instruction

After many months of study and research, Principal John Tamblyn is ready to put a new teaching program in operation in the Summerland Secondary School. The following is a prepared report by Mr. Tamblyn, to make the public aware of this new concept of teaching that will be put into practice in Summerland this year.

LAB. WORK EMPHASIZED IN SCIENCE PROGRAMME

New secondary school curriculum stresses laboratory work in science, open-ended experiments, individual experimentation by pupils rather than teacher demonstrations, etc.

The former Home Economics foods lab has been converted to a Biology lab and additional storage facilities added. This makes three separate science rooms, one for Chemistry, one for Physics, and one for Biology.

The timetable has been organized so that in grades 8, 9 and 10 rather than one teacher teaching General Science (that is, all three sciences) the science teachers whose specialty is Physics will teach the Physics units to grade 8, 9 and 10, the teacher whose specialty is Chemistry will teach the Chemistry to grades 8, 9 and 10 and a teacher whose specialty is Biology will teach this subject to grades 8, 9 and 10.

This means that all students in the school will get their science from the teacher most qualified and will have all three classes in the specialized science lab.

At the same time, special speakers will be brought in and assignments given to acquaint the students with the interrelations between the various branches of science.

COMMUNITY RESPONSE TO OCCUPATIONAL PROGRAMME GRATIFYING

The school authorities have been most appreciative of the co-operation received from the various people in the community in helping the students on the Occupational Programme gain valuable work experience.

The students in the Occupational Programme are primarily interested in gaining experience which will allow them to leave school and enter the world of work.

In the last two years all students who have graduated from this programme are now in the working force or preparing to take further training. There are courses at the vocational schools for students graduating on this programme.

In order to help give more individualized instructions in the Occupational Programme as students will be placed in one group and two teachers will be assigned to the group. This will allow the teachers more flexibility in grouping the students according to their ability in the various subjects.

TEAM TEACHING TO BE EXPANDED

The movable partitions which have been installed in the addition to the new wing of the secondary school has allowed for flexibility in the grouping of students.

Various forms of co-operative teaching have been used in the last few years at Summerland Secondary School.

This year various teams of teachers will be used.

The English, Social Studies and Mathematics for all grade nine students will be under the instruction of a team of three teachers. Approximately one hundred students in grade 9 and the three teachers responsible for these subjects will be assigned blocks of time in the timetable. The teachers will be able to lengthen or shorten the amount of time given to each subject each day and group the students according to their interests, ability and the type of learning situation. Sometimes all hundred students will be in one large group, sometimes in regular size classes, sometimes in small group discussions of ten to fifteen students, and sometimes working individually on independent assignments.

Emphasis will be placed on independent study and encouraging the individual students to accept responsibility for their own learning.

Grade 10 Social Studies will be taught by a co-operative team of two teachers who will be able to take two classes at a time. Emphasis again will be on individual study.

All Grade 12 Physical Education has been scheduled at the same time and four staff members will be responsible for their training. While instruction in team sports will be maintained, emphasis will be given to individual sports and the class will be broken up into smaller groups, depending on the interest of the students.

All Occupational students will be placed in one class and two teachers will be in charge of the group, allowing for more individualized learning situations.

STUDENT INTERNS FROM SIMON FRASER UNIVERSITY

From September to December, 1966, which is the fall semester at Simon Fraser University, two students who are on the Professional Growth course at Simon Fraser University will be on staff at Summerland Secondary School. They will be assisting in the Mathematics and Science fields and will be under the guidance of two Summerland Secondary School teachers who will be appointed Associates in Education by Simon Fraser University. This internship programme gives the students an opportunity to spend sixteen weeks in a school observing, assisting and teaching.

OPEN HOUSE

Early in the school year, the citizens of Summerland will be invited to the school in order to observe the new facilities and new equipment. It is hoped that many people in the community will take this opportunity to tour the school. It is anticipated that students will be in attendance working on much of the new equipment and this should give Summerlanders a real opportunity to understand the purpose of many of the new courses which will be initiated into the present programme.

NEW ADDITION AND EQUIPMENT

The new addition to the Summerland Secondary School has been completed and will be in operation on September 6. New areas include:

New Construction shop, new Metalwork shop, new combined Foods, Textiles and Home Furnishing rooms, five new classrooms complete with movable partitions.

The first group of students completing secondary school on the new curriculum are going into grade 12 this year. Several new courses are being offered and many thousands of dollars worth of equipment is being installed in order to teach the new courses.

Grade 12 students completing under the new programme may qualify in four areas: Academic-Technical, Commercial, Industrial Education, and Community Services.

NEW STAFF MEMBERS

Two former teachers of Summerland Secondary School will bereturning to Summerland this September. Mrs. K. M. Thomson, teacher of Home Economics, is coming from McNicoll Park School in Penticton and Mr. F. J. Bevis, who will teach Electricity 9 and the Occupational class, comes from Enderby. Mr. K. E. Carrington, an Industrial Education teacher, taught in South Slocaan last year; Mr. L. M. Christopherson, who will teach Geography 12, General Business 11 and Physical and Health Education, comes from Prince Rupert; Mr. Arthur Halleran, a teacher of Commercial subjects, from North Vancouver; and Miss Elaine Johnson, who will teach junior French and Social Studies, from Sackville, N.B.

Mrs. Thomson and Mr. Halleran bring many years of teaching experience to the school. Mrs. Thompson 26 years and Mr. Halleran 32 years, all in B.C.

Threat From "Down Under"

The canning industry in British Columbia has been taking about half the annual production of Okanagan peaches.

Last year our peach crop was a total failure following the early winter suz-zero temperatures. Unable to get Okanagan peaches, canners imported American fruit at very high prices.

The canners considered it good business to keep their brand on the food market shelves even if they lost money on it. Once lost to another product shelf space could be very difficult to recover.

This year the canners are again buying our Okanagan peaches, but B. C. Tree Fruits Ltd. and the canners failed to agree on a price until the early peach harvest was under way.

We now learn the canners were reluctant to agree on a price until they had studied a new threat to their business — imported Australian canned peaches.

It seems that Australian canned peaches are being wholesaled in Vancouver at prices lower than Canadian peaches, and naturally the B. C. canners are worried about it.

Australian peach and apricot production is increasing rapidly — up 20 percent over last year. Their canning industry is also experiencing a substantial increase.

The Australian government levies a tax on domestic consumption, and the money from this source goes into a fund to subsidize canned fruit exports.

Because of this subsidy Australian canned peaches can be laid down in Vancouver at prices lower than the Canadian product which receives no government subsidy.

Apparently the arrangement is perfectly legitimate. It is outside the limitations of GATT (General Agreement on Tariff and Trade), and dump duties do not apply.

This makes very stiff competition for Canadian canning companies, and of course it is felt right back to the peach grower who must have a canner outlet to take about half the crop.

As it looks today there may be some hope of getting a favorable adjustment if it can be shown that such imports cause a burden on the industry in the importing country.

Not a strong crutch to lean on, but it may be all we need.

Many Fair entries are expected

Exhibit Chairman, Charles Bernhardt is anticipating a good list of entries for the annual Summerland Fall Fair, September 10.

It is expected to be a full action packed day. In recent years it has been spread over two days, but it was felt exhibits will be seen at only their best and with proper organization, there will be no difficulty in completing all activities.

The doors will open at 11:00 a.m. and the Pet Parade will be on their way at 2:00 p.m. The South Okanagan 4H Club will be on hand again this year for the second time. A popular attraction last year. This showing will take place at 3:30 on the south side of the arena.

Following this, the Summerland Trail Riders will put on a demonstration of horsemanship.

Miss Summerland, Queen Rita Rusaw and her Princesses, Dianne Selinger and Pat Gill-espie will be presented at 8:30 after official greetings are offered by government officials.

The Penticton City Band will be on hand as will Lois Goodland who will favor the crowd with a few numbers on the accordion.

The Horticultural Society, who play a very large part in the fair will receive their awards at 9:00 p.m. followed by the draws for door prizes, etc.

LET'S GET NEWSY . . .

Gloria Tilbe exchanges wedding vows at Summerland United Church

The marriage of Gloria Jean Tilbe, daughter of Mr and Mrs. F. G. Tilbe of Summerland to Douglas James Okerstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Okerstrom of Victoria, took place on Saturday, August 20 at 2 p.m.

Rev. P. K. Louie performed the ceremony at the Summerland United Church. The church was beautifully decorated with arrangements of gladiola and dahlias in autumn colours. The pew markers were white ribbon with a yellow rosebud in the center of each bow.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked radiant in a floor length gown of white bordered linen. A-line styled, with a rounded neckline and bell-shaped sleeves to the elbow. The trim was of hand-made lace in a floral pattern applied on the sleeves and front of gown. A train of the same fabric fell from the shoulders and was also applied with lace. She wore a 4-tiered chapel length veil with headpiece resting at the front of the head in a circular arrangement of white ribbons and lily-of-the-valley. She carried a cascading bouquet of white pom-pom chrysanthemums and talisman roses.

Maid-of-honour was Miss Florence Johnson of Summerland and the bridesmaid was Miss Susan Skinner of Prince George. The little flowergirl was Miss Brenda Lemke of Abbotsford.

The senior bridesmaids were gowned identically in Dutchess satin in Autumn Copper colour, A-line styling with bell-shaped sleeves. They carried cascading bouquets of autumn coloured mums. The flowergirl was in all yellow sleeveless A-line styled gowns and carried a woven straw basket containing autumn yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. The headpieces were of matching fabric styled in the shape of a single rose with matching veiling.

The reception, held in the Rosedale Room of the Summerland Royal Canadian Legion was decorated with floral arrangements in Autumn tones. The brides' table looked lovely with tall white tapers set in silver holders and two small table arrangements of red roses. The beautifully decorated three tiered cake was topped by white lily-of-the-valley.

The bride's mother received guests wearing an attractive beige ensemble with pink accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, dressed in a lovely co-ordinate of apricot tones.

Toast to the bride was given by W. D. Lemke, North Vancouver, uncle of the bride.

A telegram of congratulations was read from Mr. and Mrs. Slater of Victoria.

Out of town guests came from Vancouver, North Vancouver, North Surrey, Victoria, Abbotsford, Powell River, Golden, Calgary, Fort Macleod, Moose Jaw (Sask.), Whitefish, Falls (Ont.) and Osyoos.

Before leaving by car on their honeymoon to points in southern B.C. and the United States, the bride changed to a lovely white two-piece suit enhanced with accessories of celery green. The jacket buttoned at the back and was trimmed with white crocheted lace. Her hat of celery green had a large picture brim. Accented by a pink rosebud corsage.

The newlyweds will make their home at University Gardens, 800 Clarke Road, Port Moody, B.C.

Mrs. Blanch Grover of Santa Cruz, Calif. has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Kirk and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nicholls.

Visitors with Mr. and Mrs. T. Ritchie were Don and Peggy Ritchie of Prince Rupert. Also Alden and Mrs. Nickerson and two daughters of Grimshaw, Alberta.

Visitors with Mr. Vern Charles last week were Walter and Mary Charles of Edmonton and Mrs. Lorna Kolhn and three children of Vancouver.

Practical Christianity

Practical Christianity is and always has been the best advertisement for Christ on earth. Even the most magnificent edifice with all its stained glass windows, plush carpets and marble altars bring little glory to God as compared to one life lived according to the principles of the teachings of God's Son.

You are writing a Gospel, a chapter each day, By the deeds that you do, by the words that you say. Men read what you write whether faithful or true, Just what is the Gospel according to you!

You are writing each day, a letter to men. Take care that the writing is true. 'Tis the only Gospel some men will read, The Gospel according to you.

Every Christian has a responsibility to "work out" his salvation. That does not mean to work "for" but to work "out" or to live out or in other words to put into practise true Christian conduct. We must go to the Bible to learn the true Christian standards that constitute Christian Conduct. Having them learned by what standards a Christian should live, we need to pray earnestly for the help of the Holy Spirit to make us successful in living the Christian life. You see . . . prayer not only changes things, it changes people too. You talk to God about power, and He will talk to you about purity. Talk to God about happiness and He will talk to you about holiness.

It is true that seven days without prayer makes one weak. You need strength and purity to live the Christian life. It takes infinitely more courage and character to live for God than to live for Satan. It takes an abundance of grit and many qualities to walk in the ways of the Spirit rather than follow the ways of the flesh. It takes real determination and faith to live for the things of eternity instead of the perishable things of time.

Show me a man who lives the Christian life and I will show you a man most worthy to be called a man! If the Christian is careful it is because he is prayerful. If he becomes careless it is because he is prayerless. Remember that the Devil cringes when he sees the weakest Christian on his knees.

And then too, we do well to remember that our life is a stewardship and not an ownership, to do with as we please. Ye are not your own, ye are bought with a price . . . not with silver or gold but with the precious blood of Jesus our Saviour.

Weekend visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Harry McKee were their daughter, Vicki and Mr. Bruce Huxtable of Vancouver who attended both the "Tilbe and "Munro" weddings.

Basementless houses cut costs

The basementless house is more popular in the warmer sections of Canada where there is no severe or prolonged freezing period. But basementless houses can also be designed for colder climates. With proper insulation around the edges of the house at ground level, they can be kept warm and comfortable.

A low-lying basementless house may have greater eye-appeal than the house with foundation walls projecting above ground. The sleek flowing lines of the single level house without a basement provide the architect with greater freedom of design. The distinctive ranch style homes that we find in some of our better subdivisions are often of the basementless type. With proper footings, basementless homes need not be limited to one story houses.

There are some attractive two-storey homes built without excavation. Project homes have also been built without basements permitting a measurable economy in cost. The use of compact heating units has assisted in the mass design of such homes. Storage space normally provided for in the basement is located in a separate closet or in a closed-in space attached to the garage or carport.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Crawford were home after spending a few days visiting with their daughter, Mrs. Joan Hurson and family. Joan came home with them and they all left again Wednesday to meet Mr. Hurson in Vancouver.

Visiting at the K. Bergh home this week were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Stitt and family, Calgary and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Anderson and daughter Cindy from Claresholm, Alta.

New school buses here by weekend.

Secretary Hack said the new school buses were expected on the weekend.

A new bus schedule was accepted by the trustees. This will be made known to the public before school opens.

On most routes, the children will have less time on the buses ranging from 5 to 20 minutes per day. Some will remain about the same.

A Secondary School route will leave the school 20 minutes later. Mr. Hack said, the reason for this was they were receiving complaints of elementary school children getting home too late in Garnett Valley so this one was improved at the expense of the older students on the Paradise Flat - Giant's Head run.

Tenders were invited to cover the new buses with insurance from Summerland firms and from their present insurance brokers, Reid, Shaw and McNott, Vancouver.

Two Summerland firms, Read & Pruden and Leonard's Insurance, requested in some departments. Akit Insurance tendered $621.00 for the year, while Reid, Shaw, McNott were $465.00. The lower tender was accepted.

The buses will be driven by municipal employees this year. A meeting with the drivers, Works Superintendent Blagborne, School Superintendent Gordon Paton, the transportation committee, Secretary Hack and the Principals will be held to outline the lines of authority for the drivers.

Parents of five Meadow Valley Students have requested consideration for bus service. A pool car arrangement was used last year, but due to bad road conditions this may not be possible, the board is obligated to he set out on the quest for a rail way route through the Rockies which was highlighted by his discovery of Eagle Pass.

Moberly died in comparative poverty in Vancouver at the age of 83. But his memory is kept alive by a school named in his honour in Vancouver and a monument at Revelstoke.

According to the municipal supply bus service to an area when there are 8 or more students involved. Although the board realize they are not bound by law to bus these children, they are going to seek a possible solution. Secretary Hack was requested to the possibility of contracting this transportation.

Miss Geraldine Evans former teacher at the Trout Creek School, requested permission to rent a classroom and piano to give music lessons each Saturday.

Trustee McIntosh was of the opinion school facilities should be used as much as possible, but questioned the wisdom of using a classroom because there are occasions when teachers come back to work on Saturday. He felt some other room should be used.

Trustee Millmore said it would be handy for Trout Creek students if arrangements could be made.

Miss Evans has been appointed relief teacher at Trout Creek for the coming year.

It was decided that accommodation would be made available subject to the approval of Principal McNabb on the condition that school activities must take priority.

Trustees expressed regret and concern about the statement Councilor Doug Hill had made at the council meeting the previous night.

Hill, was speaking of recent legislation which prohibits property assessments, for school purposes, to increase more than five percent of the previous year assessment.

RAILWAYS

Railway operating revenues of the two lines in Canada, excluding highway transport, telecommunications and other ancillary operations, totalled $1,064,888,184 in 1963. Railway expenses rose to $1,023,181,202 and net earnings before fixed charges amounted to $41,206,882.

On a total Canadian registration basis, there was one motor vehicle for every 31 persons in 1963, compared with the United States ratio of one motor vehicle for every 23 persons.

200 Oddfellows witness exchange of flag ceremo

Members of the International Order of Oddfellows Saturday witnessed an exchange of American and Canadian flags in a special ceremony at Oroville.

The exchange of flags was organized by the Oliver and Oroville lodges to fit in with the fall meeting of District No. 17 of the I.O.O.F. held in Oroville.

Attending the exchange of flag ceremonies were lodge members from throughout the Okanagan Valley, Princeton, the lower mainland and from lodges throughout the north-western United States.

Officers of the I.O.O.F. attending the exchange of flag ceremony were: James Main, Sovereign Grand Master of the I.O.O.F. of the world; I. Slaybaugh, Grand Master Jurisdiction of Washington and Alaska and Parker H. MacDougall, Grand Master Jurisdiction of British Columbia.

Flag bearers for the two countries were Cecil Cope, Victory Lodge No. 56, Oliver and Oscar Thornton, Oroville Lodge No. 225. Narrators for the ceremony were Bert Charlish, Cliver and Elmer Bruns, Oroville. Cope and Charlish were chosen to represent the Oliver Lodge at the special ceremonies because they are the only two charter members remaining in Victory Lodge. The Lodge is 21 years old and received its name Victory Lodge because it was

CANADA MAJOR CONTRIBUTOR

Canada is the sixth largest contributor to the United Nations regular budget and pays 3.12 per cent of the organization's net expenditures. In 1964, Canada's share of the gross regular budget of $101,000,000 was approximately $2,530,000, and its assessment for the United Nations peace-keeping operations in the Middle East and Congo was about $1 million. The cost of its contingent in Cyprus was about $4 million in 1964. In addition, Canada makes voluntary contributions to special United Nations programs such as the Expanded Program of Technical Assistance (EPTA), the Special Fund, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) the United Nations Relief and Works Agency in the Middle East (UNRWA).

Canadian contingent at the border from where the county sheriff led the one-mile parade of cars to Oroville. At the village boundary the cavalcade of cars was met by Oroville officials and escorted to the elementary school grounds for coffee.

At lunch time '52 sat down for a turkey dinner. Business meetings were held following the dinner.

INTERNATIONAL BACKGROUND

On the world scene, Canada stood in fifth place amongst the principal trading nations, according to 1963 total figures, the latest complete returns available. The United States was the leading country, followed by West Germany, Britain and France. Canada was next and preceded such other important traders as Italy, Japan and the Netherlands.

More than 200 members of the International Order of Oddfellows and Rebekahs witnessed the exchange of flags Sunday between the Oliver and Oroville Lodges. Present for the ceremony was the Sovereign Grand Master of the World, representing the Oliver contingent was Noble Grand of the Oliver Lodge Roy Henderson.
